Cross bearing in some form or other, is a necessity to every disciple of Jesus Christ. No doubt the cross they had to carry in the early days was an exceedingly heavy and hard cross to bear, and the cross that our forefathers had in the reformation, was a heavy enough one to bear, but I wish you to remember that the cross was not peculiar to the age of the persecution era.

We know very well that there are some things in the services we owe to God, which are not easy. It is then that our discipleship is put to a test. Shall me shirk our obligation or shall we take up our cross. You know a man does not like to be told that the tone of his family life is not pitched in the right key. I mention this to illustrate that there are many things in our own heart and conscience which Jesus wishes us to say, which will not be easy for us to say.

Cross bearing is necessary in order that we may have communion with Christ. If we are His children, resting on having placed our destiny in His hands then we must have communion. For what is communion but fellowship? Shut two men upon an Island and what fellowship will prevail? In time one of them will come up a little and the other will go down a great deal; yet there was nothing in common between them at the beginning.

I characterise again that cross bearing is necessary for the work to which Christ has called us. Sometimes the cross meets a young man right on the threshold of life, when he is about to choose a calling. Now, what are the young man's motives when he chooses his calling. How can I get the best—how can I make other men serve me. Were those the motives that influenced Jesus. No great life can ever arise out of such motives, but only narrow existences. A young man has to study what gifts God has given him and he must try to follow them. I speak this because there are many young men in this city who are just completing their education and are not decided upon what to do.

Then, in making known the truth to others the cross meets us very often. There are some people who can be gathered in quite easily, but there are some individuals who stand out against the truth. Then what should be our action against the latter? Should we not try to help them?

This cross-bearing is also necessary for the result that it produces on our own lives. You hear it from the pulpit that God can do all the things which we do. Why then does He ask us to do them? You know that when the first of September comes and the children have finished their holidays, that it is pretty hard for them to go back, hunt up their books and sit down in a stuffy school room. But we have to force them to do it, or otherwise they would never have that mental training which is necessary to them. Successful work of the Lord means a greater degree of cross-bearing. "I was hungry and Ye fed me; I was thirsty and ye gave Me drink; I was naked and ye clothed Me; I was a stranger and ye took Me in. Lord when saw we Thee and took Thee in," says the religious one, when saw we Thee a stranger and took Thee in, and the Lord shall say: Inasmuch as ye have one it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

In The Woods On Sunday

The woods are full of interest for most people during these fine spring days, an interest it would be difficult to define; but it is there, intangible and impelling. Like old books and old friends there is a spontaneous appeal all along your path through the reincarnated woods. There is a light gaiety, a sense of gladness and hopefulness springing up on every hand, and the whole is one harmonious scheme of light, sound and colour. The sun possesses a warmth and brilliance that is touching the trees and ground with a new life. A mysterious transformation is going on almost under your eyes. The leaves are budding, the seeds are germinating, the birds are mating, the flowers are swelling into bloom. Nature is reproducing herself. Quite ordinary and commonplace, some exclaim, and it is so evident that an explanation is unnecessary. True enough. The sun has crept north every spring, for ages, shedding its warmth and performing its share of the work in Nature's laboratory. You grow accustomed to this recurrection of Nature year after year, but who would deny the presence of a guiding, though unseen hand?

There is vigour in the very colours of the spring, in contrast with the faded beauty of the fall. Green predominates in many shades, deep and rich with a new life. The sounds are full and round. The birds' notes are defiant as they seek convenient places for their summer homes that will soon be hidden away among the leaves. Truly it is good to be alive, and to be impregnated with the spirit of the season.

And whom do you meet on the country side on a Sunday morning, or afternoon? There is the small boy, with an air-gun that he concealed under his coat until the city limits were safely passed. There is the youth with a revolver or rifle, whose delight it is to hit squirrels, robins or crows, or if nothing better offers, to plug holes in a post or an old tin can. The woods would be safer without this element. Then there is the man who loves the quiet of the country, and the joy of a walk where the ground is soft and yielding, and the air is laden with the fragrance of the pines and cedars. There is the man, too, a dreamer he may be, whose delight it is to sit on the top rail of a fence and let his vision lose itself in the maze of shrubs and trees while his mind travels afar.

There is also the man who delights in a long stroll. The Old Countryman, for instance, is, in many cases, a confirmed walker. Ten miles is but a jaunt to him on a bright Sunday morning. He may have belonged to a cycling or walking club in his old home, and a long walk is but a morning's exercise. Then, again, there are some men who prefer to lounge along the country roadsides to going to church. Possibly they are not numerous, but you find them just the same.

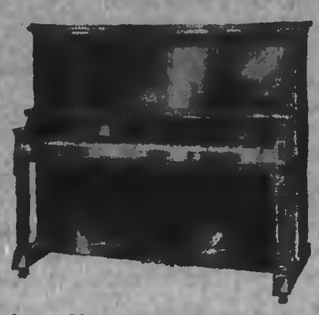
The Piano of the Period



New Scale Williams

The music student, the amateur and the finished musician go about the selection of a piano with a somewhat different viewpoint from the average layman. They have a more definite idea of what constitutes Real Artistic Tone Quality. They have different standards, perhaps more exacting, from which to judge tonal effects, and the fact, therefore, that hundreds of New Scale Williams Pianos have been purchased by musicians, is of special significance. It presents the verdict of a competent jury; one which the intending purchaser of a piano can well afford to take into careful consideration. It is the beautiful singing quality as well as the attractive appearance of these pianos which appeals to the artistic sense of the trained musician and music lover.

THE GREATEST LADIES' SUIT SALE

of the Season

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will see one of the biggest Ladies' Suit Sales of the season. We bought an array of stunning garments at practically the cost of materials, and the assortment and values included are almost beyond description. We purchased every sample suit from one of Toronto's largest and best known manufacturers of Suits and Cloaks, and the result is we place on sale Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Suits that for quality, style and workmanship would be hard to equal at $25, $27.50, $30 and $32.50.

The Price for Lot No. 1 will be for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday only

The Materials

The materials used in these Suits are fine French and Mannish Serges; English Tweeds and Scotch Homespuns and Mannish Worsteds, also many soft Cheviots, heavy ribbed diagonal weaves and black and white stripe Serges.

In Lot No. 2 you will find a large variety of styles, from the fancy Coats, with ¾ sleeves and new envelope and side pleated skirts, to the staple strictly plain tailored styles, with high waisted panel Skirt. There are 50 Suits in the lot, and when you see the quality and style of these suits you will readily be convinced that this is the biggest price saving event on Ladies' Suits ever offered. Suits that would sell regularly at $17.50, $20 and $22.50, will sell Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, at

The Shades

All the new shades are represented in these Suits, including tan, light and dark greys in worsteds and mixtures—also all the new shades of blue, with plenty of black and navy serges predominating.

Piles Not Taken Seriously

"Annoying, but not dangerous," seems to be the way many think of piles in the early stages. But gradually they become worse, until they prevent sleep, undermine the nervous system and make a wreck of life.

When the doctor is finally consulted he considers the case so serious that he recommends the surgeon's knife as the only means of cure. It may cure or it may kill. The risk is yours.

But there is an easier and surer way to relieve and cure piles. That is by applying Dr. Chase's Ointment. The earlier you begin the cure of this ointment the quicker the cure. But you need not be discouraged because you have suffered for ten or fifteen years. It would be difficult to imagine worse cases than have been cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment. Relief comes at once and cure is just as certain if you persist in the use of this great ointment.

Porter's Gun Was Empty

Victoria Rifles, Lindsay. You may bet if Lew had had his own gun, I don't think he would have missed me. It was his father's, a 44.

Met Porter Again.

"About how long after he (Porter) fired the first shot at you, before you again met him?"

"Well, I should say about 5 or 10 minutes, and when I saw him coming, I stepped off the road and got behind a small balsam tree to let him pass. Not if I had of kept my mouth shut after he had passed, it would have been all right, but I said something and he turned and fired at me. That bullet nipped right past my face and made me warm up, and it was not long before that old Enfield cracked.

Porter's Ammunition Gone.

"How far were you away from him?"

"I should think we were about 50 or 60 feet apart, perhaps not that far. He came rapidly towards me. You see, he had no more ammunition, just the two bullets; but I did not know that at the time, so I let her crack again, soon as I got loaded. Can't tell where I hit him the first time. Was not sure if I had, as he was coming towards me, but the second shot sent him partly down. Then I loaded and let her go again, which brought him down."

"How long before you went to where the body was lying?"

Hid the Body.

"Well, I heard him say something after I fired the last shot, but could not catch it. Then I went over to him and carried him about 20 rods in on an old trail road. Of course, I couldn't carry him slick and clean. I dragged and carried him. They say he weighed 180 pounds.

"Did you put his gun where it was found?"

"Yes. Picked it up first and threw it alongside of the road."

"Had you any idea of saying anything about the shooting before the body was found by the searching party?"

Let Them Find It Out.

"No; just intended to let them find it out. I expected they would. I did it. Can't help matters any now. I know it will worry father and kill poor old mother."

So far as the shooting is concerned it does not seem to worry Ellis, but he does not like the confinement. He is a bright, smart-looking fellow. When the Examiner was about to leave, he asked Ellis if he wanted some tobacco and he replied:

"There are two things I never touched—whiskey and tobacco."

He admits that if Porter had been properly armed there would have been no chance for him, as Porter was known to be one of the best shots in this section.

SPRING CLEANING

Work Should Be Arranged in a Methodical Manner

DISCARD USELESS ARTICLES

Spring cleaning may be an evil, but it is a very difficult one for many housekeepers to escape, for it is really essential from the hygienic point of view that carpets should be taken up and beaten and cleaned, heavy curtains taken down and cleaned before being put away for the summer; repapering, painting and whitewashing done where necessary, floors stained and repolished, etc., only to mention a few items to which attention must be paid.

The work should be arranged in a methodical fashion; also arrangements should be made to have the cleaning carried out while the family is from home, for it is manifestly unfair to expect the servants to get through the work of housecleaning and have their ordinary work to do at the same time.

If, however, it is impossible for all the members of the family to be away the rooms should be done systematically, so that the whole house shall not be in a state of upheaval, for, although a man may appreciate the fact that his house is dainty and attractive in appearance, he usually fails to realise that a certain amount of work and trouble is essential to keep it up to the height of perfection to which he has grown accustomed.

AWAY WITH OLD STUFF.

There is one great advantage of a spring cleaning, and that is the necessity for going through all the drawers and making a clearance. Every member of the household should make a point of discarding everything for which he or she has no use, for there is nothing more inimical to real tidiness than the hoarding of quantities of unnecessary and often utterly useless garments or knickknacks. It is well to remember in this connection that many charitable organizations are glad to have and are prepared to collect unconsidered trifles in the way of clothing, etc.

There should be a sufficient supply of rubbers, dusters, house flannel, dusting sheets, scrubbing brushes, brooms, ammonia (which is simply invaluable for all kinds of cleaning), soap, metal and furniture polish, etc., so that everything will be on hand with which to do the work. Remember to procure the requisite outside help if there is more work than one woman can reasonably get through with. Last, but by no means least, provide those who are working with kneelers for use when scrubbing.

PUTTING BLANKETS AWAY.

All the blankets should be washed

Five Points in New York is a spot that was as near hell as any spot on earth. There are five streets that run to a point and right in the middle was an old brewery and the streets on either side were lined with grog shops. The newspapers turned a searchlight on the district, and the first thing that they had to do was to buy the old brewery and turn it into a mission and to-day it is a decent, respectable place.

The saloon is the sum of all villainies. It is worse than war or pestilence. It is the crime of crimes. It is the parent of crimes and the mother of sins. It is the appalling source of misery and crime in the land and the principal source of crime.

It is the principal source of crime and of course it takes three-fourths of all the taxes to support that crime.

Browning Centenary.

Toronto, May 8.—One hundred years ago yesterday was born Robert Browning, the poet of "invincible optimism." The centenary was fittingly celebrated at the University of Toronto, when the large amphitheatre of the physics building was crowded to listen to a lecture on the works and life of the poet by Prof. Law. Brief addresses were also delivered by Rev. J. R. Hutcheon, Sir Byron E. Walker, Dr. S. Morley Wickett and others, largely along lines of personal reminiscences of the early days of the Browning Club.

At the close of the meeting the chairman, Prof. Alexander, announced that an effort was to be made to found some more permanent memorial, which might take the form of a scholarship.

Scaffold Fell With 11 Men.

Montreal, May 8.—One man was killed and several injured yesterday when a swinging scaffold, attached to the Ritz Carlton Hotel building on Sherbrooke street fell with eleven men.

The apparatus was suspended by steel ropes thrown over an iron beam. The movement of the men caused this beam to turn over on its side and bend, and the cables slipped off, precipitating the scaffold and its human load of eleven men to the ground.

A bricklayer, Christian Moteau, was killed outright, while Harry Baker, James Murray and Philip Tremblay, were injured. The others escaped with slight bruises.

C.N.R. Montreal Plans.

Montreal, May 8.—The Canadian Northern Railway is considering the electrification of its lines in Montreal and an electric route to Ottawa.

MANY WILL ATTEND

Notables Pay Last Respects to Judge Mabee

BURIAL IN PORT ROWAN

Toronto, May 8.—A special train left the Union Station at 9.15 this morning, carrying the remains of the late Hon. J. P. Mabee to the little town of his birth—Port Rowan, on the north shore of Lake Erie—where the beloved jurist and chairman of the Dominion Railway Board, passed his boyhood and early manhood days. The body was taken in the Railway Commissioner's private car attached to a special train. There will be a great number of mourners, including judges, railway officials, lawyers and many friends in other walks of life, who will go to the lake port, where the casket will be lowered in the cemetery on the edge of the town to rest alongside those of the late mother and wife of Judge Mabee.

It is more than likely that a number of Cabinet Ministers from Ottawa, members of the Dominion and Provincial Legislatures and different organizations will attend the funeral. Mayor Geary, Controller Church and Harry Drayton, K.C., corporation counsel, will represent the city and twelve members will represent the Board of Trade, namely, Messrs. G. T. Somers, the president, and J. D. Allen, J. W. Wood, J. W. Moyes, J. F. Ellis, Hugh Blain, D. Wood, D. W. Band, John Mejady, C. B. Watts and F. G. Morley.

Hon. Mr. Mabee's body rested in the rooms of W. J. Humphrey & Sons, undertakers, Church and Maitland street, since the death in St. Michael's Hospital, in a heavy oak casket, richly-lined. A. D. Mabee, a brother, for the family, and R. Richardson, the late jurist's private secretary, made the funeral arrangements, which in most particulars follow the arrangements made by Mr. Mabee himself when his wife died two years ago. The funeral will go directly from the train to the Anglican Church in Port Rowan, which Judge Mabee attended when he lived in the town and when he visited there. The burial services will be read by Rev. Mr. Williams, rector of the church.

The Hon. Sir W. R. Meredith, C.J., C.P., said on the opening of chambers yesterday: "Before proceeding with the business of the day, reference should be made to the great loss which the profession, the bench and the country have sustained owing to the death of the chief commissioner of the Board of Railway Commissioners of Canada.

"Mr. Mabee, after a long, successful and honorable career at the bar, was appointed a justice of the high court and a member of the chancery division on Nov. 17, 1909, and brought to the duties of his high office all those qualities which the federal office adorn. His urbanity, his sound common-sense and his knowledge of law marked him out when a vacancy occurred in the important position of chief commissioner owing to the death of Mr. Killam, as a fit successor to that gentleman. No man could have been chosen who more fully in all respects met the requirements of the high office to which he was then called. His unimpeachable integrity, his broad common sense, and his knowledge of affairs, eminently fitted him for dealing with the large problems with which he had to deal in the performance of the duties of that office."

At the session yesterday afternoon of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, Chairman Leitch announced that out of respect for the late Judge Mabee the Board will hold no public session today, and Mr. Kittson will represent the board at the funeral. The chairman stated that Judge Mabee's death was a great public loss, as he was a thoroughly trained and capable lawyer, of unusual demonstrative abilities. He was a strong man, without a sign of vacillation, in his dealings with the many important public questions coming before him for a decision.

Hamilton's Respects.

Hamilton, May 8.—As a mark of respect to the late Judge Mabee, Mayor Lees, several of the aldermen and other officials will be present at the Grand Trunk Railway station, when the body of the late chairman of the Railway Commission passes through the city, en route to Port Rowan.

Controller Bailey, Ald. Dr. Davey and Ald. Dr. Hopkins will join the funeral party at the station here and will represent the city at the obsequies at Port Rowan. Mayor Lees will be unable to attend the funeral on account of important engagements which he cannot cancel.

Final Battle in Mexico.

Mexico City, May 8.—Gen. Huerta, federal commander at Torreon, has started his troops on the march northward to meet the main body of rebels, under Orozco, and fight what it is believed will be the deciding battle of the revolution.

Orozco is credited with commanding about 8,000 rebels, and Huerta's force was recently estimated at 4,000. Since then, however, recruits have been pouring into his camp, and it has been said he has an army equal or superior in numbers to that of the rebel leader.

BRITISH ENQUIRY.

Public Not Taking Much Interest in Titanic Disaster.

London, May 8.—The apathy of the British public, which has been one of the features thus far of the Board of Trade enquiry into the Titanic disaster, was again demonstrated by the thin attendance when the commissioners, under the presidency of Lord Mersey, resumed their investigation yesterday morning.

Some members of Parliament and attorneys applied to Lord Mersey to be permitted to represent the engineers' union and some of the passengers of the Titanic. Lord Mersey acquiesced in some of the applications, but refused others on the ground that the presence of too many counsel threatened to involve the enquiry in inextricable confusion.

The first witness called yesterday was George Beauchamp, a fireman of the Titanic, who testified:

"I did not know which was my boat station. I heard a list had been put up that morning, but I did not see it. None had been put up before."

Beauchamp said he could not tell whether the passengers were traveling first or third-class. There was no light, compass, provisions nor water in the boat. Everyone looked for them.

Beauchamp testified that he had had no boat drill on the Titanic, nor had he seen any. He had been ten years at sea and on most of the liners on which he had been engaged there was a weekly boat drill. On the liner New York boat drill was held on Sundays.

Beauchamp made the statement that a stoker took charge on boat No. 16.

Quartermaster Robert Hichens testified that he was on duty on the bridge of the Titanic at 8 o'clock. Second Officer Lightholder, who was in charge, sent a message to the carpenter to look out for his fresh water for it was going to freeze. He heard Lightholder through the telephone give an order to the man in the crow's nest to keep a sharp lookout for ice and growlers.

Closely questioned by Sir Rufus Isaacs on the point of the speed of the Titanic, Hitchens testified that the log book showed it to have been 46 knots in two hours and that there was no change up to the time the Titanic struck the iceberg at 11.40.

Seaman W. Lucas caused some surprise at the inquiry in the afternoon by stating that it took him five minutes to get from his quarters to the boat deck; but the sailor hardly knew his way about the ship.

The testimony of the witnesses differed as to the chances the steerage passengers had to escape as the vessel was sinking. One thought they might have reached the boat deck if there had been any one to direct them, but he did not think any one was there to do so.

Seaman Lucas considered that the steerage passengers had no time to climb the five flights of ladders separating them from the boat deck.

HEARING MUST WAIT

Supreme Court Will Not Go On With Re Temere Case

BIG LAWYERS ARE PRESENT

Ottawa, May 8.—The Supreme Court yesterday morning postponed the hearing of the famous marriage case until the decision of the Privy Council in the Companies Act is rendered. However, Chief Justice Fitzpatrick in announcing the decision of the court to postpone the hearing, made it very clear that it was the intention to hasten the case as rapidly as possible.

"I understand," he said, turning to R. C. Smith, K.C., one of the counsel for Quebec, "that you object to the jurisdiction of the court to hear this case. In view of the fact that judgment in the Companies Act is now pending before the Privy Council, we have come to the conclusion to postpone the hearing. However, realizing the importance of the case and the anxiety of the Government to have it disposed of, we will try and hear argument as soon as convenient after the Privy Council judgment is rendered. We will endeavor to hear it during the May session, and, if necessary, may call together the court after adjournment, although, of course, it would not meet during the court holidays.

There was a brilliant array of counsel present to argue the case when the court assembled. Walter Nesbitt, K.C., and Eugene Lafleur, K.C., appeared for the promoters of the bill, providing for a federal marriage law. I. F. Hellmuth, K.C., and P. B. Mignault, K.C., appeared for those opposing the bill. These four lawyers were appointed by the Dominion. R. C. Smith, K.C., Amis Geoffrion and Auguste Lemieux, K.C., appeared for the Province of Quebec, and E. Bayly, K.C., represented Ontario.

E. A. Lancaster, M.P., the author of the bill, was present to watch proceedings.

Mr. Hays' Body at Montreal.

Montreal, May 8.—The body of C. M. Hays arrived at 11 o'clock yesterday, and is now at the family residence, on Ontario avenue. The funeral has been fixed for three o'clock this afternoon. It will be of a semi-private character, conducted by Rev. Dr. Edmonton, of the American Presbyterian Church.

A raised platform the whole width of the railway tracks was built so that the body might be carried off the special car, and the train was backed in against this platform. The platform and the doorways at the station were draped in black and purple. A big crowd was at the station when the train arrived. The casket, bore two wreaths from near relatives of Mr. Hays, one of carnations and white roses and the other of lilies.

They Get Nothing.

Toronto, May 8.—At a meeting of the memorial to the heroes of 1812-14 association, held at the King Edward Hotel yesterday afternoon, Lieut.-Col. William Hamilton Merritt, the president, stated that the executive of the association had been unable to persuade either the Ontario or the Dominion Government to make any grant towards the erection of a suitable memorial. Great disappointment was expressed by the members present at the failure to get Government aid for the project, as it had confidently been expected that such aid would have been given. In view of this it was decided to hold another meeting in the near future to consider the matter. A special committee was appointed to outline what future action should be taken.

Miners Getting Disorderly.

Pottsville, Pa., May 8.—Trouble which it was feared might develop yesterday morning in Shenandoah and other towns near here, failed to materialize. The state police are in full control. Fearing an attack, the Philadelphia and Reading Coal & Iron Co., during the night, brought in a large force of deputies. Cooking utensils and cots in storage in Pottsville since the strike of ten years ago, were shipped to Shenandoah.

Scranton, Pa., May 8.—Four hundred men, women and children, made a demonstration yesterday morning against men engaged on repair work at the Dickson Colliery of the Delaware & Hudson Co., this city. Women led the attacking party and three men were badly beaten.

Another Marine Strike.

London, May 8.—Another strike in the shipping trade has been precipitated by the National Sailors' and Firemen's Union, and the National Union of Cooks and Stewards, whose officials yesterday called out all the men in the employ of the Peninsular & Oriental Steamship Co.

The unions demand that at least two white men, as well as a coxswain, shall be carried for each lifeboat, which would mean a considerable increase in the European element among the crews.

The same demand will be made on all shipping companies.

Lord Mayor of Berlin to Resign.

Berlin, May 8.—The Berlin morning papers announce that the Lord Mayor of Berlin, K. S. Martin Kirschner, intends to resign shortly, and that Adolph Wermuth, the former Imperial Secretary of the Treasury, will succeed him.

EXPERTS HOPEFUL

RESCUE WORK GOING ON

New Orleans, La., May 8.—When the official river gauge at the head of Canal street registred 21.3 feet at 9 o'clock yesterday afternoon, a rise of four-tenths since 7 a.m., U. S. weather officials were of the opinion that the Mississippi had started on its final lap toward the predicted crest of 21.5 feet, which would mark the passing of the greatest flood recorded in the Mississippi Valley.

Clear weather and sunshine was reported yesterday at all points from the Terres Crevasse south to the mouth of the river. The work of rescuing marooned persons in isolated districts progressed more rapidly yesterday, and boats coming into concentration camps are usually loaded with women and children.

There is a scarcity of every kind of navigable craft, and everything that can be steered and carry passengers and supplies for even a short distance has been pressed into service. Hundreds of primitive flat boats that can be towed by motor boats are being constructed.

Work on the levees has been practically abandoned here. The hot sun yesterday baked the repair work done during the past three days, and the engineers are once more cheerful, many of them believing that the worst has passed. The levees have been inspected and pronounced in good condition. The work of strengthening the levees on the Algiers side has about been completed, and the experts believe more than a 22 foot stage can be held back.

Mayor Martin Behrman issued an appeal yesterday for funds and supplies for flood victims of the northern and east central portions of the state. The newspapers have taken up the task of raising funds in connection with the relief committees, and several thousand dollars and carloads and supplies have been sent out from this city.

Strike-Breaker Farley Dying.

New York, May 8.—James Farley, known as "king of strike-breakers," is dying from pneumonia at a hotel in Plattsburg. He made himself famous by undertaking to break the Brooklyn car strike here. He has also handled labor disputes in many other cities. He is still under 40.

Delegates Arrive.

Quebec, May 8.—One hundred and fifty delegates of the Federation of Brotherhoods of England arrived in Quebec this morning by the Royal Edward. The delegation is on its way to Toronto, where it will attend the convention of the Brotherhood of Protestant Churches of Canada, from the 10th to the 13th. The object is to organize a brotherhod federation for Canada, similar to that of Great Britain, which now numbers 1,000,000 members.

The mayor and representatives of the City Council went down and met them on the arrival of the steamer. The delegates were greeted by his worship the mayor and invited to come to the City Hall, where the full body of the council were in readiness to present them with a short address of welcome.

Impatient For Canal Opening.

Paris, May 8.—The approaching opening of the Panama Canal is occupying the attention of Government and commercial circles in France, which like other nations, is anxious to arrange for a coaling and docking station for the use of merchant steamers either on the Atlantic or the Pacific side of the canal and also for the opening up of new steamer routes to deal with the fresh traffic.

A special mission is now traveling in the French possessions near the Panama Canal with the object of selecting the most available location for a dock and coaling station.

New Steamer Bigger Than Titanic.

London, May 8.—Two new liners for the White Star Co. are at present under construction at the yards of Harland & Wolff, Belfast. One of these vessels, the keel of which was laid several months ago, will be nearly twenty feet longer than the Titanic, and will be fitted and finished throughout on the same imposing scale as were the Olympic and Titanic.

In view of the loss of the latter, the work of completing this new vessel will be accelerated. Every available man in Queen's Island works is engaged in order to have the liner finished as soon as possible.

It will be over a year before the new ship will be completed, and sufficient time will be afforded to embody the latest details regarding lifeboats and other life-saving appliances which the Board of Trade may direct after the forthcoming inquiry.

Protest Against Re Temere.

London, May 8.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—At a meeting of the Evangelical Alliance last night, it was stated that Premier Asquith had refused to receive a deputation on the question of the Re Temere decree.

Professor Webb Hayes moved a resolution calling upon the council to proceed with a great meeting of protest, imperial in character, and representing Reformed and Protestant churches throughout the Empire.

Derailed Cars Tie Up Line.

Toronto, May 8.—At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, two 30-ton coal cars left the rails at mileage four and a quarter on the C.P.R. and tied up the whole line until after midnight. Over 700 feet of the roadbed was torn up, involving rails and ties. All trains going north were held at East Don and Rosedale. The Trenton and Parry Sound passengers, and the Sudbury and Trenton trains coming into Toronto, were held up also.

BY RANDALL PARRISH

"The room is a perfect fright," she observed briskly, "but what can one expect in these pandemonium resorts. Really I had never been here before, or I shouldn't have come. They pay good money (though for talent, and we all have to live, you know. Also—are you in professional work?"

"Really I didn't suppose you were," she went on, "you don't look it. But there are so many who come to me to help them, that I have grow suspicious of every stranger. May I ask why you desired to see me?"

Another suspicion had taken possession of her mind, for the men of that section were never backward in exhibiting admiration, yet somehow this man did not seem exactly of that kind.

"I came merely because I was sent for, Miss Maclaire," he replied, his grey eyes once again upon her face. "Doctor Fairbain gave me your message; I am Jack Keith."

She looked the complete astonishment she felt, sitting up in the chair, her eyes filled with questioning doubt.

"Doctor Fairbain! My message! Surely you are mistaken I know no one of that name, and have sent no message."

"You did not express a desire to see me?"

She laughed, exhibiting a row of white teeth.

"Certainly not; not until this moment was I even aware of the existence of Mr. Jack Keith."

His own eyes smiled in response to the challenge of hers.

"I can assure you the surprise was mine also," he hastened to inform her, now more at ease, as he grasped the situation. "I could not understand how I had become known to you, yet I pledge you my word the message was actually brought. Of course you may suspicion otherwise, for I have seen you on the stage, and being a normal man, have wished that I could devise some excuse for meeting you."

"Indeed!" her eyebrows slightly uplifted.

"Yes, I make that confession frankly, yet this call comes from no such desire. I had no question when I came, but what I had been sent for—you will believe this?"

"I suppose I must, yet it seems very peculiar," she replied, feeling convinced that he was a gentleman, and troubled as to what she had best do. "Yet now that you have discovered your mistake——"

"I hope to take advantage of the opportunity," he broke in firmly, leaning slightly forward. "May I ask you a question?"

"I could hardly prevent it, and really I do not know that I have anything to conceal."

"Then I will risk the effort—do you know a man named Hawley—Bartlett Hawley?"

Her eyes did not falter, although a red spot shot into her cheeks, and her lips pressed together.

"No; that is, I have never met him," she acknowledged, just a trifle confused. "But I have received two letters signed by that name, and rather expected the gentleman would call upon me here in Sheridan during my engagement. Is that your mission? Were you sent by him, or are you Mr. Hawley?"

"I disclaim all relation, Miss Maclaire, even friendship. You, of course, know who this individual is?"

"Yet I presumed, yet can Ekra to know something even of the person he does business with. I have been acquainted with Hawley for several years, and have never been aware of any honourable business he was ever engaged in. He is a professional gambler, known on the frontier as 'Black Bart'; last night he was running a faro game across there in the 'Palace.' I cannot help wondering what kind of business such a fellow could possibly have with you, Miss Maclaire."

"What right have you to ask?" she began indignantly. "I am capable of deciding my own affairs. As I have told you I have never met Mr. Hawley, but I am not to be influenced against him merely by the denunciation of an avowed enemy. He has written me of something he has discovered which is of deep personal interest to me, and has promised to tell me the details, as well as place within my hands certain necessary papers."

"I appreciate your feelings," he said gently, as he paused, "but would you mind telling me the nature of those papers?"

There was something in Keith's face which told of honesty, and inspired confidence. Miss Maclaire's worldly experience had given her deep insight into the character of men, and somehow, as she looked into the clear grey eyes, she felt impelled to answer, a vague doubt of the unknown Hawley in her mind.

"They—they were papers to establish identity. He had discovered them by accident; they have to do with an inheritance. Really that is all I know, for he wrote very briefly, stating it would be safer to confer with me personally—only I imagine there is a large sum involved."

"From whose estate?"

"My grandfather's."

"And his name was?"

"Why—why, Mr. Keith, actually I do not know. It may seem strange, but—but I cannot even tell the names of my parents; I cannot remember either my father or mother. Oh, I do not know why I should tell you all this! Who are you, really? Why do you ask me such questions?"

He leaned forward, touched by the woman's emotion.

"Miss Maclaire," he said gravely. "I am not prying into your life needlessly, but am endeavouring to serve you as well as others. Hawley may indeed possess papers of great value, but if so they were not found by accident, but stolen fro mthe body of a murdered man. These papers may possibly refer to you, but if so Hawley himself does not believe it—he has simply chosen you to impersonate the right party because of your physical resemblance."

"Resemblance to whom?"

"To a young woman, a Miss Hope."

"But how do you know this Why detective"

"No, I am not a detective, but I cannot explain to you my interest. I am trying to serve you, to keep you from being drawn into a plot—"

"Rather to keep me from learning the truth, Mr. Jack Keith," she burst forth, rising to her feet indignantly. "You are here trying to prejudice me against Mr. Hawley. He is your enemy, and you have come to me stabbing him in the back for revenge. That is your interest. Well, I am going to see the man, and consider what he has to say. I don't care half so much about the money as I do to find out who I am. If he can throw any light on my early life, on my parentage, I shall be the happiest woman in the world. I am sorry I told you anything—but I am going to see him just the same. Perhaps he might tell me something about you."

They were both standing, the woman's eyes flashing angrily, defiantly, her hands clinched. Keith realising the false position into which he had drifted, hesitated to answer. He meant to tell her the whole story, and urge her to co-operate with him in learning the gambler's purpose. The woman impressed him as honest at heart, in spite of her life and environment; she was not one whom a swindler could easily dupe into becoming a tool.

"Miss Maclaire," he began, determined on his course, "listen to me for just a moment. I am——"

There was a rap at the door. The eyes of both turned that way, and then Keith backed slowly into the darkened corner beyond the window, his right hand thrust into the pocket of his coat. Miss Maclaire observed the movement, her lips smiling, a red flush on either cheek. Then she stepped across the room, and opened the door. Framed against the black background of the hall, his dark, rather handsome face clearly revealed as he fronted the window, his black audacious eyes fixed appreciatingly upon the lady, stood "Black Bart" Hawley. He saw no one but her, realized no other presence, had no thought except to make a good impression. He was facing a beautiful woman, whom he sought to use, and he bowed low, hat in hand.

"Miss Maclaire," he said pleasantly, "I trust you will pardon all that has occurred between us, and permit me to explain."

"I—I do not understand," she replied, puzzled by these unexpected words. "There has nothing occurred between us, I am sure, which requires explanation. Have we met before?"

The man smiled. Seeing the woman's face in the shadows he was still convinced she was the same he had last parted with on the Salt Fork. However, if she preferred to ignore all that, and begin their relations anew, it was greatly to his liking. It gave him insight into her character, and fresh confidence that he could gain her assistance. Anyhow, he was ready enough to play the game.

"Let us assume not," just the slightest trace of mockery in the tone, "and begin anew. At least, you will confess the receipt of my letters—I am Bartlett Hawley."

She cast a half-frightened glance toward Keith, and the man, following the direction of her eyes, perceived the presence of the other. His right leg came backward, his hand dropping to the belt, his form stiffening erect. Keith's voice, low but close in the silence, seemed to cut the air.

"Not a motion, Hawley! I have you covered."

"Oh, gentlemen, please don't!"

"Have no fear, Miss Maclaire; this game and I will settle our differences elsewhere, and not in your presence." He stepped forth into the middle of the room, revolver drawn, but held low at the hip, his watchful eyes never deserting the gambler's face.

"Back up against the wall, Hawley," he commanded. "I hardly need to tell you how I shoot, for we, at least, have met before. Now, I'm going out, and leave you to your interview with Miss Maclaire, and I wish you happiness and success."

He moved across to the opening, keeping his face towards his adversary; then backed out slowly, closed the door with a snap, and sprang aside to avoid any possibility of a bullet crashing after him. No sound of movement from within reached his ears, however, and he walked silently to the head of the stairs.

CHAPTER XXIII.
AN UNEXPECTED MEETING.

Keith paused at the landing, looking down into the deserted office, almost tempted to return and force Hawley into a confession of his purpose. It was easy for him to conceive what would be the final result of this interview between the artistic gambler and Miss Maclaire. In spite of the vague suspicion of evil which the plainsman had implanted within the woman's mind, the other possessed the advantage, and would certainly improve it. All conditions were decidedly in his favour. He merely needed to convince the girl that she was actually the party sought, and she would go forward playing the game he desired, believing herself right, totally unconscious of any fraud. The very simplicity of it rendered the plot the more dangerous, the more difficult to expose. Hawley had surely been favoured by fortune in discovering this singer who chanced to resemble Hope so remarkably, and who, at the same time, was in such ignorance as to her own parentage. She would be ready to grasp at a straw, and, once persuaded as to her identity and legal rights, could henceforth be trusted implicitly as an ally.

Realizing all this, and comprehending also how easily Hawley would win her confidence and overcome his warning by denouncing him as a fugitive from justice charged with murder, the temptation to return and fight it out then and there became almost overpowering. He had no fear of Hawley; indeed, physical fear had scarcely a place in his composition, but he was not as yet sufficiently fortified with facts for the seeking of such an encounter. He could merely guess at the truth, unable to produce any proof with which to meet the gambler's certain denial.

A man came in through the office, and began climbing the stairs. He was almost at the landing before Keith recognized him, for the other glanced up.

"Ah—seen her, I suppose?"

"Yes," returned Keith, not thinking it worth while to mention the lady's denial of having sent for him. "I have just come from there."

"Hum—thought you'd be through by this time—fine looking girl, ain't she?—believe I'll run in and chat with her myself."

"I would advise you to select some other time, Doctor," said the younger drily, "as the lady has a visitor at present."

"I judge so—'Black Bart' Hawley."

"Good Lord!" so startled his voice broke. "Did he see you?"

"Rather; I backed him up against the wall with a gun while I made my adieu."

"But what brought him there? Are they acquainted?"

"Don't ask conundrums, Doctor. He may be your rival with the fair lady for all I know. If he is, my sympathies are all with you. Only I wouldn't try to see Miss Christie just now; I'd wait for a clearer field. Hawley is probably not in the best of humour."

Fairbain stared into the face of the speaker, uncertain whether or not he was being laughed at.

"Reckon you're right," he acknowledged at last. "Tired, anyhow—been out all night—thought I'd like to see her again, though—finest looking woman I've met since I came West—remarkable eyes—well, I'll go along to bed—see you again to-morrow, Jack."

Keith watched the sturdy figure stump heavily down the hallway, loose boards creaking under his positive tread, and smiled to himself at the thought that he might have, indeed, become truly interested in the music-hall singer. Somehow, the doctor did not harmonize with the conception of love, or fit graciously into the picture. Still, stranger matings had occurred, and Cupid does not ask permission before he plays pranks with hearts. Keith turned again toward the stairs, only to observe a woman slowly cross the office and commence the ascent. She was in the shadow, her face even more deeply shaded by her hat, yet he stared at her in amazement—surely, it was Miss Maclaire! Yet how could it be? He had left that person scarcely five minute before in "26," and this stairway was the only exit. His hand grasped the rail, his heart throbbing strangely, as a suspicion of the truth crossed his brain. Could this be Hope? Could it be that she was here also? As her foot touched the landing, she saw him, her eyes lighting up suddenly in recognition, a wave of colour flooding her cheeks.

"Why, Captain Keith," she exclaimed, extending her gloved hand frankly, "you have been to my room, and were going away. I am so glad I came in time."

"I hardly thought to meet you," he replied, retaining her fingers in his grasp. "When did you reach Sheridan?"

"Only last night. I had no idea you were here, until Doctor Fairbain chanced to mention your name. Then I at once begged him to tell you how exceedingly anxious I was to see you. You see, I was sure you would come if you only knew. I really thought you would be here this morning, and remained in my room waiting, but there were some things I actually had to have. I wasn't out ten minutes, so you mustn't think I sent you a message and then forgot."

The nature of the mistake was becoming apparent, and Keith's grey eyes smiled as they looked into the depths of the brown.

"Your message had rather an amusing result," he said, "as the doctor informed me that Miss Christie Maclaire was the one who desired my presence."

"Miss Maclaire!" her voice exhibiting startled surprise. "Why—why—oh, I did forget; I never told him differently. Why, it was most ridiculous." She laughed, white teeth gleaming between the parted red lips, yet not altogether happily. "Let me explain, Captain Keith, for really I have not been masquerading. Doctor Fairbain and I arrived upon the same train last evening. He is such a funny man, but was very nice, and offered to escort me to the hotel. I remember now that although he introduced himself, I never once thought to mention to him my name. The town was very rough last night—the company had paid off the graders, I was told—and there was no carriage, so we were compelled to walk. I—I never saw such a mob of drunken men. One came reeling against me, and brushed aside my veil so as to see my face. The doctor struck him, and then the marshal came up—you know him, Bill Hickock—and the impudent fellow actually declared he knew me, that I was Christie Maclaire. I tried to explain, but they hurried me on through the crowd to the hotel, and I became confused, and forgot. Do you suppose they registered me by that name?"

"Quite likely; at least Fairbain still believes it was the fair Christie whom he so gallantly escorted last night."

"How provoking," her foot tapping the floor, a little wrinkle between her eyes. "It seems as though I couldn't escape that woman—does she—does she really look like me?"

RHEUMATISM IN THE SYSTEM

SIX YEARS CURED IN SIX DAYS

TO MFRS. "NERVILINE."

"The suffering I endured for six years with Rheumatism is beyond description. Every time I was exposed to cold or dampness meant that I had to go to bed. My muscles stiffened, my joints swelled, and any attempt at exertion brought on excruciating twinges. The pain shifted from one part to another and I was scarcely ever free from misery and sleeplessness. I took all kinds of liquid medicines, but they nearly all depressed my heart and I had to stop them. Then I was told of the wonderful power of Nerviline.

Nerviline

"If Nerviline had been made specially for my case it couldn't have been more successful. It sank right into the core of the painful part, gave me ease, allowed me to sleep, gave me the use of my arms and limbs—in fact, made a new man of me. I urge all Rheumatics to use 'Nerviline.'

A. E. TRAYONER.

The most wonderful pain-subduing substances in the world are in Nerviline—that's why it penetrates so quickly, why it instantly cures pain that other remedies can't even relieve. You'll be surprised how quickly sciatica, lumbago, or rheumatism are cured by Nerviline—seems almost magical the way it will cure a cold or sore throat. When the chest is sore and it hurts to draw a long breath, one rubbing with Nerviline is sufficient. So highly valued is Nerviline by those who use it, that many families consider it quite as good as a doctor or aches, pains, and minor ailments of every kind. Large 25c bottles are sold by all dealers.

Redistribution Bill Before Provincial House

Proposed New Constituency to be Formed With Biggar as Seat

The Provincial Parliament now have the new Distribution Bill framed up into working shape, and this will erect 15 new seats and make 54 seats for the whole province.

One of these new seats is allotted to our own town of Biggar, with a district extending thirty miles from east to west and from sixty to ninety miles from north to south, the deflection being caused by the North Saskatchewan River.

Starting from a point on the line between ranges 11 and 12 on the top of township 30, and proceeding straight north along this line to the North Saskatchewan river in township 40; then along the line of the river till reaching the line between ranges 17 and 18 in township 44, and proceeding south along this line to the N. E. corner of township 30 in range 18, and from there straight east to the starting point.

This gives the Biggar constituency an area of somewhere about 2,400 square miles, and includes the towns of Biggar, South Battleford, Macoby, Tregnor, Harris, Zealandia, Hershel, Palo, Osan, Mead, Vance, Neola, and a lot of other smaller places inside the area mentioned above.

Beautiful Indeed Is The St. Lawrence Now

SPRING has lent to the natural attractions of the historic river, the charm of her freshness, and soft-hued colorings. Everywhere within eye-sketch stretches a flat, green country, dotted with the white, steep-roofed homes of Dominion's yeomen. Picturesque little villages straggling to the water's edge. Ancient white stone churches with their gilded crosses rising to the sky. The quiet groves and farms of the pastoral, snow-capped Laurentian Mountains. The air is sweet and balmy. Woman's World

Mrs. Dewar Wins Fencing Laurels From Sarcenia.

MRS. WILLIAM H. DEWAR.

Mrs. William H. Dewar of Philadelphia recently won her way to the amateur fencing championship among women in a seven minute bout with the Baroness de Meyer of England.

Although the bout lasted only seven minutes, some of those who witnessed it said it was the most exciting seven minutes through which they had ever sat, bobbed, gasped and stared.

The opponents were well matched, each vigorously contesting every second of the time allowed them.

A handsome loving cup, the gift of Mrs. Payne Whitney, was awarded to Mrs. Dewar.

YEAR OF THE RAT.

How the Chinese Reckon a Child's Years.

The Chinese method of reckoning age is very curious. A Chinese child at birth is said to be one year old, and after it has passed one new year it is said to be two years old. The Chinese divide the years into cycles of twelve, each one of the twelve years being represented by the name of one of twelve different animals, and all people born in one year say that they belong to the class of corresponding animal. Thus the Chinese year corresponding to 1876 was a year of the rat, and all born in that year belong to the class rat; so also do all people born in the year removed from 1876 by any multiple of 12.

The twelve different animals are rat, ox, tiger, hare, dragon, snake, horse, sheep, monkey, fowl, dog and pig. Every one knows his corresponding animal class, for the information is necessary for arranging betrothals, fortune telling or choosing lucky days.

A source of error in age (with the exception of that in entering 'young children) is illustrated by the case of an old woman of the village of Chingau, known to be over a hundred, who insisted on the census enumerator entering her as ninety-nine. This was because it is a customary term of abuse to call a person a "hundred-year-old donkey" or "ten toothed donkey," which has the same significance.

The only source of error in the division of sex is in regard to very young children. It is common for a Chinese mother to give a son the name of a girl, presumably to deceive the fates, for it is a common saying that a girl is easier to rear.

As to the size of Chinese families, the Chinese give much credit to a large family which is able to live together without dividing up the family property. There are many large undivided families in Weihaiwei. The largest is that of Meng Yu Shih, a widow of the village of Mangtao. Her family consists in all of sixty-six persons.

WAS A GREAT SUFFERER FOR FIVE YEARS FROM DYSPEPSIA.

Dyspepsia is one of the most prevalent troubles of civilized life, and thousands of people suffer untold agony after every meal, for nearly everything that enters a weak dyspeptic stomach acts as an irritant.

The long train of distressing symptoms, which render life a burden to the victims of dyspepsia, may be promptly cured by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters. Mrs. Wm. J. Boyne, Lepreau, N.B., writes:—"I thought I would write and tell you of the good Burdock Blood Bitters has done me and also tell you how thankful I am.

"For five years I had been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, and tried different doctors and proprietary medicines, but could get no relief. One day a friend told me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I did not have much faith in it, but I thought I would give it a trial. To-day I am completely cured, and I will always recommend it."

Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for about thirty-five years and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Skin-Tortured Little Ones

Mothers! Are your little ones suffering from itching, burning eczemas, or other torturing, disfiguring skin troubles? Are you, yourself, worn out with long, sleepless nights and ceaseless anxiety in caring for them? Then you should know that, in most cases, a warm bath with and a gentle application of Cuticura Ointment bring immediate relief, the little sufferers sleep, tired, fretted mothers rest, and peace falls on distracted households.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a postal to "Cuticura," Dept. 23L, Boston, U. S. A., will generally bring a sample of each, with 32-p. book on the skin and scalp, and treatment of skin affections.

His Tribute to His Wife.

The following obituary notice was published in a German paper:

"Today red, tomorrow dead. So it was with my wife, who only seven days ago 'was springing over bench and table,' and was buried yesterday. During her life she was a live woman, who did not easily mistake an X for a U. For that reason everybody can tell the extent of my sorrow! so young and so merry, and now buried. What is human life? I have said to myself repeatedly within the past few days, and also yesterday in the church yard when I paid the sexton, who will also keep the grave mound in order. So cheerful a wife I shall certainly never, never find again, and therefore my sorrow is a righteous one. I wish that heaven preserves any man from a similar sad fate, and thanks for the flowers, as well as the Herr Cantor, the music master of the choir, for the grave hymns, which went through and through me, but was very well sung. Ackerman, Master Locksmith."

Not the Silent Partner.

"I want to telegraph $25 to Chicago," said a man to the clerk in a Boston telegraph office recently.

"The name, please," asked the receiving teller, a good looking young woman behind the counter, whose age might have been twenty-five.

"Your name, too, please," again questioned the young woman.

"My name is Henry Brown. I'm the other half of the firm," answered the man.

"Not on your life she isn't!" answered the man. "Nothing silent about her. She's made more noise for the last two weeks for this $25 than you can imagine. She's the noisy partner of the firm, and she makes good with the title too."—Boston Traveler.

The Giraffe as It Feeds.

The singular shape of the giraffe is adapted to its habits of life. It feeds on the young branches and top shoots of the trees, and its long fore legs and neck enable it to browse at a far greater height than any other animal, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. In feeding it stretches up its neck and with its long prehensile tongue, which it can protrude to a surprising distance, hooks down the tender shoots and leaves into its mouth. But the creature's peculiar form, though enabling it to feed on what it likes best, is sometimes the cause of its destruction. The fore legs are so long that to reach the ground it has to stretch them wide apart and bend down its neck in a semicircle, and while drinking in this defenseless attitude the lion or leopard springs upon it and overpowers it before it can recover itself.

What the Eyes Tell.

Hazel eyes show steadiness and power of constant affection. Black eyes show strong intellect and passions.

The eyes of genius are said to be of varying tints, like the sea—sometimes blue, tinted with green or orange; in certain lights, or when affected by emotion, deep and almost dark.

It should never be forgotten that eyes are more capable of misleading than any other feature.

Widely expanded eyelids see much without reflecting greatly. They live in the senses and think little beyond the present moment.

Eyelids half closing over the eye denote less facility of impression, but clearer insight, more definite ideas, greater steadiness in action.

Eyes set near together, especially when there are wrinkles across the nose, are a sign of cunning and meanness in small things.

Set wide apart, the character will be generous; if too wide, careless and extravagant.

Thought Concentration.

Professor Elmer Gates performs a very interesting experiment by immersing his hands and arms in the sleeves in separate vessels filled with water just to the point of overflowing by withdrawing his thought absolutely from one hand and concentrating it on the other he so expands the blood vessels in the latter by sending an extra supply of blood to it that the water in the vessel in which it is overflows unless perceptibly. He further proves this power of thought concentration by transfers him, thought from one hand to the other, at first causing their positions until the water overflows.

Professor Bell, inventor of the telephone, said that when driving in the provinces in extremely cold weather, when he was in great danger of having his feet frozen, he was able to send an extra supply of blood to them by concentrating his mind upon them and thus saved himself from a very painful experience.—Hamilton.

Jamaica's Booby Eggs.

Trade in booby eggs is one of the sights of Kingston, Jamaica. Long ago the British seamen gave the name "booby" to several of the species of gannets, because these fowls are regarded as stupid. The eggs are gathered in vast quantities on the islets at certain seasons of the year and taken to Port Antonio by the boatload. The arrival of a boat with booby eggs is the occasion of no little excitement among the negro women, who buy them by the boat and then sell them by retail chiefly in Kingston, though they are also sold in other towns on the island. Though sold mostly by the dozen to housekeepers, booby eggs are also peddled, hard boiled, on the streets of Kingston, salt and pepper being provided that the purchasers may eat the eggs at once. These eggs are about two-thirds the size of an ordinary hen's egg and are quite palatable.

The Part of Wisdom.

Everybody in Middle Bay knew that Mrs. Captain Liscomb was talking about making a visit to her married daughter in Cincinnati. She had been talking about it for two years, but age and the natural timidity of a woman unused to travel had postponed the great event from month to month until the neighbors began to wonder whether it would ever come to pass. So one morning, when Uncle Billy Evans met Captain Liscomb in Eccles' store, there was a twinkle in his eye as he asked:

"When's Mis' Liscomb going out to Ohio, Daniel?"

"Don't ask me!" returned the captain, a little peevishly. "I don't know nothin' about it. If I tell her to go she says I want to get rid of her. If I tell her to stay at home she says I'm mean! I ain't sayin' a single word!"—Youth's Companion.

Bulldogging a Steer.

Perhaps there is no contest that is a greater tax on human endurance than that demanded by "bulldogging" a steer, and the "bulldogger" must go it alone. The pony is as great a factor as the man, for when once the lasso rests over the horns of the range animal all depends on the rapid way in which the mustang wheels so that the trailing rope will trip the steer. When the steer is on the ground the plucky pony must keep the rope taut. The range rider leaps off and with a length of rope ties the steer's four feet together. Time is then called. Unless he has completed all these operations from the word go in less than three minutes he is not deemed fit to enter the finals. As a matter of fact, one contestant cut the time to 29 seconds, a world's record.—Sunset Magazine.

Begging the Question.

The phrase "begging the question," or in Latin "petitio principii," signifies the treating of a proposition as a fully demonstrated fact when it is actually only a premise or statement brought forward and not yet proved. In other words, to beg the question is to assume something to be true, in order to evade the task of bringing forward the necessary argument to show its truth. —Uncle Remus' Magazine.

Failed.

"A man tried to pick my pockets in the street yesterday, but my wife prevented him."

"Did she grapple with him or just scream?"

"Neither. She wasn't there."

"Then how could she prevent him?"

"She had been through my pockets first."

TOO MUCH HOSPITALITY

Welcome Given by Tribesmen Takes Embarrassing Turn.

Returned missionaries, explorers and those who travel in out-of-the-way regions of the globe have sometimes strange book tales of the strange ways much of mankind still have with their guests.

With the Arabic tribe of Affan, just below the Equator, the customs of hospitality is to sacrifice among the presents of food heaped over to the visitor a fat slave. "He is young and tender," the donor says thinking that no one can fail to approve of this gift, so much better than the spoils, etc., that have been thrown in, "kill him for your evening meal." On the other hand, the Navajo Indian considers the best tribute he can pay is to have his wife shampoo the head of the passing traveler with amole, the root of a plant grown in Mexico and some parts of the Southwest, that is a very good substitute for soap. The Papuans of New Guinea in the Pacific have an even more novel way of showing great friendship for the stranger. Water signifies peace and satisfaction with them, so when a boat approaches bearing people of whom they approve at first sight they sprinkle water on their heads and dance wildly and gayly in the shallow water around the boat.

The average traveler would much rather not become friends with a Terra del Fuegian, for the people of that nationality know of no better way of expressing liking and showing honor than by hugging the stranger. As these savages of the tip-end of South America are very nearly the dirtiest on record, and as their bodies are covered with grease, clay and vermin, such hugging is most offensive. It is not to be avoided, though, if any native of high rank takes a strong liking to his visitor.

There is a Siberian tribe that makes a practice of eating a guest whom it admires or whose virtues it greatly desires to emulate, in order, so the story goes, that his virtue might abide —"in their midst." The tourist, however, is generally speaking, safe in this Russianised country.

If he visits the Tchuktchi close to Behring's Straits and gets into one of their big tents he will find a family almost completely nude. The women will not mind at all. If he passes muster they will honor him and make him feel at home by putting strings of glass beads in their hair that has been copiously covered with grease. Then, of course, having been shown this courtesy, he must stay in the smoky stifling atmosphere and sup on hot broiled reindeer.

The visitor to an Abyssinian village must first sit under a tree and let himself be observed. Then some important individual will step forward and give him the freedom of his house. The Ashangos meet the traveler with dishes of red paint and the man who does not paint himself at once is definitely "quicered" in that village. The Zunis of New Mexico and Arizona offer their guests a "cocktail." It is made of mesquite beans pounded in an earthen jar, parched corn and flour, and is reported to be a very superior appetizer.

The black Batokas of the Zambesi roll on their backs and deal themselves resounding slaps on their naked skins. If the rolling is prolonged and the slaps and the attendant yelling very loud the guest is high in favor. Some New Zealanders squat on the ground and weep. The Nubians wait anxiously for the coming visitor and are eager to entertain. A jar of fresh water is always ready in each house of the tribe for the stranger and no one else. The Kaffirs assure each white visitor that he ranks as a chief and make good in the way they entertain him.

The Crumbs and the Crust.

Eat the crust of bread in preference to the crumb. This is the advice of The London Lancet. This famous London medical publication says that analysis shows that "the crumb contains on an average 43 per cent. of moisture, while the crumb contains only 32. One important dietetic difference between crust and crumb is the fact that the former contains an increased amount of soluble carbohydrates owing to the action of intense heat which the crust receives compared with the crumb during baking. Moreover, the crust has a more pronounced bready flavor than the crumb, a flavor which is attractive and which stimulates the flow of digestive juices."

Most of the ills of childhood are caused by a sour, disordered stomach, sluggish liver and constipated bowels. Then your child easily becomes cross, listless, irritable, feverish, restless, tongue coated; don't eat or sleep well and need a gentle, though thorough, physic—but don't force nauseating dose of oil into the little one's already sick stomach — it is too cruel, needless and old-fashioned.

Any child will gladly take Cascarets which act gently—never gripe or produce the slightest uneasiness—though cleansing the little one's system, sweeten the stomach and gets the liver and bowels in a pure, healthy condition.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this gentle, thorough laxative which costs only 10 cents per box.

THE CALENDAR OF SEEDS.

When Julius Caesar great
The calendar made new
No doubt he felt elate
To fix up days askew;
But, though his glory grew,
He overlooked our needs,
For we prefer to view
The calendar of seeds.

If incorrect the date
Astronomers may run,
Yet otherwise the rate
Makes difference to few.
But, pray, what should we do
When gloom of winter broods
Unless we had the view—
The calendar of seeds?

It blooms in gorgeous state
In hues of rainbow hue
And cries, "If you but wait
I promise to come true!"
It makes gray skies turn blue.
Our hope upon it feeds,
And joyfully we view
The calendar of seeds.

Time, if the same to you,
To mark each day that speeds
We'd choose our whole life through
The calendar of seeds.

Fools and Their Bets.

The story recently printed that a fool, to win a bet, put a billiard ball in his mouth and it took a surgical operation and the removal of five teeth to get it out reminds Father Beck of a simpleton he once knew whose first name was John. One day John was with some girls who were having fun putting hens' eggs in their mouths, and John declared that he could put a goose egg in his mouth, and the girls dared him to do it.

John was brave and wouldn't take a dare, and by dint of perseverance he got the goose egg in, but when he tried to take it out it wouldn't come, and when he was threatened with lockjaw the girls got scared and hustled John off to a doctor. The doctor, after diagnosing the case, doubled up his fist and with an undercut belted John one on the chin. John was relieved, but the egg never amounted to much as a goose egg afterward. We are sorry to relate, says Father Beck, that the experience did not do much good in curing John of the silly habit. He kept on biting off more than he could chew for the remainder of his life.—Kansas City Journal.

The Point of View.

"I can't understand why a man of his culture and intelligence should have married such a silly creature," she said.

"What I can't understand," he replied, "is why such a pretty girl should have consented to become the wife of such a solemn prig as he."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Undue Mobility.

"We don't want any standpatters in our party," said one campaigner.

"No," replied the other, "and yet we don't want too many of those people who are always sidestepping so that you can't tell where they stand."—Washington Star.

Stacie—Yes, but she carries it too far sometimes. I was out there to dinner unexpectedly the other day, and she served up a burnt offering.—Judge.

Length of the Law.

The phrase "the length of the law" owes its origin to the enormous length of some of the parchment rolls upon which the ancient statutes of Great Britain were inscribed. The present-day official title of the "statute-at-large rolls" is a reminder of this ancient custom. Some faint idea of the bulk of the English records may be obtained from the fact that a single session, the 42d year of the reign of George IV., measures when consolidated upward of 600 feet.

Queen Victoria's Yacht.

Orders have been received at Portsmouth for the repair of the Alberta, Queen Victoria's favorite yacht, to be paid off at that yard. The yacht will be broken up in the dockyard. One Man Power.

"When I think," said Goodwin, "of Washington's terrible handicap my mind goes back to the town of Nola Chucky.

"An actor-manager was to appear for one night in Nola Chucky, and accordingly he wired the proprietor of the Nola Chucky Opera House:

"'Will hold rehearsal tomorrow noon. Have stage manager, stage carpenter, property man and assistant chief electrician and all the stage hands at theater prompt to hour.'

"He received this telegram in reply:

"'He will be there.'"—Washington Star.

NOT ONE WOMAN IN TWENTY HAS A STRONG BACK.

THE KIDNEYS ARE TO BLAME NINE TIMES OUT OF TEN.

Women are coming to understand that weak, lame and aching backs from which they suffer are due to wrong action of the kidneys.

The poisons that ought to be carried off are cast back into the blood, taking with them a multitude of aches and pains. There is no use of expecting relief until the kidneys are restored to health.

Doan's Kidney Pills are the quickest and most reliable remedy. Mrs. Ed. Baxter, Upham, N.B., writes:—"I take a good deal of pleasure in telling you what Doan's Kidney Pills have done for me. I was troubled with my kidneys for a number of years, and my back was so lame I could not sweep the floor. A friend of mine advised me to try a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, which I did, and after using three boxes I am as well as ever. I highly recommend them to anyone suffering from lame back or kidney trouble."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

BLEEDING IN ANGER.

Recurring Attacks May Mean Kidney, Heart or Liver Trouble.

In the young, epistaxis, or nosebleed, is of slight consequence; in the middle-aged it is more serious, and in the elderly or the aged it may be a serious symptom, whereas a middle-aged person has a history of nosebleed the underlying cause should be found, for it may be anything from some slight change in the mucous membrane of the nose to organic disease or a malignant growth.

The bleeding may be a symptom of disease in the heart, the kidneys or the liver. Although the blood comes from the nose, the nose itself is not always at fault. Sometimes the hemorrhage is so slight as hardly to cause remark on the part of the patient; sometimes it is so severe as to menace life itself; in still other cases the loss of blood is distinctly beneficial, for it relieves some overburdened organ. That is the case with middle-aged persons whose nosebleed is the result of increased blood pressure due to troubles of the heart or kidneys.

Any disease that interferes with the return of the blood from the head into the body may cause a passive congestion of the mucous lining of the nose, sometimes seen in cases of valvular disease or in chronic bronchitis. Goiters or tumors of the neck act mechanically to produce the same result. In stout, full-blooded adults an attack of nosebleed is often preceded by a severe headache or other symptom indicating too much blood in the head, in which cases the hemorrhage will relieve the headache. The same thing is often true in cases of tinnitus or noises in the head. If the hemorrhage is severe the same symptoms—headache and tinnitus—may follow as a result of the anaemia.

A person no longer young who has recurring attacks of nosebleed for which he can find no local or mechanical cause should have a physician make a thorough examination of him, to see that nothing ails his kidneys, heart, lungs or liver.

Saving a Desperate Man.

"Why did you get engaged to Harry? You swore that you would never, never have anything to do with such a man."

"Yes, dear, I know I did. But—well, I wouldn't have accepted him if he hadn't made such a dreadful threat."

"Oh, that old stall about rushing out and committing suicide?"

"No; worse than that."

"But any of those threats are bluffs. I suppose he said he'd kill the next man who called on you, eh?"

"No, no! I've heard that before. Dearie, he threatened that if I did not accept him he'd go and propose to you. And I believe he would have done it, too. He was perfectly desperate."

The Original Lovers' Leap.

Sappho's Leap was the name given to a white cliff or promontory anciently called Leucadia, now Cape Ducato, at the southern extremity of Santa Maura, one of the Ionian Islands. It was so called because Sappho, the poetess, is reported to have thrown herself from this height into the sea. A criminal, with birds attached to him to break his fall, was thrown from the cliff at the annual festival of Apollo, and if he reached the water unhurt he was picked up by boats placed there for that purpose. This is the rock from which, according to the story, lovers throw themselves in order to be free from the pangs of love.

How It Affects Them.

A German, he says, as soon as he arrives at the top wants to know the exact height of the mountain he is on and of every peak around him.

A Frenchman goes into raptures over the wildness of the scenery and the beauties of nature and sometimes accompanies his remarks by an attempt to embrace his guide.

The Englishman when he has "done" his peak plunges his ice axe into the snow, looks around him and then says, "I say, open the baskets and let's have something to eat."

An Ibsen Theory.

In one of the published letters of Ibsen he says that while he was writing one of his plays he had on his desk an empty ale glass with a scorpion in it. Now and then the animal would grow sick and the author would throw a piece of soft fruit to it, whereupon the scorpion would fall upon the food furiously empty its poison into it and then get well again. "Is it not a good deal like this with us poets?" Ibsen continues. "Nature's laws apply in the domain of the spirit also."

Soldiers' Superstitions.

Among the numerous superstitions of the Cossacks there is none stronger than the belief that they will enter heaven in a better state if they are personally clean at the time they are killed. Consequently before an expected battle they perform their toilets with scrupulous care, dress themselves in clean garments and put on the best they have. This superstition is not confined to the Cossacks alone, but is widely prevalent in all branches of the Russian army.

"No," said the disconsolate girl, "I am sure Algernon does not love me. His mind is not on me as it should be."

Splinters in the Fingers.

When you get a splinter in your finger it is sometimes possible to get at it by pressing the point of a needle under it, but unless you have deft fingers or a pair of tweezers you may not be able to pull it out even then. A new pen nib is a very good substitute for a pair of tweezers. Lay the nib over the splinter so as to hide it. Then press down hard enough to separate the nibs. If you now let the pen down level with the splinter and allow the nibs to close again they will take hold, and you can draw the splinter out. Remember that any metal thing that is to be applied to a wound, such as a needle, penknife or pen, should be passed lightly through a flame first, so as to disinfect it. A gas jet or a match will do.—New York Sun.

Love and the Drama.

A periodical devoted to the drama pleads for plays based on some emotion other than love. The difficulty in producing such plays is that every play must have a hero, and in making a hero the playwright as well as his audience almost inevitably adopts the view expressed 1,900 years ago by a scribbler on one of the dead walls of Pompeii, "He who has never loved a woman is not a gentleman."—Exchange.

Lucky Bessie.

Having need of some small change, the mistress of the house stepped to the top of the back stairs.

"Bessie," she called to the maid below, "have you any coppers down there?"

"Yes'm—two," faltered Bessie, "but they're both my cousins, please, ma'am."—London Punch.

"You used to say," she complained, "that I was your sunlight; that the world was gloomy when you were not in my presence."

Time to Come Home.

The small town boy had been sent to a former uncle's to remain for two or three months, but at the end of the second week he showed up at home much to the disapproval of his father.

"Why, Willie, what have you come back here for?" the parent inquired in no pleasant tone. "I sent you to your uncle's for a long stay."

"I know you did," Willie replied; "but, you see, it was this way. The first week they killed a chicken, and we et that; the next week they killed a lamb, and we et that, and yesterday the hired man died, and I thought it was about time to come home."—Judge.

Babies Have Itching Eczema

Itching, almost constant and well-nigh unbearable itching, is the marked symptom of eczema. The direct cause is usually friction or irritation of the skin. In babies the trouble often arises from infrequent changing of napkins.

Until you have used Dr. Chase's Ointment in a case of eczema you can scarcely realize the relief which this treatment affords. Gradually the sores are cleaned up and healed, and a new smooth skin replaces that which has been irritated and diseased.

By keeping Dr. Chase's Ointment at hand, along with the bath soap and using it whenever scaling or irritation appears you can keep baby's skin in perfect condition, save him much suffering and yourself much anxiety.

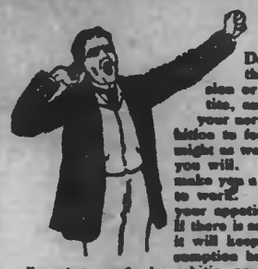
Do You Feel This Way?



Do you feel all tired out? Do you sometimes think you just can't work away at your profession or trade any longer? Do you have a poor appetite, and lay awake at nights unable to sleep? Are your nerves all gone, and your stomach too? Has ambition to forge ahead in the world left you? If so, you might as well put a stop to your misery. You can do it if you will. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will make you a different individual. It will set your lazy liver to work. It will set things right in your stomach, and your appetite will come back. It will purify your blood. If there is any tendency in your family toward consumption, it will keep that dread destroyer away. Even after consumption has almost gained a foothold in the form of a lingering cough, bronchitis, or bleeding at the lungs, it will bring about a cure in 98 per cent. of all cases. It is a remedy prepared by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., whose advice is given free to all who wish to write him. His great success has come from his wide experience and varied practice.

Don't be wheedled by a penny-grabbing dealer into taking inferior substitutes for Dr. Pierce's medicines, recommended to be "just as good." Dr. Pierce's medicines are of KNOWN COMPOSITION. TEXAS FOR ROOSEVELT.

Mr. Hob's Lead Over Taft in Lone Star State.

Dallas, Texas, May 8.—Roosevelt appears to have beaten Taft in Texas, but a number of the delegates are uninstructed for either, and if all, or a sufficiently large majority, are swung the President's support, he may control the state convention.

Roosevelt has 32 delegates and Taft 17, while 19 are uninstructed.

Four of the 38 counties reported no conventions held.

The most significant result is the Wilson setback, he getting 76 delegates, while Clark has 9 and Harmon 2, while 4 are uninstructed.

Walla Walla, Wash., May 8.—The state Democratic convention voted yesterday afternoon to endorse Champ Clark for President. The vote stood: Clark, 486; Wilson, 186; Bryan, 126; Harmon, 1.

An attempt was made to stampede the convention for Bryan, but it was unsuccessful.

Democrats Crush Senese.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 8.—In the same hall where the regular Republican organization of Pennsylvania was overthrown last week, the regular Democratic state organization was yesterday swept out of power by the "reorganization" faction of the party after a fight of nearly two years. The victory of the new men in control of the party's machinery was complete and no resistance was made by the regulars after the vote on permanent chairman of the state convention showed that the "reorganizers" had control of the committee by 1M votes to 73. The party had been split for more than a year and two state committees had been directing the destinies of Pennsylvania's democracy.

The "reorganizers," under the leadership of Geo. W. Guthrie of Pittsburg, Vance C. McCormick of Harrisburg and Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer of Stroudsburg, named a complete state ticket, elected 12 delegates at large and 12 alternates at large to Baltimore, and gave them binding instructions to vote for Woodrow Wilson "as long as his name remains before the convention," selected six electors at large, adopted their own platform and ratified the selection of the "reorganizers" state committee in electing Mr. Guthrie state chairman.

Offering of $750,000 of 7% Cumulative Preference Shares With 15% Bonus in Common Shares of the MONARCH KNITTING CO., Ltd.

Incorporated by Ontario Charter.

CAPITALIZATION:

7% Cumulative Preference Stock	$ 750,000
Common Stock	$1,275,000

Par Value of shares $100 each.

DIRECTORS:

F. R. LALOR, M.P., Dunnville, Ont., President.
A. E. AMES, of A. E. Ames & Co., Toronto, Vice-President.
T. A. RUSSELL, General Manager Russell Motor Car Co., Limited, Toronto.
G. H. ORME, Dunnville, Ont.
J. A. BURNS, Dunnville, Ont., General Manager.

TRANSFER AGENT—National Trust Co., Limited.
REGISTRAR—Toronto General Trusts Corporation.
BANKERS—Bank of Hamilton, Imperial Bank of Canada.

Preference shares are preferential both as to assets and cumulative dividend at the rate of 7% per annum.

The average annual net profits for the last two years, as certified by the Accountants, were $196,210, showing an earning of 7% on the Preference and over 11% on the Common stock.

The first dividend on the Preference shares will be paid on August 1st next for the broken period ending July 31st—thereafter Preference share dividends to be payable quarterly.

The Directors feel that the Company's large earning power and sufficient working capital warrant payment of substantial dividends upon the Common Stock, and it is intended that such dividends will be payable quarterly, the first to be on November 1st next for the quarter commencing August 1st, the rate of such payments being 6 per cent. per annum.

The Company has no bonded indebtedness and the only encumbrance on the real estate acquired from the old Company is $30,000 owing to the municipality on the St. Thomas plant, which is repayable without interest in five equal annual installments, commencing June 17th next.

The terms on which the business of the old Company is being acquired by us and the terms on which same are being assigned by us to the new Company are set out in detail in an agreement between us, as Vendors, and R. H. Parmenter, as Trustee for the new Company, dated May 3rd, 1912, filed in the office of the Honorable the Provincial Secretary, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

Application will be made in due course to have both the Preference and Common shares listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Fractions of Common shares will be adjusted on the basis of $85 a share.

The titles to the Company's property and validity of the issue of Preference and Common shares have been certified to by Messrs. Thomson, Tilley & Johnston, Toronto.

Agreements have been made under which Mr. F. R. Lalor, M.P., who has been President, and Mr. J. A. Burns, who has been General Manager of the old Monarch Knitting Co., Limited, agree to act in the same capacities, respectively, in the new Company for a period of at least five years. Each of these gentlemen has taken a large interest in the new Company. In addition, Mr. G. H. Orme, who was Vice-President of the old Company, has become a director in the new Company, and has agreed to act in a specific advisory capacity.

WE OFFER FOR SALE AT PAR 7,500 FULLY-PAID SHARES OF THE ABOVE-MENTIONED 7% CUMULATIVE PREFERENCE STOCK, CARRYING A BONUS OF 15% OF THE AMOUNT OF THE PREFERENCE SHARES IN COMMON STOCK.

Payments are as follows:—

$10 per share with subscription, and $90 per share on allotment.

Subscription books are now open at our offices, and will close not later than 4 o'clock on Wednesday, the 15th inst. The right is reserved to allot only such subscriptions and for such amounts as may be approved, and to close the subscription books without notice.

SUBSCRIPTIONS MAY BE FORWARDED BY MAIL OR BY TELEGRAM AT OUR EXPENSE.

Subscriptions may be on regular forms, which may be had on request, or, where these are not available, letters simply stating that so many shares are subscribed for under the terms of the prospectus will be sufficient.

Memoranda relating to the Company's history and prospects are appended, signed respectively by Mr. F. R. Lalor, M.P., President, and Messrs. Clarkson & Cross, chartered accountants.

We recommend purchases of these shares from the standpoint of security, interest return and prospect of increase in the market value of the principal.

A. E. AMES & CO.
UNION BANK BUILDING, TORONTO

MONARCH KNITTING COMPANY, Limited.

The Monarch Knitting Co., Limited, has been incorporated by Ontario Charter to take over the business of the Company of the same name which commenced operations in the year 1903, and operated up to May 1st, 1912, with Mr. J. A. Burns General Manager, and myself as President, which offices we now hold in the new Company.

The growth of the Company has been rapid and excellent in character, as indicated by the Auditors' statement.

The Company's business consists of the manufacture of knitted goods, comprising sweater coats for men, women and children, and a complete line of fancy knitted goods, such as skirts, toques, scarfs, etc.

The factories owned by the Company at Dunnville, St. Catharines and St. Thomas are modern in structure and equipment, and excellently adapted for the business. The factory at Dunnville is the largest, and has a floor space of 3½ acres. It is of first-class mill construction, and equipped with sprinkler system, which reduces the insurance cost to a minimum. It comprises dye-house, spinning plant, knitting plant and warehouses.

The Buffalo business is well established, and will, it is expected, show good and increasing net profits year by year. The Buffalo property is leased on a favorable basis.

A great advantage this Company has over competitors is that we spin and dye our own yarn, and do practically everything but grow the sheep.

The Company's machinery is the best obtainable, and includes many automatic and other labor-saving devices. The number of employees is about 700.

Insurance carried totals $933,900.

Provision has been made under which the new company is furnished with $250,000 additional working capital, which is ample for its requirements. It is intended to make additions to plant and machinery in Dunnville and St. Thomas during the current year, to the extent of about $100,000.

Fixed assessments at moderate rates for several years ahead have been arranged in connection with each of the three Canadian plants.

Mr. J. A. Burns, the General Manager, has shown exceptional capacity as a manufacturer, and I feel that the new company starts out under entirely favorable auspices. With its larger working capital, and with the additional facilities now being provided for, together with the radically-improved outlook for the Buffalo branch, and having regard to the current rate of development throughout Canada, prospects are very assuring for the continued and increased prosperity of the Company.

Dunnville, May 6th, 1912. F. R. LALOR, President.

ACCOUNTANTS' STATEMENT

As requested by you, we have examined the books of account and other records of the Monarch Knitting Co., Limited, embracing its operations at Dunnville, St. Catharines and St. Thomas, Ontario. We have also examined the certified reports of the Buffalo branch.

12 " "	31st, 1911	199,830
11½ " "	15th, 1912	192,591

A yearly average of over $178,000.

The reports show orders on hand at the Buffalo branch on April 13th, 1912, for execution during the current year, 66% of the entire output for the previous year. We find that the Canadian orders for execution since January 15th last showed, on April 13th last, over 76% of the entire output for the previous year.

Net assets over and above liabilities, irrespective of good-will and patent rights, considerably exceed the amount of the Preference stock.

Toronto, April 30th, 1912. CLARKSON & CROSS.

MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Lower, Chicago Higher—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, May 7.—Although rumors went wrong on the government crop report today and put the total estimated yield of wheat 50 million bushels too low, the fact developed too late to influence the market. The close, which was firm, ranged from a shade down to ¼c higher. As considered with the night before, there made a net gain of ¼c to ¾c to-day; oats finished ¼c off to ¼c up, and provisions varied from a shade decline to 17½c advance. For the most part it was a waiting day in wheat. Good rains in Kansas and neighboring states and the more or less general rise in Liverpool in response to the strength on this side, modified the bullish feeling. Operators here, however, continued to press the market either way, owing to the uncertainty over crop figures.

The Liverpool market closed to-day on wheat ¼d to ½d lower than yesterday, and on corn ½d lower. Antwerp wheat closed ¼c lower, Berlin ¼c lower, Budapest ¾c lower, and Paris ½c to 1c higher.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, May 7.—Cable advises on Manitoba spring wheat were very discouraging, the markets being depressed and buyers holding off for lower prices. There was a fair demand for oats for nearby shipment, and, as the prices bid were in line, some sales were made. The local market for coarse grains was very quiet, but the feeling is steady. Winter wheat flour was strong and prices were advanced, five to ten cents per bbl. Spring wheat products are firm, with a fair volume of business passing. Demand for millfeed continues good. Butter is firm, but the demand is only fair. Cheese firm, but bids from English buyers too low to permit of much business. Eggs active and steady. Provisions fairly active.

FOUND IN THE RIVER

Body of Thomas King, Former Peterborough Resident Has Been Discovered in Ottawa

ACCIDENTAL DEATH

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, MAY 8.—Positive identification, says to-day's Citizen, of the body of the man found in the Ottawa river Monday afternoon, as Thomas King, a native of Peterborough, was made last evening at the undertaking parlours of Brady and Harris, by Mr. William Cottral of Ottawa West, who knew deceased intimately. According to Mr. Cottral, King visited his home, in Ottawa West shortly after the New Year, having arrived from the woods, where he had been employed. He left during the afternoon, with the intention of going to secure his grip and later returning. This was the last seen or heard of him and Mr. Cottral is of the opinion that he must have accidentally fallen into the river. His aged mother resides at Peterborough. King was a brickmaker by trade in the summer time, but in the winter months it was his custom to go to the woods. He was unmarried. The funeral takes place this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment will be made in Beechwood cemetery, Ottawa.

New Ambassador Is Appointed

Special to The Examiner.

BERLIN, MAY 8.—Baron Marschalle Von Beiberstein, the famous Ambassador of German to Turkey, has arrived here and will be immediately appointed Ambassador to Great Britain as an evidence to use the Kaiser's own words of Germany's desire for friendship and understanding with Great Britain. Von Beiberstein's appointment is heartily welcomed here and in London. He is believed to be the cleverest and most pacific diplomat in the German service.

SIGNS OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

In the early stages kidney troubles are known by backaches and urinary disorders. Later come dropsy, stone rheumatic pains, and perhaps diabetes. But don't wait for these. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will help you in a few hours. Their thorough action on the liver, kidneys and bowels will clear away the pains and aches and make you well again.

Times Defends Ambassador

Special Wire to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., MAY 8. — The Times rises this morning to a defence of Ambassador Bryce, saying that he, as an ambassador, was completely covered by the Government, whose policy he was bound to carry out and when Canada defeated the idea of reciprocity, continues the Times, the United States took the failure of the negotiations in the best possible temper and made no fuss. At the present time Canada and the United States are as good friends as ever before. The afternoon papers speak of the Times' editorial as polite notice to the Unionist members of parliament to shut up about the negotiations which failed.

CANOEISTS CAPSIZED

Punt Service Across the Otonabee is Very Unsatisfactory

A resident of East City, while crossing the Otonabee River at a point near the C. P. R. railway bridge, had a narrow escape from drowning to-day, at noon, caused by the capsizing of his canoe. Fortunately the accident happened within a few feet of the shore, and the victim was pulled out by a couple of companions, with nothing worse than a severe drenching to his credit.

A similar accident occurred a few days ago, when Mr. Fred La Rush, an employee of the Peterborough Lumber Company, capsized from a punt, and for a few minutes was at the mercy of the swift current.

The recent edict issued by the C. P. R. Company have necessitated persons, desirous of crossing the river, at a point near the C. P. R. bridge, using some other method than that of the bridge. This action on the part of the Railway, has led a large nubmer of presons to resort to the use of boats for this purpose.

WATER FLOWS IN AS FAST AS IT CAN BE PUMPED OUT AT THE PUMPING STATION

Is Working 24 Hours a Day and Was Intended to Pump Only Sewage a Few Hours Each Day—Either Manholes or Sewer Joints Are Leaking—Water and Sand Coming In—This Section of Sewerage Has Been Costly and There Are Only a Few Connections With Residences

SOMETHING LIKE THIS WAS HEARD BEFORE

When the pumping station was erected near the corner of Romaine street and George street south, it was stated that it would operate, or be required to operate, only a few hours a day. At present, it is working night and day, and Ald. Buller recently remarked that it would be run 25 hours a day if it were possible, indicating the extent of the work which it is called upon to do.

The question now being discussed by those familiar with the situation, is the reason for this day and night work, when it was anticipated that only a few hours' daily work would be necessary.

Some believe that the extra water is coming through the joints, and thus instead of pumping sewage as was intended, the pumps are largely handling water.

Coming in at Manholes.

Mr. Willis Chipman, the engineer engaged by the city, and upon whose advice the pumping station was provided, has stated in a letter to the Council, that the water must be coming in at the manholes. He says that the water must have begun coming in before the foundations of the manholes had set.

At any rate, this pumping apparatus, intended to pump the sewage from the section west of George street south, is pumping water for the most part, and a considerable amount of sand is also said to be coming through the pipes.

The sewerage connections in this district are only a few, but the pump was built not only for the present, but to provide for the future, and although the sewage is but a small quantity from present reports, the pumping apparatus is working night and day pumping water that comes in as fast as it is forced out.

A White Elephant.

Ald. Buller, who calls the pumping station the "white elephant," stated to the Examiner this morning that this section of the sewerage system was not right. He could not tell just where the trouble was, but he intended to find out. An examination of some nature will be held shortly, and a report made to the Council.

The Romaine street sewer and the pumping station has cost the city, it is said, between $30,000 and $40,000. The connections are not numerous, and since Dr. McCullough's visit it begins to be evident that the pumping station will, in time, be unneeded. The city has the big problem on its hands of dealing with sewage disposal and at the same time plans will likely be prepared to provide a sewerage system for a city of 40,000. A trunk sewer for Park street has been unofficially mentioned.

Mr. Chipman has written to the Council that in any event the pumping station will be necessary. At present, however, its task is like that of Sisyphus. In the meantime, Mr. Chipman has asked the Council for the the balance of his account, $1,057.00.

The First Step In War On Consumption Is Peterborough's Summer Fair

(Written for The Examiner by Roy Gilray)

A good start is half the battle. The war on the White Plague—our national enemy—has been taken up in earnest by the ladies of Peterborough who are acting in conjunction with the Peterborough Health Association which has for its object the banishment of consumption from our midst.

Each year, in the vicinity of this city, there are 25 deaths from tuberculosis, and 75 others are afflicted with it. So, in the course of twelve months there are 100 people either die or are a prey to the disease. Up to the present no effort has been made to control the malady. Conditions are such that there are many persons exposed to contagion, who cannot, or who neglect, to take ordinary precautions to protect themselves.

They intend securing a District Nurse, whose duty it will be to visit the homes of those in need of her services, and tenderly care for the poor unfortunates, as well as instruct the families in the proper method of protecting themselves from contracting the disease. The services of such a "Friendly Visitor" will require an annual expenditure of approximately $1,000.00, and an additional sum of about $200 will be needed for supplying such items as clothing, food and medicines.

To supply this amount the ladies of Peterborough decided, early in February, to hold an exhibition in the Armouries, and since then they have worked incessantly at a task that would daunt the hearts of most men. But, as a Deputy Cabinet Minister said, some years ago, to a deputation, in referring to the very successful Fair held in Hamilton for much the same purpose: "If you really wish to succeed in your undertaking get the Hamilton women to help you. They can carry through any enterprise."

The same may be said of the women of Peterborough if their work so far is any criterion of the results to be accomplished.

This carnival, for one whole week, commencing May 27th, will be the crowning event of the season. It will be an occasion when every citizen will cast all cares aside, and join with everybody else in making merry.

By the selection of this week the ladies of the Auxiliary have shown themselves to be keen students of human nature, for there is no time of the year when the hearts of men and women ca be so easily moved to deeds of charity for the amelioration of suffering among their unfortunate brethren.

Many Entries For The Alfalfa Growing Competition

Entries are coming in nicely for the Alfalfa Growing Competition that is being conducted by Farm and Dairy, our local farm paper published at Peterborough.

The editors of Farm and Dairy would like to see every farmer in Peterborough county growing alfalfa. There is no reason why they should not be. The soil and climate of Peterborough county are well adapted to alfalfa. There are already at least 100 farmers in the county who have grown alfalfa. There are already at least 100 farmers in the county who have grown alfalfa with good success.

And they all speak highly of its value. Several farmers in Smith township have told the editors of Farm and Dairy that they believe that good alfalfa hay has just as good feeding value per ton as has wheat bran. They can produce the alfalfa hay for $4 a ton or even less. The wheat bran would cost them $26 to $28. Is it any wonder that they life alfalfa.

It is to make the growing of alfalfa more popular in the county that Farm and Dairy is conducting this competition. Any readers of the Examiner who have three acres or more of alfalfa seeded down last spring are invited to enter their best three acres in this competition. Several valuable prizes, probably in the form of silver cups will be given to those having the best fields. If the entries are numerous enough the county will be divided into several sections and several prizes provided for each section. The only requirement is that the competitor be a subscriber to Farm and Dairy. Send in your name to the Editor of Farm and Dairy at Peterborough, as the fields will be judged either the last of this month or the first week in June.

A SQUALID CAMPAIGN

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, MAY 7.—The Chronicle describes the campaign against Ambassador Bryce as a squalid one. "We had much better keep the policies of the Dominion from being the subject of British party squabbles." The Morning Post publishes in full the correspondence, but makes no comments. The Daily News says that if Mr. Bryce had protested against the reciprocity negotiations, Canada would very properly have demanded his recall for his impertinence.

FUNERAL OF CHAS. M. HAYS

Late President of Grand Trunk Was Buried This Afternoon in Mount Royal Cemetery

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE

Special Wire to The Examiner.

MONTREAL, MAY 8.— This afternoon the remains of the late C. M. Hays were conveyed from the family residence on Ontario Ave., to their last resting place in Mount Royal cemetery. A short but impressive funeral service was conducted at the house by Rev. Dr. Johnson, pastor of the American Presbyterian church, of which the late Grand Trunk president had been one of the most prominent members. Despite the fact that the funeral had been announced to be private, a large number of friends of the late Mr. Hays assembled to pay the last tribute of respect to his memory. The general offices of the Grand Trunk were closed between two and three o'clock this afternoon.

Bulkheads Have Been Damaged

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., MAY 8.—Before Lord Mersey's commission this morning, Fireman Barrett, of the Titanic, said there had been fire in coal bunkers of the vessel immediately after leaving Southampton, and this fire had seriously damaged the bulkheads. Incidentally it was stated that two survivors had laid charges of attempted manslaughter against persons unknown who, they said, had hit them over the heads and refused to assist them into boats when they were swimming for life in the water.

Burnt To Cinder At Switchboard

Special Wire to The Examiner.

NIAGARA FALLS, ONT., MAY 8.—Chester Findlay, an electrician, was found dead leaning against a switchboard in the Ontario Power Company's premises this morning at 4.30. His whole body was literally burnt to a cinder. Ten thousand volts had passed through the body. It is thought the accident happened half an hour previously.

Many Prominent Citizens Gathered To Pay Last Respects To Hon. J. P. Mabee

Special Funeral Train Left Toronto This Morning for Port Rowan Where Interment Took Place This Afternoon—Eleven Justices of Supreme Court Were in Attendance

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, MAY 8. — At twenty minutes after nine this morning, Hon James P. Mabee's funeral train pulled out of the Union Station for Port Rowan. Following the well-known character and tastes of the Chairman of the Railway Commission, an effort had been made to avoid anything spectacular, but the number of distinguished men who gathered to do the last honour to the departed, and who filled the long train, made the occasion an impressive one. Divisional Superintendent Gillen of the Grand Trunk, was personally in charge of the train. The remains were brought to the station about half-past eight. There was no funeral procession. The casket had been placed in a heavy oak box, and few flowers placed upon it. It was put on one baggage truck, and two other trucks were loaded with the flowers. The three together were wheeled to a siding at the west end of the station, where an express car was waiting. The casket was put in and the flowers piled about it. They covered nearly the whole floor of the car. When the train was made up this car came next to the locomotive. Then came three first-class coaches, a private car, special for the members of the commission and the commission's special car in which travelled Mr. Mabee's relatives. The train started quietly and as it moved slowly out of the shed the people left on the platform stood bareheaded.

The regular traffic of the station had been stopped, but as the funeral train disappeared into the yards, it was resumed and little silent groups on the platform broke up and disappeared. Eleven Justices of the Superior Court of Ontario were at the Station, headed by Sir Charles Moss, Chief Justice of Ontario. Hon. T. W. Crothers and Hon. A. E. Kemp represented the Dominion Government, and there were representatives present from several provincial Governments, for the late James Pitt Mabee was known and honoured in every province of Canada for his justice and equity to all peoples. Canadian Manufacturers Association, Boards of Trade and other business and professional interests were fully represented at the station, as the funeral train pulled out. The interment will take place at Port Rowan, this afternoon.

COSTS $4.60 TO CROSS C.P.R. BRIDGE WHEN CONSTABLE IS AROUND

A Number of Local Men Appear in Police Court Charged With Trespassing on C.P.R. Bridge Contrary to Warning—Liquor Case Enlarged Until Saturday.

Price Adamson, $2.00 and costs; total $4.60.

William Sheppard, $2 and costs; total $4.60.

J. H. Thompson, $2 and costs; total, $4.60.

Daniel Cassels, $2 and costs; total $4.60.

The above named quartette appeared in the Police Court this morning, on a nominal charge of trespassing on the C. P. R. bridge. The information was laid by Special C. P. R. Constable Pinchin, who appeared in court to presct the charges. The young men expedited matters by pleading guilty.

The Railway Company is determined to stop the practice of trespassing on the bridge, and we have got to back them up. It's an unlawful right," commented His Worship.

The total amount of the fines imposed in each case was $4.60. The four cases aggregated a total of $18.40 which will be remitted to the City Treasurer, and at some future date will probably be used in the construction of a new bridge.

Case Enlarged.

The case of Harold Cocus, a resident of Bridgenorth, who was charged with being under the influence of liquor while on the prohibited list, was enlarged until Saturday.

The evidence produced by License Inspector Stewart was not considered by His Worship, to be of sufficient weight upon which to deal with the case. The evidence in question was in the form of a prepared by-law, placing the Township od Smith in the local option map. "That is a prepared by-law and there is no evidence to show that it has passed" said His Worship.

The case was adjourned until Saturday in order that a certified by-law might be produced.

TO STONEY LAKE

On Thursday May 9 the Stoney Lake Navigation Co's Steamer Islinda will leave Lakefield for the Lakes; on arrival of the morning train from Peterboro. Returning to connect with the evening train. 2d

Successor Will Be Hard To Find

TORONTO, MAY 7.—Glowing tributes were paid by the Judges of the Superior Court of Ontario to-day to late Chairman Mabee, who, by mutual consent, was the best-man in Canada for the position he occupied. All who sat with him in various tribunals are convinced of his great worth, which will be an imperishable monument to his memory. It is conceded that Premier Borden will have an extremely hard task in filling his place, which is even more important than that of any cabinet minister. Various names are mentioned here this morning as a possibility. Vice Chairman Darcy Scott may be promoted, but it is hardly likely.

Messrs. Wallace Nesbitt, K. C., Mahlon, K.C., I. F. Hellmuth, K.C., are mentioned, also Mr. Justice Lennox, sworn in the other day, or it may be a Western man, C. A. Magrath or Arthur Meighen.

Will Be A Fine Building

Work on the new K. of C. club on Simcoe street is now under way and the building promises to be a very handsome one. Mr. Richard Sheehy who has the work in hand, reported to a meeting last night in the old rooms, on the progress of the work. The building will be altered somewhat and a fine verandah, which will be erected, will add considerably to the appearance of the structure.

BOY BITTEN BY VICIOUS DOG

While several children were playing at wrestling on Parnell street, yesterday, a collie dog rushed across the road and attacked one of them, Cecil Deano, of No. 476. The lad was badly bitten about the left arm, breast and shoulder.

The dog was taken to the Police Station in the evening and destroyed.

CASE OF REAL ESTATE

Operator Was Dismissed — Transactions Were Quite Legal.

The case of Mr. E. Lloyd Jones and Mr. Arthur Crandell was resumed at 2 o'clock Monday last before P. M. Jackson.

The details of the case were thrashed out by both lawyers and Magistrate Jackson was asked to give his decision, which, in review of the evidence given His Worship said he would dismiss the case as in the evidence given he could not base a conviction and Mr. Lloyd Jones walked out of the court room a free man, receiving hearty hand shakes from the crowd as he passed out.—Warder.

REMAINS CREMATED.

Mr. Jas. Osborne's Body Taken to Montreal.

MONTREAL, MAY 8.—The remains of the late Mr. Jas. Osborne, of the C. P.R., will be cremated before being interred. From Calgary east the mortuary car received floral tokens at almost every station of any importance.

TO SUCCEED MR. OSBORNE

Winnipeg, May 7. — Mr. F. W. Peters has been appointed General Superintendent at Vancouver to succeed the late Superintendent Osborne and Mr. A. C. Stevens has been appointed Assistant General Superintendent.

LADIES' WILL MEET.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will meet tomorrow afternoon at 3 p.m. at the Children's Shelter. A large attendance is requested, as there is lots of work in the line of sewing, on hand.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

Arthur E. Ellis, the Self-confessed Slayer of Lewis S. Porter Appears Before the Magistrate

NOW IN LINDSAY

Special to The Examiner.

MINDEN, MAY 8.—Arthur A. Ellis, self-confessed slayer of Lewis S. Porter, was taken before Magistrate W. S. Fielding last evening and on the strength of the evidence given at the jury examination, was committed to Lindsay jail to await trial. The magistrate asked Ellis if he had anything final to say, but the prisoner not being represented by counsel, declined.

Constable John Welch left with the prisoner this morning No trouble en route is expected, although he was heavily ironed. In saying good-bye to the Examiner, the prisoner said he was sure that all would come right with him.

FUNERALS OF TWO GREAT CANADIANS

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, MAY 8.—At practically the same hour this afternoon the remains of two of the greatest men connected with railway and transportation in Canada are being laid in their last resting place.

Charles Melville Hays, president of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railroad, at Montreal, and James Pitt Mabee, chairman of the Dominion Railway Commission at Port Rowan, Ontario. It has been recalled that when the fate of President Hays in the Titanic disaster was established, Chairman Mabee pronounced a feeling eulogy of Mr. Hays, little imagining that final obsequies over his own remains would take place on the same day as those of the subject of his eulogium. This double funeral is a striking comment on the immutability of human life. Both these men were of strongest constitutions. They were considered first-class risks by insurance companies. To-day they are no more.

FATHER SAYS BOY OF FIFTEEN WAS ROPED IN

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ONT., MAY 7.—The police are searching for Lee Keasey, aged 15, of Port Huron, who on May 2nd, was married to Ora Vincent, aged 20, of Leamington, in Sarnia. His father alleges that the boy was "roped in" and is making every effort to discover the couple's whereabouts in Canada.

Conference Year Business Completed

The Quarterly Board of Charlotte street Methodist church met last night in the Guild room of the church to complete the business of the conference year. Encouraging reports were given in connection with the membership, the finances and the societies of the church.

Dr. Morrison, who has been recording secretary for several years, tendered his resignation, which was accepted with regret. A resolution was passed by the Board expressing its appreciation of Dr. Morrison's faithful work as [illegible] of the church during [illegible] of office.

MERIT SHOULD DECIDE.

The more one reads of press opinion regarding the capability, adaptability and work of the late Judge Mabee, as Chairman of the Dominion Railway Commission, the more one is inclined to regard him as an exception to the rule, that no man is so great or eminent, that, in case of his death, his place can be filled with comparative ease. It is no disparagement to the distinguished jurists of Canada to say that there are few that can fill the position as Judge Mabee filled it. They may be as eminent jurists, as able lawyers as well equipped with the judicial mind, as fair, as honest; but they may, and probably will, be lacking in the peculiar and indefinable personal and other qualifications and qualities that made the late Chairman unique sui generis—placed him in a class by himself. While it is natural that the Government should give preference to an appointee of its own political faith, the filling of the chair of the Railway Commission is a matter where merit, and merit alone, should prominently be regarded as the deciding factor.

HARMONY.

The visit of an illustrious deputation of Frenchmen, who came to Montreal on Saturday last, emphasizes the strength and reality of the entente cordiale between Great Britain and France. They came to honour the memory of Champlain in his tercentenary year, whose services and relations to Canada are frankly recognized by English-speaking Canadians in a manner to flatter the immanent national pride of our French-Canadian fellow citizens. It goes without saying that the welcome to the distinguished visitors to Quebec was enthusiastic, but they are welcomed by all Canadians who are really loyal to the Empire and solicitous for her friendly relations with France as an addition to Imperial strength and influence, and better guarantee of peace. The entente between French-speaking and English-speaking Canadians would be stronger, were it not for the dividing influence of race hatred and the keeping open of old sores, exercised and exploited by extremists and strife breeding elements on both sides. The greatest enemy to national harmony in Canada is the attempt, for personal or party or society purposes, to keep alive and feed, with old and dry material, the fires of mutual, racial and religious antagonism, that would be extinguished by the better element, were it not for what may be called professional creators of strife, preservers of old hatreds.

THE SHELVING EXTENDED.

The Supreme Court has decided that Quebec province has no right to pass a Sunday observance law. The Supreme Court, however, is in no hurry to settle the question of the right of the Dominion to legislation in settlement of the burning marriage question. The refusal of the court to consider the "stated case" arising out of the Lancaster, bill till the Privy Council shall have settled the question of the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court in the provinces, is practicaly what the Examiner predicted, in a general way. It was pointed out that the refusal of the Borden government to support the Lancaster bill, and thereby create a definite situation, was a subterfuge and evasion of responsibility. It showed a device to shelve for the moment, and for a long time, a troublesome question.

The inconsistency, or insincerity of the Conservatives is shown in voting to kill the Lancaster bill, which was designed to kill the No Temere decree which these same Conservatives declared was a menace to Canada. Many Conservative supporters of the government, and among them the representative of West Peterborough, claimed—and, clamourously, too—that the enactment of valid legislation to settle the marriage question from their point of view, was within the competency of the Dominion Parliament. Mr. Burnham had no doubt of it, and according to him, Sir Wilfrid Laurier's refusal to try to enact such legislation, was an evidence of His "trunk-ism to Rome." "Sir Wilfrid could—had power to, enact a law that would defy the No Temere decree and solve in the affirmative, the question, "Are we married or are we not married?" Sir Wilfrid, he claimed, could do this if he wanted to do so, but he did not have the will. If Mr. Burnham were elected, we were assured Mr. Burnham would pass such a law in double quick time. Issue with Mr. Burnham's patronage he would have the will and courage to act. That was Mr. Burnham's opinion, and he knew—he was a lawyer. Yet, one of Mr. Burnham's first votes in parliament was to kill the Lancaster bill, designed to kill the No Temere Decree, and he acquiesced in the argument that the Dominion Parliament had no authority to pass a marriage act; exactly contrary to the ground he took as against Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He was either false to his position he took, to the desire he expressed to settle the marriage question—a position on which he got the votes of many over-trusting electors, or he was wrong in his law.

Mr. Burnham confessed that his legal opinion was wrong, and the marriage question was shelved by the government which was to pass a tight and fast marriage law the first session. In passing it may be instructive to point out that the gentleman who "fell down" so badly in his law—swallowed his positive legal opinion, still has so much faith in his legal knowledge that—"and wonder of wonders," as the hymn puts it, he is an applicant for the position on the Railway Commission, made vacant by the death of Hon. J. P. Mabee—a place which the ablest jurists and men of brain in the Dominion would hesitate to undertake to fill adequately. The sarcasm of Pope—pops resistlessly into the mind—"For fools rush in where angels fear to tread."

Anyway, we are still far away, in point of time, from a settlement of the marriage matter. The reference to the Privy Council of the competency of the Supreme Court of Canada to even think of the matter, will take a long time. Then, if the Privy Council gives the Supreme Court authority to "fire away," it will take the latter a long time to think it out and reach a decision; then its decision will have to be referred to the Privy Council, and when its decision at the end of the slow trail of the law's delays, is given, if it gives the Dominion power to legislate, we shall have some other subterfuge resorted to to stave off acting and responsibility. Those who trusted Mr. Burnham and Mr. Borden to remedy what they declared was the evil state of the marriage question, know what it is to lean on broken reads. The law's delay is a beautiful and convenient thing for those who do not want to face the music.

PARTIZANSHIP GONE MAD.

In President Taft's "adjunct" letter the opponents of reciprocity had a good bit of material, and we do not grudge them a little gloating over it. But some good friends of the vanquished has inspired the victors to use President Taft's letter as a ground of attack on Ambassador Bryce, Premier Asquith, and the British Government—an attack which makes every sensible Canadian laugh.

Mr. Asquith has his critics in the House of Commons at his mercy. Of course Mr. Bryce could not have interfered with the negotiations for reciprocity. Of course the British Government could not have prevented our making the agreement if we had desired to do so. Canadian protectionists have asserted in the most emphatic manner their right to tax British manufacturers. Sir Alexander Galt made that assertion some fifty-four years ago; and the assertion was repeated when the National Policy was introduced in 1879. The National Policy tariff not only taxed British manufactures heavily, but contained provision for reciprocity with the United States.

The reciprocity agreement of 1911 was defeated purely and simply because a ajority of the people of Canada did not want it. Would Imperial unity have been strengthened if the agreement had been vetoed by Mr. Bryce or Mr. Asquith, and the people of Canada had never voted upon it? We thought that the British Unionists rejoiced in the verdict of the Canadian jury. Now they are talking as if they thought the case should never have gone to the Canadian jury. According to them, neither the Government, nor the Parliament, nor the people of Canada should have been the judges of our commercial policy. Partisanship has surely carried Mr. Asquith's opponents to ridiculous lengths.—Toronto Star.

LAXITY IN BUSINESS.

(Ottawa Free Press.)

After all, the British merchant is not the only one who neglects his opportunities. The same reproach is applicable to certain Canadian business houses if the reports of Canadian trade commissioners are to be believed. This week's report of the Department of Trade and Commerce gives two striking instances of how Canadian business in foreign countries is spoiled by carelessness in method.

In one case the trade commissioner at Buenos Ayres ordered furniture for his office from three different factories in the Dominion. The goods were late in arriving and when they did reach their destination they were unaccompanied by the proper documents to get them through the Customs. That was not all. On landing, the cases were found to be of old and inferior wood and much damaged, whilst the packing was "nothing short of disgraceful."

The commissioner says: "The things appear to have been thrown in haphazard and surrounded with an extremely inadequate amount of packing. As a consequence, the articles were in a shocking condition, requiring the services of two men for a week; and even then it was impossible to restore all to their original condition." This was bad enough in the case of a government order. What would have been the effect if private purchasers had received the consignments?

The other case of neglect of trade opportunities is reported by Commissioner Ray at Birmingham, who quotes a British firm as writing:

"We are always open to receive quotations and to buy Canadian sole leather, providing of course that it is equal value such as we get in big quantities from the United States We do not expect better value, but if we can get it equal value, we would always give the preference to Canadian produce.

"We are well acquainted with every tan yard in Canada, and we are repeatedly inquiring for sole leather in preference to having to buy so much from the other side of the border, and we regret to say the quantities we can get from Canada are ridiculously small, and we are sure is but a small percentage of what we could really sell in this market.

"We are quite aware of the unrivalled supply of hemlock bark which is obtainable in Canada, more so than the United States, and we also are aware that they have the same facilities of obtaining dry hides as their American neighbours, and we think in the matter of the production of leather it is a case of "Wake up, Canada," instead of "Wake up, John Bull" which we sometimes hear so much about on this side."

It is quite evident that Canada cannot build up a big export trade unless more attention is paid to opportunities and more care given to shipments.

FRANCO-BRITISH ENTENTE CORDIALE DEMONSTRATED

The contributions of France to our present civilization would not be better remembered than in the personnel of the illustrious deputation of Frenchmen who came to Montreal on Saturday. Science, humane letters and public affairs are all represented, and by men whose reputations have made France respected and admired. Always the country of ideas, sourcely ever perceptibly making her progress according to the ordinary laws of social evolution, progressing according to an inherent genius almost impossible to analyze France remains, if not the most eminent, at least most distinguished of civilized countries. It is in keeping with the traditions of humanity that she should have sent a delegation of great men to honour the memory of Champlain, the astute and intrepid explorer. His fame will be revived by the erection of the monument executed by the greatest sculptor of his time, Auguste Rodin, and presented to the United States by the French people.

M. Gabriel Hanotaux, better known even as a historian of contemporary France than as a brilliant minister of foreign affairs, is the leading member of the group. With him are M. Barthou, another distinguished public man, M. Rene Bazin, the novelist of the Catholic reaction, whose books are full of the pathos and sincerity of French rural life, M. Bleriot, the famous aviator, Baron d'Estournelles de Constant, the distinguished advocate of peace, M. Fernand Cormon, representative of the fine arts, members of the Academy and of the Institute. They were sure of welcome in Canada, especially in Quebec, where they have met with members of their own race. In many ways the histories of France and Canada have alienated the younger from the older stock. But in respect for the subtler amenities of social life, in enthusiasm for great causes, France and French Canada are at one.

The welcome, however, will not be confined to French Canada. The ageolong quarrel between France and England has long ended. The entente cordiale holds now the place of honour. The two countries have come with success in partnership through a difficult crisis.

France has suffered much in the cause of human liberty. She has not always been wise, her methods have not always been the surest. But her inspiration has always been right. After her moments of apparent dissolution she has made her most splendid recoveries. Her history has been a law unto itself, for she loves a theory and loves to work it out logically. Her spirit is immortal. If she were to be annihilated to-day, it would still live in the world's best books, in its best pictures and statues, in its scientific achievements, and above all in what Heine called the liberation war of humanity.—Montreal Herald.

LAND OF OPPORTUNITY—Home of the successful cultivation of the orange and grapefruit. Strawberries from the fields snowbound at Christmas time.

The Florida family grower can have his vegetable crops, lettuce, celery, cauliflower, tomatoes, cucumbers, cabbages, early corn, etc., on the market earlier than any section of the United States, and at a time when other positions have no crops to offer. This gives him a great advantage in the markets of large centres of population.

The crop-growing season is 365 days. No other portion of the United States equals.

The difference between mean monthly temperature of Florida in January and July is less than 25 degrees, while Maine records 49 and Pennsylvania 45.

The state is in the humid area with approximate maximum of rainfall—you know it takes water to raise crops.

"WHITE CAPS" WORKED OUT AT OVAL YESTERDAY

Canadian Leaguers Had a Three Hours' Drill of Batting and Fielding Practice—Lay-off of a Couple of Days Has Stiffened the Squad Up and There Were Some Lame Wings.

The lay-off of two and one-half days effected the work of Manager Templin's crew, in their practise at the Oval yesterday afternoon, and the majority of the players were so stiff-ened up that it was like starting all over again. However, in spite of lame wings and stiffness, the squad were driven ahead through three hours' hard work, and the workout was a profitable one. There was batting practise for nearly two hours, with all the regulars taking part, and special attention was paid to "bunting". The pitchers to work out against the hitters were Derr, Bayer, Bartlett and Davis, all of whom put a lot on the ball. Mooney, Trout and Brode worked behind the bat.

Three quarters of an hour fielding practice for both outfielders and infielders finished up the programme. The work was not as peppery as usual, chiefly on account of the fact that the bunch was pretty well stiffened up. Dolan had a sore neck and back, and Templin hurt his arm early in the doings. Catcher Brode was also handicapped with a sore arm, but these kinks will be worked out in a short time.

Directors And Players Are Formally Introduced

Officers of the Club Addressed the Squad Last Night Emphasizing the Fact That the Management Expected Clean Ball—Players Made a Good Impression.

The players of the Peterborough Canadian League Club and the directors of the Club were formally introduced to each other at a meeting in Dr. Wightman's office, last night, and the result was a mutual falling in love. The directors liked the clean cut, athletic looking appearance of the players and the latter, on the other hand, appreciated the courteous treatment and business-like methods of the Executive. There already exists a spirit of harmony between players and management—the former know that they will be accorded fair treatment, and the latter are assured that every member of the team will be fighting every inch of the way to bring victory to Peterborough. The directors have every confidence in Manager Templin, while the players have a deep respect for his knowledge of the game and esteem for his fairness in dealing with them. With the entire squad pulling together like brothers, and with such pleasant relations existing between team and management, the season should be a successful and enjoyable one for everyone.

The directors present at the meeting were Mr. W. H. Denham, president; Mr. E. G. Patterson, Vice-President; Mr. E. C. McLeod, secretary-treasurer; Messrs. W. McIlroy, Eddie Dissaint, Dan. McCabe, R. Hicks and Dr. Wightman.

After the entire squad had been presented, President Denham, Vice-President Patterson, Secretary McLeod, and Messrs McIlroy, Wightman and Hicks made brief speeches, in which they laid stress upon the fact that, win or lose, they wanted clean baseball. They complimented Manager Templin upon the splendid type of players he had secured, and assured the boys that they could depend upon fair treatment throughout the season.

They hoped to see Peterborough right on top of the heap when the season was over and were sure the boys would do their best all the way.

Pitcher Elmer Bayer made a suitable reply on behalf of the players. He thanked the directors for their hearty welcome to Peterborough, and assured them that he and every other member of the squad would work their hardest to bring victory to the White Caps.

There is no doubt of the intention of the players to give the best they have. "That's a good bunch of sports," remarked one of the team, after the meeting, "and I for one am going to work my head off to win". "We all are," chorused the rest of the White Caps.

NEWS FROM THE LEAGUE CIRCUIT

Adrian, Mich., May 7.—Adrian nosed out Ottawa again yesterday afternoon in an errorless give and take game 6-4. Draper, another southpaw with the Canadian leaguers, was unsteady in the third and fifth allowing three base on balls in the third, forcing in a run which with a sacrifice fly and infield out accumulated three altogether before he settled down. He gave way to Herbert in the sixth, the latted pitching winning ball till the finish.

Manager Louie Cook who played at Adrian two years ago used every man on the Ottawa bench. Schwind, the Fort Wayne infielder, reached town as the club was leaving for the park. He went out and played short in the fourth. Weise, a former Kansas State Leaguer, played part of the game in the outfield, while Callahan, a brother of Joe of Cleveland, worked for a while at short. Even when he had a chance to win, Cook sent all his bench men as pinch hitters. A fast double play Robertson to Schwind to Champene spoiled a threatened batting streak of the lone club in the sixth.

Cook looks to have a very fast ball club which, with another week's work, will be able to stand up all the Canadian League clubs. His twirlers are high-class men, and he has a hard-hitting outfield.

A despatch fro Saginaw. Mich., to the Detroit News-Tribune says of St. Thomas' star pitcher, who is due to reach Peterborough:

"One of the players retained on the league list, Jacobson, of Kalamazoo, will not be on Charley Ogden's roster this year, but will pitch for the St. Thomas team of the Canadian league. It is also there is a suspicion that the league across the border is enjoying a higher salary limit than the South Michigan, or else it got holdout entirely on its own. Jacobson certainly was the greatest for the change. He wanted an increase in salary this year. He was one of the highest-priced men on the team with the exception of Ogden, getting $200 a month. Jacobson had pitched for the Kalamazoo team during the famous post-season games of 1910, when the Grand Rapids, and he alone defeated Lansing and won the pennant, so he really 'do two pennants for his dish.'"

FOOTBALL

All Saints will practise to-night at the Brimton Meadows. Every member of the Club is asked to be present, as the team will play Park St. on Saturday and the team will be chosen from those out to practice.

First Fruits of Policy of Delay

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, MAY 7.—Although; as stated yesterday, nobody expected the ne temere case to go on before the Supreme Court to-day, there was an imposing array of ten King's Counsel and as many lesser legal lights, representing the Dominion and Provinces; also an audience which filled the courtroom, when the issue was called this morning.

After half an hour's preliminaries, the Chief Justice announced that the Court would decline to hear reference as to whether the Commons had power to pass Lancaster's marriage bill, which practically wipes out the Ne Temere Decree in Canada until the Privy Council gives judgment as to the Supreme Court's jurisdiction.

Two Ways Of Using Money

By Ruth Cameron

Two young women in my acquaintance are earning about the same salaries, but they use their money in very different ways.

One of them spends as little as possible on herself for daily needs. She walks to save car-tickets; she eats at cheap restaurants; she denies herself any attention which costs anything; she dislikes to buy clothes before she spends a quarter; she is always saying that she must economize, that she must not spend this or that little thing, or she will find herself quite down, every penny in her pocket book. With the penny she buys expensive big things—a handsome coat of fur, a costly velvet hat, a mahogany dresser for her room, etc. People are always saying: "What a lot Mabel does get out of her money!"

The other girl manages, also, plenty of money for little things: she goes to the theatre or to some lecture almost every night; she gratifies her love for pleasant surroundings by dining in one of the most attractive restaurants in the city; despite her friend's horrified protest that one spends there. Little expenditure, consequently, she has quite an sizable account in the people who "Isn't it strange for her money with the good salary she has?"

Now this point of view is so familiar as to be a truism, but there are times when I quarrel with it. May I recall to your mind a sentence which I think I have quoted before? "The right use of money is to accomplish what you wish with it."

Presumably both these girls want the largest amount of happiness possible for their money. The question is: which gets it? The first girl is always tied down to thoughts of money. Spending a quarter bothers her. She scrimps herself and denies herself to save a dime. She gets big things for her money and is proud of it, but it is worth while? If some of the money which she put into that mahogany dresser—she scrimped for it six months—had been distributed over that six months as oil to make the machinery of her daily living run more smoothly, wouldn't she have been happier on the whole?

The second girl never thinks of money. She allows herself plenty to oil the machinery of daily life and she gets as much as she can out of the rest, and is content. To be sure, she has an oak bureau in her room instead of a mahogany dresser, but I wonder if her peace of mind and her freedom from money worry do not make the balance pretty nearly even.

Now please do not think I am advising you to spend all your money on little things. I'm not advising any extreme. I'm just trying to get the opposite point of view from the conventional one.

It is good to get the full value of your hard earned money, but in trying to do that, do not forget that peace of mind and freedom from money worry are some of the precious things of life, as well as costly furs and mahogany dressers.

Remember that there is such a thing as thinking too constantly of saving money and consequently chaining yourself down to continuous thoughts of money. To my mind, nothing but duty or necessity can make that worth while.

REPORT OF DEPUTATION TO EDUCATIONAL CONVENTION

Mr. W. H. Hill submitted the following report to the Board of Education:

Gentlemen,—The fifty-first meeting of the Ontario Educational Association was held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, April 9th, 10th, and 11th, in University College, Toronto.

The attendance was large and representative and much interest was manifested in every phase of educational work.

One of the most animated discussions that took place in the Trustee Department, arose from a paper read by Mr. J. R. Lumby of Fort William on "The Strangers Within Our Gates." This raised the question of bi-lingual schools and the consensus of opinion among the trustees was not favourable to their continuance.

The Trustee Department appointed a committee to embody the desires of the trustees in a recommendation to the Advisory Council, which they hoped would be adopted by the Legislature.

The President of the Association for 1912 is a trustee, J. H. Laughton of Parkhill. In his address at the general meeting of the Association he urged upon the home and the church not to neglect their duties, and to foist them upon the teacher, as she already has about all she can successfully attend to.

Venerable Archdeacon Cody also addressed this meeting and he urged upon the teachers the necessity of fostering a national spirit in the minds of their pupils: to teach them to glory in being citizens of a world-wide empire; to instil in their minds not only its splendid past, but its high destiny in the future, as well, and in everything to teach them to realise that a nation's best product is good men and good women.

In the High School Department one important matter dealt with was the raising of the matriculation standard.

A motion was passed approving of raising the standard of entrance to the University to Senior Matriculation. This will enable pass students to complete their University course in three years and honour students in four years.

This should not seriously affect the larger High Schools and Collegiate Institutes, but it will make it difficult for the smaller schools to cover the work.

The Normal School course was discussed by the Training and Inspectors' Departments. A suggestion that the course be divided into two parts with a teaching interval between received favourable comment. This plan has been successfully adopted in Manitoba. The alternative, to make the course one of two years was also discussed.

The question of having Township Boards of Trustees instead of boards for each section; received considerable attention, and the Trustee Department passed a resolution that the Trustees of each Inspectorate hold an annual meeting at such time as the teachers held their convention.

The rural school received chief attention in the Public School Department.

In spite of increase of salaries and of the work of the Normal Schools, the rural school is still largely in the hands of uncertificated teachers and the rural pupils are not receiving the opportunity of a fair education.

The present system has to some extent broken down and some remedy will have to be found. Dr. Colquhoun, the Deputy Minister, advocated still further increase in salaries, and the establishment of a pension system.

Other remedies suggested were that teachers should become civil servants with fixed minimum and maximum salaries, according to certificate held, while still another remedy suggested was the establishment of consolidated schools. Such schools are working successfully in parts of the Maritime Provinces, and their adoption would appear to be necessary in part, at least, of Ontario.

In urban Public schools a strong plea was made for the extension of the course in Manual Training. It was pointed out by one of the Toronto teachers that 77 per cent. of the pupils of that city never pass the Entrance examinations and 75 per cent. of the boys of the public schools enter the factory, shop or building work directly after leaving the public schools. He advocated that these pupils be given, at least, one half hour per day in manual training work and that greater attention be given to the subjects bearing upon practical work.

The meetings of the association would indicate that an increasing interest is being taken in all matters pertaining to education.

All of which is respectfully submitted on behalf of the Deputation.

W. H. Hill,

Board Room, May 7, 1912.

Man Mastered By His Business

When a man cannot forget his business when he lays his head on the pillow at night, it is time to consider the condition of his nervous system. Otherwise his business will wreck his future by undermining his health.

For a time he may keep going on stimulants, but if health is to be restored and old-time vigour brought back the nerve cells must be revitalized by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

A few weeks' use of this great food cure will do wonders for any business man or woman whose nervous system has failed to stand the strain. Gradually and naturally the blood is enriched and vigour and energy are restored to mind and body. Appetite is sharpened, digestion improves, you sleep well and regain the strength which makes you master of yourself and of your business.

Board of Works to Take Steps

WILL BUY OR EXPROPRIATE

Provision for the opening of new streets that will be of interest to the citizens in the neighbourhoods affected, was made at Monday night's Council meeting, by a motion introduced by Ald. Buller, and seconded by Ald. Duncan.

The Board of Works is authorized to purchase or expropriate sufficient land for the widening of Lewis St., and Babb's Lane, and for the construction of a street running north and south, about half way between the Boundary Road and Park street, from Patterson street to Sherbrooke, and from Sherbrooke to Bolivar St. Ald. Buller stated that this would break up the solid blocks that now obtain and would facilitate communication in that district. He advocated the carrying out of the step now when no houses have to be bought, and when the right of way can be secured through open property.

An effort will also be made to open a street through the Finnie property, between Aberdeen street and Barnardo avenue.

Ald. Anderson asked that Orchet Place be extended through to Mark street. The motion carried unanimously.

Mayor Bradburn said he thought this was a wise move, and if it were not carried through this year, it would possibly never be done.

DIDN'T SEE A BIBLE TILL OVER 30 YEARS

Miss Rattie Will Deliver Address at Knox Church To-night

The field secretary of the Social and Moral Reform Board of the Presbyterian Church, Miss Rattie, has remained in the city for the purpose of addressing mid-week service in Knox Church to-night, at 8 o'clock. Miss Rattie is a noted messenger. She had passed 30 before she saw a Bible. She is now regarded as one of the strongest Christian workers among women. She was engaged in French evangelism in Quebec before taking up the work of the Social Reform Board. She is regarded as a very strong speaker as well as a most effective Christian worker. A large number should avail themselves of the privilege of hearing Miss Rattie to night.

PUT COCK-CROWING WITH TRAIN TOOTING

Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I notice that the City Council wants to put down or lessen nerve-racking and sleep-breaking noises, by passing a by-law forbidding shunting engines to blow their whistles. But that's a small matter. There isn't much shunting during the night or early morning and it's the early morning noises that worry me and mine. Cock-crowing begun its waking qualities early; it woke St. Peter's conscience, which was a good and wholesome thing, but the cock-crowing I refer to, is fairly killing. Often after a sleepless, a largely sleepless night, it is exasperating, after one sinks into the sleep of exhaustion towards dawn, to be startled from it by the shrill crowing of a cock near by, which, in the still morning, with an open window, seems just at the bedside. The crowing continues shrill and piercing, banishing sleep and driving one fairly wild. Morning after morning, I have had my sleep broken and destroyed, and have had to face the hard duties of the day, unrefreshed with sleep. Besides, a dear patient has been worse affected and recovery retarded.

Is there any law to prevent this torture to hard-working housewives and mothers? I notice that in Toronto, the nuisance is taken into law. Crowing cocks beginning at peep of day and lasting till seven are worse than all the shunting engines hooting all at once. For heaven's sake let the city fathers pass a law to silence the crowing cock at least during hours that might be devoted to sleep and rest.

Yours truly,

MOTHER.

REV. F. M. FITZPATRICK ON "LORD ELGIN IN CANADA"

Entertaining Address Delivered to Knights of Columbus on a Phase of Canadian History

A lecture on "Lord Elgin," Canada's Governor-General, who followed Lord Durham, was the subject of a lecture by the Rev. Father Fitzpatrick at the Knights of Columbus Clubrooms on Tuesday evening. There was a large attendance of members, who enjoyed the interesting manner in which Father Fitzpatrick dealt with the period of Canadian history between 1847 and 1854. Among the Governor-Generals who had represented the Crown in Canada, there were a number who possessed the peculiar abilities necessary for that position, especially during the time when the country's progress was slow. Father Fitzpatrick said that none of the Governors appealed to him more than Lord Elgin, from the standpoint of accomplishment for the young colony and the building up of that substructure upon which Canada's prosperity, national contentment and progress has been erected.

The speaker emphasized the troubles with which Lord Elgin had to contend, the problems that confronted him and the various difficulties connected with his position in those days.

Father Fitzpatrick stated that he had visited many countries, but, in his opinion, there was none that compared with Canada for good government, liberty, happiness and goodwill. There might be at times little differences, but they too would disappear. Father Fitzpatrick conveyed the historical facts with a charm of address and story that was much appreciated.

Mr. Daniel O'Connell delivered a brief address on the "Genius of Great Britain's Policy."

Father Fitzpatrick was tendered a warm vote of thanks for his entertaining and instructive lecture.

THE OLD PLEA

He "Didn't Know It Was Loaded."

The tea or coffee drinker seldom realizes that tea and coffee contains the drug, caffeine, a serious poison to the heart and nerves, causing many forms of disease, noticeably dyspepsia.

"I was a lover of coffee and used it for many years and did not realize the bad effects I was suffering from its use. (Tea is just as injurious as coffee because it, too, contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.)

"At first I was troubled with indigestion. I did not attribute the trouble to the use of coffee, but thought it arose from other causes. With these attacks I had sick headache, nausea and vomiting. Finally my stomach was in such a condition I could scarcely retain any food.

"I consulted a physician; was told all my troubles came from indigestion, but was not informed what caused the indigestion. I kept on with the coffee and kept on with the troubles, too, and my case continued to grow worse from year to year until it developed into chronic diarrhoea, nausea and severe attacks of vomiting. I could keep nothing on my stomach and became a mere shadow, reduced from 150 to 128 pounds.

"A specialist informed me I had a very severe case of catarrh of the stomach which had got so bad he could do nothing for me and I became convinced my days were numbered.

Then I chanced to see an article setting forth the good qualities of Postum and explaining how coffee injures people, so I concluded to give Postum a trial. I soon saw the good effects—my headaches were less frequent, nausea and vomiting only came on at long intervals and I was soon a changed man, feeling much better.

"Then I thought I could stand coffee again, but as soon as I tried it my old troubles returned and I again turned to Postum. Would you believe it, I did this three times before I had sense enough to quit coffee for good and keep on with the Postum. I am now a well man with no more headaches, sick stomach or vomiting and have already gained back to 147 pounds." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Police Entered Home Without Authority

LONDON, ONT., MAY 8.—It is understood that the resignation of P. C. John Green has been handed to the chief of police, to take effect on May 12.

Trouble occurred in an East London home, and the occupant claimed that the officer had no authority to interest himself in the matter, resulting in the matter being brought to the attention of the mayor and police commissioners, through the solicitor for the party who claimed to have been injured.

According to the complainant's story Green followed him into his house, which he was not empowered to do without a warrant, and became involved in a quarrel with the man. In the melee it is alleged that the officer drew his baton and wielded it over the head of his man so effectively that considerable blood was spilt. The officer's helmet was also battered up during the row, it is claimed.

It was not possible to find P. C. Green to secure his side of the story.

Some dissatisfaction is expressed at the over-eagerness of some officers. Yesterday a businessman was having his spring cleaning done, and it was necessary to have a wagon stand before the door. A policeman informed the driver that the wagon must be removed. Had this been carried into effect the cellar would not have been cleared of rubbish.

"Stay where you are," the proprietor told the men who were at work. No trouble developed.

THE PETERBOROUGH SUMMER FAIR

May 27th to June 1st—The Greatest Spectacular Event of the Season

(By Roy Gilray.)

The last week in May will be red letter week in Peterborough. The Ladies' Auxiliary of the local Health Association have determined to do their part in banishing Consumption from our midst, and propose raising money enough to provide a District Nurse or "Friendly Visitor" whose duty it will be to visit those homes that need her assistance, where, perchance, some loved one lies prostrate, a victim of that fell monster, the White Plague, and where the balance of the family are exposed to the great danger of contracting the same disease.

These noble women have been working incessantly for months, and they promise a programme which will eclipse anything in the past.

In addition to the list of drawing cards mentioned last week, they propose having numerous side attractions, such as an Egyptian encampment, where lovers may have their fortunes told; a rummage sale to delight the heart of every bargain hunter; a theatre, where a continuous performance will be given; a shooting gallery and bowling alley, where the crack shots may exhibit their skill; an art exhibit, where lovers of the beautiful may feast their eyes; a dolls' palace, where little girls may be happy for hours at a stretch; and an orange tree, laden with oranges made-in-Peterborough, each one containing a prize package.

The crowning event of each evening will be the grand promenade in costume to the thrilling music of the City Band.

Special Rates on Railways.

Summer Pumps at $2.50

DAME FASHION has decreed "Pumps" as the favourite, feminine footwear for 1912 and, in this matter, she has been particularly pleasing in her choice, for what is neater—smarter—or nattier for summer wear than the dainty pump which gives the wearer poise—graceful bearing—character and a well groomed, well shod appearance.

The "Cressman" shoe department has gained an enviable reputation for always having the newest—most attractive and correct [illegible] feminine footwear and our showing of these trim little pumps truly bears out our reputation.

And, best of all, these smart—cleverc reations are procurable at an exceedingly moderate price—one well within reach of all, which makes it possible to have a pair to correspond with each particular costume.

We make a department leader at $2.50 and our showing at this price includes :

Tan Pumps in bewitching models. Tan is very much in vogue this season and is wore by the leaders of fashion throughout the land.

White Nubuck the season's newest novelty—a colonial pump which has class, distinction, grace and an abundance of style.

We advise early selection of these lines—choose now while selections are complete and sizes unbroken.

196 HUNTER STREET — Next the Post Office

57th Regt. Peterboro' Rangers

The regular weekly parade was by far the best that has been held this season. The Regiment made a fine showing as they marched down George street, several hundred strong, last night, headed by the Regimental Band and the Bugle Corps. Despite the erliness of the season, the Peterborough Rangers have rarely shown to better advantage in the matter of drill, and the various formations were obeyed with a precision which speaks well for the care and efficiency of both men and officers.

Highly interesting in local military affairs is the announcement that Sergeant Instructor McKay has been attached to the 57th Regiment for one year. There is plenty of work here for an Instructor throughout the year Sergeant McKay will, in all probability, form an Officers' class, some time during the fall. This will prove a boon to the number of unqualified officers who are now attached to the Regiment.

Major H. V. Horden, G.S.O., Third Divisional Area, addressed the officers of the 57th Regiment in the Armouries on Monday evening. By means of maps and plans Major Horden solved a number of tactical and strategical problems pertaining to field manoeuvres. On Tuesday morning an open-air demonstration was given, at which a number of the officers took part. This event took place a short distance west of Jackson Park, and consisted of picket and outpost work.

The Signal Corps in connection with the 57th Regiment, is a popular unit. Little difficulty is experienced in keeping the corps up to full strength and under the able command of Lieutenant Brightman, a high standard of efficiency is acquired.

The round of social events, which have been many this season, are all but completed. The next few months will be devoted to military training. The enrolling of a large number of recruits this spring has had the effect of bringing the Rangers up to full regimental strength. The qualities of the men who are turning out to the recruit classes show that for physical standard the new recruits will rank well with the veterans.

Authority is necessary to fly a flag from the armouries and drill halls under the Militia Department on Sundays and holidays, while in the Province of Ontario every Public school is ordered to fly the national emblem on all school days.

It is estimated that the number of officers and men of the 57th Regiment who will attend the camp of instruction at Barriefield, Kingston, this summer, will not exceed the hundred. The main difficulty is the fact that so many men cannot leave their employment for five days without running the risk of losing their positions. There is a law on the statute books which compels employers to grant leave for this purpose, but, like many similar laws of the land, it works better in theory than in practice.

Headquarters ,Peterborough,
May 7th, 1912.

1.—Detail of duty for week ending 13th May, 1912, Captain for the week, Capt. Hounsell; next for duty, Captain McLean; subaltern for the week Lieut. Meyers; next for duty, Lieut. C. Lock.

2.—The following have been taken on the strength of the Regiment: C Company—Pte. W. Hall, D. Phalen, A. Yorkston, J. Williams, S. Yarrington, J. Simmonite, F. Howarth, W. Deramee, W. J. Charles.

WORTH MORE THAN MONEY

Here is an instance where a few words of advice by a friend helped more than a gift of $1000 would.

Mrs. H. Hartmann, who lives in Albany, N. Y., who was in bad health for years and is now strong and vigorous says in a letter:

"I was in a run-down condition for about five years until this spring, when I learned what a good tonic and strengthener Vinol is. It is certainly the best tonic I have ever used and it has done wonders for me."

It is very important for all who are not feeling just right, to build up their strength this spring by taking our delicious cod liver and iron remedy without oil, Vinol.

There is no better time than right now, for Vinol both enriches and purifies the blood, and creates new strength. People who have troublesome coughs, no appetite, can't sleep find Vinol exactly what they need to build them up. We guarantee Vinol to satisfy you and will pay back your money if it does not. DEATH OF J. P. THOMAS AT BELLEVILLE

Belleville, May 7.—J. P. Thomas, K.C., died after a lingering illness at the residence of his son-in-law, Dr. MacColl, last evening. He was born in Colborne, and was 78 years old. He has practised law in Belleville since 1864, and was president of the Hastings Law Association for several years. He was very prominent in Masonic and I. O. F. circles. He was secretary of the Belleville Board of Trade for some time, and of the Belleville Cemetery Company since the death of Mr. A. G. Northrup. The late Mr. Thomas leaves a widow and one daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) A. E. MacColl.

CITY COUNCIL NOT INFALLIBLE SAYS BOARD OF EDUCATION

The School Board Take Exception to the Council's Action in Criticising the Board For its Alleged Extravagance —New Salary Schedule For City School Teachers.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education was held Tuesday evening. The Board found it within their province to make a few cynical remarks in reference to the accusations which the Council is alleged to have made towards the Board at one of their recent meetings. The main allegation of the Council was to the effect that the Board of Education was extravagant.

Col. Miller started the ball rolling by the term to state that he had been apprised, through the columns of the local press, that the School Board were seeking additional grants. Col. Miller concluded his remarks by demanding an explanation from the Board relative to the action of the Building committee in enlarging upon their expenditures without the full consent of the Board.

In compliance with this report, Dr. Morrison, as chairman of the Building committee, stated by way of explanation, that to his knowledge no further demands had been made upon the civic treasury. It was the desire of the entire Board that the cost of building the new schools should not exceed the appropriation. So far as was known at present, this sum of money would be sufficient to meet the cost of the work, and if further funds were needed, the City Council would be given ample notice.

Mr. Crane—"The City Council is evidently borrowing trouble!"

Mr. Hill—"I don't think it is fair for the City Council to criticise the School Board which, as a body, is working for a high standard of perfection in the Public schools of this city. The City Council is not infallible and as long as we satisfy the constituents—meaning the public—we are not going to be governed by the Council."

Beat a Retreat.

At this stage of the meeting, Mr. H. R. H. Keaner succumbed to the strains of martial music, which were heard without, and beat a hasty retreat.

The matter of introducing the penny bank system into the Public schools of the city was left over. The chairman stated that he had nothing to report in regard to the question.

Inspector's Reports Received.

The annual report of the manual training schools of Peterborough, was received by the card. The Inspector recommends that more attention should be devoted to the teaching of working drawings. The report also suggests that the Board take up the matter of establishing evening classes under an Advisory Industrial committee. The report as a whole was a very satisfactory one.

The following citizens and members of the Board were named to compose the Industrial committee: Mr. E. G. Patterson, Mr. Gilbert Anson, Mr. D. Spence, Mr. T. H. G. Denne, Mr. J. Corkery, Mr. T. Barrie,; members of the Board, Mr. V. Eastwood, Mr. L. M. Hayes, Mr. B. F. Ackerman, Mr. T. H. Adams, Mr. J. Crane and Col. Miller.

The Inspectors' annual report of the Household Science class was also received. An extract from the report stated, "That the work is proceeding very satisfactorily, except that there is no preliminary training in the lower grades. Needle work should be taught from grade one throughout the schools.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

M. A. MORRISON,
Chairman.

Report of Committee on Appointments

Gentlemen,—Your Committee on Appointments beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

1. That Mr. S. J. Stubbs be appointed a member of the Board of Examiners for the Entrance examinations for the present year.

2. That the Advisory committee in connection with the Commercial Form of the Collegiate Institute be composed of the following: Messrs. W. E. Morris, W. F. Johnston, T. C. Elliott, R. Neill, J. Crane, V. Eastwood, Dr. Burnham and L. M. Hayes.

3. That the salary schedule be amended, as follows and to take effect 1st September, 1912:

Principal Collegiate Institute and Public school Inspector, minimum, $3000.00; maximum $3,400.00, yearly increase $100.

Collegiate Institute.

(a). Specialists who are honour graduates, and in charge of a department, minimum $1,500.00; maximum, $1,800; yearly increase, $60.00.

(b.) Assistants, not in charge of a department, minimum, $1,200; maximum, $1,500; yearly increase, $50.00.

Public Schools.

(a.) Principals of schools of 8 rooms and over, minimum $1,300; maximum, $1,600; yearly increase, $40.00.

(b.) Male assistants and principals with less than eight rooms, minimum, $1,000; maximum, $1,250; yearly increase, $0.000.

Respectfully submitted.

W. H. HILL,
Chairman.

Request Was Granted.

Miss Annie Weir of the Collegiate Institute staff, wrote the Board, requesting that she be allowed to select a substitute teacher to act during her absence in Europe, where she was going to take up a complete course of study in German and French languages. Miss Weir gave as her reasons for this request, that the appointment of a suitable teacher as a substitute would have a material bearing on her work throughout the remainder of the year 1912-13. The appointment would be subject to the approval of the Board.

The request was granted, Miss Weir will be absent from her duties during the months of September and October.

Empire Day, May 23rd.

The matter of duly observing Empire Day, which, so far as the Public schools are concerned, will be celebrated this year on May 23, was then taken up by the Board.

Mr. Hill thought that the clergymen of the city should interest themselves in the matter.

Col. Miller opined that the flag should play a prominent part in the proper observance of the day and that a general martial spirit should pervade the atmosphere.

Mr. Adams suggested that the school children be massed in the site of the East City school.

Mr. Hill suggested that the City Council be consulted in the matter.

Inspector Mowatt's idea was to have a portion of the day devoted to a historical and geographical study, later culminating in a celebration of some minor nature.

The meeting then adjourned. There were present, Chairman J. Crane, School Trustees, Messrs. B. F. Ackerman, Col. Miller, R. Fair, T. H. Adams, Dr. Morrison, W. H. Hill, L. M. Hayes and Dr. Burnham.

The Piano of the Period

New Scale Williams

The music student, the amateur and the finished musician go about the selection of a piano with a somewhat different viewpoint from the average layman. They have a more definite idea of what constitutes Real Artistic Tone Quality. They have different standards, perhaps more exacting, from which to judge tonal effects, and the fact, therefore, that hundreds of New Scale Williams Pianos have been purchased by musicians, is of special significance. It presents the verdict of a competent jury; one which the intending purchaser of a piano can well afford to take into careful consideration. It is the beautiful singing quality as well as the attractive appearance of these pianos which appeals to the artistic sense of the trained musician and music lover.

WASN'T SHE LOVELY HAIR

How often have you heard this remark? Very often indeed: Everyone admires well kept, luxuriant hair because it is a real beauty in itself; and as Balzac says in his famous work on beautiful women:—"The seal of loveliness of a beautiful woman lies in the tresses of her hair."

Any woman can have beautiful hair if she will but give it proper care with a proper hair dressing. Sageine is such a dressing. It will bring life and beauty into dull faded hair and make it clean, fluffy and attractive.

Since the introduction of Sageine in America it has met with wonderful success and is the popular hair tonic with leading men and women everywhere.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mrs. R. Warren, Sherbrooke St., left this morning for Lexington, Miss., to spend a month with her daughter, Mrs. E. J. Kampf.

Mr. Frank Whitehouse, Superintendent of agencies for the Nordheimer Piano Co., has taken up his residence in this city in the interests of his Company.

In a letter received from Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, it is learned that he has arrived safely in England, after a stormy passage on the Virginian of the Allan Line amidst icebergs. The Virginian went towards the Titanic and was within 30 miles of her when

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN BELL.

The death occurred this morning at 7 o'clock, of Mrs. John Bell, relict of the late John Bell, who passed away about ten years ago. The deceased was in her 82nd year, and, owing to ill health for some time past her death was not unexpected. The late Mrs. Bell was born in the county of Cavan, Ireland, and came to Canada in 1846; settling in Otonabee, where she has lived nearly all her life. She is mourned by one son, Mr. R. M. Bell, of Bay City, Mich.; her sister, Mrs. R. M. Matchett of East City; three brothers, Alex. M. Neitherout of Gaylord, Mich.; Montgomery and Jos. Neitherout of Dundalk, Ont.

The funeral will be held on Friday at 1.30 p.m., to Ree's cemetery, Lakefield, from the residence of the deceased's adopted daughter, Mrs. Sidney Bennett, lot 23, con. 14.

HUBERT BRENNAN.

Word has been received in Peterborough of the death in Jersey City, recently, of Hubert Brennan, a former resident of this city, at the age of 47 years. The deceased was a son of Richard Brennan, formerly a miller, with the McAllister Milling Co., and was well known in Peterborough. He left here about twelve years ago. One brother, Reginald Brennan, resides in Havelock, and the parents and other relatives live in Bracebridge.

MR. FRED NEWMAN.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon. The Rev. I. Couch will conduct a service at the residence above mentioned at 1.30, after which, at 2 o'clock, the cortege will proceed to Mount Pleasant cemetery, Cavan, for interment.

MRS. GEORGE MANLEY.

The death took place at 4.30 this morning at the family residence, 179 Bethune street, of Frances, relict of the late Mr. George Manley, at the age of 64 years.

The deceased lady was born in the Township of Hope, but has been a resident of this city for the space of twelve years. For the most part of ten years she had been ailing, and her death therefore was not wholly unexpected. She was a devoted member of Charlotte Street Methodist church.

The late Mrs. Manley is survived by four sons and one daughter, namely, William of Toronto, David, Harry Robert and Miss Elizabeth, all of Peterborough.

The remains will be conveyed by the noon C.P.R. train to-morrow to Perry Town, where interment will take place.

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Mr. Wm. Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Langdon Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble wasted nerve cells.

WEDDING BELLS

O'CONNOR—O'BRIEN.

A very pretty wedding took place on Tuesday morning at St. Joseph's church, Douro, when Mary Frances, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick O'Brien was united in the bond of holy matrimony to Mr. Joseph Vincent O'Connor of Douro. The Rev. M. J. McGuire, of St. Joseph's church performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given away by father, was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret O'Brien, while Mr. John Coughlin, cousin of the groom, acted as best man.

After the ceremony a reception was given at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride was the recipient of many useful and costly presents.

Dr. Merchant Is In City

Discusses Industrial School With Board of Education

Dr. Merchant, Inspector of Normal School and Director of Technical Education for the province, is in town on his annual visit of inspection to the Peterborough Normal school. Last night Dr. Merchant met a number of members of the Board of Education and informally discussed with them the proposed Industrial night school whic hthe Board have had under contemplation for some time.

Speaking to the Examiner to-day in regard to the matter, Dr. Merchant pointed out that the character of such a school depended upon the kind of technical education the young people of Peterborough required. The expense of its operation would be dependent upon the particular class of education that was needed by those who intended to take positions in local manufacturing concerns. A number of Ontario towns have already successfully started similar institutions.

CHORAL SOCIETY ENTERTAINED

The members of St. George's Choral Society were entertained last evening by Messrs. Coleman Bros., when a pleasant evening was spent in music and games. The Whist drive resulted as follows: Ladies' prize, Mrs. R. W. Dickson; Gents' prize, Mr. J. W. Worth; the "booby" prize went to Mr. Heaslip. At the invitation of the ladies of the Summer Fair, it was decided to repeat the concert given in the Opera House at the Summer Fair, the entertainment to be given under the direction of Mr. E. Thompson, Mr. R. J. Dewey, the new Conductor, briefly outlined the programme for the ensuing season.

A vote of thanks to Messrs. Coleman Bros. was proposed by Mr. E. Thompson, seconded by Mr. G. Deakin, and the evening closed by the singing of "O Canada," and "God Save the King".

MUSICAL SERVICE.

Tried to Wreck Train.

London, Ont., May 9.—After thoroughly investigating the wreck of Grand Trunk express No. 7 at Blackwell's, near Sarnia, Wednesday night, Grand Trunk officials state that they are satisfied that a deliberate attempt was made to wreck the train. They claim that the switch lock was forced and the switch deliberately left open, and that it had not been opened previously for three weeks. Every effort is being made to trace the guilty parties.

Nomination Day Sees All The Ridings Filled

Candidates Representing Both Liberal and the Conservative Parties Have Been Put Up in Every Riding—Quebec Fight is On.

Montreal, May 9.—The nomination of candidates for the provincial election, which will be held on May 16, took place yesterday.

Candidates representing both the Liberal and the Conservative parties have been put up in every riding yesterday, though it is hardly likely that they will all remain in the fight until election day. Sir Lomer Gouin, the Premier, was nominated in both Portneuf and St. John's, while Hon. Chas. Devlin, Minister of Colonization, is to run in both Nicolet and Temiskaming.

Armand Lavergne, aide de camp of Henri Bourassa, will contest Montmagny and Montmorency, while another prominent member of the Opposition, Jean Prevost, will attack Terrebonne and L'Assomption. Strong Conservative candidates have been put against all the members of the Gouin Cabinet. Hon. J. M. Tellier, leader of the Opposition, is running in Joliette.

The Liberals are making their appeal on the strength of Sir Lomer Gouin's record progressiveness in finance and the good roads, education and temperance policies. The Conservatives claim that the good roads policy is not popular, and that the Government has been extravagant.

In the city, the Conservatives have all spoken in favor of autonomy for Montreal, holding that the rest of the Province of Quebec merely milks this city.

Confidence prevails on both sides, and the fight, as a rule, has been conducted with a complete absence of the spectacular. Assistance has been given the Conservative candidates from time to time by Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster-General at Ottawa; Hon. B. Nantel, Minister of Inland Revenue, and Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice; while the Liberals have received support from Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, former Postmaster-General.

Eli Dunkelman Points Accusing Finger at Youth

VERDICT IS AGAINST HIM

Toronto, May 9.—"That Joseph Rosenthal came to his death at the foot of Strachan avenue between the hours of 6.15 p.m. on April 5 and 7 a.m. on April 6, from injuries sustained, and we believe that the evidence adduced points to Charles Gibson, now in custody, as the perpetrator of the crime."

This verdict was returned by Coroner Cotton's jury at the morgue last night after an hour's deliberation at the close of the most sensational session of the inquest into the death of Joseph Rosenthal, whose lifeless body was found in rear of the Hydro-electric station on Strachan avenue Saturday morning, April 6.

"You could have found no other verdict on the evidence," said Coroner Cotton, in receiving the verdict.

Dramatic incidents crowded thick throughout the three-hour session in which Eli Dunkelman, the companion of Rosenthal on the fatal night, recounted the story of his trip to the spot where he was struck down and Rosenthal murdered. The atmosphere of the court room was tense as he pointed an accusing finger at the shrinking form of Gibson, and again as Chief Coroner Arthur J. Johnson declared that stains upon the clothing which Gibson had left in a Church street rooming-house were positively found to be human blood.

Aubrey A. Bond, counsel for the prisoner, who had followed Dunkelman's story with a minute cross-examination, in which he strove in vain to draw, from the witness the admission that there might have been present on the fateful night the two other men of whom Gibson had spoken, had no question to ask when the crushing evidence of Dr. Johnson was concluded.

Gibson chatted to the constable at his elbow as he awaited the verdict. He was nervous and ill at ease. The police refused his father and stepmother access to him, and would not allow a parcel to be handed to him, fearing that poison or a means of escape might be concealed in it. As the boy stepped into the patrol wagon to be taken back to the jail, his stepmother strove to cheer him. "Cheer up, lad," she said, "you're not proved guilty yet."

Gibson will be arraigned before Magistrate Denison to-day, and County Crown Attorney Greer expects that the case will come to trial before the assizes now sitting.

Gibson was led into the room a few moments before Dunkelman was brought in. He stood at the side of the entry door with a policeman at his left, but a number of other men standing close to his right. Dunkelman came in to take the stand. His steps were slow and uncertain. His head was swathed in bandages. When he spoke his voice was low and husky. He has a peculiarly broad face with mild and benevolent eyes. His air was of great gentleness and something that was almost an absorption.

When he told of seeing the man "Smith," who came to ask for Rosenthal at his house, County Crown Attorney Greer asked him: "Could you find him if he was in the room?"

"I could," replied the witness with quiet assurance.

"Where is he?"

"There he is." As he sat low down in the witness box just his mild face and his leveled accusing finger were visible as he pointed without a moment's hesitation to Gibson. The prisoner had looked down when the question was asked. His face was flushed and his fingers fumbled with his hat. As the witness pronounced his identification Gibson cast an uneasy, furtive glance at him. His lips moved nervously as though he were muttering to himself and once more his eyes once more sought the floor.

Dunkelman in his evidence told how he and Rosenthal went to the Hydro station.

"Gibson came out and said that Rosenthal had better go down with him to the yard, and he could see the stuff.

"Then I asked him where was Rosenthal," continued the witness.

"He said Rosenthal would come out at the back door. Then he said to me: 'Do you see it lightning?'"

"What happened then?" asked Mr. Greer.

"I asked him then, 'Where is Rosenthal?' and he said he would be out soon, and told me to look at the lightning, and I looked up. I received a smash on the head and dropped. He was close to me, and he struck me on the head. It was dark. We could see ten feet about us, and could have seen anyone approaching for that distance."

"It was daylight when I came to myself. I saw a hammer lying on the ground near him. I got up and began to walk home."

He said he knew where he was. It was in the Hydro-Electric yard. "I do not know whether I had any money or not." He got on a street car, but the conductor put him off because he was covered with blood.

Chief Coroner Johnson told of the analysis of stains found upon clothing which was left by Gibson in a rooming-house on Church street, where it was recovered by Detective Mitchell. He said that he had first ascertained that the stains were blood. Then that they were mammal blood and lastly that they were undoubtedly human blood. He said that the stains were about the middle of the front part of the clothing and that one spot in particular looked as if it had spurted out upon the clothing. He said that there were other and more numerous stains upon the lower parts of the clothing, which looked exactly like those analysed, but which he had not thought it necessary to analyze.

DEFENDS BYRON.

London Times Says Personal Attack is Unjustified.

London, May 9.—The Times, in an editorial article on the Canadian reciprocity negotiations and the recent disclosures, regrets that Ambassador Bryce's name was so freely introduced in the attack in Parliament upon the Government. It says:

"In discussing the actions of an ambassador, it is always well to remember that his duty is to represent the Government that accredits him, and that the only question that can arise affecting him personally is whether he did efficiently and satisfactorily carry out his instructions. If he did, he is completely covered by the responsibility of his Government for the policy it employed him to carry out. If he did not, then the matter rests between him and his Government, which has ample means of marking its sense of his failure and which at the same time is the only fully informed and the competent judge of the degree in which he failed."

Canadians Knew It.

London, May 9.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Times says: "President Taft's disclosure of his real aims was no surprise to Canadians. It only confirms the view so emphatically expressed at the polls as to the effect of reciprocity on Canada's destiny."

Fatal Clash at Coal Mine.

Philadelphia, May 9.—The situation in the anthracite coal regions is believed to be growing more serious hourly.

Yesterday's shooting of three foreign speaking miners at Minersville, in the Schuylkill region, by state troopers, has had the effect of embittering the foreigners. It is said that two of the men have absolutely no chance of recovery.

The shooting was the result of an attempt of a mine superintendent to take a pumpman and repairman to a colliery.

At a meeting held last night at Minersville, at which all Americans were barred, threats were made against the troops, and the miners assembled say that they are determined to prevent work being done at any of the collieries in the Minersville section to-day.

It is feared that if the troops attempt to carry out their avowed intention to search the foreigners' homes for firearms it will mean a day of bloodshed for Minersville.

Optical Institute Talk No. 5

It Will Pay You

We frequently hear from persons far and near that they would not be without the eye-glasses which they had from the Optical Institute for several times their price. One lady remarked, I wouldn't take $50 for my glasses; another "they are worth ten times their price to me." A gentleman says "I wear mine constantly scarcely know they are on, but have perfect sight far and near. They are worth all they cost me and I want another pair in case of an accident."

The best cost a little more and require a little more time to have made up but it pays, and they are worth all you pay when they please you.

NAVY IS ASSURED

So Says Premier McBride at a Banquet in London

WEST IS STRONG FOR IT

London, May 9.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—At the Canadian Club dinner last night, Sir E. H. Rose presided, and Sheriffs Mansom and Bridges were chief guests. There were present also Hon. Richard McBride, Sir Frederick Borden, Hon. Colin Campbell, John Hamel, Sir Hugh Graham, Donald Mclntyre, M.P., Hon. J. H. Turner, the Bishop of Saskatchewan, Major Malcolm Murray, Col. Burland, Gen. Elliott, Captain and Lieut. Hanson and Sir T. Skinner.

Col. Burland, responding to the toast of the Imperial forces, eulogized the work done by Sir Frederick Borden for the military body.

Hon. Mr. McBride, responding to the toast of the Dominion, referred to the wonderful success the Duke of Connaught was achieving and to his gratification that His Royal Highness intended making a western journey.

"The loyalty and patriotism of Canada has never been questioned," continued the speaker, "but lately it has been intensified by political exigencies which it would, perhaps, be unbecoming to enter into here."

Proceeding to discuss the navy question, Hon. Mr. McBride said: "I assure intense interest is being taken in this question in British Columbia. We have an assurance from Hon. R. L. Borden that the Government purpose to take up this question at once and deal with it effectively. We in British Columbia are reminded day by day of all that a navy means. I have confidence that when the Premier proposes, as He will do shortly, a strong policy, making for an active efficient Canadian navy, he will have the entire Dominion behind him. One is very much encouraged to believe there will be results and quickly, too, when one has watched the earnest, splendid fashion in which First Lord of the Admiralty Churchill has discharged the duties of his office, not without meaning any reflection on his predecessors. I think I may safely say Mr. Churchill has made a name for himself unique in the annals of his department.

"I want to emphasize the strong determination of the Canadian people, as far, as I can gauge it, to have this question dealt with quickly, and we may expect good results from the fact that at the head of the Admiralty is such a personality as Mr. Churchill."

Whole Fire Brigade Asked to Resign.

Guelph, May 9.—In the shortest session on record the City Council last evening adopted the report of the fire and light committee, calling for the resignation of the entire fire brigade, from the chief down. The vote was six to three, the same as on Monday. There was no discussion, and the session lasted only two minutes.

Not on the Titanic.

Liverpool, May 9.—Thomas Hart, a fireman, who was supposed to have been drowned in the sinking of the Titanic, has, according to his mother's statement, turned up alive. The explanation is made that Hart's discharge book was stolen, and that it was used by another man to sign on the Titanic under Hart's name.

No Temporizing at Fez.

Paris, May 9.—Gen. Lyautey, the newly-appointed governor of Morocco, sailed yesterday afternoon from Marseilles, on board the cruiser Jules Ferry for Tangier, whence he will proceed to Fez. According to The Excelsior, his orders are: "Strike quick; strike hard."

Convict to Drowned.

Toronto, May 9.—George Sumner, 19 years old, a traveler for the Penman Manufacturing Co., who lived at 236 Sackville street, was drowned out of his canoe in St. Andrew's Cut, at Centre Island, last night. He is the first of the list of drownings from craft upon the bay for the summer season of 1912. The body was recovered and is now in the morgue. An inquest is unlikely.

By-Election Writs Issued.

Ottawa, May 9.—The Speaker's warrant has been issued for the federal by-elections in Kootenay, B.C., South Simcoe, Ont.; Richelieu, Que., and Macdonald, Man.

In the district of Kootenay the election will be brought on without delay. The dates for the others have not been considered.

Two Men and Woman Shot.

Pottsville, Pa., May 9.—Two men and a woman were shot by the state police at Minersville, near here, yesterday morning, when a mob which was being dispersed, started an attack upon them. Stones were thrown at the police who were dispersing them.

Boy Run Over by Train.

Cornwall, May 9.—George Tye, the sixteen-year-old son of Adolphus Tye, met with an accident on the Grand Trunk tracks about two miles west of the town yesterday afternoon, which cost him his left leg.

He was employed in the Ives Medern Bedstead Co.'s factory, but did not report for duty yesterday afternoon. Instead he went for a ride on a freight car. When near what is known as Edgar's Hill, he fell off and the train passed over his left leg, cutting it so badly that Dr. Hamilton found it necessary to amputate it above the knee. He was brought to town on a handcar and removed to the Hotel Dieu Hospital.

SICK DAUGHTER NOW WELL

Mrs. C. Cole Tells How Her Daughter Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Findlay, Ohio.—"I take great pleasure in writing to thank you for what your medicine has done for my daughter.

"Before taking your medicine she was all run down, suffered from pains in her side, could not walk but a short distance at a time, and had severe pains in head and limbs. She came very near having nervous prostration. She had begun to cough a good deal and seemed melancholy by spells. She tried two doctors but got little help.

"I cannot find words to express my gratefulness for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for my daughter. She feels and looks like another girl since taking it, and I shall always feel that I owe you a great debt.

"You can use this letter for the benefit of others if you wish, as I shall always recommend your medicines for female troubles."—Mrs. C. COLE, Findlay, Ohio.

Hundreds of such letters from mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

KEITH OF THE BORDER

A TALE OF THE PLAINS

By RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "My Lady of the South" "When Wilderness Was King" Etc. Etc.

(Copyright A. C. McClurg & Co., 1906.)

"At a little distance,—yes," he admitted, "her form and face resemble yours very closely, but her hair is darker, her eyes have a different expression, and she must be five or six years older."

"Do—do you know her well?"

"No, indeed; I have seen her several times on the stage, but never met her until a few moments ago."

"A few moments ago! Do you mean she is in this hotel?"

"Yes, Miss Hope, and that was what made the mistake in names so laughable. Fairbain gave me your message, but as coming from Christie. I was, of course, greatly surprised, yet responded. The lady very promptly denied having sent for me, but as I was anxious to interview her myself, we managed to drift into conversation, and I must have passed a half hour there. I might have been there still, but for an interruption."

He glanced quickly about, reminded of the situation.

"Yes, Hawley came in, and I would prefer not to meet him here, or have him discover you were in Sheridan. Could we not go to your room? I have much to tell you."

Her questioning eyes left his face, and stared down over the rail. A heavily built man, with red moustache, leaned against the clerk's desk, his face toward them.

"Do you know that man?" she asked quickly. "He followed me all the time I was shopping. I—I believe he is the same one who jostled me in the crowd last night."

Keith leaned past her to get a better view, but the fellow turned, and slouched away.

"I only had a glimpse, but have no recollection of ever seeing him before. You heard no name?"

"'Wild Bill' called him either Scott or Scotty—if this is the same man."

Keith's jaw set, the fighting light burning in his eyes. That was the name of the fellow rooming with Willoughby, the one who seemed to be Hawley's special assistant. Was he here as a spy? His hands clinched on the rail. He was anxious to go down and wring the truth out of him, but instead, he compelled his eyes to smile, turning back to the girl.

"A mere accident probably; but about my request? May I talk with you a few moments alone?"

She bowed, apparently still dissatisfied regarding his lengthy conversation with Christie, yet permitted him to follow down the hall. She held open the door of "15" and he entered silently, not wholly understanding the change in her manner. She stood before the dresser, drawing off her gloves and removing her hat.

"Will you be seated, Captain; the arm-chair by the window is the more comfortable." She turned toward him, almost shyly, yet with womanly curiosity which would not be stilled. "Was your call upon Miss Maclaire very interesting? Did you admire her very much?"

"Interesting? Yes, for I was seeking after information, and met with some success. As to the other question, I am not sure whether I admire the lady or not. She is bright, pretty, and companionable, and in spite of her profession, at heart, I believe, a good woman. But really, Miss Hope, I was too deeply immersed in my purpose to give her personality much consideration. Among other things we spoke of you."

"Of me? Why?"

"I told her something of our adventures together; of how both Hawley and I had been confused. She was anxious to learn who you were, but unfortunately, I have never, even yet, heard your name."

"You have not?"

"No; I left you at Fort Larned believing you Christie Maclaire—suppposing it your stage name, of course—and was confirmed in this belief the note brought to me from Hawley; by finding in the holster of the saddle you had been riding an envelope bearing that address."

"I remember; it contained the note he had written it that way." She crossed the room, sinking down into a chair facing him. "And you have actually confused me with Christie Maclaire all this while. Have never known who I was?"

He shook his head.

"I told you to call me Hope; that is my name—I am Hope Waite."

"Waite!" he leaned forward, startled by the possibility—"not—not——"

"Yes," she burst in,—holding out her hands, clasping the locket, "and this was my father's; where did you get it?"

He took the trinket from her, turning it over in his fingers. Little by little the threads of mystery were being unravelled, yet, even now, he could not see very far. He looked up from the locket into her questioning face.

"Did I not tell you No; then it was an oversight. This was about the throat of one of the men I buried at Cimmaron Crossing, but—but, Hope, it was not your father."

"I know," her voice choking slightly. "Mrs. Murphy found that out; that is why I am here. I heard my father came to Sheridan, and I wanted you to help me find him."

He was thinking, and did not answer at once, and she went on in some alarm.

"Do you know anything about him, Captain Keith? Where is he? Why is he here? Don't be afraid to tell me."

He pressed the locket back into her hand, retaining the latter, unresisted, within his own.

"I have not seen your father, Hope but he was certainly here a few days ago, for Fairbain met him. They were together in the army. I am going to tell you all I know—it seems to be a tangled web, but the ends must be somewhere, although I confess I am all at sea."

He told it slowly and simply, bringing forth his earlier suspicion, and how he had stumbled upon facts apparently confirming them. He related her father's robbery, his loss of valuable papers, and the conversation between Hawley and Scott which led to the suspicion that these same papers had fallen into the hands of the former, and were the basis of his plot. Hope listened, breathless with interest, her widely opened eyes filled with wonder. As he concluded speaking she burst forth:

"But I don't understand in the least, Captain Keith. Why did this man Hawley send me to Salt Fork?"

"He thought he was dealing with Christie Maclaire. He had some reason for geteting her away; getting her where he could exercise influence over her."

"Yes—yes; but who is she?"

"That is what makes the matter so hard to unravel. She doesn't even know herself. Hawley is going to take advantage of her ignorance in this respect, and convince her that she is the person he wishes her to represent—but who is the person? If we knew that we might block the game."

"Do you know of any special papers your father carried?" he asked.

"No; none outside his business agreements."

"Has anyone ever disappeared connected with your family? Did you have an older sister?"

"Fred and I were the only children. Why should you ask that question?"

"Because something of that nature would seem to be the only rational explanation. Your brother must have told Hawley something—some family secret—which he felt could be utilized to his own advantage. Then he saw your picture, and was immediately reminded of the remarkable resemblance between you and Christie Maclaire. Evidently this discovery fitted into his plan, and made it possible for him to proceed. He has been trying ever since to get an interview with the woman, to sound her, and find out what he can do with her. He has written letters, sufficiently explicit to make it clear his scheme is based upon a will drawn, as he claims, by Christie's grandfather. No doubt by this time he has fully convinced the girl that she is the rightful heiress to property—as he stated to Scott—valued at over a million dollars. That's a stake worth fighting for, and these two will make a hard combination. He's got the papers, or claims to have, and they must be the ones stolen from your father. I have been trusting you might know something in your family history which would make it all plain."

"But I do not," decisively. "You must believe me; not so much as a hint of any secret has ever reached me. There are only the four of us, Father, Mother, Fred, and I. I am sure there can be no secret; nothing which I would not know. Perhaps, if I could see Miss Maclaire—"

"I am convinced that would be useless," he interrupted, rising, and pacing across the floor. "If Hawley has convinced her of the justice of the claim, he will also have pledged her to secrecy. He is working out of sight like a mole, for he knows the fraud, and will never come to the surface until everything is in readiness. I know a better way; I'll find Fred, and bring him here. He would tell you whatever it was he told Hawley, and that will give us the clue."

He picked up his hat from the table, but she rose to her feet, holding forth her hands.

"I cannot thank you enough, Captain Keith," she exclaimed frankly. "You are doing so much, and with no personal interest——"

"Oh, but I have."

The long lashes dropped over the brown eyes'

"What do you mean?"

"That I have a personal interest—in you, Hope."

She stood silent, her bosom rising and falling to rapid breathing.

"You don't mind my calling you Hope? I haven't got used to Miss Waite yet'"

Her eyes met his swiftly.

"Of course, not. Such ceremony would be foolish after all you have done for me. Do—do you call her Christie?"

He laughed, clasping her hands closer."

"I assure you no—she is strictly Miss Maclaire, and," solemnly, "shall be to the end of the chapter."

"Oh, well, I didn't care, only that was what you called her when you were telling me what she said. Are you going?"

"Yes, to find Fred; the sooner we can get this straightened out, the better."

CHAPTER XXIV.

A MISTAKE IN ASSASSINATION.

Let his future be what it might, Jack Keith would never again forget the girl who held the door open for his passage with one hand, her other clasped in is. Interested before, yet forcing himself into indifference now that he knew who she really was, the man made full surrender. It was a struggle that kept him from clasping the slender figure in his arms, and pouring forth the words of tenderness which he sternly choked back. This was neither the time, nor the place, yet his eyes must have spoken, for Hope's glance fell, and her cheeks grew crimson.

"I do not need to pledge you to return this time, do I?" she questioned, her voice trembling.

"No," he answered, "nor any time again."

The hall was deserted, but a few men loitered in the office. Keith recognized none of the faces, and did not stop to make any inquiries of the clerk. It was growing dark, the lights already burning, and from the plashing of drops on the window, it must be raining outside. Hawley would surely have ended his call upon Miss Maclair long before this, and left the hotel. However interesting his communication might have proven, she must fill her evening engagement at the Trocadero, and would require time for supper and rest. As to the result of that interview there could be little doubt. Providing the gambler possessed the proper papers he would have small difficulty in convincing the girl that she was indeed the one sought. Keith had probed sufficiently into her mind to feel assured that her inclination was to side with Hawley. Under all the circumstances this was natural enough, and he did not blame her.

He glanced into the bar-room as he passed, not in any anticipation, but merely from the vigilance which becomes second nature upon the frontier. Hawley stood leaning against the bar, where he could see anyone passing through the hall. The eyes of the two men met, but the gambler never moved, never changed his attitude, although Keith noted that his right hand was hidden beneath the skirts of is long coat. The plainsman drew back, facing his enemy, until he reached the outer door. There was a sneer on Hawley's dark visage, like an invitation, but a memory of the girl he ha just left, and her dependence upon him, caused Keith to avoid an encounter. He would fight this affair out in a different way. As the door opened and he slipped forth into the gloom, he brushed against a man coherently just entering. The gleam of light fell for an instant upon the face of the other—it was Scotty with the red moustache.

They had been watching for him then—what for? Hawley on the inside, and this man Scott without, were waiting to determine when he left the hotel; would probably dog his footsteps to discover where he went. Keith loosened his revolver, so as to be assured he could draw quickly, and slipped back into the shadow of the steps, his eyes on the door of the hotel. There was a cold, drizzly rain falling, the streets almost deserted, appearing sodden and miserable where the lights shone forth through saloon windows. One or two men, seeking supper, coat collars turned up and hats drawn low over their eyes, climbed the rickety steps and went in, but no one came out. Perhaps he was mistaken as to the purpose of those fellows; they may have desired merely to know when he left, or Scott's return just at that moment might have been an accident. To be sure, the hotel possessed a back exit, but he could not cover both ends of the building, and must take his chances. It was too wet and disagreeable to remain crouched there, now that it was evident there was no intention of folloiwng him. With hand on the butt of his gnu, suspicious and watchful, yet with scarcely a faster beat to his heart, Keith straightened up, and began splashing his way through the mud down the street. He knew where Willoughby would be most likely found at this hour—with cronies at the "Tenderfoot"—and he meant to discover the boy, and make him confess to Hope the truth. Matters had now reached a point where longer delay was dangerous.

Sheridan was seemingly dead, the long street silent, gloomy, black, except for those streams of saloon light shining across pools of water. He stumbled over the irregular ground, occasionally striking patches of wooden sidewalk or a strip of cinders. Here and there a tent flapped in the wind, which drove the drizzle into his face; somewhere ahead a swinging sign moaned as if in agony. A few wanderers ploughed through the muck, dim uncertain shapes appearing and vanishing in the gloom. He had gone a block and over, the struggle against the elements leaving him forgetful of all else, when a man reeled out of some dimly lit shack to his right, and staggered drunkenly forward a few feet in advance. He could barely distinguish the fellow's outlines, giving little thought to the occurrence, for the way was unusually black along there, the saloon opposite having shades drawn. Suddenly a flash of red fire spurted into the night, with a sharp report. It was so close at hand it blinded him, and he flung up one arm over his eyes, and yet, in that single instant, he perceived the whole picture as revealed by the red flame. He saw the man in front go down in a heap, the projection of the building from behind which the shot came, the end of a wagon sticking forth into the street which had concealed the assassin. The blinding flash, the shock of that sudden discharge, for a moment held him motionless; then he leaped forward, revolver in hand, sprang around the end of the wagon, and rushed down th dark alley between two buildings. He could see nothing, but someone was running recklessly ahead of him, and he fired in the direction of the sound, the leaping spurt of flame yielding a dim outline of the fugitive. Three times he pressed the trigger; then there was nothing to shoot at—the fellow had faded away into the black void of prairie. Keith stood there baffled, staring about into the gloom, the smoking revolver in his hand. The sound of men's voices behind was all that reached him, and feeling the uselessness of further pursuit, he retraced his way back through the narrow passage.

A group was gathered about the body in the rain, a single lantern glimmering. Two or three men had started down the passageway, and Keith met them, revolvers drawn and suspicious.

WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR REMEDY

All healthy hair contains sulphur. When the hair does not contain a sufficient amount of sulphur, it loses its color, dies and falls out. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy quickly corrects this condition.

A Wonderful Cure

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly, and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff. I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it and almost at once was benefited by it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable.

Special to The Examiner:

OMEMEE, MAY 7th.—Miss Carrie Balfour was in Lindsay on Saturday.

Mr. N. J. Clarke spent several days with his family last week.

The annual meeting of the Omemee Branch East Victoria Women's Institute will be held on Thursday, May 9th, at 2.30 p.m. in the hall of the Commercial House. It is the request of the president that all members be present, as the election of officers for the ensuing year and other business will come before this meeting. It is also the date for renewal of fees. The annual summer meeting, when delegates from the department will be held on June 1st on the lawn adjoining the residence of Mrs. Gabriel Balfour.

Mrs. Byers, of Lindsay, was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. White, last week. Mr. Byers was down for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones, of Peterborough, spent Sunday with friends in town.

Mrs. Curry and her daughter, formerly of Peterborough, are visiting Mrs. Curry before leaving for Winnipeg, where they will reside in future.

Miss Edith Nugent spent the week-end in Lindsay, the guest of Mrs. Percy Nugent.

Mr. J. M. McOuat was in Toronto on Monday, on business.

The funeral of the late John Irwin on Sunday was largely attended, all the Orange Lodges turning out to pay respect to a fellow-member. Interment was made at Emily Cemetery, the services being conducted by the Rev. A. Earle, of Christ Church. Much sympathy is extended the bereaved family.

Mr. Bruce Fitzgerald spent Sunday with his parents in Millbrook.

Miss Caroline Balfour was in Lindsay on Saturday.

Mr. Melville and Miss Olla Earle were the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Irvine, of Lindsay, on Sunday.

At an open meeting of the Boys' Gnild on Friday evening, a troop of Boy Scouts was organized by Mr. J. Winslow, of the local branch of the Bank of Toronto. Mr. Winslow was formerly scout master of Millbrook Boy Scouts, and is thoroughly conversant with the Boy Scout movement. Two patrols were organized on Friday evening, with Mr. Winslow as scoutmaster and Hartley Currie as adjutant. Thos. Shiel dwas appointed patrol leader of the "Owls," with Errol Woodruff as corporal, and Willie Glenny takes charge of the junior patrol, the "Buffaloes," with James McGhie corporal. Both patrols took the scouts' oath. On Saturday afternoon the boys went to Mt. Nebo, where they were given some drilling and instruction in fire-lighting, besides engaging in some scout games. It is expected that one or two more patrols will be formed. A committee of management has been appointed, and much interest is being taken in the ovement.

BADLY ULCERATED LEG

Zam-Buk Cured Her When so Bad She Had to Use Crutches.

For varicose sores, bad leg, or chronic ulcers, Zam-Buk is without equal as a healer. A proof of this is just to hand from Montreal. Mrs. T. Edwards, of 164 Amherst St., writes: "Some time ago a bad sore broke out on my left leg near the ankle. For a week or two I did not heed it, but it got so bad that I could hardly walk. I sent for our doctor, and he told me that I would have to lay up with the wound. I did so for three weeks. At the end of that time the ulcer healed a little, but I could only move about by using crutches.

"The sore then broke out badly, and the doctor told me that the only thing that would cure it would be an operation, and that I should have to lay up for a year. This, I new, was impossible, as I had a family to attend to.

"My son had cured a bad cut on his finger by using Zam-Buk, and he advised me to give this balm a trial. I did so, and in less than a week's time it gave me wonderful relief. It stopped the pain, which had been so bad that many nights I did not get a wink of sleep. In a very short time I had no more sleepless nights, and was able to move about and do my work. I persevered with Zam-Buk, with the result that the wound is now perfectly cured, and the limb is as sound and strong as ever. To any person suffering from ulcerated sores I would say, 'try Zam-Buk.'"

FAMOUS TRAGEDIES that BALKED SOLUTION

The Mystery of the Disappearance of Nora Fuller, Linked to Her Death in San Francisco Through an "Ad" Offering Her Employment

THREE men, or perhaps one man known by three different names, dropped out of existence when little Nora Fuller was murdered in San Francisco, and ten years have thrown no light on the double mystery which surrounded her death. Nora's mother was a poor woman, divorced from her second husband, and struggled hard to send her children to school. When Nora, fifteen years old, asked permission to help support the large family by doing office work, Mrs. Fuller at first demurred, but the girl was set in her purpose and began to answer advertisements appearing in the newspapers.

On the morning of Saturday, January 11, 1902, she received a postal card which was signed by John Bennett and which read:—"Miss Fuller:—In answer to yours in response to my advertisement, kindly call at the Popular Restaurant, No. 55 Geary street, and inquire for Mr. John Bennett, at one o'clock. If you can't come at one, come at half-past five."

Nora left home in time to keep the appointment in the restaurant at one o'clock. At exactly two o'clock a clerk from a drug store near Mrs. Fuller's home asked her to step to the telephone. She took her son "Jack" to the store with her because she was not able to hear distinctly over the telephone.

"I am at the restaurant and have taken a position. My employer wishes me to go to work at once."

The voice sounded like Nora's.

When "Jack" repeated the message to his mother she told him to ask Nora to wait until the following Monday before going to work.

The Telephone Message.

"All right," said the voice on the telephone, when "Jack" had repeated Mrs. Fuller's request. Then before he could question the girl further the receiver at the other end of the line was hung up.

Nora Fuller was never seen by her family again until she was found dead in a bed at No. 2,211 Sutter street more than a month after she had left home to meet John Bennett. Marks on her throat showed that she had been strangled.

From the time of Nora's first disappearance the police had been searching for John Bennett, the man who signed the postal card which had lured her to death. The address, No. 1,500 Geary street, at which Nora Fuller had said over the telephone that she would be employed, was found to be a vacant lot. At the Popular Restaurant the police found his trail. F. W. Krone, owner of the restaurant, said that at five o'clock on the day of the girl's disappearance a man who often ate in his place had requested him to send any young woman asking for John Bennett to his table. After half an hour the girl had not arrived, and the man went out onto the sidewalk, where he paced up and down for some time, then went away. This all happened between five and six o'clock in the afternoon. It will be remembered that on the postal card John Bennett had requested Nora to meet him at half-past five, if she could not keep the appointment at one o'clock.

Apparently John Bennett went to the Popular Restaurant expecting to meet the girl at half-past five. Yet she had telephoned to her mother at two o'clock that she had met John Bennett and was at the restaurant. John Bennett was never heard of again under that name.

About a month after the disappearance of Nora Fuller and John Bennett, a real estate agent employed by G. H. Umbsen & Co. called at a house at No. 2,211 Sutter street to collect rent. To all outward appearances the house was closed and the agent became suspicious that no one was living there. He rang the bell repeatedly but there was no response, so he returned with a pass key and began to search the premises. Room after room he found to be empty and there was no furniture in the house. On the second story he caught a glimpse of a bed, over the foot of which were thrown in confusion a blanket, a quilt and a woman's long cloak.

Cautiously, for there was something ominous in the silence of the house, he approached the room and slowly opened the door, after first knocking. He stepped inside and instinctively started back aghast. There on the mattress, the tumbled bedclothes partly covering her body, which was fully clothed, lay a girl. One glance at the pallid face told him that she was dead.

In unreasoning fear of the ghastly occupant of the house he hurried to the street and called a policeman. The body was identified as that of Nora Fuller, and the police had their first substantial clew with which to work. But the clew soon involved them in mystery more baffling than before.

Mysterious Hawkins.

It developed that a man calling himself C. B. Hawkins had leased No. 2,211 Sutter street from G. H. Umbsen & Co. and had paid the rent a month in advance, being able to furnish no references. He and his wife, he said, were stopping at the Golden West Hotel and wished to move into the Sutter street residence as soon as possible. The house was immediately prepared for residence.

On the following day, January 9, a man answering the description of C. B. Hawkins called at the establishment of J. C. Cavanaugh, No. 848 Mission street, and purchased two pillows, a mattress, a pair of blankets and a comfortable. Without any explanation he made it a condition that if he purchased the articles they were to be delivered at No. 2,211 Sutter street after dark the same day of the purchase. He gave no name, but insisted that unless the identical goods were delivered and absolutely after dark he would not take them.

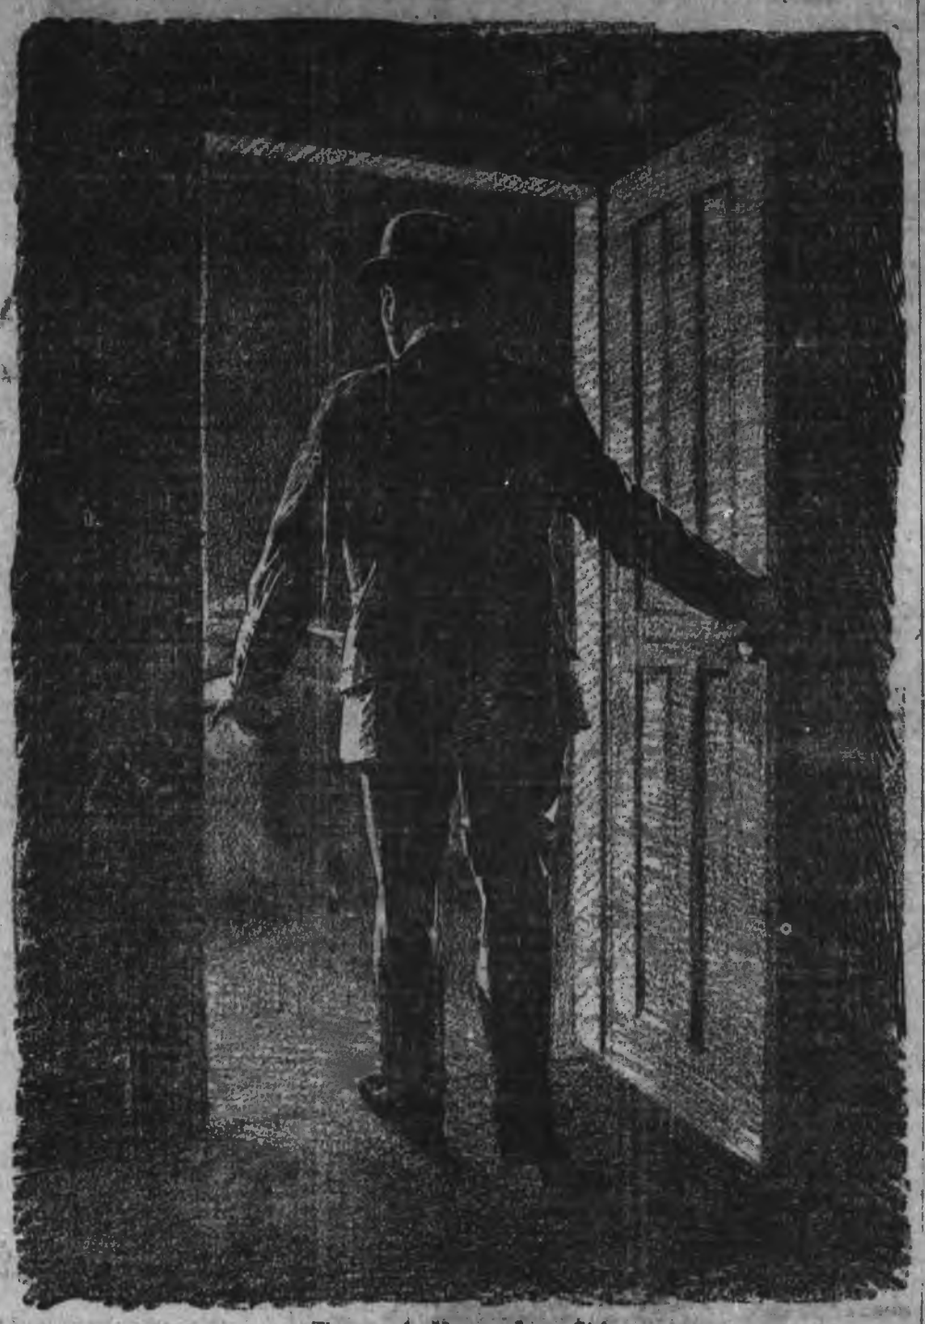
The clerk, B. T. Shell, suggested that he mark the blankets so that he could identify them. In ink the customer scrawled the initials "C. B. H." on all the articles he had purchased. That night a delivery boy named Gillan took the goods to Sutter street. A man in a tall [illegible] opened the door. There was no light in the house and the nearest street lamp cast only a flickering light in the hallway.

"I can't see to take those things up stairs," said Gillan, "unless you give me a light."

"That's all right," said the man in the dim light, "you may leave them right here in the hallway, as I am just going out. I will have them taken up stairs later."

He paid the bill, counting out the change with difficulty in the dim light. As he peered into the light in counting the money Gillan got a fair view of his face. Both he and the clerk described him as a man who would answer equally well the description of Hawkins or John Bennett.

Police inquiries at the Golden West Hotel showed that neither Bennett nor Hawkins had ever registered there under either of those names. The mattress and bed clothes in the house in Sutter street were identified as those purchased from Cavanaugh, and were marked "C. B. H.,"



There on the Mattress Lay a Girl.

The man calling himself Bennett had stopped at the restaurant at five o'clock in the evening instead of at one o'clock in the afternoon, but that might have been part of an attempt to establish an alibi. He might have met Nora outside the building at one o'clock or his presence in the place might not have been noticed during the luncheon hour.

The belief that Hadley, alias Bennett, might have met Nora Fuller outside the restaurant was strengthened by the story told by Madge Graham, that Nora had been in the habit of meeting a young man of fine appearance almost every day. She frequently telephoned to him, Madge said, from a grocery store near her home.

Hadley was a prominent man in San Francisco and had many interests, and it occurred to the police that under one of the three names he was supposed to have lived under he might have sent notice of his change of address to the post office. Handwriting experts examined 32,000 such notices and found three which much resembled Hadley's handwriting. One was declared so nearly that of the suspected man that Captain Seymour, of the San Francisco Detective Bureau, was sent to Kansas City to investigate. He found that the suspected man in Kansas City could not possibly have been Hadley and that he could not have taken any part in the crime.

All the time the police were working on the supposition that the three missing men were one and the same. They finally forced Ollie Glasier, the woman with whom Hadley had been living, to testify before a Coroner's jury.

During the examination it developed that Hadley had often worn a false mustache when he was in the house and had laughed about it, pretending that he did it only for fun. The Glasier woman did not know whether he had ever worn it when he was in the street. She had never seen him do so.

After the disappearance of Nora Fuller, Ollie Glasier testified, Hadley rose earlier than he was accustomed to, and read eagerly all the newspaper accounts of the affair. One morning while reading the paper he seemed suddenly to become greatly disturbed. He stuck the paper hastily into his pocket and left the house without stopping to tell where he was going. Ollie Glasier never saw him after that.

The day after his disappearance the woman searched the house to try to find some evidence which would explain his absence. She found some of his clothing, she said, with red stains on it and immediately became frightened. She burned them at once.

"Did Hadley have any small peculiarities of habit?" the Coroner asked Ollie Glasier.

The girl said that she did not recall any.

"Think hard," said the Coroner. "Had he no peculiarity in the way he walked, the way he dressed, or perhaps in the way he ate?"

"Yes, I guess you would say he was a little eccentric about his eating," said the girl.

"In what way?" asked the Coroner.

"Why, he never ate much meat," she said. "When he did eat meat he always ordered just the tenderloin part of a steak and had it well done."

When a waiter from the Popular Restaurant was called and he testified that John Bennett always called for the tenderloin of the steak and had it cooked almost dry.

This was considered almost indisputable circumstantial evidence that Bennett and Hadley were one.

To make doubly sure the police had an artist paint a mustache into the photograph of Hadley and a tall silk hat on his head. The boy who had delivered the blankets at the house in Sutter street, the clerk who had sold them, the real estate agent who had rented the house and the man who had sold the furniture identified the touched-up portrait as C. B. Hawkins.

Police Receive Setback.

Then came a staggering setback. The waiters and proprietor of the Popular Restaurant failed to see any resemblance to Bennett in the photograph. The descriptions they had given of the man tallied pretty well with descriptions of Hawkins and Hadley, but when they were confronted with the photograph they could see no feature which resembled Bennett.

That is about as far as the police ever got in the search for the three men, or the one man with the three names. Bennett, Hawkins or Hadley never returned to San Francisco, nor was ever seen again, so far as is known.

To add to the confusion a new feature, more than ever mysterious, was injected into the case. It was learned that the death of Nora Fuller's father had been equally surrounded with mystery and had never been accounted for. His name was John Parlyne, but when his widow married W. W. Fuller, Nora, who was extremely young, took his name.

Parlyne was an engineer on the steamship Tai Wo. One day while cruising in the China Sea he was seated on the deck with his back against the wheel house, when the captain passed him and spoke to him.

Men were working nearby on the decks. In a few moments the captain returned and asked where Parlyne had gone. None had seen him leave his position by the wheel house. The officer went below and sent for the engineer, but he could not be found. He had disappeared as though he had melted into air. Not a sailor had seen him go to his death, unless one of the crew was responsible for it, yet the man must either have jumped overboard or been thrown over.

For a long time the police searched for a clew which might connect the death of Nora Fuller with the mysterious vanishing of her father, but not a single thread of evidence of such a character was ever forthcoming.

Two years after the death of the girl the body of a man was found in the midst of the "Desert" in California, and papers in his clothing, almost destroyed from the action of rain and sun, made the discoverers believe that he was Charles B. Hadley. The papers dropped to pieces when handled, and with them crumbled the last trace of the man who was almost certainly supposed to have strangled Nora Fuller.

What the Doctors Say About Identification by Finger Marks

EXAMINATION of the palm of the hand and the palmar surface of the fingers reveals the existence of two series of lines and designs in the skin. Some are more or less transversal to the axis of the limb, and are irregular, bifurcated and more accentuated in flexional movements. These are muscular folds, such as are found adjacent to all the joints on the side where there is flexion. The arrangement of these larger lines has scarcely any interest except in palmistry.

But another system of lines is perceived, much finer, more regular and also deeper. In certain parts these lines conduce to form delicate and complicated designs, for instance in the fleshy part of the end phalange of the fingers, and also at the base of the fingers.

These lines are known as papillary lines, because they are produced by a lineal arrangement in series of the papillae of the skin, forming curves, breaks, bifurcations and anastomoses, as may be seen on the enlarged photographic reproduction of the accompanying imprint of a finger.

Inspection of the designs of the ten fingers shows that the designs are absolutely different, either in the general appearance of the designs or in the detail of the individual lines. The designs on the end phalanges of the fingers are the most interesting.

Analogous designs are also observed on the sole of a man's foot, especially on the fleshy part of the toes, but these exhibit less variety than the fingers.

These designs have been studied for a long time past. Even in ancient times importance was attached to finger imprints for the purpose of establishing the identity of an individual. In the seventh century the Chinese utilized inked finger imprints for the signature of official documents. The same process has been employed in all ages by the Turks. During the nineteenth century this method of signature was adopted in certain English speaking countries and is still used in Egypt, Roumania, and many other countries, where the custom has long been observed of making a finger imprint on official identification papers, passports and various documents, the imprint being made close to the signature or being used in place of the latter, if the person were illiterate.

In France, as is well known, every prisoner taken to the anthropometric department is asked to place his fingers one after the other on a sheet of glass, which is covered with a thin layer of black grease. He must then place them on a sheet of white cardboard. The resulting imprints stand out as clear as an engraving and constitute indelible marks of identity.

It is maintained that the digital design never changes in the whole course of a man's existence, and that wounds even cannot destroy the delicate filigree patterns or change the aspect of the finger print.

The invariability of the digital designs in the same individual and the infinite variety from one man to another justify their use in forensic medicine to establish human identity, to fix some distinctly individual characteristic enabling an individual to be identified and differentiated from all others. Since the introduction of successful methods of classifying finger imprints they have been used to classify descriptions of individuals dangerous to society, which are of especial interest to courts of justice.

Just as anthropology furnished Mons. Bertillon, of Paris, with his long and complicated system of osseous measurements, a means of classifying in a definite order all the characteristics of a malefactor, so also it suggested to Dr. Galton, of London, and to Vucetich, of La Plata, from the year 1890, the basis of a new system of tabulating the criminal population.

But, while the anthropometric system is applicable only to adults and cannot be applied with exactitude to women, the system affords, only a number of more or less exact figures of measurements of bones, which, even taken as a whole, are completely insufficient to enable the identity of the subject to be affirmed in the absence of other proof, the imprints made by the ten fingers, on the contrary, afford a precise, simple and absolutely personal description, and the method is applicable to both sexes. There is no possibility of error in this system of identification. The imprints are supplied by the subject himself, without the intermediary of any instrument, without anything whatever to vitiate the precision of the process.

And these marks of identity have the particular advantage that they may often be found where a crime has been committed, thus giving the signature of the criminal. The traces of the fingers left by malefactors on the scene of a crime, soiling objects which they have touched with greasy or bleeding fingers, often, in fact, afford reproductions of the papillary lines sufficiently clear to render it possible by comparison to find out by whom these traces have been left. When the traces are not clearly visible there are certain special chemical processes which will render them apparent, coloring them and fixing them on the object, whatever it may be.

Finger imprints have also often proved useful to the police in establishing the identity of mutilated bodies of unknown individuals, the recognition of whom is frequently left to the chance of public identification in a mortuary.

The manifold advantages of the system of judicial identification by finger imprints has led to its adoption by a large number of States, to the detriment of the anthropometric processes, which are at present being gradually abandoned. Numerous scientific sessions have testified to the excellence of the system, notably, in 1907, the Paris Academy of Sciences, which, when consulted by the Minister of Justice, confirmed the superiority of the finger imprint as a means of identification in view of its more general substitution for the anthropometric system.

ANNUAL MEETING MT. JULIAN BRANCH

MOUNT JULIAN, MAY 8.—The annual meeting of the Mount Julian branch of the Farmer's Institute was held on Wednesday last at the residence of Mrs. L. Reid and with a very successful one. There was an extra good attendance. The popular president, Mrs. Lauder, occupied the chair. The meeting opened by singing, "A goodly thing it is to meet," followed by prayer. Then the minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary and confirmed by members. The secretary-treasurer's report was received and adopted.. Mrs. A. R. Mallory, who has been secretary-treasurer since our Institute was organized, handed in her resignation. She was urgently requested by all present to withdraw the same, but it was of no avail. The officers elected for the ensuing year were as follows:

President—Mrs. Chas. Lauder.

The meeting closed by singing, "Blessed Assurance."

This branch of the Institute was organised five years ago and has now a good membership. We have not only local members, but also some in Toronto, Peterborough, Lakefield and elsewhere.

The summer meeting, which is arranged for by the Department of Agriculture, will be held at the home of Mrs. L. Reid on Thursday afternoon, May 30. A special feature of this meeting will be an address given by Miss E. Robson of Ilderton, on one or more topics of interest. In is the desire of the Department of Agriculture to give the best instruction to our Institutes, hence the lecturers sent out are well instructed on the various topics to be dealt with, such as social and health problems, domestic science, labour-saving devices, etc. We extend a cordial invitation to all those who are not members as well as those who are, to attend this meeting and thus benefit by the address. A brief programme will be provided.

THE PETERBOROUGH SUMMER FAIR

[illegible] May 20th, will Peterboro's [illegible] Summer fair of [illegible] and Merry-Making.

(By Roy Gilray.)

Thousands of visitors will gather in Peterborough during the last week in May. They will come not only to be amused but with a wish to co-operate in the laudable desire of waging war on Consumption.

What lesson has ever been so [illegible] by the dread of Black [illegible] been [illegible] given with regard to fade away and life [illegible] as [illegible] apparently without [illegible] lifting [illegible] to save them?

Happily science has come to our rescue and we now know how to treat such cases. The first step is the appointment of a District or Visiting Nurse; but this will require money. The ladies of Peterborough are conducting a mammoth exhibition in the armouries from May 20th to June 1st, to provide the funds necessary for the engagement of such a nurse.

This exhibition, fair or carnival will be a most magnificent affair. It will eclipse anything heretofore attempted. The exhibits of the manufacturers will repay a visit alone, but these pale into insignificance when compared to the imposing array of side attractions.

Besides the Egyptian encampment, rummage sale, shooting gallery, bowling alley, art gallery, dolls' palace, and orange tree there will be a theatre where a continuous performance will be put on each evening, as well as a Cafe Chantant, where the husbands, of ladies who persist in examining all the fancy work, may enjoy a quiet smoke while listening to the soothing strains of enchanting music.

In fact there will be something to delight the ear of the most fastidious.

RAILWAY NOTES

The Haney, Quinlan & Robinson Co., contractors, who are building the new G. T. P. car shops at Transcona, are receiving daily shipments of lumber from the west and this is rapidly being put into place by an army of workmen. Already the steel columns for the new addition are in place and Engineer Pintsch is busy getting everything ready for the advent of the J. D. McArthur work trains, which will again start work on the unfinished tracks about April 15th. At McArthur's repair shops and engine sheds near St. Boniface a large force of men is hurrying the work of putting the construction work in shape for the summer's campaign.

A second edition of the "Playgrounds of Canada and New England" has recently been issued by the General Passenger Department of the Grand Trunk Railway. It is well described as a short treatise on Tourist, Fishing and Hunting Resorts, and contains a number of "snappy" articles descriptive of such spots as Orillia and Couchiching, Muskoka Lakes, Lake of Bays, Magnetawan River, Lake Nipissing, and the French River; the Temagami Region and Algonquin Park in the Highlands of Ontario; the Kawartha Lakes District; the Rideau River and Lakes; the thousand Islands; Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal ond Quebec; the Vermont and Lake Champlain Resorts; nad the Seashore Resorts of Long Island Sound. If an y quarrel is to be found with this interesting publication by the intending tourist, it will be on the grounds of the very embarassment of riches presented to him for the selection of his vacation trip.

Dr. Glover, medical examiner of the G.T.P., who has been in Winnipeg and Transcona for the past week, conducting eye and ear examinations of the men on train service, has finished his work and left for the Western Division, where he will continue his tests.

Mr. William Brine, for some time stationaster at Brantford, Ont., has been transferred back to Hamilton, where he was originally stationed, by the Grand Trunk Railway.

Superintendent Tyner of the Peterson & Fell Contracting Co., who caters to employees of the Grand Trunk Pacific form Winnipeg to Fort William, is busily engaged in preparing for the summer season. Transcona will be used as usual as a distributing point and cars will also be iced there. The Arctic Ice Co., of Winnipeg, has just filled the G.T.P. icehouse and the men engaged upon the work have returned to Winnipeg.

Discussing the relation of the Commission to the Railroads and the public Mr. Charles A. Prouty, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission and principal speaker at the annual dinner of the Traffic Club of Pittsburg, said in part:

"Suppose organized railway labour make a further demand for increased wages and that the railways accede to this demand. The railroad applies to the Interstate Commerce Commission for leave to advance its rates on this account. What now is to be the answer of the Commission? If this increase in wages is unjustifiable, and if on that account an increase in rates is allowed, it results that the general public, including all other forms of labour, is required to pay what is unjust and unreasonable. Must the Government not therefore be satisfied not only that the added wages are paid by the railroads but that they are necessary and 'properly paid?'"

A switch off its main line is being put in by the Grand Trunk Railway at St. Marys, Ont., enabling north and southbound passenger trains to cross at the town station instead of at the G.T.R. junction as hitherto, which will be a great convenience to the travelling public. A new steel top will also be put on the London Branch bridge this summer, but at a higher elevation than the old one, so as to considerably decrease the heavy grade entering the Junction.

There has been shipped out of the town of Biggar, Sask., this season to date by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, 300,000 bushels of grain, a wonderful record for so young a town, especially in comparison with the two preceding seasons, when only 10,000 bushels were shipped out.

That the northwestern portion of Alberta will develop into a valuable mining district is the report given out by Mr. E. A. Robinson, of Cincinnati, who spent last summer in the neighbourhood of Pine Pass in British Columbia on the east side of the Rockies and north of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Mr. Robinson declares that the great natural resources of the country are unknown to Canadians themselves and that, during his trip, he saw enough mineral of different kinds to keep the proposed railway into the Peace River country busy for some time if these mineral deposits are developed.

"In one place," he says, "we found a ledge of white rock which, on later examination, proved to be marble of the finest quality. I placed it in the hands of marble workers in Cincinnati and they were surprised to learn that it came from Canada, and said it wa sequal in many ways to the imported Italian marble. The ledge from which we secured the sample was perahps 100 feet wide. We had in our party a coal expert and he was perhaps 100 feet wide. We had the coal measures of Alberta extend further north than was shown on the maps we carried with us. One of our party devoted all his time to minerals and made some startling discoveries that I am not at liberty to disclose at present. We will make a second visit in to the country this year and will remain all summer, in order to carry out our programme of exploration."

Mr. Robinson left Edmonton late in May last year and was provided with a modern assay outfit. He was accompanied by a corps of young men, each an expert in his line, and the party spent the entire summer in the Peace River country.

THE REVENUE QUESTION.

More saloons, more revenue.

More revenue, more drinks. More fights, murders, more imbeciles, more paupers.

More drunks, more quarrels, brawls, drinks, more drunks.

More drunks, more police, more jails, more asylums, more penitentiaries, more expenses.

More saloons, more revenue, but more gambling dens, more houses of vice, more boys victimized, more girls ruined.

Oh, yes, more revenue! But does it pay at such a price? Can we afford the commission demanded by the saloon as a revenue collector?

But pay or no pay, why should a State capitalize the weaknesses and degradation of its people and fill its treasury at the cost of the people's bread.—Virginia Issue.

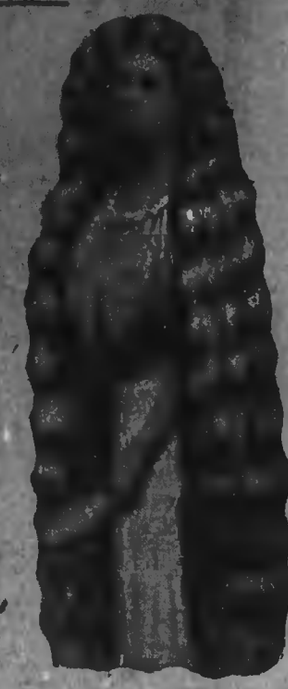
A LITTLE DANDERINE WILL MAKE YOUR HAIR LUSTROUS, SOFT, FLUFFY, ABUNDANT

Get a 25 Cent Bottle Now and Forever Stop Falling Hair, Itching Scalp and Dandruff

If your Hair is Thin, Dry, Brittle, Scraggly, Lifeless, Scanty or Coming Out Try a Dandering Hair Cleanse



Your hair becomes fine, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just one application of Danderine with a little Danderine and especially draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

A delightful surprise awaits particularly those who have been careless, whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

Try as you will, after one application of Danderine you cannot find any dandruff or a loose or falling hair, and your scalp will never itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair sprouting all over the scalp. Danderine makes the hair grow long, heavy and luxuriant and we can prove it. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter, and just try it.

Big Legal Fee Bothers Indians.

Brantford, May 9.—Six Nations Indians are taking a vote as to whether payment of nearly $50,000 legal fees should be made or not to an Ottawa firm. The fees arose from a claim of the Indians which is still pending for $150,000 and interest. The amount was loaned to the Grand River Navigation Co., which became insolvent, and the Indians believed it should be made good. The amount used was taken by the Government from Indian trust money.

Young Men Heavily Sentenced.

Belleville, May 9.—Joseph Foley, a young man, was yesterday sentenced by Magistrate Masson to the penitentiary for four years, having pleaded guilty to theft. While Foley's employer and family were absent from home, the lad stole a watch and chain, money and coins and left the city, being later caught at Napanee.

While young in years, he is old in crime.

Roasted by Electric Current.

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 9.—His flesh literally cooked to pieces, the body of Chester Findlay, an employe of the Ontario Power Co., was found leaning against a switchboard at 4.30 yesterday morning. Doctors thought the accident had happened half an hour before. Twelve thousand volts passed through the body. An inquest was ordered.

Will Be Buried in Canada.

London, May 9.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—F. W. Thompson, who died suddenly here yesterday, will be buried at Montreal, the remains probably leaving here to-morrow. Deceased was apparently well when he retired on Monday night. His widow, two daughters, C. R. Hosmer and R. L. Pease, were present at the death bed.

Claims Waifs of Titanic.

Nice, France, May 9.—Mme. Navratil, who declared that two waifs saved from the Titanic, and who are being cared for in New York, are her children, has received the photographs of the children. She immediately recognised them and will sail on the Oceanic for New York to claim her sons.

Three Bank Clerks Arrested.

Vancouver, May 9.—Three bank clerks, one in the Imperial and two in the Merchants' Bank, are under arrest for embezzlement. The confessed amounts of their stealings was $12,000. Their ages are 20, 21 and 24 respectively. They said they lost the money in a Chinese gambling joint.

Burned to Death in Mill.

Joliette, Que., May 9.—The paper mill owned by Crabtree & Son and located on the shore of Lake Oiseau was totally destroyed by fire early yesterday morning, and a watchman named Payette was killed.

For His Brother's Sake.

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 9.—For making false representations in an effort to get his brother Gustave into Canada, Raphael Maggiacomi, Toronto, was fined $50 yesterday. Gustave was fined $1 and deported.

The Niagara Falls Canning Co. contracted yesterday for duplication of its present plant. The addition will cost $100,000.

Arrangements were completed for the location of a branch of the Bank of Commerce here, making the city's seventh bank.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, May 9.—There was some demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat, but, as the prices bid were 1½d to 1s per quarter under what exporters offered at, no business was done. The demand for oats was also quieter, and the grain trade on the whole was slow, with no change in prices to note. The butter situation is somewhat mixed, but supplies are moving off as fast as they come in, there being a steady demand from the west for car lots. A little business is passing in cheese over the cable. Eggs rule steady, with a good demand, and provisions are fairly active.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, May 8.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the receipts of live stock for the week ending May 4 were 1189 cattle, 200 sheep and lambs, 1600 hogs and 2100 calves. The offerings on the market this morning were 600 cattle, 300 sheep and lambs, 1000 hogs and 200 calves.

There were no new developments in the condition of the live stock trade to-day, prices for all lines being well maintained. The gathering of buyers was fairly large, and the demand for cattle was good; in consequence an active trade was done, with sales of choice steers at $7.50 to $7.75; good at $7 to $7.25, and the lower grades at from $4.50 to $6.50 per 100 pounds. Choice cows brought from $5.25 to $5.50, and common stock from that down to $4.50, while bulls sold at $5 to $5.75 per 100 pounds, as to quality.

The trade in calves was active, at prices ranging from $1.50 to $5, as to size and quality. The demand for sheep and lambs was good at firm prices. Sheep brought from $5 to $6.50, and yearling lambs $7.25 to $7.40, while spring lambs sold at from $8 to $7 each. The tone of the market for hogs was steady, and prices were unchanged from Monday, under a good demand for selected lots, at $9.40 to $9.65 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

Oldest Postmaster Dead.

Dundee, Que., May 9.—Lieut.-Col. David Baker, the eldest postmaster in Canada, died here yesterday morning. He had been a postmaster for seventy years, and was 94 years old.

Judge Mabee Buried.

Port Rowan, May 9.—While the little lakeside town of Port Rowan was draped in black, with its streets silent and stores closed, a casket containing the remains of the late James Pitt Mabee was lowered into a grave yesterday afternoon. Hundreds of Canadians — jurists, lawyers, politicians, railway officials, villagers—who knew and loved Judge Mabee stood with bowed heads as Bishop Williams of Huron conducted the service. The casket was placed in the family plot in Bayview Cemetery on a hill on the edge of the town overlooking Lake Erie.

The Boss.

Three Finger Sam he used to be as bold
as any one.
He spoke up quick. They said he had four notches on his gun
And never took no back talk from a stranger or a friend.
Wherever trouble started he was there to superintend.
We stood and gazed respectful as he drained the jovial cup.
He never went to bed, but used to sleep a-standin' up.
He was the roughest, toughest man that ever hit the place,
And now you ought to see him—he's completely fell from grace.

He met a gal not five feet high and wispy-like and pale.
She married him, and now he's hit the water wagon trail.
He wears a coat and collar, and he even combs his hair
And hesitates in talkin', 'cause he knows he dasn't swear.
And Mrs. Sam she says she wouldn't be no suffragette.
She's satisfied to boss one ablebodied man, you bet.
That's ready to break loose like water from a busted dam
And clean up the community if she says "Sick 'em, Sam!"

Wires Tangled.

Thomas A. Edison was accepting blandly a reporter's apology for an error in a quotation.

"Oh," Mr. Edison said, "I am rather well used to being misquoted. Electrical terms are always confusing to the lay mind. No wonder. Listen to this."

Here Mr. Edison drew a telegram from his pocket.

"I got this telegram from an assistant electrician this morning," he said. "Listen." And he read:

"'Wire with no outside outside. Put inside wire outside and outside inside. Need more outside for inside.'"—Los Angeles Times.

ASTHMA

Mrs. Farndel of Honeontaport, N. S., Suffered All Her Life From Asthma, But Was Permanently Cured by Catarrhozone After All Other Means Failed.

Mrs. Farndel gives the following statement of her case for the benefit of others who are suffering from asthma, and hopes that many will follow her example and use Catarrhozone:—

"I am now in my eightieth year, and cannot recall the time when I was free from asthma. I had always a choking cough, feverishness, spasms, difficulty in breathing, headache and nausea. My druggist advised Catarrhozone one day, and I bought a large outfit. It gave relief in five minutes, and helped me very much in one day.

"I inhaled Catarrhozone ten minutes every hour, and by the time two bottles were used I was completely cured. I am as free now from asthma as if I never had it. My perfect recovery is due entirely to Catarrhozone. I prize my Catarrhozone inhaler next to life itself."

Catarrhozone

INSPECTION OF PREMISES

Sanitary Inspector Spence Has Begun His Rounds—Finds Conditions in Some Places That Are Not Sanitary

MEN'S NEAR SLEEPING ROOM

Sanitary Inspector Spence began his inspecting duties some days ago and the time allotted for the cleaning up of the nuisances pointed out in the first territory has nearly ended.

Dr. McPherson stated some time ago that it was the intention to have all recommendations carried out. The visits of the Inspector are not merely a matter of form, and a neglect to clean up premises may bring trouble to some citizens as an example to others.

Mr. Spence stated that in a number of cases conditions were anything but sanitary. He had only covered one district and had found there quite a number of places that would benefit by better conditions. In one house, for instance, he had found a room in which there was a bed but no window. The woman of the house stated the bed was not regularly used, but had been put up recently because of visitors. In a nearby apartment hens were kept.

Right in the centre of the city were found outbuildings which did not meet with the approval of the Inspector, but it is not known whether any action will be taken when the Inspector's reports are made out.

Seven days are granted to citizens to carry out the instructions of the Inspector.

THE FIRST "TITANIC" CLAIM HAS BEEN PAID

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., MAY 9.—The first compensation claim in connection with the Titanic disaster was settled this morning when the White Star Line paid into court $1500 damages to the widow and five children of a bedroom steward lost in wreck. It is computed that at this rate the Company will have to pay a million dollars in claims to relatives of the crew alone, to say nothing of the passengers and their effects.

MAY BE POSSIBLE TO CROSS THE ATLANTIC IN ONE DAY

Great Success of Commander Samson's Hydroplane at British Naval Manoeuvres Yesterday Causes This Prophesy From an Aviator—Navigates the Air and Floats on the Ocean.

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., MAY 9.—Britons woke up this morning to the realisation that not only is their Navy ruler of the seas, but is supreme in its vessels for riding under the waters and floating safely in the air above the waters. Commander Samson's hydroplane demonstrated, yesterday, before King George, and the combined British fleets, that it could successfully navigate the air, and, without changing engines, or form of construction, ride on the waves with speed and safety, and carrying a capacity almost equalling a torpedo boat. Its tests demonstrated it as developed far in advance of machines which were seen in New York harbour last fall. Samson rose high in the air, circled round the fleet, alighted with his passenger within some hundred yards of King George's vessel and dodged along between the big warships on the surface of the sea for some miles. The success of Commander Samson's trip surprised everyone. It is admitted it may almost revolutionize the possibilities of naval construction and method. The whole country is very much excited over the success of the naval Hydroplane. An aviator named A. V. Roe makes the prophecy in the Daily Mirror this morning that hydroplanes, carrying a thousand passengers and safer than any steamships, will soon be running from London to New York at one hundred and fifty miles an hour, making the whole trip within twenty-four hours.

STREET R'Y EXTENSION

Work Has Been Commenced and Will Be Pushed Forward as Rapidly as Possible

The residents of the south end of the city will be pleased to note that work on the proposed extension of the street railway in the south end of the city has commenced and will be pushed forward as rapidly as possible. A number of men are engaged in the construction of a diamond, where the line crosses the C. P. R. tracks at the Canadian General Electric company's works. This, together with the regrading of a portion of the old line on Park street, is a preparatory move towards the actual construction of the new line.

The work on the south end of the George street line has been completed and it will be but a short time until the new pay-as-you-enter cars will be formally and permanently introduced to the citizens of Peterborough.

NESBITT'S RELEASE IS ASKED FOR

Special to The Examiner.

CHICAGO, ILL., MAY 9.—A writ of habeas corpus, calling for the release of W. Beattie Nesbitt, the former Farmers Bank president, of Toronto, will be filed to-morrow in the Federal court here on the grounds that he is illegally being held for extradition. The filing of the writ to-day, as planned, was delayed by Attorney W. K. Pattison, counsel for the Canadian banker. The extradition papers have not yet been signed. Meantime, the erstwhile banker continues an inmate of the county jail here, a government prisoner. He appears contented and apparently has not given up hope of release.

SUDDEN DEATH AT WATERLOO

Special to The Examiner:

WATERLOO, ONT., MAY 9.—W. H. Riddell, assistant manager of the Waterloo Mutual Assurance Company, died this morning at his residence here. He was in his usual good health up to seven o'clock last night and was preparing to leave for Vespers at St. Louis, R. C. church, when he was suddenly struck with paralysis. Drs. Fischer and Webb attended him, but he lost consciousness about midnight, passing away thi morning. The late Mr. Riddell was born in the village of Sparta in 1837.

THREE PEOPLE ARE DROWNED

Special to The Examiner:

WINNIPEG, MAN., MAY 9.—While crossing Pipestone creek at Elkhorn, Manitoba, the stream being swollen to an unusual height, the buggy in which they were riding was overturned by the rush of water in the middle of the stream and all the occupants were drowned. The dead are Mrs. Lemuel Goethe, aged 45, Miss Clara Adair, aged 17 and a baby 18 months old.

INQUEST ORDERED

Into the Death of Jas. Peters Who Was Said to Have Been Drowned in Baxter's Creek

DETECTIVE AT WORK

Mr. R. E. Wood, County Crown Attorney, has ordered an investigation into the death of the late James Peters, whose dead body was taken from Baxter's creek, near Hales' bridge, on the night of May 1st.

Peters, who was an assistant fish inspector, was with Robert Thorndyke, Westcott street, city, in a canoe that evening patrolling the creek when, according to reports, the canoe upset and Mr. Peters was drowned.

Detective at Work.

Detective Boyd has been working on the case for some time and as the result of his investigations, or possibly to clear up any doubts that may exist, an inquest has been ordered for this evening at Comstock's undertaking rooms. The body of the late Mr. Peters was ordered to be exhumed this afternoon. Coroner Greer will likely adjourn the inquest this evening after it has met, and a post-mortem examination has been ordered.

Mr. Ormie Stewart, who resides near Hales' Bridge, stated that he heard cries of help and paddled to the assistance. It is understood that the water in the creek was not deep at the time and this, with other rumours, have been afloat since the accident occurred.

Publicity makes a product noted, quality brings fame. "SALADA" Tea is both noted and famous.

COMPLAINTS AGAINST MERGERS

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, ONT., MAY 9.—The Finance Department has received a larger number of letters from business men and others protesting against the government sanctioning further combinations of big banks, pointing out that credit to the country was not exalted thereby and that mergers means trusts, which in the United States they are endeavouring to stamp out. So far the government has received no official notification of the reported merger of the Montreal, Union, Traders and Royal Banks.

EARLY CATCHES

Although the season for lunge is not yet open a number of catches have been reported within a stone's throw of George street. Of course, this is illicit fishing and the inspectors are having the busiest time of the year trying to prevent the muskinonge from being taken from the water. During the present spawning period they swim into the shallow water of the various creeks that flow into the river. Just now they are easily captured. A report has it that one of the inspectors, hearing that the creek that empties into Spaulding's Bay was being watched by three who were after the fish hid himself under the C.P.R. bridge over the creek, and his presence being known, an explosive signal used on the railways was placed on the track over the spot where he was hiding. Some time after a train passing, exploded the charge for the benefit of the inspector. It has been stated that fish have been taken from the creek about a week ago, in spite of any outlook that may have been kept.

STRENUOUS CAMPAIGN

Peterborough's War on the White Plague is Already Well in Hand —District Nurse Seen

PROGRESS IS MADE

Written for Examiner by Roy Gilray

(By Roy Gilray.)

"Count that day lost, whose setting sun,

The Peterborough Health Association is engaged in a battle against the spread of tuberculosis that should have the hearty endorsation and sympathy of every citizen with the interests of humanity at heart. They are endeavouring to stop the useless waste of life by this terrible disease, and if system and enthusiasm count for anything, then the Association should see splendid results within two or three years.

They purpose engaging a District Nurse (thanks to the heroic efforts of the ladies of the city), whose entire attention will be given to the care of those afflicted with consumption, and who need her services. She will visit homes where children may be exposed to tubercular infection, and will see the conditions are such as to insure the children against contracting the disease. Lessons on ventilation, fumigation, etc., will be given, and the nurse will see that all possible precautions are taken to prevent parents from imparting the disease to their offspring.

There are a few consumptives who are fortunate enough to possess the money and patience to complete their cure in a sanatorium where they learn how to live, and then return to their families and homes to carry out the precepts of their treatment. Unfortunately the largest number of all cannot afford to attend a sanatorium, even for a short time. It is to these, more especially, that the "Friendly Visitor" will come as an angel of light.

Then there are other reasons why a patient would prefer home treatment.

The young father or mother cut off from the family must of necessity worry over the fate of those left at home in uncertain circumstances, and that must tell on digestion, appetite, and resisting power of the patient. The same individual cared for at home and assured that the family is being cared for is devoid of all this anxiety, and the benefits of this peace of mind outweigh the undoubted benefits of better air and food and more constant attendance. Indeed, it sometimes occurs that these large sanatoria are so crowded and so sparingly provided with nurses that a patient is assured of more faithful attendance at home. And if we can gain these results at a small cost, the number of cases is so great that we have no choice but to support the more economical scheme.

Besides, a sanatorium at a distance can exercise little or no supervision over its patients once they are discharged, and they return to their scattered homes. It is by local activities directed towards the control of the disease in all its stages that the most good can be accomplished at the least cost to the individual.

Therefore the advent of a nurse, who shall devote all her time to the care of patients and education of the people, will be a great advantage to Peterborough, particularly to those who will need her attentions most.

It is no wonder the ladies are meeting with such success in their gigantic undertaking. Behind it all lies that spirit which prompts all good deeds; that unselfish love which every true citizen should bear towards those who, through no fault of their own, are not in a position to help themselves.

"Comfort one another:
For the way is growing dreary,
The feet are often weary,
And the heart is very sad.
There is heavy burden-bearing,
When it seems that none are caring,
And we half forget that ever we were glad."

FUNERAL ON FRIDAY

The remains of the late Mr. Samuel Adams are expected to arrive in the city on Friday morning from Edmonton. The funeral will be held at 4 o'clock on Friday afternoon from the residence of Mr. Frank Adams, 50 Robinson street, to the Little Lake cemetery. The train connections thus far have been on time and it is not expected that the train from Winnipeg will be on time in Toronto to make connections with the morning train to Peterborough.

CLOSE SEASON FOR IMMIGRANTS REPRESENTS UNKNOWN QUANTITY

The Undulating Farm Lands of Peterborough County Prove to be Virgin Pastures For the New-comers—Method of Passing Them Through the Immigration Funnell.

Indications that this month is to surpass all previous records in immigration traffic are apparent almost daily. There is a constant stream—small, it must be admitted—but welcome nevertheless, to help hungry farmers who swarm the local immigration office daily. They are after the new-comers like bees, and in some cases will resort to questionable means to secure them; even to the extent of meeting incoming trains, reported to have on board parties booked for Peterborough and persuading the bewildered immigrant to depart with them to the land, without even allowing them the opportunity of advising the immigration officer of their arrival.

Capitalists Among Them.

As a rule, arrangements are made beforehand, so that when the newcomers arrive, their assignments are already booked up, and they are immediately sent out to their new home, or met at the office by their prospective employer.

"We are simply overwhelmed with applications for farm help. The demand is three times greater than the supply," commented Mr. Howson, immigration officer this morning.

"Yes, so far they are a fine type of people and just the kind this country needs—willing to work, and thrifty. Those who deal with the immigration question find that every year more people of a better class, and possessing a little capital are immigrating to this country, Peterborough county is getting a large share of these desirable yeomen."

How They Are Handled.

The handling of immigrants is carried on here according to a well-defined system. The Dominion has divided its immigration into three classes—British, foreign European and American. The government immigration bureau, in dealing with the work, makes no difference between the three classes. In the case of a man coming in who is not prepared to take up land, the Immigration Department finds him employment at agricultural work in almost any part of the country. With a one cent a mile rate and a card of introduction, he is sent to the agent of the government in the district in which he proposes to work, and by that agent is taken to the employer or employment to which he has been specifically sent.

No Closed Season.

There is no closed season for immigrants. They come all the year round and are welcomed here in the winter time in proportion to the stamina they possess, to withstand the rigours of the climate and the placid respect which they are wont to show towards the farmer who would pry him out of bed at five o'clock in the morning, and after a couple of hours spent in social communion with the farmer's stock, is hustled off to the bush, where he spends the remainder of the morning communing with the lonesome pine, and the intricacies of a sharp-bitted axe which threatens to mutilate his underpinning at every sweep.

A small party arrived in the city yesterday. Their stay here was of short duration, however, as they were quickly signed up for an engagement by a number of farmers, and within two hours after they were continuing their transitory journey to their new homes. The party sailed on the S. S. Champlain. The steamer Virginian and Victoria—the latter having cast a propeller while two days out at sea—also have a number of immigrants on board booked for Peterborough.

PROGRESS IN PATCHING THE GEORGE ST. COLLAPSIBLE WHARF

The reconstruction of the north-east end of the government wharf on George street, which was smashed and partly carried out into the lake by the action of the frost, water and other things, was begun yesterday. A staff of six men have cut down the crown of the cement wall a distance of twelve feet on the north side and almost the same distance on the east side of the corner. It has been cut down several feet and a level surface is being prepared to begin the work of rebuilding.

It will be remembered that some time ago a crack developed in the north side of the wall. It was unable to hold the action of the water and the fissure increased to such an extent that the present action became necessary and the ground is now being gone over again.

SLOW IN GETTING READY FOR SEASON AT RIVERSIDE

Riverside Park is being put into shape for the opening of the baseball season two weeks hence. All the water is out of the grounds now, and the field is rapidly drying up. A few days of warm weather will leave it in fine shape. The grass is already beautifully green all over the park, and when the improvements are completed Peterborough will have a very pretty ball yard.

By the way the said improvements are being carried ahead very slowly. Only part of the base paths is skinned, and at the rate things are moving the diamond will be in poor shape to play ball on two weeks from now. It would appear that the businesslike way of doing things would be to put a gang of a dozen men on the job. They could finish the sod-removing operations and fill up and roll the base paths in a couple of days. These improvements are absolutely necessary, if baseball is to be seen at its best.

Work was commenced on the new grandstand this morning.

ALDERMEN DON'T LIKE THE THRUST

That Criticism Was Made to Cover Deficiencies

The remarks of several of the members of the Board of Education that the Council had criticised the Board in an endeavour to cover up their own shortcomings, are being resented by several of the aldermen at least. The pill was without a sugar coating and it is proving rather bitter. One alderman stated that the Board had asked for $65,000 and they should endeavour to keep within that sum. This alderman said he thought the Board was providing well for school accommodation, but thought the Board should avoid extras that might be necessary. The expenses for school purposes were already high enough without making them higher.

Another alderman stated that he would remember the remarks made by members of the Board of Education, and at the next Council meeting would probably refer to them, and possibly have something to say of a personal character that might prove interesting.

"Providing for education," said still another alderman, "is one of the big items on our taxes. We have been building now, almost continuously for some years and while we want to have good schools, the regularity of the demands is beginning to be too much of a good thing. No demands have been made just now, but those who have seen the plans claim that the cost of the two new schools will exceed the sum given the Board. This is where the show pinches."

Fall Wheat In Fine Condition

The growth during the past few days has been exceptionally rapid, and one could almost see the fall wheat growing and the leaves issuing forth from their buds. The fall wheat throughout the country is looking well and is coming on rapidly. The meadows are at their greenest, and will show their effect on the milk supply during the next few weeks.

AN ERROR CORRECTED.

There was an error in connection with the announcement of the concert to be given in the Sons of England Hall on May 15 in aid of the Titanic fund. The Examiner stated that the entertainment was to be given under the auspices of the St. George's Choral Society, while in reality it is being arranged by the St. George's Society.

WARDS FOR CHILDREN

Being Provided at St. Joseph's Hospital—One For Boys, the Other For Girls

OTHER CHANGES BEING MADE

Considerable alterations and improvements are now being made to the structure of St. Joseph's hospital. There has been an addition made to the upper portion of the building in the form of a new ward for children. The ward will comprise two rooms, one for boys and the other for girls. The dimensions of each room will be approximately 20 ft. by 15 ft. and will possess all the modern sanitary improvements and conditions which will form a considerable asset to the comfort and health of the inmates.

The work is expected to be completed some time next week.

The members of Marathon Knights of Pythias are requested to be at their lodge room at 8.30 Sunday evening May 12th to join together to attend Knox Church. Every member will please attend. 36-110

ALLEGED COUNTERFEITER ARRESTED

Special Wire to The Examiner.

ST. CATHARINES, ONT., MAY 9.—Guy Parnell was arraigned this morning on charges of counterfeiting Canadian twenty-five cent pieces, various tools having been found in his possession. There are said to be a large number in circulation at present. He was committed for trial.

Mr. Jas. O'Brien is Appointed Manager

Of the New Dundee Branch of the Union Bank

Mr. Jas. O'Brien, who has been accountant in the local branch of the Union Bank, has been appointed manager of the branch in New Dundee, Waterloo County and leaves to-day to assume the duties of his new appointment. Mr. O'Brien's departure from Peterborough will be regretted by his friends who, however, will be pleased to learn of his promotion and will extend to him their best wishes for his future success.

Mr. J. J. Haig of the head office of the Union Bank, will succeed Mr. O'Brien in the Peterborough branch.

WOOD FROM STONY LAKE

Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald, the local coal and wood dealer, received to-day several cars of hard and mixed wood from Stony Lake points.

His own tug "Ajax" has been all winter at Bobcaygeon, and on account of high water could not get through Buckhorn Locks, so Capt. Gray, with the Lasitania, was engaged to get down a snow load in order to supply dry wood for the city. The wood was hauled to Lakefield and at considerable extra expense, was reloaded on the cars there, and brought to the city.

New Newspaper For Ontario

Mr. James Simpson of Toronto, is in the city to-day in the interests of the Labour Educational Publishing Co., Ltd., of Toronto, which Company proposes to publish in Toronto, a weekly newspaper to be called "The Industrial Banner," which will be devoted to the interests of Labour throughout the Province.

Mr. Simpson has just returned from Persia, where he attended the May Day celebrations of the miners, who have now fully recovered from their eight months' strike. An Examiner representative had an interesting talk with Mr. Simpson, who described the miners' holiday to a nicety. His appearance very emphatically stated the case of Mesdames Hall, which he considers has a very bright future, but incidentally he advised Hamilton men to invest their money in Western property without first ascertaining the situation and value.

KEEP WEALTH AND WEALTH PRODUCTION AT HOME.

There is a distinct industrial and economic value given to our natural products by home manufacture of them into the ultimate or approximately ultimate form. The bulk of our practically exclusive deposits of nickel goes to the United States for refinement and the same is true to a lesser extent, of our pulp wood resources. Both of these are thus dealt with at a great home loss. In 1909, three-fifths of the pulp wood cut in Canada went in the raw state to the United States. The export amounted to 915,633 cords of pulp wood and the money value of it was $5,752,659, or $6.28 per cord. Since Ontario prohibits the export of pulp wood in the log, the most of this large quantity went from Quebec.

It is to be noted that the pulp wood exported to the United States brought a return of only $5,752,659. If this wood had been converted into pulp and sold at the average prices paid by the United States for pulp in 1909, its value would have been increased to $16,719,418 or nearly three times greater. This large increase of value would have represented very largely the employment of Canadian labour, and the profits on the production of machinery and its operation. If we had converted those 915,633 cords into pulp, we should have kept in the country, $10,967,059—would have, by the employment of labour, etc., developed and kept in the country ten millions of dollars, an amount roughly equivalent to the whole of the present provincial revenue of Ontario. If the process of manufacture had been carried further to the various forms of paper the, the money value given to less than a million cords of pulp wood, the amount we exported, would have been 40 or 50 millions of dollars, money created within the country by ourown workmen and our own manufacturing skill.

These few facts point to the desirability of encouraging and accomplishing the manufacture of our own pulp wood in our own province. The operation of mills for this purpose would diminish, if not prevent entirely, the wasteful export of raw material, equivalent to the wasteful export of money, and would give employment to Canadian labour, which, in turn, would create new demands for housing accommodation, furnishing and living supplies, and increased activity in the production of all lines of supply. We should aim to keep our wealth and our wealth production at home.

PUBLIC INTERESTS FIRST.

The area of activity of Boards of Health in Ontario is widening. We have the more rigid enforcement of the laws and regulations relating to cleanliness of premises. We have long since banished cow byres and pig pens, and now the turn of the chicken coop for extinction or restriction is come. The City Council of Toronto has called a special meeting to consider a chiken by-law, urged by Medical Health Officer Hastings. The by-law provides for regulating and keeping within defined bounds chicken-holding premises. In the interests of health there are clauses demanding cleanliness in the arrangement of houses and runs. In the further interests of health a clause is directed against the crowing cock. He is forbidden to be kept on premises in the congested districts "without the written consent of the majority of the householders in that square or block, filed with the Department of Health."

This is the most important part of the by-law. The letter of protest, published in the Examiner against the crowing cock, sent in by a lady living in the very centre of the city, was no fancy picture. It dealt with actual conditions that produce much suffering from loss of sleep, and producing, and threaten to produce, very serious injury to health. If neighbours will maintain conditions that interfere with the comfort and health of their fellow neighbours, and will not, when requested, remove, or modify, these conditions, there is no hardship in enacting and enforcing by-laws that will prevent the annoyance and positive injury existing. Such a by-law may be considered an interference with individual liberty. To a certain point, every man has a right to do as he likes, so long as in so doing he does not infringe upon the rights of his neighbours. A man may fill himself with whisky to the teeth and no harm done, except to himself; but if his indulgence leads to his smashing the furniture and beating his wife and children, or creating public disturbance, he forfeits the right to make a beast of himself. A man in a city may keep cows, pigs, poultry, pet beard, and even snakes, if he likes; but the moment his doing so interferes with rights of others, his personal rights in that regard, cease to exist. The public must be protected. It is all very good to chip the shell of a new laid egg, at breakfast, but if that egg is produced at the cost of one's neighbours' comfort and rest, the pleasure of eating a fresh egg is gone, for the good citizen, and he is bound, as a good citizen, and as a good neighbour, to remedy the conditions, and if he will not do so voluntarily, he must, in the public interest, be made amenable to the laws provided for protection of the public.

This is not a one-man world; every man must live with reference to every other man he comes in contact with. That is, if he aims to be a good citizen and good Christian; for one moiety of the Divine standard of real religion is to "love one's neighbour as oneself," and no man can do that if he subjects his neighbour to inconvenience, annoyance, and positive injury, and deprives him of the God-given blessing of sleep.

WHAT IT WOULD MEAN TO CANADA.

"If and when the Canadian-born Mr. Bonar Law becomes Prime Minister of the United Kingdom, will Canadian wheat, flour, meat, dairy produce, and other foodstuffs continue to receive free eary into the British market?'

This question was sent by somebody in Toronto to the Canadian Gazette, published in London, a journal which favours tariff protection for Great Britain, with preference to colonial products. The Gazette answers the question, but first explains that nobody knows whether Mr. Bonar Law will or will not be the next Unionist Prime Minister. He is but a House leader at present. Lord Haughton led an Opposition, yet did not become Prime Minister, and were this precedent followed, "not Mr. Bonar Law, but Mr. Balfour, would be Mr. Asquith's successor."

If the Unionists should attain office on such an issue as Home Rule, and if Mr. Balfour became Prime Minister, as no doubt he would, it is by no means sure that Free Trade would be overturned and Protection installed in its place. Mr. Balfour is doubtless still a convinced Free Trader. The Gazette however, answers the Toronto correspondent by quoting from speeches by Mr. Bonar Law, and then puts the case briefly as follows:

"In a sentence, then, we have to inform our Toronto correspondent that if Mr. Bonar Law has the decisive word when a Unionist Ministry comes into power, duties ranging from 5 to 10 per cent. will be put (1) on foreign wheat, with free entry for Canada (2) on foreign flour, with probably a lesser duty on Canadian flour; (3) on foreign animals and meat, dairy produce, market-garden produce, and hay and straw, with lesser duties on similar Canadian produce.'

This is plain enough. If the tariff Protectionists win in Britain, or if they are strong enough to control the situation when the Unionists win. Free Trade will be departed from. Our wheat, which now enters free at British ports, will continue to do so, while a duty of about 10 per cent. will be imposed on foreign wheat. Canadian flour ,which now enters Britain free, will pay a duty, while foreign flour will pay a higher duty. It will be the same with animals, meats, dairy and garden produce, hay and straw, etc. In other words, our wheat will go in free as now, while our other products will be taxed as they are not now taxed. But we are not to be taxed as much as if we were foreigners.

This is that Tariff Reform policy which our local Imperialists tell us all Canadians should desire to see the United Kingdom adopt.

TITANIC INSURANCE LOSSES.

Some of the insurance companies have announced that they will pay promptly all the losses incurred by the sinking of the Titanic, without taking advantage of the delay allowed them by the law in the case of the victims whose bodies are either at the bottom of the Atlantic, or have not been identified. In this respect the insurance companies are displaying a commendable spirit, notwithstanding that they have been hit very hard. The New York Herald figures it out that the loss to the insurance companies will aggregate $5,000,000 — $2,709,000 life, and accident $2,000,000. The largest single claim reported is to the heirs of Herbert F. Chaffee, of Amesnia, N. D., $146,750, and to Mrs. John B. Thayer, a double indemnity (in case of death by accident on a train or vessel), $80,000 ($120,000). Thayer also carried a $50,000 policy. Among the special losses reported by companies are —Canada Life, $20,500; Confederation Life, Toronto, $11,000; North American Life, Toronto, $10,000; Imperial Life, Toronto $9,000; Standard Life, Montreal, $2,000.

HOW TO PROMOTE THE CHOICE OF LIFE WORK FOR OUR BOYS

It is satisfactory to note that much excellent progress is being made in the working out of the plan inaugurated a couple of months ago for having practical talks given to the older boys in the public schools of the city by leading men in the different professions, industries and occupations, in order to help the boys in making their choice of what their life work is to be. The plan was launched, it will be remembered, at a luncheon given by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, and the committee which was formed in connection with the Winnipeg Industrial Bureau to have in charge the putting of the plan in operation went to work energetically, and can now see the project as established fact and giving every promise of proving itself of very great value.

Already eighteen such talks have been given, by such men as R. R. Nield, foreman of the C.P.R. shops here; J. G. Walker, superintendent of the Sprague Lumber Company; W. J. Bulman of Bulman Brothers; Geo. Bury, vice-president and general manager of Western lines of the C. P. R.; and A. L. Struthers, of the Business Science Club, of this city. These talks are printed in leaflet form by the Educational Committee of the Winnipeg Industrial Bureau, and distributed among the boys in the highest grades of the schools, for whose benefit the talks are given. They can be taken home, and the attention and interest of the parents will thus be helpfully drawn to the consideration of the practical information set forth with a view to assisting boys to make choice of the life occupation for which they are best fitted, towards which they are drawn, and in which they can be efficient workers, doing their share of the world's work with advantage to the general good and to their own individual welfare.

This is educational work of the highest value. It goes directly to the point where there is the greatest need of guidance and help for boys on the threshold of their active life. It makes for efficiency and for well-directed, successful lives. Too often it happens that a boy, on leaving school drifts in a hap-hazard way. That is the crucial time in his life; and there is a manifest need, in connection with our public educational system, of an adjunct such as is now being provided here in Winnipeg in these talks. It has been said that "the curse of our city is that children can so easily earn money." Too many boys are led by the immediate gain to enter upon casual occupations. These talks are set forth in a manner admirably calculated to appeal to boys, the unwisdom of not having a trade or profession, and the importance, after making choice of a life occupation, of becoming efficient in it.

"The great trouble with nine out of every ten men in the building trades today is that their early education was neglected," says Mr. Walker, in one of these talks, which has been reprinted in leaflet form. "and the foundation laid by them "was not the sure foundation, comprised of arithmetic, geometry, and "ambition." To quote from Mr. Bulman's talk on stenography and engraving: "Without knowledge you "cannot be a good workman, and if "you are not a good workman, you "and all depending on you are con-"demned to the horrible life of "the inefficient, filled with unspeak-"able irritations and despair."

The closing sentence of Mr. Nield's talk, which is one of extraordinary interest in its setting forth of the work and the opportunities in the railway shops, is this: "After having "had a number of years' experience "in supervising men and boys, I "have always found that the boy who "starts in with the determination "that he is going to devote his mind "to learning his trade, will always "find many men who are willing to "render him every assistance pos-"sible and to give him the benefit of "their experience."

The idea is to have leading men in each trade or industry or occupation visit each school and tell the boys about the work he is engaged in, what prospects it offers to an ambitious youth, what a beginner should know to make a start in it, and, in a word, with his own occupation as a text, to give a direct, practical talk, designed to lead the boys to think for themselves and to realize the importance of choosing their life work wisely and getting a foundation in school on which to build a secure future.

This work does not end with these talks to the boys in the schools. There is a fund provided to be used in securing lectures by men selected by the employees and the employers in each industry, and the Public School Board has agreed to provide night classes in technical subjects. Taken altogether, this plan, inaugurated only a couple of months ago, and now an established adjunct to the public school system in this city, is to be regarded with solid satisfaction as a most important addition to the public educational equipment. If is planned with clear-sighted business directness, and contains possibilities of immense advantage to the future general welfare. — Manitoba Free Press.

PENNY BANK SYSTEM NOT FAVOURED

School Board Have Not Declared Themselves in the Matter, But They Indirectly Evade Question

Despite rumours to the contrary—including a statement in a Toronto paper announcing the introduction of the Penny Savings Bank system in Peterborough—there has been no action taken in the matter. Furthermore, if the sentiments of the School Board, in respect to the adoption of the system here, in connection with the public schools, can be taken as a criteron, the matter will be dropped without further consideration.

The principal objection raised by those who oppose the scheme, is the amount of time required to properly conduct the system, after its adoption. It has been ascertained from authoritative sources, that about two hours per week is required of the teachers to care for the work involved in its operation.

Turned Down in Brockville.

It is the general feeling among the School Board that the demands made upon the principals of the school at the present time are quite sufficient without adding further responsibilities.

A movement was on foot recently to introduce the system in Brockville, but it was voted down overwhelmingly by the School Board of that town.

That it will receive a similar fate in so far as this city is concerned, is looked upon as a foregone conclusion by those who are concerned in the matter.

"Ex-Steerage" Wants To Know

Asks For Some Information in Regard to the "Titanic" Fund

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Re the article in Monday evening's paper as to the slowness with which subscriptions are pouring in to the Titanic fund, in this city.

Speaking for myself, and I know also that I am expressing the opinion of other Englishmen, I would be willing to subscribe for this fund if I knew the money would reach the families of those lost, in Southampton, and other British towns, or even if it were certain that the families of those steerage passengers who were emigrating to America and Canada, and who lost their all, were to receive some suitable recompense.

But when one sees accounts in the Montreal Daily Star that on the arrival of the "Carpathia" the steerage passengers were scattered abroad like sheep, without even a record of their names and also accounts of those who have arrived in Canadian towns with a suit of clothes and $5 one naturally asks where in the money to be sent, who is responsible for it, and how large a percentage will ever reach the ones who need it?

Yours truly
Ex-Steerage.

REGULARS WON THE FIRST PRACTICE GAME OF SEASON

Defeated Yannigans in an Interesting Battle by Eight Runs to Two--Good Work of Pitchers Was an Encouraging Feature of the Workout---Trout Injured by Pitched Ball

Manager Templin's White Caps played their first practice game at the oval yesterday afternoon when the Regulars took the Yannigans into camp in a nine innings struggle by 8 runs to 2. Bill Schaeffer did the twirling for the Regulars and made a good job of it, going the full distance without any sign of weakening. The giant of the squad is about ready for the fireworks any time now on his performance yesterday, when he held the Yannigans to five scattered hits and fanned ten men. Johnnie Derr and Ned Bartlett were on the firing line for the Subs and both showed good form. In fact the work of the twirlers was so good that Manager Templin remarked after the game, "You won't be up against any better pitching than that all season, boys."

The Regulars bunched hits on Derr for a pair of runs in the first innings, but after the ex-Haverhill pitcher got into his stride, he kept the safeties well spread out and was going better as the game advanced. Bartlett pitched the last three innings and got away to a bad start by hitting two men and passing another, but in spite of his lack of control, the Regulars could do nothing with his offerings, getting only one scratch single in the three sessions, while six men swung in vain at the breaks.

The Regulars played snappy ball behind Schaeffer, with only two misplays charged up against them, and the fielding of the Yannigans was not bad either, considering the fact that the team was composed almost entirely of pitchers. There was no sensational fielding stunt on either side. Schwarts, Beard, Hartman and Templin, with two hits each, led in the stick work for the Regulars, while Brode and Bartlett did the clouting for the Yanns. The stocky little catcher had a triple and a single in three trips to the plate, while Bartlett had two doubles. The twirler is a splendid hitter for a pitcher and hammered the pill right on the nose every time up yesterday.

Mooney had a peculiar day at the bat. He was up five times, but was passed twice, hit by a pitched ball and had a sacrifice, giving him a record of only one time at bat.

It was a grand workout for the players and an interesting game for the spectators. The only unfortunate feature was an injury to Catcher Trout, who was playing right field for the Regulars. While batting in the seventh innings, he was hit in the head by a fast ball from Bartlett and dropped like a log. He was stunned for some minutes and was taken down town in a motor car to receive medical attention. It was found, however that he was not badly hurt, and the "beaning" will not keep him out of the game.

The Regulars started the doings right in the first innings. Schwarts led off with a double and Tully hit him home with another two bagger. The big short-stop went to third on Templin's infield out and scored on Beard's safety. In the third Templin's double, a neat sacrifice by Dolan, and Beard's timely single added another.

The Yannigans did not score until the fourth, when Brode hit to left centre for three bases. Quinlan hit to Schaeffer, who caught Brode between third and home, but Mooney dropped the ball and the Yanns' catcher scored.

Both sides added one in the fifth, Dolan scoring for the Regulars on Scull's error and Mooney's sacrifice, while the Regulars counted on Bartlett's single and Dolan's miss of Derr's bounder. Singles by Schwartz and Templin were responsible for another run for the Regulars in the sixth and in the seventh. Schwartz and Trout were hit, Mooney was passed and Hartmann singled, the net result being two more tallies. Mooney scored the last one in the eighth on errors by Quinlan and Scull.

Following is the statistical side of the story:

White Cap Notes

Tully continues to hammer the ball hard in practice. The other regulars are meeting the pill with consistent regularity and the star pitchers around the circuit will have to do their prettiest all the way against the White Caps.

Manager Templin's pitching squad are all rounding into good shape and by next week they should be able to go the route. Derr, of course, is the most advanced in training, but the others are coming fast.

Pitcher Baver umpired the first six innings of yesterday's game until Trout was hurt, when he took the catcher's place in right field for the Regulars. A new umpire was introduced in the person of Art Johnston, who performed for the balance of the game in true Silk O'Loughlin fashion.

Catcher Mooney made several pretty catches of foul flies during yesterday's game. The backstop throws lots of ginger into his work and his peppery talk keeps every one on the move.

Brode showed some speed on the bases when he took three sacks on his drive to left centre. The ball was relayed to Hartman via Templin, but the Yanns' catcher beat the throw.

The Regulars' infield had a light day. Hartman at the difficult corner, only had two chances, while Templin failed to get an opportunity at all.

Manager Templin expressed himself as highly pleased pleased over yesterday's game and with the form shown by the players. There will be practice games each afternoon for the balance of the training season, which will give all the pitchers a chance to show what they can do and also afford lots of batting, fielding and base running practice.

The injury received by Catcher Trout yesterday will in all probability keep him out of the basketball game between the White Caps and the Y.M.C.A. five in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium to-night at 8 o'clock. The line-up will likely be as follows: Forwards, Hartman and Ulmer; centre, Tully; guards, Mooney and Beard. Chief Rooter had his pipes sand-papered this morning and he is in good shape for to-night.

The cold, threatening weather this morning prevented a work-out this morning, which was devoted to a quiet talk on signals and team work from Manager Templin.

SUSIE HAL REINSTATED

Susie Hal, the Peterborough trotter that was reinstated yesterday, has a record of 2.12 1-4, and has been under expulsion since 1910. W. J. Whitton a year ago purchased Susie Hal in Waterloo, N.Y., for $200. He sent her to Peterborough, elated over the purchase. But when he attempted to enter the mare at the Port Huron track he was informed of the suspension. He offered to pay any fines against the mare, stating if she was in good standing, he would not sell Susie Hal for $1,000, but if the suspension was not lifted she wasn't worth 30 cents to him—Toronto World.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

THE CHOCOLATE SOLDIER.

The delightful music and sparkling comedy of "The Chocolate Soldier" delighted one of the largest audiences of the season at the Grand Opera House last night, and the production was one of the most meritorious and enjoyable offerings ever seen here. The famous opera bouffe was presented by a star cast of metropolitan favourites, with magnificent scenic and costume effects, and a splendid orchestra. The entrancing music of the production was most charmingly presented by the splendid coterie of vocalists and with the assistance of a well-balanced chorus. Encores and curtain calls were numerous and the appreciation of the audience was indicated in no uncertain manner. Dainty little Alice Yorke, the prima donna of the production won instantaneous favour by her splendid rendition of the favourite and ever-popular "My Hero" number, and easily held her laurels throughout the presentation by her singing and clever acting. The other members of the cast showed themselves adequate to the exacting demands made upon them. Chas. Purcell was delightful as the "Chocolate Soldier", George Tellan's portrayal of Major Alevis was clever, and George O'Donnell got a lot of humour out of Col. Popoff. Altogether it was a most enjoyable production.

SOME THINGS AND OTHERS

Tuesday, May 7th, was the second anniversary of the accession of George V. to the throne. His father dying May 7th, 1910, his son, the Prince of Wales, became 1pso facto King of Great Britain and Ireland and the Dominions beyond the seas.

Here's a chance for the Peterborough street companies. Police boats are speedily despatched to the flooded districts of the southern United States hundreds of persons will perish.

The Sunday World publishes a respectable group photograph of our City Hall staff. It would be a pleasure to be given misgovernment by such a good looking "bunch," especially the girls.

In yesterday's issue was printed an article giving the cost of the Romaine street sewer. An intelligent reporter has assembled the cost, but to strike a balance by ascertaining the nature of its service to the city would require an actuarial commission of very high man-power.

Tax-paying confers certain rights; but it gives no right to dogs to lacerate children as was done by a vicious brute in the case of a child on Parnell street Tuesday evening.

The Romaine street sewer was built mainly for the accommodation of the King Edward School, but it has been a source of disaccommodation to all who have had anything to do with it.

FAIR DIRECTORS

The Fair Directors held a meeting in the Bank of Montreal Chambers on Wednesday night, with Mr. J. H. Garbutt presiding. There was a lengthy discussion of the proposed purchase of the Exhibition Park but no new action was taken. The directors have such faith in the value of the property, which the city has a chance to purchase that they are to some extent disappointed with the fact that there is not a greater appreciation of the offer made the city. Other matters were discussed, particularly the preparation of the prize lists, but there was nothing of special importance to the general public.

A LABOUR ADDRESS

Mr. Jas. Simpson of Toronto, will deliver an address this evening in the Labour Temple, the hall formerly occupied by St. Peter's T.A.S. It will be in the interest of the labouring people of the city and a large attendance is expected to hear him. Mr. Simpson is one of the most prominent labour men in the country, and has had a wide experience.

HOMESEEKERS' AND SETTLERS SPECIAL TRAINS TO WESTERN CANADA

Via Chicago and St. Paul, May 14th, 28th and June 11th and every second Tuesday thereafter, until Sept. 17th, inclusive. Tickets will also be on sale on certain dates via Sarnia and Northern Navigation Company. Special train will leave Toronto 10.30 p.m. on above dates for Edmonton, and points in Manitoba and Saskatchewa, stopping at all points on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway west of Winnipeg. Through coaches and Pullman Tourist Sleepers will be carried, fully equipped with bedding and porter in charge. Berths may be secured in sleepers at a low rate. This is an exceptional opportunity for those wishing to take advantage of the remarkably low one-way settlers' rates or round trip Homeseekers' excursions through the American cities. No change of cars. Secure tickets and berth reservations from any Grand Trunk Agent, or write A. E. Duff, District Passenger Agent, Union Station, Toronto. d-w-4f

CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. George Allen and son of Smith, wish to express their gratitude to their very kind friends and neighbours for their help since their loss by fire.

In a couple of hours the neighbours had every animal they owned away to their own stables, and in two and a half days the timbers for a new barn had been cut and drawn home, ready for the hewer.

Five weeks from the time of burning the new building was completed, under the able workmanship of Mr. J. Botterill.

Mr. Allen feels he owes his neighbours a debt which he can never pay "A friend in need, is a friend, indeed."

MR. SIMPSON WILL ADDRESS

The Labouring Men of This City to-Night.

Thursday night will be a notable one in the history of the labour movement of this city. Mr. J. Simpson, the progressive labour advocate of Toronto, will address the affiliated unions of the city on matters pertaining to the interests of labour men. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Trades and Labour Council, and will be open to all.

NEW GRAIN ROUTE WILL OPEN NEXT MORTH

Peterborough Becomes Important Junction on Direct Grain Line to Montreal

Port McNichol has superseded Owen Sound as the great lake terminal by the inauguration this week by the C. P. R. of the steamship route between that port and the great lakes, and by the inauguration also of the new C.P.R. through train route connecting Port McNichol with Toronto.

This train, known as the a.m. boat express, which formerly made connections with the steamers at Owen Sound, will leave Toronto on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 12.45, and will arrive at Port McNicoll at 4 p.m., where it connects with the upper lake steamers for Sault Ste. Marie and Fort William. The steamers connect at Fort William with trains for Winnipeg and the west.

Southbound, the steamboat express leaves Port McNicoll on Mondays, Tuesdays and Saturdays at 12 noon, and arrives at Toronto at 3.15 p.m., while on Sundays and Thursdays this train leaves Port McNicol at 5.45 a.m., and arrives at Toronto at 12 noon

Difference in Time.

The difference in time is due to the fact that the steamers "Assiniboia" and "Keewatin" take only 30 1-2 hours to make the trip from Fort William to Port McNichol, and, arriving Sundays and Thursdays, several hours earlier, allow the train to leave for Toronto at 8.45 a.m., instead of 12 noon. The steamships Athabasca, Alberta and Manitoba, the other steamers on the route, take 42 1-2 hours to make the trip, and delay the train that much longer.

The running of the steamers from Port McNichol instead of Owen Sound deprives the latter port of this steamship service, with the exception of Wednesdays, when the steamer Manitoba will call there.

The new C. P. R. steamboat express runs from Toronto on the Sudbury route as far as Coldwater Junction, from where it cuts across west to Port McNicoll over the newly laid tracks. This train consists of baggage cars, first-class coaches and parlour car equipment.

Peterborough a Junction.

The most important event in connection with Port McNichol will be the opening early in June of the new C. P. R. line connecting Port McNicoll with Peterborough. When this takes place it means the establishing of a new grain route between Montreal and the West. The grain will be brought by steamer to Port McNicoll, and shipped from there over the new direct rail route to Peterborough, proceeding on from there to Montreal. This will divert grain from the C. P. R. line to Montreal through Northern Ontario on the new route, and make Peterborough a great junction point.

NO ENTRANCE FEE.

Imposition of Fee is Optional With the School Boards.

It appears that the circular from the Education Department relative to the matter of a fee of $1.00 to be charged pupils for writing for the high school entrance examination has been misinterpreted. A circular recently issued makes it plain that the imposition of the fee is optional with high school boards. As the exaction of this fee by one high school district would simply have the affect of causing candidates to go to some district where the free was not charged, it is not likely that many boards will take advantage of the opportunity of making money in that way.

Celebrated His Silver Anniversary

On Wednesday morning last the Rt. Rev. T. J. Dowling, Catholic Bishop of Hamilton, chanted high mass in honour of the silver anniversary of his consecration as bishop, and the occasion will be observed in a more pretentious manner on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 21, 22 and 23. The services in connection with the celebration will be held in St. Mary's cathedral, Hamilton, and will be of the nature of a family gathering, only the priests of the diocese taking part.

His Lordship succeeded Bishop Jamot as Bishop of the Peterborough Diocese in 1887, and left for Hamilton in 1889. That he has on no occasion remained idle has been shown by the fact that in the neighbourhood of thirty churches and chapels have been built during his administration, and he it was who laid the foundation of the St. Joseph Hospital of this city.

Archbishop McEvay of Toronto, the anniversary of whose death is celebrated to-day, was assistant to Bishop Dowling at St. Peter's Cathedral of this city.

In celebration of the anniversary, his lordship will chant pontifical mass at St. Mary's cathedral, Hamilton, on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, and in this he will be assisted by the priests of the diocese. Following the mass, an address from the clery and people of the diocese will be presented to his lordship and also the newly-erected church of St. Anthony of Padua, which has been built and paid for by the Italians of the city. This church will also be consecrated during the celebration exercises. In the evening an entertainment will be held in one of the theatres of the city. On Wednesday morning the children of the city will tender a reception and this will also be held in the cathedral, and on the same evening a reception will be held at Loretta academy. The exercises will be brought to a close on Wednesday morning, when solemn high mass will be chanted in memory of the clergy and people of the diocese who hav did within th past twenty-five years.

INSTITUTE TO CLOSE JUNE 10TH.

It was announced at the Board of Education meeting on Tuesday night that the Collegiate Institute would be closed for the summer vacation on June 10th. This is somewhat earlier than last year, and has been decided upon, with a view to facilitating the work of conducting the examinations which will follow the closing of the Institute.

Know Whereof You Speak

By Ruth Cameron

IT seems to me that there is at least one quality which is daily becoming less common among us, and that is accuracy. This is the day of big things, of large undertakings, and broad outlooks and general culture, but it is most emphatically not the day of accurate knowledge. If you will take the pains to notice, you will find that the average person knows a great many things loosely, but very little exactly. Indeed, it seems to be very difficult for the average person to be exact and definite about anything.

I was anxious to hear all about a certain kind of work which was being done by a woman in a neighbouring city. I was told that a friend of mine knew this woman well and could tell me all about it. When I went to interview her on the subject, she extemporized this. Oh, yes, she knew all about it; she had lived next door to the woman for six months, she assured me glibly. It sounded hopeful, but when we came down to definite facts, I was less delighted, for the following is a fair sample of the accuracy of her information: "How much could Mrs. A. usually make at this work?" "Well, I'm not exactly sure. It was either thirty dollars a week, or thirty a month. I've heard several times, but I can't seem to remember which."

A friend of mine was visiting in a city some miles from home. To get to the depot from her hostess' home she was obliged to travel on the trolley car. When it came time for her to go home, she planned on a certain train, which would get her back to town in season for an important engagement, and then asked what time she could get a trolley car to take her to the train. Her friends assured her that the trolley car, which went past their street at ten minutes after the hour, would give her ample time. Unfortunately, ten turned out to be merely one of those round numbers with which this generation is so prone to content itself. The car actually went at seven minutes after the hour. She missed it, missed her train, and could not keep the important engagement.

The man who wears a watch that he is sure is exactly right is a rara vis, and a popular one, too, for all the inaccurate watch carriers are constantly availing themselves of his accuracy. And in at least nine homes out of ten, if you ask: "Is that clock exactly right?" you will be told: "No, I think it is a little fast—I don't know just how much," or "I'm not sure—Im afraid it loses a little," or something of that sort.

To be sure, not knowing the exact time of day, or the time a trolley car goes, is not wicked, although it certainly causes infinite trouble, but things like these are indications of our national trend towards inexactness and inaccuracy.

There is an expression: "I want what I want when I want it," which is said to be characteristic of the American people. I wish it could also be said of us that we know what we know when we know it.

In the home, in the schools, in public life, in business life, in professional life, in our children, in ourselves, it certain behoves us to fight this growing tendency to be satisfied with careless and inaccurate knowledge.

SUNDAY NEXT MAY 12 WILL BE MOTHERS' DAY

A White Carnation Will Be Worn as an Emblem and Some Tribute Paid to Mother or to Someone Else in Her Memory

Written for the Examiner (By Roy Gilray)

Nobody knows the work it takes
To keep the home together;
Nobody knows the steps it takes;
Nobody knows but Mother.

Everywhere throughout the Christian world the second Sunday of May will be observed as Mother's Day. No more fitting time of the year could have been chosen. It is the month when spring breaks forth in all her glory; when everyone is in love with everybody else; when children break forth into the open—into the heart of nature, away from the confinement of the house, away from the ceaseless care of the "little woman" who stays at home, who makes no bid for the world's applause, but toils all day in a grander cause.

It is to the memory of "Glorious Motherhood" that all knees will bow in loving devotion. Some will be fortunate in having their mothers with them; others will sigh with an aching heart for the "touch of the vanished hand and the sound of the voice that is still."

Since a day was set apart as Mother's Day in 1908, country after country has responded to the call until its observance has become world-wide.

A white carnation has been selected as the emblem, and it is suggested that this flower, or mother's favourite, be worn as a token of love and thoughtfulness to be paid to her or to someone else in her memory. Only a message of love, a flower in the buttonhole, somebody's mother made a bit happier by a book, a picture, a box of candy, or a flower, is the simple thing asked of every man or woman who honours the name of mother.

If the day can be spent, at least in part, in her presence, make it one of great comfort to her by such ministrations as the heart of a true man will dictate. If she is living elsewhere write her a letter full of cheer and love. If she is held in the great beyond, do some deed of kindness in her name that will cheer the life of another.

The very word "Mother" is a synonym for reverence. In all nature there is nothing so tender and loving and joyous as the relationship between mother and child. No nation is greater than its mothers. The homes of a state are the foundation of civic life and civic virtue. The mother is, after all, the head and queen of the home, and upon her ,to a very large extent, depends the future of her children.

Last night, my darling, as you slept,
I thought I heard you sigh;
And to your little crib I crept,
And watched a space thereby.
Then, bending down, I kissed your brow,
For, oh! I love you so!
You are too young to know it now,
But SOMETIME you shall know.

It is not the childless woman who has mastered man, but it is the mother, the one who has fulfilled her duty. Such women who fulfil their mission are those who reign over reigning men; those who prepare new generations of men and form public opinion; and, therefore, in the hands of these women lies the highest power of men's salvation from the threatening evils of our times. Yes, women, mothers, in your hands, more than in those of any others, lies the salvation of the world!

Each of us has now, or holds in loving remembrance, a glorious Mother. In our early youth Mother was all in all ,but is it not a fact that as we grow older we become forgetful of her goodness and less thoughtful of the happiness we should be giving her in return for her tender devotion This should not be a duty service, but one of purest love, and no matter how earnest are our efforts, we cannot repay her the joy and pleasure she gave us during our childhood days. Someone has forcefully said, "I would desire for a friend, the son who had never resisted the tears of his Mother." It is only such sons that get the full sweetness out of life. Permanent success and happiness do not come as a reward of ingratitude, disrespect, and lack of affection for Mother. The reverse has been, is now, and always will be true. The same old-fashioned sweet Mother-love must ever be the foundation for permanent ideal home life. Without it the structure will fall and can never again be replaced.

Sweet and soft her gentle fingers,
As they touched my sunburnt face:
Sweet to me the wafted odour
That enwrapped her dainty lace;
Then a pat or two at parting,
And a good-night kiss between;
All my troubles were forgotten
When my mother tucked me in.

A father may turn his back on a child, brothers and sisters may become inveterate enemies, husbands may disown their wives, wives their husbands; but mother's love endures through all; in good repute, in bad repute, in face of the world's condemnation, a mother still loves on, and still hopes that her child may turn from his evil ways, and repent; still she remembers the infant smiles that once filled her bosom with rapture, the merry laugh, the joyful shouts of his childhood, the opening promise of youth; and she can never be brought to think him all unworthy.

There's a feeling comes across me—
Comes across me often now—
And it deepest seems when trouble
Lays her finger on my brow;
Oh, it is a deep, deep feeling,
Neither happiness nor pain—
'Tis a mighty, soulful longing
To see Mother's face again!

You won't know how much you love her
(Your old mother) till you roam
'Way off where her voice can't reach you,
And with strangers make your home;
Then you'll know how big your heart is—
Think you never loved before,
When you get this mighty longing
Just to see her face once more.

Human nature never comes so near the divine as when a royal woman pours out the full blood of her thought and fancy and love to the little unheeding, and to her as yet, useless child. Where else is she so beautiful as when she sits in the centre of this mystic circle, as when she sings to her babe or gazes silently as it feeds upon her bosom? The stars have nothing so bright, and the heavens scarcely anything more pure and more lovely, than the heavenly love-service of a mother to her little one, helpless and unfashioned.

Look for one single moment upon the power of the cradle, for all this love and outflowing of the divinest feeling of human nature was not meant to be expended merely as a luxury for the maternal bosom—there is meaning in it. It is one of the sources of the greatest power that exists on earth. The power of the cradle is greater than the power of the throne, greater than royalty in its diffusion and in its capacity of usefulness — ten thousand times greater. Make me monarch of the cradles, and I will give to whosoever will the monarchy of the kingdoms and of the throne.

Backward, turn backward, O Time, in your flight,
Make me a child again just for to-night
Mother, come back from the echoless shore,
Take me again to your heart as of yore;
Kiss from my forehead the furrows of care,
Smooth the few silver threads out of my hair;
Over my slumbers your loving watch keep—
Rock me to sleep, Mother, rock me to sleep!

Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, in recalling the tender associations of the old home, says: "I go a little farther on in the old house, and I find Mother's chair. She had so many cares and troubles to soothe that it must have rockers. I remember it well It was an old chair, and the rockers were almost worn out, for I was the youngest, and the chair had rocked the whole family. It made a creaking noise as it moved, but there was music in its sound. It was just high enough to allow us children to put our heads into her lap. That was the bank where we deposited all our hurts and worries. Oh, what a chair that was! It was different from father's chair—it was entirely different. Perhaps there was about this chair more gentleness, more tenderness, more grief when we had done wrong. When we were wayward father scolded, but Mother cried. It was a very wakeful chair! In the sick day of children other chairs would not keep awake—it kept easily awake. That chair knew all the old lullabies, and all these wordless songs which mothers sing to their children. Songs in which all pity and compassion and sympathetic influences are combined. That old chair was stopped rocking for a good many years. It may be set up in the garret, but it holds a queenly power yet."

"She's somebody's mother, boys, you know,
For all she's old, and poor, and slow;
And I hope some fellow will lend a hand
To help my mother, you understand,
If ever so poor, and old, and grey,
When her own dear boy is far away."

If you have an old mother, be good to her. Tell her that you love her. Kiss the faded old lips. Hold in yours the work-knotted hands. Scatter a few of the flowers of tenderness and appreciaion in her pathway while she is still alive and can be made happy by them. Don't wait to put all your affection and gratitude and reverence for her into the costly ton of marble inscribed "Mother." Don't wait to throw all your bouquets on her grave. It's mighty doubtful whether an angel in heaven takes any interest in cemeteries or gets any satisfaction from revisiting earth and contemplating a flattering tombstone; but it is utterly certain that you can make your old mother's heart sing for joy by showing her, while she is alive, just one tithe of the love and appreciation that you will heap upon her when she is dead.

He is a middle-aged man, married, prosperous. He is a good man, highly respected, and he hasn't an idea but what he is doing his full duty by his poor old mother, who lives in his home. He supplies her wants. She eats at his table, is sheltered by his roof, is warmed by his fire, is decently clothed by his hands; but that is all.

He neglects her.

He never says a word of affection to her.

He never pays her any little attentions. Under this coldness and neglect the poor old woman's heart is breaking.

If I could only say to the son, "Man, give me as well as duty to your mother. Give her the wine of life as well as the bread. Don't forget the woman who never forgets you."

Of course, the man will say, and truly, that he is busy, overworked, care-burdened; that he has the claims of wife and children upon him; that he is often ill himself through sheer physical worthlessness.

Granted. But your mother's life has not been easy. Your father was a poor man, and from the day she married him she stood by his side, fighting the wolf from the door with her naked hands, as a woman must fight.

She worked, not the eight-hour or nine-hour union day, but the twenty-four hour day of the poor wife and mother.

She cooked and cleaned and scrubbed and patched and nursed from dawn until bedtime, and in the night was up and down getting drinks for thirsty lips, covering restless little sleepers, listening for croupy coughs.

She had time to listen to your stories of boyish fun and frolic and triumph. She had time to say things that spurred on your ambition.

She never forgot to cook the little dishes you liked.

She did without the dress she needed that you might not be ashamed of your clothes before your chums.

Stop, man, and think what life would have been to you if she had treated you in your childhood as you are treating her in old age!

Suppose there had been no warm, caressing mother's love. Suppose there had been no soft breast on which you could weep out your childish sorrows, no clinging arms to enfold you and comfort you whe nthe things of your little world went wrong. Would it not take away from the memory of all that is best and sweetest in life? Is there anything else so pitiful on earth as the little child that is motherless—that is an alien in a strange home—that has no one to love it?

Yes, there is just one other figure more forlorn than the little unloved child, and that is the old mother who GILRAY—TWO ..... is unloved by the children she raised, and who is doomed to spend the last years of her life in a glacial atmosphere of neglect—her devotion, her sacrifice, her labours forgotten.

Remember her now while there is yet time, while she is living, to pay back to her in love and tenderness some of the debt you owe her. You can never pay it all, but pay down something on account this very day.

If you've a grey-haired mother
In the old home far away,
Sit down and write the letter
You've put off day by day;
Don't wait until her tired steps
Reach heaven's pearly gate,
But show her that you think of her
Before it is too late.

When The Lungs Are Weak

To every person with weak lungs or who has a family history with records of consumption, a cough or cold is a serious matter.

Coughs have a tendency to hang on. They irritate the weakened membranes and prevent healing. There is always the danger that a cold may get a firm foothold and settle on the lungs. It is so easy under these conditions for pneumonia or consumption to develop.

About the surest means of controlling coughs and colds is by the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. This treatment loosens the cough, allays the irritation and inflammation and thoroughly overcomes the disagreeable symptoms. The success of this medicine has given rise to many imitations. It is only natural to suppose that the original possesses merit of an unusual degree.

Father, Mother, Sister, Brother, All Should Use Parisian Sage

The man who uses PARISIAN SAGE if only occasionally will never grow bald. Baldness is caused by dandruff germs which dig down into the roots of the hair, devour its nourishment and cause the root to die and the hair to fall and thin out.

MONEY BACK DANDRUFF REMOVER

PARISIAN SAGE is a scientific hair remedy that not only kills the dandruff germs, but gives the hair root just the same nourishment that nature gives it.

PARISIAN SAGE first kills the germs; then nourishes the weakened hair root and causes a growth of healthy hair.

This same nourishment (PARISIAN SAGE) causes the hair to grow vigorous, which means that the hair becomes full of life and lustre, and grows radiant and beautiful.

Thousands are wasting time, losing hair and growing bald because they are using superficial tonics. While they may clean the scalp and make it feel refreshed, they do not get to the root of the hair where the real destroyer of hair, the pernicious dandruff germs, thrives and multiplies.

Try PARISIAN SAGE for all hair trouble; it means death to the germs; life to the hair. It is pleasant to use and so harmless that it can be used by every member of the family from the oldest to the little tot.

Get a 50 cent bottle to-day, and if you are not satisfied that it is just as good as claimed, your money back without any squibbling. Sold by Wm. Madill and druggists everywhere. Girl with Auburn hair on every carton and bottle.

ABOUT PRINCESS ST. PAVEMENT

To the Editor of The Examiner:

I noticed by your paper that Mr. Overend addressed the Council regarding the Princess street walk, that was passed by the Council to be built this year. I would like to know why a city the size of Peterborough, with such an intelligent Council and Mayor as we have got, should let a property holder dictate to them, by making the statement that if no improvements are made on the street opposite his property for the term of two years, that he will give gratis his portion of Princess street which, I was given to understand by the late ex-Mayor Best, was a permanent street, the plan being registered before Mr. Overend bought this said property. Mr. Overend has now built a fence to the line; also a house facing Princess street and disposing of several lots of said property. Under the face of this he puts up the above bluff; also making the misleading assertion that only two want the walk, while the petition presented to the Council contained the signatures of 16 property holders out of the 17, on south side of said street. Mr. Overend being the lone one. I maintain this walk is a necessity, having no walk south of Romaine street, where great numbers go to and from the different factories, also the Sacred Heart church and St. James' church, besides giving us access to the street car line, besides the great number of children that attend the King Edward school, that would be benefitted by this walk. I remain,

Yours truly,
F. C. BOOKE,
Princess street.

Board Of Works Will Make A Tour Of City

Will Endeavour to Secure Exact Information on Friday

The Board of Works will make its annual tour of the city on Friday. This is an inspection visit to all the wards for the purpose of securing first-hand information as to the work to be done principally in the department of the Board of Works and the Fire, Water and Light Committee. The streets to be graded and put into shape, the drains to be laid, sidewalks built, and any other work that is considered necessary will considered and direct information will be secured.

The city fathers will likely make the tour in automobiles, but it has been suggested that they take a springless buckboard in order that they may be impressed sufficiently with any bad spots in the roads. The modern auto is provided with springs that are supposed to make travelling a comfort and in this case the aldermen may miss some of the rough spots.

Citizens who consider that they have some grievance that deserves attention should acquaint the Aldermen of the fact before Friday morning.

A SUGGESTION RE FAIR GROUNDS

One Opinion Advocates Making Model Residential Section of It

A citizen who considers the Exhibition grounds valuable real estate believes that in the event of the Fair Directors securing other property, this block should be laid out as a model residential section for the benefit of mechanics, artisans and others, who desire homes of moderate prices and with all modern conveniences.

He claims that with but little extra effort it could be made a splendid section for that purpose. Cramping should be avoided, and yet property need not be wasted. Building restrictions should be placed upon those who would erect homes. Every house should be a certain distance from the street line, and thus a regularity could be secured that would accomplish results that have been nearly achieved in several other parts of the city. The streets should be fairly wide and instead of being exactly straight in their entire length, an attempt might be made to relieve the appearance of sameness by expansion into slight curves at different points on the various streets. A landscape architect could doubtless suggest something that would be practical, if it were desired. Then, when the ground became a part of the city pavements could be laid, lighting provided and also sewer and water services.

In this way, the property would be made most desirable for residential purposes and its value would be to that extent enhanced. Whether the suggestion is feasible or not is a question, but it is a suggestion from a citizen of what might be accomplished in the way of city improvement, and indicates one opinion as to what might be done with this much-debated property.

THE GREATEST LADIES' SUIT SALE

Of the Season

Thursday, Friday and Saturday will see one of the biggest Ladies' Suit Sales of the season. We bought an array of stunning garments at practically the cost of materials, and the assortment and values included are almost beyond description. We purchased every sample suit from one of Toronto's largest and best known manufacturers of Suits and Cloaks, and the result is we place on sale Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Suits that for quality, style and workmanship would be hard to equal at $25, $27.50, $30 and $32.50.

The Price for Lot No. 1 will be for Thursday, Friday and Saturday only

The Materials

The materials used in these Suits are fine French and Mannish Serges; English Tweeds and Scotch Homespuns and Mannish Worsteds, also many soft Cheviots, heavy ribbed diagonal weaves and black and white stripe Serges.

In Lot No. 2 you will find a large variety of styles, from the fancy Coats, with ¾ sleeves and new envelope and side pleated skirts, to the staple strictly plain tailored styles, with high waisted panel Skirt. There are 50 Suits in the lot, and when you see the quality and style of these suits you will readily be convinced that this is the biggest price saving event on Ladies' Suits ever offered. Suits that would sell regularly at $17.50, $20 and $22.50, will sell Thursday, Friday and Saturday, at

The Shades

All the new shades are represented in these Suits, including tan, light and dark greys in worsteds and mixtures —also all the new shades of blue, with plenty of black and navy serges predominating.

Mrs. Greenslade, who has for some time past been located in the T. M. Greene building, in her capacity as teacher of music, has removed to 189 King street.

The many friends of Mr. Geo. Weber will regret to learn that he is confined to his room and his physicians say his illness has become more serious during the past few days.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shea of La Mesa, California, are in the city for a month's visit—four weeks' taste of Canadian civilization. They are glad to get back to the old home town, and their hosts of friends are glad to see them.

Mr. Allan Forbes, a member of the "Chocolate Soldier Co," whose home is in Boston, was the guest of Mr. E. J. Todd, Aylmer street, while in the city. Mr. Forbes is much pleased with Peterborough, saying it is the only city in Canada he had been in, that he would like to live in.

Pruning the Appendix

What thousands of people are rushthe idea that pruning the appendix will rid them of the cause and effect of wrong habits of eating and living.

We eat too much, take too little outdoor exercise, breathe impure air, and when the system gets loaded with foul impurities, which irritate the digestive system and set up inflammation, we are told that the operating table is the only place for us.

Why not prevent appendicitis, as well as acute indigestion, peritonitis and Bright's disease of the kidneys, by keeping the liver active and the bowels regular. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cleanse the digestive system of foul impurities more quickly than any treatment you can obtain. They awaken the liver and ensure the healthful action of the kidneys and bowels.

To Help Families To Re-unite

Movement is Gaining Favour Throughout the Province

TORONTO, MAY 9.— Mr. Frank Wise, chairman of the Imperial Home Reunion Association addressed the Board of Trade at Ottawa last Friday, the result of which was that an association was inaugurated in that city. A strong committee was formed, consisting of influential professional and business men who will commence operations forthwith. Since the month of January this year the Toronto Association have held twelve meetings at which 153 wives with families of 526 children, fully 30 per cent. of whom are already wage-earners, have been passed for transport to Canada to join their husbands, and of this number 115 families of 502 persons have already had their passage booked by the various steamship lines.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

The Y.M.C.A. Canoe Club held a very successful meeting recently, when the following officers were elected for the coming season.

Hon. Commodores—Mr Claude Rogers and J. J. Howden.

Hon. Vice Commodores—J. H. Connal and W. Irvine.

Commodore—W. Richardson.

Vice Commodore—D. Loomis.

Secretary-Treasurer—M. Adams.

Plans were discussed for the season's work and prospects are the brightest for a most successful season on the water. It was decided to launch the War Canoe Saturday next, at 3 p.m., when the trial trip around Little Lake will be made. Arrangements are also being made for a trip to Stony Lake on May 24th, with the War Canoe. Altogether it looks like a busy season for the paddlers of the city.

The basketball game between the White Caps and the local "Y" team scheduled for to-night has been postponed until this (Thursday) night and judging from the class which the White Caps have already shown, the local boys will certainly have to score more baskets than they have ever done before if they are to keep the game interesting. The White Caps may take on the Elks (the city champions) at a later date.

OBITUARY

MRS. T. KENNEDY.

BULKHEADS WERE CLOSED

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., MAY 9.— A fireman giving evidence at the Titanic enquiry, said the bulkheads were really closed for a while after the collision with the iceberg, but were opened to enable the engineers to get through to work the pumps and then could not be closed again. Several witnesses said they saw Ismay helping some women into the boats and trying to persuade others to get in. He was on the ship till nearly the last boat.

RETURNED FROM WEST

Mr. Andrew Brown has returned from an extended trip through the west, to Vancouver. He spent ten days in the Pacific Coast city, and also visited Calgary, Regina, Edmonton and others of the new cities in the West.

Mr. Brown states that the growth of many of these towns and cities has been wonderful during the past two years. Some of them would be hardly recognizable in their present size. Vancouver is, in particular, enjoying remarkable prosperity and is increasing very rapidly.

Mr. Brown remarked that owing to the hold-up of a great deal of the wheat during the last six or eight months, there is not likely to be the increased acreage that might have otherwise been broken this spring.

While there are many people settling permanently on the farms, in the cities there are many who have made money on the land and are now enjoying the fruits of their work in Vancouver or in the other cities. The inrush of settlers this year is very heavy.

While there are many good real estate propositions on the market, Mr. Brown says there are evidences of "wild catting". Mr. Brown, in conversation with one real estate man, whose property he was examining, asked if the lots would readily be saleable. The reply was that they might not sell in the West, but they would make good lots to float in the east. Of course they see not all like this, but there are numerous instances that are much similar.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

It has been suggested that the Boy Scouts of Peterborough take part in the parade, which is to be held in connection with the summer fair. The matter has been referred to Commissioner Waller. As a result it is altogether probable that from seventy-five to one hundred scouts will take part in the event.

The regular weekly parade of the Boy Scouts will be held on Friday night next. First aid drill will be taken up. Scouts are requested to turn out in uniform and bring their staffs.

Increases Gift to $60,000.

Toronto, May 10.—Having announced some weeks ago that he would contribute $30,000 towards the erection of the hospital for children at the Weston Sanitarium, W. J. Gage yesterday supplemented his gift by $30,000. He will give $60,000 to be used for the erection of a new wing at the Weston Consumptive Hospital, where children will be treated.

The National Sanitarium Association, which controls the Weston Hospital, has purchased nine acres of land near the present buildings for $16,000. This will be made into a park where patients at the hospital may enjoy the fresh air and sunshine.

The corner-stone of the new children's wing, the gift of Mr. Gage, will be laid by the Duke of Connaught on May 27, when the mayor, representatives of the Board of Trade and others will be present.

Three Bank Clerks Sentenced.

Vancouver, B.C., May 10.—Three years for John H. Robbie of the Imperial Bank, two and a half years for Maurice Cox of the Merchants' Bank, and two years for Alex. Strachan of the Merchants' Bank, were the sentences imposed yesterday by Magistrate Shaw on the three young bank clerks who Wednesday admitted defalcations from the two banks amounting in all to nearly $12,000.

Baby Crushed Under Wagon.

Brockville, May 10.—W. A. McElroy was driving to the factory with a load of milk and was leaving his own yard, when he heard a child's cry. He stopped his horse, and on looking around, was horrified to see his youngest son, Walter, under the hind wheel of the wagon. The little fellow was terribly crushed and only lived an hour after the accident. He was 2 1-2 years old.

Majority Of 101 For Home Rule Bill On Second Reading

Prime Minister Acquits Gets an Ovation on Leaving Commons When an Increase of Seven Votes Was Shown.

LIBERALS ARE JUBILANT

London, May 10.—The Government carried the home rule bill on its second reading in the House of Commons last night by a majority of 101, as against 94 for the first reading. The vote was 372 to 271.

It was the most largely attended House of the present Parliament. Both sides had done their utmost to secure every available vote. Mr. Balfour, former Opposition leader, and Mr. Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, returned from Weymouth in order to be present.

The announcement of the figures showing an increased majority occasioned enthusiastic demonstrations on the Government side, and the Prime Minister was given a great ovation on leaving the House with his wife and daughter by the crowd assembled outside.

The bill was formally referred to a committee of the whole House, but as home rule and Welsh disestablishment are being taken concurrently, it will now be the turn of the Welsh bill. The committee stage of the home rule bill is not expected to be reached until after Whitsuntide and will probably occupy a couple of months even with a liberal application of the closure rules, as the Opposition are preparing an endless list of amendments and will adopt every possible means to obstruct the measure.

Curiously, the second reading of the home rule bill coincides with the disappearance of the word "conservative" as the official designation of the Tory party. A conference of the Conservative and Liberal Unionist parties yesterday resolved upon a fusion of the two parties under the title of "National Unionist Association." Thus the Liberal Unionists who seceded from Gladstone on his espousal of home rule now will become part and parcel of the Tory party.

Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, assailed the bill fiercely. The Government, he said, was setting up customs houses not to create a union, but to destroy the union which already existed. He denounced the safeguards in the bill as utterly futile, condemned the financial provisions and drew a gloomy picture of Ireland's future under home rule.

Every new Parliament of inexperienced men, said the speaker, had tried to get the millenium in a hurry. The new Irish Parliament would launch all sorts of schemes for improving the condition of the country, borrowing money for the purpose. As a result the Imperial Parliament would become liable for a huge capital sum it would not have sanctioned and for expenditures over which it had practically no control.

In conclusion, the Opposition leader declared that the Government never could carry the bill through unless it was first submitted to the judgment of the country.

Premier Asquith wound up the debate for the Government in a brief and forceful speech which aroused great enthusiasm on the part of his supporters. "No serious attempt, he said, had been made by the Opposition to meet the argument with which he opened the discussion—the character and peculiarities of the Irish demand. Had such demand been made under similar conditions by any community of their own race throughout the Empire, there was not a man on either side who would not say that it was entitled to consideration.

A demand so persistent, continued the Prime Minister, was one which a democratic Parliament in these days was bound to assent to. If the Irish vote were eliminated in the House of Commons, there still would be a majority of fifty or sixty for home rule.

Militia Reorganization.

Ottawa, May 10.—Winnipeg is to have a cavalry regiment, according to yesterday's Militia Gazette.

The old Prince of Wales Fusiliers, Montreal, is reorganized as the 1st Regiment Grenadier Guards. The 8th Regiment, Quebec, is to be reorganized. The 73rd Regiment will be known as the Seaforth Highlanders. The 99th Regiment will reorganize, with four companies, at Galt, and others at Preston, Hespeler, New Hamburg and Elmira.

A. G. MacKay Going West.

Owen Sound, May 10.—A. G. MacKay, former Liberal leader in Ontario, is out of the politics of this province. Such is the opinion of his closest friends throughout the riding of North Grey, and the facts apparently allow of no other conclusion.

Mr. MacKay, who left for the west about a month ago, has opened an office at Edmonton and began the practice of law. Already he has been engaged as counsel in an important litigation.

Mr. MacKay is expected to resign his seat shortly.

Will Be Tried at Once.

Toronto, May 10.—Charles Gibson will be tried at the present sittings of the assizes. He comes up in the police court to-day, the coroner's jury having already found a verdict of murdering Joseph Rosenthal against him. Even if he is not forthwith committed for trial from the police court, as it is altogether likely that he will be presented before the grand jury, now sitting, for indictment upon the plain story of Eli Dunkelmar, as told at the inquest.

May Upset Sparkhall Will.

Kingston, May 10.—In order to have a will set aside, E. Gus Porter, K.C., M.P., Belleville, is in the city securing the evidence of Dr. Pollard of Toronto, who is serving a term in the penitentiary for a criminal operation.

Mr. Porter is trying to have the will made by the late William Sparkhall, Toronto, who died recently, leaving $80,000, set aside. He left the bulk of his money to this second wife, ignoring the daughter of his first wife. This daughter, Mrs. A. Hall, living near Belleville, is bringing action to have the will set aside. Pollard was the family physician. It is asserted that the deceased was insane at the time he made the will.

ELLIS GOES TO LINDSAY

Is Safely Lodged In the County Jail —Says He Has No Religion

HAS WORRIED A LOT

Lindsay, May 10.—Arthur A. Ellis, slayer of Louis Porter, whom he shot on the road near Minden on April 23, was yesterday brought here from Minden and lodged in the county jail to await trial next fall. There was a crowd at the station when the prisoner, wearing handcuffs and escorted by Constable Welch arrived and all eyes were fixed upon Ellis as he was hurried into a cab. His face looked haggard and dark circles under his eyes told of sleepless nights.

In the office of Warden Balfour of the jail Ellis' handcuffs were removed and he was asked a number of questions, to which he returned ready answers. He stated that he was Canadian-born and that his home was in the Township of Lutterworth, where he farmed for a living.

"I have none," was his reply to the warden's query as to his religion. He added that his parents were Baptists, but that, while he had at times attended the Baptist church, he was not a member. He gave his age as 36.

To the question, "Are you temperate or not?" he replied promptly that he was strictly temperate.

"I have never used tobacco or whisky," he volunteered.

He had never been previously committed to jail, he said.

Mother-in-Law to Boss.

Toronto, May 10.—The late Thomas Fyshe, late general manager of the Merchants' Bank of Montreal, who died last November, left to his family an estate valued at $262,284. By his will, which was filed in the Surrogate Court yesterday, none of those who share in the estate can get married without the consent of the others. The will reads: "It is my wish and intention that my mother-in-law, Mrs. A. H. Leonowens, and all my family shall live together as long as possible, but when it may be necessary for any of them to leave the house owing to marriage, my trustees shall pay out of the estate $600 per annum. But I order and direct that no member of my family shall be free to marry without the consent of the others, including my mother-in-law, on pain of forfeiting all rights to any part of my estate."

Killed by Explosion.

Cleveland, May 10.—Three men were killed and twenty seriously injured by an explosion at the central furnace of the American Steel & Wire Co. here yesterday morning.

Will Install Searchlights.

London, May 10.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—One immediate result of the Titanic disaster is that the Canadian Northern Railway Co. will install electric searchlights on their ships.

Killed by Train.

Windsor, Ont., May 10.—The mangled body of Wm. Brown, 28, and unmarried, was found yesterday morning on the Pere Marquette tracks at Walkerville.

MINERS ARE BUYING ARMS

Foreign Coal Workers Are Restless in Pennsylvania

POLICE FEAR TROUBLE

Philadelphia, May 10.—The feeling of bitterness engendered among the foreign-speaking miners of Minersville, when three of their countrymen were shot by the state police during a riot, was further intensified yesterday, when Michael Mullaugo, one of the trio, died.

That trouble is brewing is apparent from the amount of firearms being purchased by naturalized foreigners. Several dealers in Minersville have practically sold out and there is also a big demand for firearms in Pottsville.

Capt. Wilhelm of the state police says there is no way to stop the sale unless martial law is declared and the situation does not warrant such a step at present.

Officers of the state police fear that an attempt may be made to lead their men into an ambush along some of the mountain roads. They believe that the naturalized foreigners are distributing the firearms to their countrymen with this object in view.

Although Mullaugo was a stranger in Minersville, arrangements are being made by the foreign element to hold a big demonstration when his funeral takes place.

There has been no serious rioting in the coal field. Some women and boys marched to two washeries yesterday with the intention of driving the employes from their work, but were persuaded by union officials to return to their homes.

WOULDN'T GO BACK.

Sailor at Titanic Enquiry Accused Sir Cosmo Gordon.

London, May 10.—The escape of Sir Cosmo and Lady Duff-Gordon from the Titanic in lifeboat No. 1, which was less than half filled, was inquired into searchingly yesterday afternoon. Charles Hendrickson, a fireman of the Titanic, and one of the crew in the boat in question, on being asked why he did not return to the scene of the disaster to try and rescue some of those in the water who were crying for help, said that he suggested that the boat should return, but Sir Cosmo objected on the ground that it would be dangerous. Lady Duff-Gordon agreed with her husband, and the boat did not return.

Lord Mersey asked the witness: "You mean to tell me that because two passengers objected the rest of you kept your mouths shut and did not go to the rescue?"

Hendrickson replied: "That's right."

Witness said that Sir Cosmo Duff-Gordon gave each member of the crew of the boat five pounds, but he insisted that no arrangements to take effect had been made, and the first he heard of a reward was after the lifeboat reached the Carpathia.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Bruno Damasio, an Italian, was convicted yesterday at the district court in Port Arthur, of the shooting and wounding of Jami Gratton, April 6, and sentenced to ten years in Stony Mountain.

A supply of the new $5 and $10 gold pieces of Canada has been sent to Vancouver, Winnipeg, Toronto, St. John, Halifax and Charlottetown. They are the first of the sort made at the Ottawa mint.

Col. Sir Henry Pellatt, C.V.O., Toronto, received the degree of D.C.L., honoris causa, yesterday afternoon from the University of King's College, Windsor, N.S., one of the oldest universities of Canada.

Mrs. William Gothe, her infant child, and a daughter of William Adair, a farmer, were drowned while attempting to cross the Pipestone River in the flood at the Parker crossing, near Elkhorn, Man.

Warned by the Titanic catastrophe, the Hamburg-American Steamship Co. has discontinued any self-insurance of its own ships, and has reinsured all Germany to End Duelling.

Berlin, May 10.—The Clericals yesterday introduced a resolution in the Reichstag asking the Imperial Chancellor, Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, to take steps to end duelling in the army, particularly the practice that makes it compulsory for an offended person to challenge the offender or leave the army.

Pending this reform the resolution demands the observance of the imperial order of 1897, restricting duelling. The resolution will be adopted as the Clericals and Socialists demonstrated yesterday that they have a clear majority when co-operating.

Third Suicide in Family.

KEITH OF THE BORDER

A TALE OF THE PLAINS

By RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "My Lady of the South" "When Wilderness Was King" Etc. Etc.

"Who are you?" questioned one sharply. "Were you doing all that shooting yourself?"

Keith recognized the voice, thankful that he did so.

"I fired at the fellow, but he got away on to the prairie. I reckon you couldn't have done any better, Bill."

"Jack Keith!" and Hickock's voice had a new tone, his hand dropping on the other's shoulder. "Never was gladder to meet a fellow in my life. Boys, this is an old deputy of mine down in Dodge. When he gives up chasin' a murderer there ain't much use our tryin'. Let's go back, and find out how bad the fellow is hurt. While we're feelin' our way, Jack, you might tell us what you know about this affair."

"It was just the flash of a gun, and the man dropped," Keith explained briefly. "I was ten or a dozen feet behind, and the fellow fired from under the wagon there. He must have been laying for someone—I reckon, maybe, it was me."

"You? Then it's likely you have some notion who it was?"

"Well, if I have, Bill," and Keith's lips were set tight, "I'm not liable to tell you. If it's the lad I think likely, I'll attend to the case myself. You understand—this is my personal affair."

"Sure, Jack, if you feel that way. There's enough doing here in Sheridan to keep a marshal reasonably busy, without dippin' into private matters. I rather reckon you can take care of yourself, but if you need me, old boy, I'm always right here on the job. You know that."

"I do, Bill, and appreciate it."

The group about the motionless body fell away, and made room for the marshal, the last man to rise saying soberly:

"He's dead all right, Hickock. I guess he never knew what hit him. Good shootin', too, dark as it is here."

"Had the range fixed, likely," returned the marshal. "That's what makes it look like it was arranged for."

He bent down, trying to distinguish the dead man's features turned up to the drizzle, but the night revealed only the faintest outline.

"Anybody know him?" There was no response, only a shuffling of feet in the mud. "Here you man with the lantern, hold it over where I can see. There, that is better. Now, you fellows take a look, and see if some of you can't name the poor devil."

They glanced down, one after the other, over Bill's shoulder, shading their eyes from the rain so as to see clearer. The light of the flickering lantern streamed full on the ghastly face, but each man shook his head, and passed on. Keith hung back, hoping someone would identify the body, and not make it necessary for him to take part in the gruesome task. It was not likely to be anyone he knew, and besides, he felt the man had died in his stead, and he dreaded to look upon the stricken face. When the last of the group had drifted back out of the radius of light, Hickock looked up, and saw him.

"Here, Jack," he said, gravely, "you better try—you might know him."

Keith bent over, and looked down. As he did so, his heart seemed to rise choking into his throat, and a blur obscured his sight. He swept a hand over his eyes and dropped on his knees into the mud beside the body, staring speechless into the white face, the sightless eyes. Hickock, watching him closely, gripped his arm.

"What is it? Do you know him?"

"My God, yes; Fred Willoughby!"

CHAPTER XXV.
A REAPPEARANCE OF THE GENERAL.

Keith did not inform Hope of her brother's death until the following morning. She had the body properly prepared for burial, and devoted the remainder of the night to searching for General Waite, and, incidentally, for both Hawley and Scott. Both Hickock and Fairbain assisted in this effort to learn the whereabouts of the dead boy's father, but without the slightest result, nor did Keith's investigations reveal the gambler at any of his accustomed resorts, while Scott had apparently made a complete get-away. These disappearances merely served to convince him as to the truth of his first suspicions; Scott might have departed for good, but Hawley would certainly reappear just so soon as assured his name had not been mentioned in connection with the tragedy. To Neb alone did the plainsman candidly confide his belief in the guilt of these two, and when other duties called him elsewhere, he left the negro scouring the town for any possible reappearance of either.

Heavy-eyed from lack of sleep, heavy-hearted with his message, yet fully decided as to what advice he should offer, Keith returned to the hotel, and requested an interview with Hope. Although still comparatively early, some premonition of evil had awakened the girl, and in a very few moments she was prepared to receive her visitor. A questioning glance into his face was sufficient to assure her of unpleasant news, but, with one quick breath, she grasped his arm as though his very presence afforded her strength.

"How tired you look! Something has occurred to keep you out all night—and—and I know you have brought me bad news. Don't be afraid to tell me; I can bear anything better than suspense. Is it about father?"

"No, Hope," and he took her hand, and led her to a chair. Bending above her he gave her the whole story of the night, and she scarcely interrupted with a question, sitting dry-eyed with only an occasional sob shaking her slender form. As he ended, she looked up into his face, and now he could see a mist of unshed tears in her eyes.

"What shall I do, Captain Keith? I am all alone with this, except for you."

"I have considered that, Hope," he answered, gravely, "and it seems to me your present duty is more to the living than the dead. You should remain here until we learn something definite regarding your father, and discover the truth of this conspiracy formed against him. If Fred could know the trouble his chance words have caused, he would wish you to do this. With him gone, we are going to find the unravelling harder than ever. It is my judgment, Hope, your brother should be buried here."

She shuddered, her hands pressed to her eyes.

"Oh, on that horrible 'Boots Hill'?"

"Only temporarily, little girl," his voice full of deepest sympathy. "In a few weks, perhaps, it could be removed East."

She was silent for what seemed to him a long while; then she looked up into his face, clinging to his arm.

"Yes," she said, "that will be best."

That same afternoon, the sun low in the west, they placed the dead boy in his shallow grave on "Boots Hill." It was a strange funeral, in a strange environment—all about the barren, deserted plains; far away to the east and west, the darker line marking the railroad grade, and just below, nestled close in against the foot of the hill, the squalid town of tents and shacks. There were not many to stand beside the open grave, for few in Sheridan knew the lad, and funerals were not uncommon—some cronies, half-drunk and maudlin, awed somewhat by the presence of the marshal, Doctor Fairbain, Keith, and Hope. That was all excepting the post chaplain from Fort Hays, who, inspired by a glimpse of the girl's unveiled face, spoke simple words of comfort. It was all over with quickly, and with the red sun still lingering on the horizon, the little party slowly wended their way back, down the steep trail into the one long street of Sheridan.

At the hotel Neb was waiting, the whites of his eyes shining with excitement, his pantomime indicating important news. As soon as he could leave Hope, Keith hurried down to interview his dusky satellite, who appeared about to burst with restrained information. As soon as uncorked, that individual began to flow volubly.

"I sho' done seed 'em, Massa Jack; I done seed 'em both."

"Both? Both who?"

"Massa Waite, sah, an' dat black debble dat we was huntin' fo'. It was a mos' surprisin' circumstance, sah—a mos' surprisin' circumstance."

"Well, go on; where did you see them? Do you mean they were together?"

The negro took a long breath, evidently overcome by the importance of his message, and unable to conjure up words wholly satisfactory to his ideas.

"It sho' am de strangest t'ing, Massa Jack, ebber I prognosticated. I was jest comin' roun' de corner ob Sheeny Joe's shebang, back dar by de blacksmith shop, when—de Lawd save me!—yere come ol' Massa Waite a ridin' 'long on a cream colo'd pinto just as much alibe as ebber he was. Yas, sah; he's whiskers was blowin' round, an' I could eben yeah him cussin' de hoss, when he done shy at a man what got up sudden like from a cartwheel he was settin' on. I dont took one look at dat secon' fellar, and seed it was dat black debble from down Carson way. Den I ducked inter de blacksmith shop out 'er sight. I sho' didn't want Mister Hawley to git no chance at dis nigger—I sho' didn't."

"Did they speak to one another?" Keith asked, anxiously. "Did you hear what was said"

"Sho'- dey talked, Massa Jack. I sorter reckon dey was dere for dat special purpose. Sutt'nly, sah, dey went right at talkin' like dey hed some-t'ing on dey minds. Ol' Massa Waite was a sittin' straight up on de hoss, an' dat black debble was a standin' dere in front ob him. Ol' Massa Waite he was mad from de first jump off, an' I could heah most eberyt'ing he said, but Mr. Hawley he grin de same way he do when he deal faro, an' speaks kinder low. De ol' man he swear fine at him, he call him eberyt'ing—a damn liar, a damn scoundrel—but Mr. Hawley he jest grin, and say ober de same t'ing."

"What was that, Neb?"

"Som't'ing 'bout a gal, Massa Jack—an' a law suit, an' how de ol' man better settle up widout no fightin'. I jest didn't git de whole ob it, he talked so low like."

"What did Waite say?"

"Well, mostly he jest cussed. He sho' told dat black debble 'bout what he thought ob him, but he didn't nebber once call him Hawley; no, sah, not once; he done call him Bartlett, or somet'ing or odder like dat. But e sutt'nly read dat man's pedigree from way back to de time ob de flood, I reck'n. An' he done swore he'd fight for whatebber it was, papers or no papers. Den Hawley, he got plumb tired ob de ol' man swearin' at him, an' he grabbed a picter out ob he's pocket, an' says. 'D—— you, look at dat! What kind ob a fight can yo' make against dat face?' De ol' man stared at it a while, sorter chonin' up; den he say softer like; "It's Hope; where did yo' ebber get dat?' and de black debble he laughed, an' shoved de picter back into he's pocket. 'Hope, h——' he say, "it's Phyllis, an' I'll put her before any jury yo're mind to get—oh, I've got yo' nailed, Waite, dis time.'"

"Was that all?"

"De ol' gin'ral he didn't seem ter know what ter say; he done set dar lookin' off ober de prairie like he was clar flumegasted. He sho' did look like dat black debble hed hit him mighty hard. Den he says slow like, turnin' his boss 'round: 'Bartlett, yo' am puttin' up a good bluff, but, by Gawd, I'm goin' ter call yo'. Yo' don't get a cent ob dat money 'less yo' put up de proof. I'll meet yo' whar yo' say, but ef I can git hol' ob some papers dat's missin' I'll take dat grin off yo' face. De odder one laughed, an' de ol' gin'ral started fo' ter ride away, den he pull up he's hoss, an' look back. 'Yo' sorter herd wid dat kind ob cattle, Bartlett,' he says, sharp like, 'maybe yo' know a gambler roun' yere called Hawley?' De black debble nebber eben lose he's grin. 'Do yo' mean Black Bart Hawley' 'Dat's the man, where is he?' 'Dealin' faro fo' Fike Kenna in Topeka a week ago—friend ob yours?' 'Dat's none ob yo' d——d business,' snorted de ol' gin'ral, givin' his hoss de spur. Sho', Massa Jack, he nebber knowed he was talkin' ter dat same Hawley, an' dat black debble jest laughed as he rode off."

"When was all this, Neb?"

"'Bout de time yo' all went up on de hill, I reck'n. I done come right yere, and waited."

Keith walked across the room, selected a cigar, and came back, his mind busy with the problem. Hawley had in some manner, then, got into communication with Waite, and was threatening him. But Waite evidently knew the man under another name—his given name—and the gambler had sent him off on a false trail. The lost papers apparently contained the solution to all this mystery. Waite believed Hawley possessed them, but did not suspect that Bartlett and Hawley were the same person. What would he most naturally do now? Seek Hawley in Topeka probably; seize the first opportunity of getting there. Keith turned impatiently to the clerk.

"Any train running east?"

"Well, they generally start one out every day," with a glance toward the clock, "but it's getting late, now, for to-night. It was already nearly train time as the two men hastened toward the depot. They arrived there barely in time to see the red lights on the last car disappear. No inquiries made of those lounging about brought results—they had been interested in a fight of drunken graders headed on the flat cars by Santa, and none cut under guard—and yet one could tell whether any man answering Waite's description was in the single passenger coach. Convinced, however, that the General would waste no time in pursuing his search, Keith believed him already on his way east, and after dismissing Neb, with instructions to watch closely for Hawley, he made his own way back to the hotel.

It required strange strength how completely he was blocked each time, just as he though the whole baffling mystery was about to be made clear. Hawley was playing in rare luck, all the cards running easily to his hand, thus, at least, gaining time, and strengthening his position. There could no longer be any doubt that the gambler possessed some knowledge which made him a formidable adversary. From Waite's statement it was the loss of the papers which left him helpless to openly resist the claim being made upon him on behalf of the mysterious Phyllis. His only hope, therefore, lay in recovering these; but, with time limited, he had been sent back on a wild goose chase, while Keith alone knew, with any degree of positiveness, where those documents really were. Hawley certainly had them in his possession the day before, for he had taken them to Miss Maclaire to thus convince her as to the truth of his statements. And Hawley was still in Sheridan. However, it was not likely the man would risk carrying documents of such value, and documents connecting him so closely with that murder on the Santa Fe Trail, about upon his person. At best, life was cheap in that community, and Black Bart must possess enemies in plenty. Yet if not on his person—where? Scott was only a tool, a mere ignorant desperado, not to be trusted to such a degree—yet apparently he was the only one working with the gambler in this deal, the only one cognisant as to his plans. Christie—Keith came to a stop in the street at the recurrence of the woman's name. Why not? If she had been convinced, if she really believed that these papers proved her right to both property and parentage, then she would guard them as a tigress does her young. And Hawley would know that, and must realize they would be far safer in her hands than in his pocket. She could not use them without his aid and guidance, and yet, whatever happened to him, they would still be safely beyond reach. True, this might not have been done; the gambler might not yet have felt that he had sufficient hold upon the woman to trust her thus far, but it was, at least, a possibility to be considered, and acted upon.

Still wrestling with the intricate problem, Keith entered the dining-room, and weaved his way, as usual, through the miscellaneous crowd, toward the more exclusive tables at the rear. A woman sat alone at one of these, her back towrd the door. His first thought was that it must be Hope, and he advanced toward her, his heart throbbing. She glanced up, a slight frown wrinkling her forehead, and he bowed, recognizing Christie Maclaire.

CHAPTER XXVI.
A CHANCE CONVERSATION.

The opportunity thus so unexpectedly afforded was not one to be wasted, and Keith accepted it with swift determination. The expression in the woman's face was scarcely one of welcome, yet his purpose was sufficiently serious to cause him to ignore this with easy confidence in himself.

"I am, indeed, most fortunate to discover you alone, Miss Maclaire," he said, avoiding her eyes by a swift glance over the table, "and evidently at a time when you are only beginning your meal. May I join you?"

She hesitated for an instant, debating with herself, and as quickly deciding on disagreeable tactics.

"I presume this is a public table, and I consequently have little choice in the matter, if you insist," she replied, her voice more civil than her words. "Still, Mr. Keith, I am not accustomed to associating with criminals."

He smiled, holding his temper in check, more than ever determined to win.

Four Different Doctors Did Her No Good.

Two Bottles of BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS Cured Her.

Bad blood is directly the cause of the face breaking out in pimples, and it is impossible to eradicate them unless you put your blood into good shape

Burdock Blood Bitters is compounded from roots, herbs, barks and berries, and is without a doubt the best remedy procurable for the purpose of driving all the blood impurities out of the system.

Mr. Geo. E. Miller, Clavering, Ont., writes:—"Last fall I was very much troubled with pimples. My face was literally covered with them. I went to four different doctors, but they could do me no good. One day a friend advised me to use Burdock Blood Bitters, so I got two bottles, and before I had taken all the first one, the pimples had nearly all disappeared, and by the time I had taken all the second one the pimples had disappeared completely, thanks to Burdock Blood Bitters. I would advise anybody who is troubled with any blood trouble to use Burdock Blood Bitters.

Listless, Backward Children

Made Bright and Active by Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills

Mr. Francis Morse, Owen Sound, Ontario.

Many a growing boy or girl is set down as unaccountably slow, stupid or lazy when it is really a question of inactive bowels, lazy liver or sluggish kidneys.

The growing child, with a hearty appetite, certainly grows long, athletic limbs and bright if the system of the body, the bowels and the kidneys, are cleared up with impurities that should be thrown off promptly.

The muddy complexion, dragging limbs and dislike for mental or physical effort show plainly that the child needs Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills to stir up the liver and kidneys and regulate the bowels. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills do this most effectively, cleansing the whole system, purifying the blood, aiding the digestion and giving plenty of life and activity. As upon the education obtained may depend the success in life of your boy or girl—see to it that the general health of the child is such that study is pleasure and not a hardship.

Made from roots and herbs by W. H. Comstock Co., Ltd., at Brockville, and sold by all dealers at 25c. a box. 5

Make Your Own Rouge.

If you are dissatisfied with the rouge you are using try making your own. A very simple way of preparing a harmless rouge is by tinting a portion of a tried and true cold cream with carmine. Be sure that only the fruit or vegetable tint is procured for tinting purposes. If a poisonous dye is used where a minute break in the skin of the face or lips is present it is liable to result disastrously, causing blood poisoning or chronic skin disease. A vegetable or fruit carmine powder worked into cold cream (not the disappearing kind) until evenly distributed and placed in a rouge box is a safe and delightful toilet adjunct and a benefit to the skin rather than an injury. By mixing equal portions of faintly pink face powder and pure rice powder a wonderfully transparent blush tint is obtained. White, as a rule, shows plainly against the skin, especially if the complexion inclines toward ivory. Pink has the equally undesirable quality of causing a natural flesh to appear almost florid, besides giving a note of artificiality to the face. By blending the two and applying the result with a piece of soft white velvet a clear, flesh tone becoming to almost every complexion is acquired.

Keep Windows Open.

Don't sleep in a closed room.

Within an hour a man consumes all the oxygen in the average room. If the windows and transoms are down and the door is shut thereafter he breathes foul poisons.

Rural communities should, by reason of natural advantages, be practically immune from the "white plague," but statistics show a greater percentage of consumptives among farmers than any other class of people.

Who isn't familiar with the deadly parlor, with its stale atmosphere, where for days at a stretch whole generations of malignant germs are permitted to incubate undisturbed. A week often passes without the admission of sunlight. As well spend an afternoon in a smoke filled tunnel as remain in such a pesthole.

Open the windows even in the rain—far better to spoil a few trumpery lace curtains and spot the carpet than jeopardize your health.

Beauty Hint For Thin Girl.

The thin girl in the morning, after a sponge bath with a thorough rub, should drink half a glassful of comfortably hot water. When appetite is still a shirt boiled egg, a piece of toast wheat bread thoroughly baked and well buttered and, a little while after, a glass of cool water, not iced, may be taken. The noonday meal should consist of a good clear beef soup, a broiled steak or roast beef, a little baked rice, a lettuce salad with olive oil dressing and some simple dessert; for supper lean or mutton boiled and good whole wheat bread well buttered. At the close of this meal a cup of hot chocolate is taken and another of hot milk on retiring.

Perfumed Toilet Articles.

Glancing over the dressing table of the woman of exquisite taste, one of the first facts to attract attention is that all these little articles of the toilet are marked by the same odor even on her perfume and scent bottles. Powder, talcum, lip rouge, cold creams, even manicuring articles all disclose the same mark, the result being like a breath of perfume from a bank of flowers. No conflicting and often cloying odors are present to destroy the single scent. Involuntarily you say, "You are fond of violets, aren't you?" or roses or lilacs or lilies or oriental perfumes, as the case may be. As you replace your toilet requisites try having them all of one fragrance.

A Practical Manicure.

A practical way of keeping the finger nails well in order is that to treat them to one or two strokes of the file every morning. First have them shaped and the cuticle trimmed by a manicurist, then be careful to preserve the shape when filing. In this way nails can be kept looking well for at least a month, and the regular allowance for manicuring will be a fourth or at least a half of the former amount.

Polish the tips slightly after the morning filing, but do not use the buffer until the nails are hot, as this causes them to become brittle.

Care of False Hair.

If neglected the most costly bought hair is soon worthless—worse, disease breeding. The puffs, switch or transformation should be brushed as carefully as the real hair and as often. The best way to do it is to put a towel on the lap or table and, spreading the piece on it, brush with a rubber backed bear bristle brush, wet one side, then the other. This removes tangles and does not tear the hair, as does a comb.

NEW MOTOR COAT.

A Stunning Paris Model of Mixed Worsted.

Glass Buttons in Style.

When an old fashion becomes a new fashion a woman is furious with herself for not having kept what she possessed. It is excessively difficult to carry out a hoarding method, for every inch of room is needed in our houses, and, with the fashions trying to rival a weather vane in a storm, we look upon each year's accumulation of things as mere junk.

Surely we can never need these again, is the usual decision that precedes the dumping of everything into the ash can. And suddenly out of a clear sky comes an announcement that the very things which were consigned to the ash can were to be returned into first fashion.

If one wants a white corduroy suit for spring then these flat glass buttons, lined with purple, would look very well with a sailor collar of purple satin and a piping of the same down the back of the sleeves at the side of the button holes.

You know the long sleeves that are coming in show a return to the trick of two summers ago which was never widely taken up and yet was so attractive. This sleeve, instead of being ornamented with buttons, had its two edges really fastened together with actual buttons made into the form of cuff links with silk cord between.

The new sleeve in taffeta and satin and poplin has its edges fastened from half way below the elbow to the wrist with these link buttons set a half inch back from the extreme edge, and then between the two edges is put an inch wide plaited frill of lace.

On a black satin frock that has been turned out recently the sleeves are managed in this way with the frill extending around the wrist. The surplice shaped blouse has a plaited frill lying against the chemisette, which is of white tulle, and the frill runs down the front fastening of the blouse, which, by the way, is similar to the fastening on the sleeves.

The skirt has a full draped tunic over an overskirt that is not two yards wide, but is opened at each side for four inches. There is a wide crossed sash of the satin which has one end pulled through the girdle at the side, then falls over and hangs to the knee, where it is finished with velvet fringe.

The New Idea of Marriage.

That marriage has the effect of humanizing the young man, of making him less fatuous and selfish, has long been known to women folk, but now, according to a recent statement made by a prominent man, by entering into wedlock a man becomes "a better social animal, losing his shyness before women, his cynicism and his want of expansiveness."

All this is helped because we have introduced friendship into marriage—one of the considerable achievements of modern times—and, instead of "domesticating the recording angel," which was what marriage formerly meant, we have succeeded in developing an amazing camaraderie between husbands and wives.

This comradeship reveals itself in a hundred details—by the way in which married persons tease each other instead of using acid endearments such as "my love," their increased toleration for each other's tastes and their sharing in each other's sports and amusements, their general reasonableness and their mutual loyalty.

The Mule.

The mule is stupid, so they say;
He has no brain with which to think,
But he can always turn away

No matter if his foolish brother
Insists that he must have another.

SEEK REVOLUTION THROUGH WORLD-WIDE STRIKE

Industrial Workers of the World, active in recent labor troubles, frankly say they are trying to get control of all industries and abolish the wage system.

"AN INJURY TO ONE IS AN INJURY TO ALL."

STAND up, Solon, Wilson, Utley and Jay) cowards without conscience of Spreckles' harem! Hide not your heads behind you! We want the world to see that they are red with the blood of our fellow workmen who were murderously assaulted upon orders transmitted through you to the pusillanimous sluggers known as the "vigilance committee."

An injury to one is an injury to all.

The blows struck upon your orders, the baby murdered by your underlings, all are felt by every member of the I. W. W. and by the entire body of revolutionary workers the world around.

We will exact full and complete reparation from your body of cowardly assassins for every blow that reaches the body of a toiler! We will have an eye for an eye; a tooth for a tooth! Nor will we forget those "higher up" in whose service you are but servile and contemptible lackeys.

Hundreds are marching upon San Diego! Thousands will march if need be! None are cowards! All are men! We will have free speech in San Diego or the grass will grow in the streets and the coyotes gather where once was the scene of our unprovoked bludgeoning.

Take warning! Schou, Wilson, Utley, Keno—take heed, members of the "vigilance committee"—your names will be spread broadcast! Reparation will be exacted! He laughs best who laughs last!

"REVOLUTION" is the watchword of the Industrial Workers of the World, the organization which has been so conspicuous in the strikes of the textile workers in Lawrence, Mass., and in Passaic, N. J., and is rioting in San Diego, Cal. What the Industrial Workers of the World want, according to their leaders, is not higher wages nor fewer hours, but absolute control of the world, industrially and politically.

The Industrial Workers of the World differ from the labor unions in that they do not believe that capital and labor have anything in common. By "capitalists" the Industrial Workers of the World mean those individuals or corporations owning the great industries and for whom other individuals work.

"There is and always will be, until we have won, a class struggle in society," said James P. Thompson, the general organizer of the Industrial Workers of the World. "Society is divided into two great classes, not according to the color of men's skins, but according to the way they make a living. One class works for the other class. These two classes confront each other on the world's stage like two vast armies, and one army must be annihilated. Each class has powers peculiar to itself. The capitalist class, for instance, has the weapon of bribery. The greatest weapon of the working class is solidarity. All the working class has to do to paralyse the world is to do nothing. When this is brought about the world will remain paralyzed until the hand of labor touches it and brings it back to life."

A Worldwide Strike.

That is what the Industrial Workers of the World intend to do in order to abolish the capitalist, or employing, class. Instead of a strike of a single craft, or even of a single industry, they hope to bring about a worldwide strike which will mean that not a wheel in a single factory of the world will turn until the strike is declared off, which will be when the Industrial Workers have come into possession of the industries.

"There can be no peace," says the preamble of the constitution of the Industrial Workers of the World, "so long as hunger and want are found among millions of working people and the few who make up the employing class have all the good things of life. The struggle must go on until we take possession of the earth and the machinery of production and abolish the wage system."

Higher wages are simply incidental to the ultimate purpose of the Industrial Workers, say the leaders. If every employer in the United States should double the wages of his laborers to-morrow the fight would still go on. It is based on class distinction, and one class must go, according to this organization. This is one of the reasons why the Industrial Workers of the World were formed in opposition to the trade unions. The unions had for their ultimate purpose a rate of wages which would allow them to live in a manner they considered comfortable, but the new organization repudiates this principle. Fair pay does not enter into the question. The workers must own the world and all its industries.

The preamble to their constitution deals with this question. It states:—

"The trade unions foster a state of affairs which allows one set of workers to be pitted against another set of workers in the same industry, thereby helping to defeat one another in wage wars. Moreover, the trade unions aid the employing class to mislead the workers into the belief that the working class have interests in common with their employers.

"Instead of the conservative motto, 'A fair day's wages for a fair day's work,' we must inscribe on our banner the revolutionary watchword, 'Abolition of the wage system!'"

When the Industrial Workers have come into possession of the world and all the industries thereof they will proceed to run things for their own benefit. The leaders do not deny this; in fact, they emphasize it. They are not striving to bring about co-operation between the two classes, nor to have things run in a manner most beneficial to all. They are striving to bring about conditions to their own interest and which will abolish the capitalist—the employer. He does not deserve to exist, they say.

Just how the Industrial Workers of the World will run the planet when they have come into possession of it is rather vague. At any rate, they will do much less work than they do now.

"I will tell you how it will be," said James P. Thompson. "All must admit that a certain amount of labor is necessary to feed, clothe, shelter and educate the inhabitants of this planet. All this labor should be done in the easiest manner possible, and every person physically capable should do his share. If he does not he should not share in the wealth of the world. Those who are now capitalists, employers, will then be obliged to work in the shops and share alike with all their fellows. It will not be necessary to seize the wealth of the world by force. An equal distribution will come about automatically.

No One Will Work.

"We will only have to work a few hours a day and only a few days a year, and there will be plenty to spare for all the children of men."

That is all there is to it. When these Arcadian conditions have been brought about no one will work, but things will go merrily on. The thing is simple. The laborers will run everything—just how, they do not tell. But that is insignificant so long as there is but little work to do and much time to play.

"Society is all wrong," said Mr. Thompson. "The whole world needs turning over. We are forming the new society within the shell of the old, and when we are strong enough we shall burst through. It does not concern us what becomes of the old. It is the historic mission of the working class to do away with capitalism. The army of production must be organized not only for the everyday struggle with the capitalists but also to carry on production when capitalism shall be overthrown. By organizing industrially we are forming the new society within the structure of the old."

Vincent St. John, general secretary-treasurer of the Industrial Workers of the World, says in a pamphlet which has been widely circulated among workers:—"In its basic principle the I. W. W. calls forth that spirit of revolt and resistance that is so necessary a part of the equipment of any organization of the workers in their struggle for independence. It recognizes the class struggle as its basic principle and declares its purpose to be the fighting of that struggle until the working class is in control of the administration of industry. In a word, the I. W. W. is a fighting organization. It commits the union to an unceasing struggle against the private ownership and control of industry.

"There is but one bargain which the I. W. W. will make with the employing class—complete surrender of all control of industry to the organized workers."

"That is revolution," said James P. Thompson. "I know it is, but revolution is our motto. Just how we will accomplish it depends largely upon circumstances. We do not advocate the use of dynamite or the throwing of brickbats. There is bound to be violence somewhere, some time. A certain amount of bloodshed, a few deaths, are unavoidably incident to all revolutionary movements. We must take what we want in the quickest, easiest way. That way depends upon our strength.

"The first great factor in the fight is the eight hour day. By making the eight hour day universal and doing less work in the eight hours than we have done in the past we will do away with the unemployed. The unemployed form the most formidable weapon in the hands of the capitalists."

One of the things which seem to trouble the Industrial Workers of the World is the power of the employer to hire whom he pleases to do his work, and to discharge the man who does not do his work properly. According to the views of this organization such a state of affairs is extremely unjust.

"Why," said James Thompson, commenting on this question, "the bosses hire just whom they please. They go into the overstocked labor market and from the workers assembled there they pick out the ones they think will suit them best. Those who do not work to suit them they discharge and replace with more capable men. This makes the bosses very independent and the workers very dependent. That is why we must get rid of the unemployed. With an eight hour day the bosses would have to hire more workers to do the necessary amount of work, and if this does not result in universal employment we will slow down on our work, doing less and less in the eight hours. Of course, we will be paid as much for eight hours as we are now paid for ten hours. Once we have the eight hour day and eliminate the unemployed it will be an easy matter to wrest the control of industries from the employers, do away with them entirely and make the industries common property.

"It is not our idea to wait for slow legislation to get the eight hour day. We intend to take it. We propose to organize, enact an eight hour day law in the union and enforce it ourselves, whether it is legal or not.

"When we get ready to enforce it we will say nothing to the employers. The workers of some one industry will simply remain at their tasks some fine day for eight hours and will then go home. Next morning the boss will be very indignant, and will say that we must either work ten hours a day or quit.

"We will say, 'All right, since you insist we will work ten hours,' but will stick at our jobs only eight hours and then go home again, despite the fact that we told the boss we would work ten hours.

"On the following day he will say, 'I thought you promised to work ten hours.'

"We will say, 'So we did promise. We worked eight hours yesterday, now we will work two to-day. That makes ten.'"

Mr. Thompson chuckled merrily as he contemplated this little piece of finesse. It was all going to work like a charm. So easy.

"How do you justify such a course?" Mr. Thompson was asked. "Do you consider that right?"

"What does that matter?" he asked. "Our idea is to take what we want when we are powerful enough. We are not bothered about right or wrong. That is what we call 'direct action,' which you hear so much about. It does not necessarily mean violence and anarchy."

Some idea of the ways of the Industrial Workers of the World may be gained from Vincent St. John's pamphlet under the heading "I. W. W. Tactics or Methods."

Mr. St. John says:—"As a revolutionary organization the Industrial Workers of the World aims to use any and all tactics that will get the results sought with the least expenditure of time and effort. The tactics used are determined solely by the power of the organization to make good in their use. The question of right and wrong does not concern us.

"No terms made with an employer are final. All peace, so long as the wage system lasts, is but an armed truce. At any favorable opportunity the struggle for more control of industry is renewed."

That is the keynote of the struggle which the Industrial Workers of the World are carrying on. Good wages do not concern them. They want no wages. They must control the world and the wage paying class is to be abolished.

"Naturally," Mr. Thompson told a newspaper reporter, "the first effort for the eight hour day will result in a strike or a lockout. In either case the result will be the same. Suppose the first strike is on a street car line. It will not be merely the motormen who will refuse to work. The conductors, linemen, switchmen, trackmen and inspectors will all quit work. If that does not bring the employers to terms, the men in the power houses, firemen, engineers, laborers, all will walk out. The way to stop a street car from running is not to use dynamite but to cut off the juice. There are bound to be a few scabs, and the companies will endeavor to employ strike breakers, but suppose they do. They will have to house and feed them.

"Suppose they put them in a hotel. Teamsters will refuse to deliver food, coal or other articles at the hotel. Waiters, cooks and other employes of the hotel will quit work. Teamsters will refuse to deliver coal at the power houses, and railroad men will refuse to haul the coal. If we have to paralyze the whole world we will do it. The works will be thoroughly picketed and every means will be employed to prevent strike breakers from going to work.

Any Means Justified.

"All we have to consider in selecting the means to our end is, are they effective? Any means would be justified. We will take what we want by direct action. And let me tell you, that by that time our reputation will be such that should food be delivered to the strike breakers they will be afraid to eat it."

Mr. Thompson would not explain just what he meant by that statement, but he repeated:—

"By that time our reputation will be such that should food be delivered to strike breakers during a strike they would be afraid to eat it."

Another weapon of the Industrial Workers of the World is "sabotage." That means that if a strike is not successful the workers will return to the shops, but once inside they will stand idly until their demands are acceded to or they are forcibly ejected from the premises. They may do a certain amount of work in a day and then stand idle for the remainder of the day.

"During a strike," said Mr. Thompson, "the works are closely picketed, and every effort made to keep the employers from getting workers into the shops. All supplies are shut off from strike-bound shops by one means or another. All shipments are confused or missent, delayed and lost if it is possible. Strike breakers are also isolated to the full extent of the power of the organization.

"Interference with our methods by the government will not be tolerated. We do not recognize the right of the government to interfere with us unless they are so powerful that they crush us. If the government does interfere we openly violate the government's orders. We will go to jail en masse if they are strong enough to put us there, and even that will cause expense to the taxpayers, who are identical with the employing class.

"In fact, we advocate the use of militant direct action to the fullest extent of our power to make good."

One of the biggest fights made by the Industrial Workers of the World was that at McKees Rocks, Pa., where 8,000 workers of the Pressed Steel Car Company quit work for eleven weeks. Strikers and their sympathizers became so violent that the Pennsylvania State Constabulary was called upon. In one of the mob attacks on the company's property a striker was killed. A committee of the strikers was appointed to meet the leader of the "American Cossacks," as the strikers termed the State police. The committee stated that for every striker killed or wounded the life of a "cossack" would be forfeited. To the best of their ability the strikers kept their word, and the next violence was attended by heavy loss of life to both sides.

In November, 1909, leaders and agitators of the Industrial Workers of the World made such inflammatory speeches in the streets and public halls of Spokane, Wash., that the authorities decided the meetings would have to be broken up in order to prevent bloodshed and violence. According to their principles, the Industrial Workers continued openly to violate the laws, and five hundred of them were locked up in the city jails. Emptying the cells of the militant English suffragettes, two hundred of the Workers went on a hunger strike, which lasted from eleven to thirteen days, and when they were forced to eat lived only on bread and water for forty-five days more.

Waging what they are pleased to call a "free speech war," the Industrial Workers of the World have been invading various cities of the Pacific coast, filling the jails and clashing constantly with the police and other authorities. The so-called fight for free speech is at present raging hotly in San Diego and in Los Angeles, Cal. The Industrial Workers of the World publications are calling for "all agitators" to march in a body on San Diego.

All tactics known to the Industrial Workers of the World have been employed by them to wring what they term "free speech" from the authorities of San Diego, but they have not yet succeeded.

Open advocacy of violence and mob rule is not tolerated by the authorities of that city, and the jails have been filled with would-be orators.

So riotous did the Industrial Workers' agitators become in San Diego that the Police and Fire departments were called out to disperse the mobs which gathered in the streets. Several persons were killed and injured. Crowds of agitators from all over the country flocked to the California city. Some went by railroad in the suggestion manner, others rode on freight cars, and still others walked. Bands of Industrial Workers paraded through the streets carrying red banners.

The citizens of San Onofre, a town in San Diego county, learned of the approach of one of these bands, and on the morning of April 4 last a vigilance committee met a hundred of the Industrial Workers of the World who attempted to enter the county, having come from Santa Ana via the freight car route. All the Workers admitted that they were anarchists, and they were obliged to kneel on the ground and kiss the American flag. After that they were divided into squads and, guarded by armed men, were marched out of the county to the tune of "The Star Spangled Banner." At the points of loaded guns the anarchists were forced to sing the words of the patriotic song as they marched.

For Higher Wages.

Recently the textile workers in the woollen and worsted mills of Passaic, Clifton, and Garfield, N. J., went on strike for shorter days and higher wages. They were organized by the Detroit branch of the Industrial Workers of the World, under the leadership of Boris Reinstein. The Detroit faction endeavored to conduct the strike in an orderly manner, avoiding all bloodshed and violence. William D. Haywood, president of the Chicago branch of the Industrial Workers of the World, and James P. Thompson, general organizer, repudiated Reinstein and both factions assert that they are separate organizations. The Industrial Workers of the World, headed by Haywood and Thompson, have no sympathy with such a strike as Reinstein conducted. Better wages are not what they want. They are after complete control of the industries.

"I will not tolerate violence," said Boris Reinstein to a newspaper reporter. "The Chicago branch, that is, the main body of the Industrial Workers of the World, always advocate violence. Haywood and Thompson wanted to use it here in Passaic. Thompson came to a meeting we held here and made a speech which sent the strikers away red hot for a fight.

"When he could not rent a building to hold another meeting Thompson declared that if he was not allowed the privilege of free speech there would be plenty of bloodshed and violence in Passaic.

"They won't stop at anything, not even dynamite."

William D. Haywood was indicted and tried for complicity in the murder in 1906 of Frank Steunenberg, onetime Governor of Idaho. Harry Orchard, who, it was alleged, confessed that he murdered Steunenberg by placing a bomb at the gate to the grounds about his home in such a manner that it would explode when the gate was opened, implicated Haywood. Vincent St. John, secretary-treasurer of the Industrial Workers of the World, was also arrested in connection with the murder of Steunenberg, but was released on a writ of habeas corpus because of default of an examination which had been set for a certain date.

James P. Thompson, general organizer of the Industrial Workers of the World, is Haywood's right hand man and was associated with Joseph J. Etter in conducting the strike of textile workers at Lawrence, Mass. During the strike Anne Lo Pizzo was shot and killed in a riot. Etter was arrested charged with being an accessory to the murder. He is being held for a hearing before the Grand Jury.

During the strike Thompson was attacked in his room in a hotel and beaten about the head with a club. He maintains that his assailants were hired by the mill owners, but the police believe that some of the strikers who did not desire to quit work attacked him.

Several sticks of dynamite were found tied to the axle of a freight car in Lawrence at the time of the strike, and a member of the Industrial Workers of the World was indicted for the act.

"We are looking forward," says James P. Thompson, "to the time when the organized proletariat will meet in their union the world over and decide how long they will work and how much of the wealth they produce they will give to the boss. Nothing short of revolution will satisfy us. The old society must go, and to the new one which will take its place the laboring class will be predominant; it will be the only class. Not until the employer class is crushed out of existence will the class struggle cease."

Beautiful Indeed Is The St. Lawrence Now

SPRING has lent to the natural attractions of this historic river, the charm of her freshness, and soft-tinted colorings. Everywhere white spires stretch above a flat, green country, dotted with the white, steep-roofed houses of Dominion habitants. Picturesque little villages straggle to the water's edge. Ancient white stone churches with their gilded crosses rising to the sky. The cool greens and blues of the glistening, snow-capped Laurentian mountains. The air is sweet and balmy. MABEL'S CHITCHAT

Dickens Party a Popular Form of Amusement Just Now.

THE CHRONIC TRUTH TELLER

Dear Elsa—If you haven't given a Dickens party, why, make the experiment, for now is the opportune moment for such an entertainment. An informal affair of this kind can be got up at a moment's notice and will afford instruction as well as amusement. All a hostess has to do is to have ready a number of slips of paper on which are written the names of Dickens' most noted and familiar characters—Little Nell, Clara Peggotty, Mr. Micawber, Uriah Heep, Sairey Gamp, the Marchioness, Dick Swiveller, Mr. Pickwick, Sam Weller, Oliver Twist, David Copperfield, Squeers, Little Dorrit, Emily, etc.

These are pinned one at a time on the backs of the guests, who try to find out whom they are representing by asking questions of the other guests, whose only information can be the monosyllable "Yes" or "No." As quickly as the names pinned on the backs are guessed they are removed and pinned on the coat lapel or waist of the players, the one having the largest number being awarded a prize. This may be a copy of Dickens' works or his picture.

Another good game is a Dickens story. This is also a guessing contest, the players being seated and supplied with pencils. To each one is given a copy (it should be typewritten) of the following story:

A party of tourists visited Charles Dickens' home at Gadshill, England. They were led by one who called himself —— (The Commercial Traveler), and they were much amused when —— (The Strange Gentleman) said his name was —— (Oliver Twist). They approached the house with —— (Great Expectations), and they were not disappointed, for it was not a —— (Bleak House) by any means.

(Our Mutual Friend), said the leader, was a home lover and liked to hear —— (The Cricket on the Hearth). His domicile is to us more than an —— (Old Curiosity Shop). But we looked in vain for —— (Master Humphrey's Clock), which should be on the stairs, and for the —— (Pictures From Italy) which he drew.

The tourists were reminded of the —— (Hard Times) which Dickens suffered when facing —— (The Battle of Life) and of the strenuous day when he —— (Hunted Down) similar news items. They saw none of —— (The Village Coquettes) with whom he may have flirted.

They sang a —— (Christmas Carol) as they left, delighted by their visit, though they had found no clew to —— (The Mystery of Edwin Drood). Any other better story you might evolve could be used. I merely respectfully submit this one, which I perpetrated successfully on my patient guests at a recent Dickens party given for the benefit of our free Kindergarten Alumni association.

Before beginning to have this chat with you I had a terrible dose administered by that insidious of social pests—the chronic truth teller. You know her, dear, don't you—the creature who tries to rob us of our belief in ourselves and in our dearest friends? She usually begins, this pest, by protesting to be your best friend and then tells you things you never want to know "for your own good." The tonic is a little bitter, she declares, but "it will brace you up."

My life really began to assume, for the time being, a different aspect under the guidance of this "friend of mine," and when she left I felt like quarrelling with Dick and suspected the motives of every one I knew.

The next stage of my discomfort was when I began to doubt myself, my looks and my cleverness (?). This latter was an awful blow. The chronic truth teller, it seems to me, is like the moth in fur—her progress is gradual and hard to detect until everything falls to pieces.

When this chronic truth teller takes her departure you feel as limp as a rag. You realize that your dress, which you have no immediate prospect of renewing, is an utter failure and your complexion possibly as red as a beet. To look pretty you must feel happy, and this creature makes you perfectly miserable. Such are the results of plain speaking. In the course of my experience I have found that the woman who speaks so boastfully of truth telling is usually an insidious liar. She makes truth an excuse for rodeness and spite and revels in her cruel power of hurting people's feelings and lowering their pride.

A little style talk is relished by the wisest of women (yourself, for instance) every now and then, so, knowing this, I am going to tell you about the new skirt you must get to wear with your white lingerie shirt waists in the summer. It's of white satin. You won't get one, I hear you say. Well, that was my idea when the white satin skirt suggestion was made to me, but it is only when describing one that there seems to be something not quite correct about the fashion. I grant you that a white satin skirt in the morning with a white wash blouse does not sound exactly well, but it looks well, and that is all one wants. This white satin separate skirt, by the way, is not made of the charmeuse or messaline variety, but the quality used in the black satin tailored suits of last fall. The skirt is cut in two pieces. With a straight seam down each side which is outlined with a cord of the satin. Two hooks and eyes are placed under the cord at the left side. The skirt is cut off at the ankle and finished with a three inch ruffle of lace.

These skirts were worn last summer at Trouville, the fashionable French watering place. The season in Europe, you will remember, was unusually hot, and serge skirts proved themselves too warm, so an enterprising dressmaker and a smart Frenchwoman got together and invented the white satin separate skirt. The English Frenchwomen wore the skirt, and the designer published it in the morning of [illegible] who wanted down as a [illegible] that is what it is to be [illegible].

With [illegible] hint I'll let you off [illegible] parlor party from

FILING SYSTEMS AT HOME.

They Are as Useful in Household as in Office Management.

Business women long ago discovered the value of files and card catalogues in the office. Few women, however, whose lives are taken up with household management realize their convenience and advantage in a home. Once they are employed they surely will never be abandoned. There are many uses to which they may be put.

The little card index boxes are obtainable at every stationer's and are now made especially for the filing of recipes. Instead of the alphabetical division, these have cards labeled "Soup," "Fish," "Meats," "Breads," and a package of blank cards is usually supplied on which to copy one's favorite concoctions. In most of the boxes the cards are perforated in the middle of the top, and a small hook is to be found in the bottom of the box. This hook, attached to a convenient shelf over the work table, at a level with one's eyes, enables one to refer readily to the recipe without any danger of its becoming soiled.

Bills and receipts should be kept in collapsible or "bellows" files, indexed alphabetically for convenience. These files are inexpensive, compact, hold a great deal and are of real help to the systematic woman, as they allow one to find a desired paper instantly without going through all the pigeonholes of a desk.

Even personal letters may be kept in this way, if a person is very systematic, to be destroyed when answered. Manuscripts, clippings, autographs and memoranda are thus tidily kept in order, doing away with the hopeless confusion of the usual desk drawer and being always ready at hand.

Let the Buyer Beware

FOR centuries the principle of "Let the Buyer Beware"—"Caveat Emptor"—ruled the world of business. In fact, it was not a principle—but rather a lack of principle—yet it held sway everywhere until a decade or two ago.

When a merchant quoted a price, he made it high enough to stand almost unlimited whittling, and yet be profitable—to him. When he spoke of quality, his fingers were crossed, and you were not expected to believe him—unless you wanted to very badly.

Buying was a haggle—unless you were a hardened haggler you came out second best in every deal. "Caveat Emptor"—it was up to you. There was no confidence between buyer and seller.

Business—once an aggregation of deals—has become the living embodiment of ideals.

Advertising [illegible]. Advertising creates confidence in the buyer and proves the seller's confidence in his wares. Confidence has eliminated the haggle.

You see business confidence is a good deal like capital, in that it accumulates like savings. The grocery-consumer's confidence in a town will be on deposit chiefly with a few capable square grocers; and dry-goods confidence, jewelry confidence, and so forth, are massed in the same way.

The retail merchant doesn't lock this confidence in his safe. He deposits it in turn with the wholesaler, who passes it on to the manufacturer. And the manufacturer, to make the circle complete, must give confidence to the consumer.

The manufacturer with goods to sell must draw upon all these reserves of confidence. He must demonstrate his own fairness in dealing, his integrity in maintaining quality, his willingness to put principle before profit.

Advertising is the means through which the manufacturer makes this demonstration to you.

Advertising has given personality to commodities, so that you now recognize your "friends" among soap, tea, or collars, as readily as you recognize your human acquaintances.

Advertising fathered the "money back" principle, and has made buying a pleasure instead of a duel of wits.

Advertising has spread the one-price policy—erased "Caveat Emptor" from the language of business, and made buying safe to entrust to a child.

Advice regarding your advertising problems is available through any recognized Canadian advertising agency, or through the Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Room 503 Lumsden Bldg., Toronto. Enquiry involves no obligation on your part—write if interested.

Romford (Essex) Urban District Council have decided to make a charge of one halfpenny to schoolchildren for admittance to the public baths.

Villagers Benefit by Golf

For a year's use of the links, the Royal West Norfolk Golf Club has contributed $340 to the village of Brancaster. The money has been divided in equal proportions among the residents of twelve months' standing

Lowther Memorial Window

An application has been made by the Speaker of the House of Commons to the Norwich Consistory Court for a faculty to place in the parish church of Campsea Ash a stained glass window to the memory of his father.

Fast Motoring to Church

Mr. Richard Reader Harris, of North Side, Clapham Common, was fined $25 and costs at Feltham for driving a motor-car at thirty-five miles an hour on the Hampton Court road on his way to church.

Selling an Orange on Sunday

For selling an egg and an orange to a child on Sunday, Jane Ormston was, at Berwick, fined $3.25 and costs, or seven days in prison. The Chief Constable said Sunday trading was being put down in the town, and there had been complaints about the accused.

First Lord in Submarine

Mr. Winston Churchill went out with a flotilla of submarines from Portsmouth Harbor and witnessed some interesting evolutions. He made the trip in a submarine of the C class. It is understood the evolutions carried out were similar to those in progress when the A3 was wrecked.

Ancient Pews Reinstated

The ancient pews in Great Witchingham Church, Norfolk, which had been removed in order to be replaced by chairs, and after being kept in the churchyard for some months were sold and converted into pig-sties, cart-sheds, and chicken sheds, have been recovered on the suggestion of the Chancellor, who has, in consequence, absolved the vicar (the Rev. Percy Gethen) from censure.

Lead Poisoning Victim

Kidney disease, brought about by lead poisoning, was stated at an inquest to have led to the death of John Pender, a glass cutter, of Manchester. He had been employed at the glass works of Messrs. Burtles and Tate, Oldham road, and had to use lead powder for the purpose of polishing glass.

Remains of a Saint

An interesting function took place at Caerwent, Wales, when the supposed remains of St. Tathan were re-interred in the renovated south aisle of the parish church. The stone cist containing the remains was discovered last year near the east gate of Caerwent, the traditional site of the monastery erected by St. Tathan in the sixth century on land given for the purpose by Caradoc ap Yayr.

Strange Find

An extraordinary find was made in the front garden of a leading citizen of Buckie, Scotland. Deposited in the garden was a coffin lid, 6 feet long, and of proportionate breadth. The lid was a new one, covered with black cloth, and had all the furnishings except a name plate, and the screws were inserted ready for screwing down. Investigations at the various undertakers' premises in the town revealed that such an article had not been abstracted from their stock.

Forgetful Passengers

A sale in Glasgow of articles left by passengers in the corporation tramcars included 448 umbrellas, 142 walking-sticks, 702 pairs of gloves, 200 ladies' handbags, 550 purses, 100 penknives, and 180 pairs of spectacles. There were also a number of tobacco pouches and pipes, travelling bags, tools, golf clubs, gold and silver watches, snuff-boxes, razors, books, football outfits, and fishing rods, while other articles auctioned included a violin and case, a music stand, a set of drum-sticks, and a typewriter case.

Romantic American Girl's Message

Some time ago a bottle was washed up at Swansea, Wales, and on being broken it was found that it contained a letter, in verse, to the finder, whom the writer invited to correspond. It was signed "Mac." A local gentleman complied, and has now been the recipient of a letter signed, to his surprise, "Mac." It is from Mae B. Mich, a young girl of Brooklyn, N. Y., and she says she is sorry the writing was so blurred, as to appear "Mac." She adds: "I am a bashful young miss, instead of 'Mr. Mac.'" One day in the month of August, 1911, she explains, upon learning of a friend making her annual trip abroad, it occurred to her and another girl to have an adventure across the sea. Thereupon they immediately secured bottles in which to enclose their plans, which their friend on Aug. 26, as the Campania neared the banks of Newfoundland, threw into the sea.

"Canada's Finest Sugar At Its Best."

"It Certainly Is A Treat To Get Sugar Put Up This Way"

As you know, Redpath Extra Granulated Sugar is refined under conditions of superlative cleanliness. Every precaution is taken to ensure absolute purity. This new 5-Pound Sealed Carton preserves that purity—brings the sugar to you just as it left the refinery, untouched by human hands.

Redpath Extra Granulated Sugar

In the Carton you are sure of getting five pounds full weight of genuine Redpath Sugar, which for over half a century has been acknowledged as Canada's best. Besides, you get a handy box in which to keep it.

If you prefer to buy a considerable quantity at a time, take a case of 24 Five-Pound Cartons. The case takes up little room, and the packages are so convenient in the pantry. Of course your Grocer will still sell you Redpath Extra Granulated in barrels or in 20 or 100 pound bags if you wish. Buy it in original packages and be sure you get the genuine Redpath.

CATCHING TSETSE FLIES

Novel Method of Exterminating the Winged Scourge of Africa

An interesting experiment has been tried on an African estate with a view to diminishing the ravages of the tsetse fly. A number of Kaffirs were sent out clad in thin calico. This was thickly coated with birdlime. Calico suits similarly covered were made for donkeys. The Kaffir experiment was highly satisfactory. The natives were paid on results of so much per hundred tsetse flies caught. On the estate a bag of seventeen thousand flies was made by a little band of Kaffirs in the course of a single day. The experiment with donkeys did not turn out so well, although the number of tsetse flies caught was considerable. It is thought that the quality of the birdlime was hardly as good as it might have been. With the material at hand it had not been possible to make a lime which would withstand the fierce heat. No doubt this defect will be remedied, and a large extension of the experiment ought to have the effect of diminishing, if it does not exterminate, the insect which has hitherto formed an insurmountable barrier to civilising progress.

TURKISH COQUETTES IN PARIS GOWNS

Ladies of the Harem too Quick-witted for Mahomet and the Koran

The new woman in Constantinople is a charming illustration of feminine coquetry, adhering to the traditions of ages, and yet turning these inside out. Emancipation from the thraldom of the harem seclusion did not free the Turkish woman from the rigorous rules of the Koran as to costume, but it took the younger woman of the city on the Bosphorous only a few months to devise ways and means of flouting the spirit while strictly obeying the letter of the law of Mahomet.

The Koran commands that the mantle worn by women must envelop them from head to feet, and that their faces must always be covered by the veil. In obedience to this religious regulation the Turkish woman on the street has always looked like a sack full of moving mystery. Her face was invisible, concealed from the gaze of men by a veil so thick that none could tell whether she were old or young, beautiful or ugly. All one could see through it was the suggestion of the flash of eyes. This was as Mahomet intended that it should be. He desired that a woman's charms be seen only by her husband.

But coquetry cannot be banished; not even by the Koran. Beautiful Turkish girls saw their Parisian and Viennese sisters, noticed how much more graceful were the costumes worn by these, and sighed for the opportunity to imitate them. The revolution gave them this opportunity. They now ventured to show themselves in the streets. Fashion papers did the rest.

The girls had no idea of disobeying the Koran, but their wit was keen enough instantly to adapt their traditional costume to the latest modes. The Koran prescribed a veil, but said nothing about thickness; it ordained that the mantle be all-enveloping, but said nothing about its cut. The gauziest and most transparent of veils were quickly substituted for the thick opaque petche, veils that cannot be distinguished from those worn by the girls of Paris or London. The ancient "tcharchaf" in the hands of a Parisian dressmaker was transformed into a smart little elbow cape and a sheath skirt, as indiscreet in its tendency to give away the secrets of the form it enveloped as that of the most up-to-date girl of any other nation. The Koran says nothing about muffs or shoes or gloves, so the latest creations of the most fashionable modistes of the world have been superimposed upon the modified traditional garb.

To-day in the streets of Stamboul and Pera, Turkish girls may be seen who would pass as smartly gowned in the Champs Elysees or in Hyde Park.

INSANE FATHER'S ACT

Attempted to Hang His Daughter From an Upper Window

An amazing scene was witnessed in Nottingham, where a man attempted to hang his little daughter before the eyes of his neighbors. At the end of Stretton Street is a house which stands by itself, occupied by Thomas Spowage, formerly a lamplighter in the city, who for some time had been under medical attendance. The man sent his wife for some brandy, and then repaired to the top bedroom. A minute or two afterwards Spowage was seen at the window slipping a noose over his ten-year-old daughter's head, and suddenly he dropped the child down the wall. There were several people about at the time, who were horror-stricken, for it could be seen that the clothesline was fastened round her neck and the other end fastened to a heavy plank inside the room. A man named Ellis Ritsky, who was in the yard below at the time, raced up the steps to the front door of the house, but found it locked on the inside.

In the meantime screams of frightened women had attracted a great crowd of neighbors, but when an attempt was made from below to reach the girl, the father pulled her up beyond their reach. A brewer named Fenn, eventually removed the girl from her perilous position by climbing on to the shoulders of other men. The child's condition at first gave rise to anxiety, as her face and neck were discolored, but she was speedily brought around.

Spowage was arrested and charged with attempted murder.

PRINCE COLLECTS BUTTONS

His Most Precious One is From Lord Nelson's Coat

Prince Henry, the third son of the King and Queen, who is just twelve, has a most interesting collection of buttons. Most of these were gathered for him by the Prince of Wales when he was serving as a cadet in the Navy, and include buttons worn by Lord Charles Beresford, Lord Fisher, and, in fact, almost every distinguished admiral of the past and present. The one which the young Prince values most of all is from the uniform Lord Nelson was wearing when he was killed. Their Majesties have always encouraged their children in making "collections," and have never failed to endeavor to acquire for them some special specimen.

A Venerable Ruin

Great improvements have been effected at Kilcrea Abbey. Under the supervision of the Board of Works the rubbish which disfigured the beauty of the building has been removed; the walls have been repaired in a manner which has effectively secured them against further dilapidation; while a little judicious restoration at various points, without detracting from the venerable character of the ruin, serves to show what it must have been in the days of its splendor. A fund has just been opened to provide a suitable entrance.

TOOK DOLLY TO COURT

Golden-Haired Mite of Four Charged With Begging

Pretty but pathetic was a scene enacted in London Guildhall Justice Room. The gaoler called "Doris Martin," and in tripped a pretty little four-year-old, rosy-cheeked maiden, with golden locks peeping beneath a tight-fitting Dutch bonnet. The charge against her was that of "being conberned with her mother in placing themselves in the City for the purpose of gathering alms." While the industrial schools officer was supporting the charge with his evidence the little chick was holding up her dolly for the inspection of the magistrate, the smiling clerks, and the gaoler. "Ain't it a booty, gentlemen?" and "I've dot home money, too," were her remarks as she toddled round, as if in her playground. She walked smilingly up to the inspector's desk and offered him her dolly to kiss. Coming next to the reporters' box she tendered her package of coppers with a remark, "I'se not greedy; have one." In the end the school official said if a remand were granted a good school might be found for the pretty little mite, and he suggested the Princess Mary Home. She was beckoned out of the court and kissed her hand to the magistrate, who answered, "Good-bye, my dear." She left happily with her mother, dolly and an increased package of coppers in charge of a smiling constable.

LAYING MUCH STEEL

Active Railway Construction Proceeding on the New Transcontinental

More steel is being laid by the new Transcontinental Railway east and west of Cochrane at the present time than the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario can claim on its main line, according to Ben Hughes, a Toronto writer who has been going over the ground. It is futile to expect the new Transcontinental to handle any of the wheat crop eastward of Winnipeg before 1913, when the people of the old Country will probably get some of their number 1 hard via Cochrane and North Bay; and the efforts of the Commission are chiefly devoted at the present time to getting this wheat tunnel open. West of Lake Superior Junction to Winnipeg, trains are running now and an improved service will be commenced on June 1st. The Transcontinental for hundreds of miles west of Cochrane runs through the finest of clay soil and practically every lot that has been thrown open for settlement along the railroad has been taken up. Both silver and quicksilver have been reported at the Ground Hog river. Apart from this, the opening up of the railway has not so far revealed any new mineral field but this is not surprising since the overburden is so heavy and the prospecting very superficial. To feed the new line with coal and to supply it with steel from Sault Ste. Marie, the Algoma Central has already commenced to build 200 miles of road north from Hearst, a growing settlement 130 miles west of Cochrane, to connect with Michipocoten and the boats to Sault Ste. Marie. The same railroad also has a charter to build through to James Bay, but it does not seem probable that for many years to come it will care to exercise that right and privilege.

Money Being Spent on Them Formerly Went for Drink Says Preacher

A Glasgow minister, the Rev. J. H. Miller, who studies the people at close range, has been discussing some of the local amusements, and he said, among other things, that the drink bill had gone down since the introduction of moving pictures. The cinematograph entertainment has certainly tremendous popularity, which seems likely to be maintained. The sensational and comic elements are now in danger of being worn threadbare, and programmes, Mr. Miller contends, need reinforcement by more topical, educational and geographical subjects. At the same time the technical work of producing films tends steadily to improve, and it becomes more evident that only a beginning has been made with the possibilities of the moving picture. The constituency is as wide as the subjects, and classes are being tapped who rarely entered a place of entertainment.

Despair and Despondency

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves if long continued.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism.

It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing to urge upon you as "just as good." It is non-secret, non-alcoholic and has a record of forty years of cures. Ask Your Neighbors. They probably know of some of its many cures.

If you want a book that tells all about women's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to date edition, in paper covers. PENALTY SERVED FOR 100 YEARS

British Regiment Still Obeying an Order Issued by Duke of Wellington in Spain

The Twelth Royal Lancers, now stationed at Potchefstroom, South Africa, are looking forward to the end of a hundred years' punishment inflicted on them in 1812. In that year, when the war was in progress in Spain, the Lancers broke into a monastery and misbehaved themselves. When the Duke of Wellington heard of this he paraded the regiment and sentenced it to a hundred years' penalty. This penalty is still carried out in Potchefstroom to-day. It takes the form of band-playing. Every night at 10 o'clock for a hundred years, so ran the Duke's order, the band must parade and play five hymns as a punishment. These are the Spanish National Anthem, the Russian National Anthem, the Cooper Hymn, the Prince of Wales' Hymn, and the English National Anthem. Formerly each man in the regiment was required to stand to attention beside his bed when the penal hymns began, but this has now been stopped. Wellington was himself once a captain in the regiment.

IRISH HOMESPUNS

Queen Victoria Responsible for the Present Day Demand for Them

More than a dozen years ago the spinning wheels and looms of Donegal and Connemara, Ireland, had ceased to hum. But to-day they have revived, for the kings and queens of Europe have decided that the peasants of these districts on the north and west of Ireland are fittest to manufacture court attire and the weavers are busy reaping a golden harvest.

The rejuvenation of these looms came in 1899 when Queen Victoria ordered a large quantity of Irish home made woolens. This immediately created an outside interest in the goods and a few weeks sufficed to set all the idle looms in motion. Orders are to-day being received from every city in Europe and numerous cities of this country. Under this wave of fashion the Irish peasants are prospering. The market for their goods, created by the order of England's late Queen, claims every yard they manufacture, so that while royalty flaunts homespuns the natives are content with the cheaper products of the mills.

For hundreds of years the peasants of Ireland clothed themselves in garments of their own manufacture. Less than fifty years ago no wedding was complete without a spinning wheel heading the list of presents from the parents of the bride. Machinery, however, was introduced and the old spinning wheels and looms were rapidly becoming things of the past. Had Queen Victoria delayed placing her royal order the hum of the spinning wheel and the rattle of the loom would not be heard. When, however, the order came, old wheels were dusted up and renovated; fingers that had almost forgotten the duties required of them were quickened again by practice and young hands were rapidly trained.

Donegal is the centre of the present activity in homespun circles and the cottages along the mountainsides are always filled with busy weavers. Members of the family spin and weave during the winter months. When the days lengthen and the sun grows more genial, work on the little garden outside is begun. This necessitates a decrease in weaving. Then follows the merry haymaking season, and no matter how much royalty may long for new homespuns, these folk take their time and enjoy life.

THUMB PRINTS NOT NEW

They Seem to Have Been Used in China Centuries Ago

The general public has supposed that the thumb print system is something new that scientists have devised for purposes of identification. Such, however, seems not to be the case, says Popular Mechanics. Investigation has revealed the fact that the system originated with the Chinese.

For hundreds, perhaps thousands, of years the merchants of China have used impressions of their thumbs in lieu of signatures. To this day in the interior of China the thumb print is used on legal documents, especially wills, in place of the written name.

The use of finger prints was transferred from China to India, where the British adopted the system as a means of identifying the native troops. From that the custom became general in the British military service, not only in India, but throughout the United Kingdom.

It was introduced in the police department of Great Britain by army officers, who returned from foreign service to take positions in the police headquarters. Its use has become universal in the British Empire—so much so that every man or woman who has ever been in the custody of the police has his finger prints on file in the department. The finger print records of Scotland Yard are the most complete of any in the world.

CASCARETS WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

Salts, Calomel and Cathartic Pills Are Violent—They Act on Bowels as Pepper Acts in Nostrils

Take a Cascaret to-night and thoroughly cleanse your Liver, Stomach and Bowels, and you will surely feel great by morning. You men and women who have headache, coated tongue, can't sleep, are bilious with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have headache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

Remember, a Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning. A 10-cent box from your druggist means a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children.

TOLL OF THE ALPS

Great Piles of Human Skulls in an Under-ground Chamber

Up on the Simplon Pass, 6,500 feet high, is the highest cemetery in the world. There may be seen something of the toll of human life exacted by the Alps from the travellers and mountaineers who have braved the passes for pleasure or necessity.

At that point is a hospice, run by a brotherhood of kindly monks, whose business it has been to help and offer hospitality to the traveller in distress. For a hundred years they and their forerunners have carried on their work of charity.

Often during that century has a body been brought to the hospice, after a storm or an avalanche has swept the mountain route, too late for human aid. These additions to the toll of the Alps have been laid reverently one by one by the monks in their cemetery, an under-ground chamber in the side of the Simplon, where, under the influence of the rarefied air, the bodies have slowly dried up, until nothing but the bones remain.

These skeletons have been piled one above the other, probably the most impressive monument of death in the world. Among these myriad skulls are hundreds that belonged to Napoleon's soldiers who fell to King Frost while crossing the Alps. For it was Napoleon who built the road over the Simplon to aid his ambitious schemes. To this day the cemetery is maintained and cared for with scrupulous zeal, but few living travellers are admitted to view it.

FEROCIOUS BROWN RATS

They Came Originally From China and Drove Black Brethern Out

There are 130 different species of rats and mice, none of which are native of Great Britain. The black rat invaded Europe, probably from India, in the thirteenth century, and drove out the indigenous rats. It was one of the earliest immigrants to America, probably going on some of the first ships—perhaps even with Columbus.

By the eighteenth century the black rat was the undisputed master of the vaults, the granaries and the cellars of Europe. But out of Western China suddenly appeared a horde of a new species, the brown rat. Crossing mountains and swimming rivers, they arrived at Hanover in vast numbers about the year 1728, whence the species is sometimes known as the "Hanoverian Rat." Browning immortalised the rats of Hanover in the "Pied Piper of Hamelin."

Within less than two years after its first appearance in eastern Poland, the brown rat had reached England. Cunning and bloodthirsty, it gave short shrift to the unfortunate black rat wherever the two came into contact. As a result the latter species was all but exterminated in most parts of Europe. To-day black rats are almost unknown in England.

St. Kitt's Carries Bylaw.

St. Catharines, May 10.—By a majority of about 900 votes the ratepayers yesterday accepted the bylaw to bonus a plant to be erected by the Canadian Warren Axe and Tool Co., at the corner of Ontario and Carlston streets. The company is to be given a site free by the city. It covers four acres of land, which cost the city $4,000. It will also be given free water up to $200 yearly, and a fixed assessment of $5,000 for ten years. The company agrees to erect buildings costing $40,000, and to pay annually $20,000 to employes and operatives.

On June 5 the ratepayers will vote on a bylaw to grant a fixed assessment of $6,000 to the Ree Motor Car Co., which agrees to expend $100,000 on new buildings.

Louisiana Flood.

New Orleans, May 10.—Other than the rescue of marooned persons in the overflowed sections and the closing of an incipient crevasse at Illyria, near the mouth of the Mississippi River, the Louisiana flood situation yesterday was without incident. Workmen, in decreased numbers, were engaged at nearly all doubtful places between Natchez and New Orleans, taking advantage of the fair weather, in strengthening the embankments.

Rescuers, working near Lettsworth, have about completed their work and turned their attention to places more distant from the river. Water from the Terras crevasse rose three inches at Morgan yesterday. Railroads in that section are paralyzed by the washouts.

Almost a Catastrophe.

New York, May 10.—Robert J. Collier, the publisher, who is also president of the Aero Club of America, had a narrow escape from drowning yesterday as he went with Walter Brookins, the aviator, to convey to Rear Admiral Hugo Osterhaus an invitation to a luncheon of the Aero Club.

The crew of the warship and thousands of people gathered along Riverside Drive feared another catastrophe when the engine stopped suddenly, but Messrs. Collier and Brookins managed to use the planes so effectively in their 600-foot glide to the river that they escaped with a drenching.

Insurance Manager Dead.

Waterloo, Ont., May 10.—W. H. Riddell, assistant manager of the Mutual Life Assurance Co., died yesterday morning from apoplexy, after a few hours' illness.

He was born in Sparta, York County, August 18, 1837, taught school in the counties of Grey and Bruce, and in the '70's was in newspaper work in Toronto, becoming in 1876, joint owner and manager of The Toronto Tribune. He joined the staff of the Mutual Life in 1882 as secretary.

School Commissioner Resigns.

Montreal, May 10.—The members of the Protestant Board of School Commissioners were surprised at yesterday's meeting when Rev. Dr. James Barclay tendered his resignation as chairman of the board.

Dr. Barclay stated he was leaving Montreal on June 14, for Scotland, and would be absent all summer.

It was finally decided not to accept the resignation until a full meeting of the board on June 10.

Will Extradite McNamara.

New York, May 10.—Judge Hand in the U. S. District Court yesterday dismissed a writ of habeas corpus obtained by counsel for John McNamara, who recently was held by U. S. Commissioner Shields for extradition to New Westminster, B.C., on a charge of burglary. The complainant against McNamara was Chas. Fox, counsel for the British Government.

To Investigate "Black Peril."

Cape Town, South Africa, May 10.—The color question was brought prominently to the front by the promise of the Premier, Gen. Louis Botha, made in Parliament yesterday afternoon, to appoint a commission to enquire into the "black peril" problem.

The question has been increasingly attracting attention in South Africa in consequence of the frequent assaults made upon white women.

Accused of Assault.

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 9.—William Shaver, aged eighteen, of St. Catharines, was arrested here yesterday for assaulting twelve-year-old Mildred Green, a Montrose farmer's daughter. He was remanded to jail for eight days.

Robert Sprott, aged 28, was last week sentenced to six months in the Central for a similar offence against the girl.

White Star Admits Liability.

London, May 10.—The first compensation claim in connection with the Titanic disaster was made at Liverpool by a bedroom steward's widow in behalf of herself and five children. The company admitted liability yesterday and paid $1,500 into court, the maximum amount for which the company was liable.

Mexicans Hard at It.

Rebel Front, near Bermejillo, Mex., May 10.—Skirmishing between the vanguard of Gen. Orosco's army and the federals under Gen. Huerta raged for hours yesterday through a storm of wind and dust on the desert plains in front of Torreon, the objective point of the rebels.

Operating from Escalon as a base, where Gen. Orozco and his staff are stationed, the Liberal forces continued to tighten their cordon around the heavily garrisoned and fortified federal outposts at Bermejillo and Mapimie, both less than twenty miles Torreon.

Though there was much skirmishing, no battle had been fought up to five o'clock last night, the federals refusing to be drawn from their strong positions. Notwithstanding the intense heat the men in the field are in good condition.

Tribesmen in Revolt.

Casablanca, Morocco, May 10.—The tribesmen in the suburbs of Marakesh, one of the three capitals of Morocco, have broken out in revolt. The Calif was assassinated and the tribesmen then pillaged the residences of the officials.

Doan's Kidney Pills

Are the Best Remedy In The World FOR BACKACHE.

Many people fail to understand the significance of a lame, weak, sore or aching back.

You overtax the kidneys—give them more work than they can possibly do—then they cry out in protest through the pain in the back.

Backache is simply kidneyache and the best remedy in the world for backache and all kidney troubles is Doan's Kidney Pills.

We have thousands of testimonials from all quarters of the globe to prove this. Here is one from a party who used them in England, but who is now a resident of Canada.

Mr. P. R. Glanville, Wycliffe, B.C., writes:—"When living in the 'Old Country,' three years ago, I suffered severely from pains in the back, and had to give up work. The pain was so bad that when I stooped down to pick anything up, I felt my back must break. I tried all sorts of remedies and several doctors, but all to no purpose. One day I read of Doan's Kidney Pills, and thought I might as well try them, and to my surprise, before I was half through one box the backache had entirely disappeared, and it has not caused me any trouble since. I always keep "Doan's" in the house and shall always recommend them to all sufferers."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

INQUEST OPENED ON BODY OF THE LATE JAMES PETERS

Jury Empanelled and Post Mortem Ordered—No Evidence Taken

DETECTIVE BOYD PRESENT

An inquest was opened by Coroner Greer in Comstocks' undertaking establishment last evening to enquire into the circumstances surrounding the death of the late James Peters who, it is alleged, met death by drowning in the Otonabee river on the evening of May 1st.

Will Hold an Autopsy.

The jury were duly sworn in, and after viewing the corpse adjourned to meet in the City Council chamber on the evening of May 17th at 8 o'clock.

Dr. Eastwood, assisted by Dr. Young, conducted a post-mortem this morning at 9.30 o'clock and will present their report at the inquest one week from to-night.

County Crown Attorney Wood and Provincial Detective Boyd were present in the interests of the Crown. Detective Boyd, who is conducting the investigation in connection with the case, made no statement concerning his presence here.

Circumstances of the Case.

The late James Peters, who is the assistant fisheries inspector, was out in a boat inspecting the fishing a short distance this side of Hales' Bridge, accompanied by Mr. Robert Thorndyke. While proceeding along Baxter's Creek, the boat upset and precipitated both the occupants into the river. Messrs Orme and Fred Stewart, of Otonabee, who were in the vicinity of the accident at the time, rushed to their assistance. With difficulty, both were hauled into the boat, but Mr. Peters was already dead Body Was Exhumed.

A singular circumstance of the fatality, was that this spot in the creek is only about four feet deep. Peters' dog, who was in the boat, was also drowned. The remains were interred in Little Lake cemetery on Saturday last, but were exhumed to-day for the purpose of having an autopsy conducted upon the corpse.

The body was in an excellent state of preservation, and beyond being somewhat water-soaked, as the result of the grave in which it was interred, being inundated with water, it presented a natural appearance.

Golf Club Has 35 New Members

Course is in Splendid Condition and Members Are Enthusiastic

The course at the Golf and Country Club never appeared to better advantage than at present, with the long stretches of inviting green and the temperate sun of the present May days. At the same time, the members have seldom shown the enthusiasm that is manifested with the opening of this season and the addition of 35 new members, the summer of 1912 should be one of the most successful in the history of the club. The playing members have begun the game earlier than ever this season, an evidence of the new interest that has been aroused in the game in Peterborough which should thrive on the local course. Apart from the enjoyment of the game, its invigorating and healthful results are recognized everywhere. In this respect the course at the Country Club offers all the natural inducements that make golf not only the splendid game it is, but a most beneficial exercise.

CHANCE FOR HUGHES

Former Governor of New York May be a Compromise Candidate for the Republican Nomination

SOMETHING TO BE DONE

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, N.Y., MAY 10.—Will Justice Charles E. Hughes, formerly Governor of New York State, slip through the rift in the Republican party, made by the fight between Roosevelt and Taft, be made compromise candidate for the Presidency of the United States. To-day that seems possible, even probable. There was a meeting last night of the prominent party managers here to discuss the situationn. It was agreed something had to be done, and done immediately, and that nobody could weld the party together better than Chas. E. Hughes. Active work has begun to secure his candidature.

WOMEN SQUABBLE OVER SEATS AT TABLE

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ONT., MAY 10.—The dispute in regard to which ladies shall sit at the table with the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, when they visit here on May 20, waxes warmer than ever.

Many of the women who wished to be present on that occasion, are holding an indignation meeting to-day.

It is officially announced that the only women who will be at the table are Lady Gibson, Mrs. Adam Beck, Mrs. Graham wife of the Mayor, Mrs. H. A. Boomer, representing the National Council of Women. This decision will be final, notwithstanding any efforts women may make to change it.

Famine In "Dutch" Sets

A famine in "Dutch sets" is about to be precipitated upon this city. The situation has become so acute that many of the dealers in the garden commodity have raised the price from fifteen to twenty cents per quart. Some of the merchants disposed of their supplies at two quarts for a quarter, and now they find themselves in a position of being unable to come within gunshot of supplying the demand. No further supplies are to be had at any price.

The "Dutch sets," as they are known locally, are grown all over the district of Hensall, Ontario, not only on the farms but in village gardens. Almost every farmer finds that a small patch of these queer shaped growths will amply repay the time and labour spent in caring for them. The patches run from one-fifth of an acre up to an acre or an acre and a half, and a fifth acre, it is said, will produce in the neighbourhood of $100 worth of sets. They are bought at prices ranging from four to six cents per pound, and the seed is furnished by contractors who take the crop. They are sown early in the spring and by fall are ready for shipment to the large seed houses which take most of the yield, and each year they are marketed from Hensall alone five to seven carloads.

Tomato plants, and boxes of cabbages, have also made their appearance on the market during the past few days. The demand for them is just about the average, while the prices are in proportion to the quality.

FOURTEEN WOUNDED IN RIOTS

Striking Miners Battle With Fellow-workmen Who Were Returning to Work

REVOLVERS USED

Special to The Examiner:

SCRANTON, Pa., MAY 10.—There were big riots here this morning between the anthracite miners going to work and their striking fellow miners who tried to prevent them doing so. Revolvers were used and there are fourteen cases in the hospital, some dangerously wounded. The police reserves cleared away the rioters and arrested two men and six women sympathizers. The women fought like demons bewitched. They had to be massacred to prevent their further assaults.

New Coins Are Issued

Five and Ten Dollar Gold Pieces May Now Be Secured

OTTAWA, MAY 9.—The Finance Department is forwarding to the several offices of the Receiver-General at Vancouver, Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal, St. John, Charlottetown and Halifax a supply of the new ten and five-dollar Canadian gold coins now being minted at Ottawa. The technical description is as follows:

Ten-dollar—For the obverse impression, His Majesty's effigy, consisting of head and bust, wearing the Imperial Crown and the robe of State, with the collar of the garter, and looking to the left, with the inscription, "Georgivs V. Dei Gra, Rex Et Ind, Imp"; and for the reverse, a shield bearing the arms of the Dominion of Canada within a wreath of maple leaves, surmounted by the inscription "Canada," and bearing underneath the words, "Ten Dollars," with date of issue; with a graining upon the edge.

Five-dollar—The same obverse impression and inscription as the ten-dollar; and for the reverse, a shield bearing the arms of the Dominion of Canada within a wreath of maple leaves, surmounted by the inscription "Canada," and bearing underneath the words, "Five Dollars," with date of issue; with a graining upon the edge.

The public may obtain these coins at any of the above-mentioned offices. The Minister of Finance has personally presented the first coin struck of each denomination to the Victoria Memorial Museum, Ottawa, as likely to be of future historical interest.

HOW NERVE CELLS ARE BROKEN DOWN

Every man or woman who works with the brain uses up daily an enormous amount of nerve force. Millions of tiny nerve cells are broken down and must be replaced if mental and bodily efficiency is to be maintained.

If brain fag, headaches, sleeplessness or irritability set in, the evidence is plain that nature is not rebuilding as fast as work is breaking down. You cannot allow this depleting process to continue long if nervous prostration or paralysis is to be warded off.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will help you to get the balance on the other side of the account, so that each day will add a little to your stock of health and vitality. A man whose work is largely mechanical may keep going with health below par, but the brain worker mus thave a clear head or fall behind in the race. Restore the wasted nerve cells with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and know the joys of good health and success.

LOST HER RINGS IN COACH WASH-ROOM

TORONTO, MAY 10.—Mrs. A. C. Galt of Winnipeg, while travelling from Toronto to Welland, yesterday, on a Canadian Pacific train, took off her rings, including a five-stone diamond ring, in the washroom of a car, and then forgot them. When the train stopped at Welland a vigorous search was made without avail. The police of various cities are on the lookout for them.

HOME RULE BILL WILL BE FOUGHT

Opposition Are to Oppose Measure Throughout the Different Stages What Will Lords Do?

PRESS ON SITUATION

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., MAY 10.—Liberal papers this morning are enthusiastic over the biggest majority ever accorded the many home rule bills submitted to the British Commons, while the Unionist papers appear to be joyous because the majority wasn't quite as large as the government anticipated. From now on the fight over the bill will be intense. The Opposition will baulk the progress of the measure at every step. It will be a battle in committee, a battle in the report stage and a greater battle in the third reading stage and when it reaches the House of Lords, well, nobody pretends to speak authoritatively as to what will happen to this Democratic modern measure when it reaches that august and aristocratic body.

Insurrectors Are Routed

Special Wire to The Examiner.

MEXICO CITY, MAY 10—The Federal forces have routed the Insurrectors again this morning with the loss of ninety killed and many injured.

Further Delay In The Nesbitt Case

Special to The Examiner:

CHICAGO, MAY 10. — The filing of the petition for writ of habeas corpus in the case of Beattie Nesbitt, was delayed again to-day. Attorney W. K. Pattison, representing Canadians, intimated that developments of a surprising nature would be forthcoming to-morrow. Nesbitt's extradition papers have not yet been received from the Secretary of State.

Lost His Life In Saving Neighbour

Special to The Examiner

VIKING, ALTA., MAY 10.—When W. Kirkpatrick was overcome by gas at the bottom of a forty-two foot well, Frank Dayton, a neighbour, went down to his rescue, placing the rope around him and Dayton's wife hauled him up to safety. Then Dayton, himself, was hauled up, but as he was near the top he apparently fainted from gas, let go the rope and dropped to the foot of the well. Death was instantaneous.

THE MANITOBA ASSURANCE CO.

A good reputation is a good asset. A firm holding a good record in the community for a generation or so commands patronage, as the public know they can be absolutely relied upon. Just so in the insurance world. The Manitoba Assurance Company for twenty odd years (as the great Company behind it has done for generations) has settled and paid its losses and generally treated the public in such a way as to have earned a great and most enviable reputation, such as has made it a household word for honest and square dealing. If you haven't a policy in the Manitoba, get one. Agent, Davis-Thompson Co., Ltd.

SHIP LISTED HEAVILY ON PORT SIDE

Passengers on the Cunard Liner "Ulonia" Relate Experiences of Eventful Sea Voyage to Examiner

CRIPPLED IN MID-OCEAN

Special to The Examiner:

"I was standing in the stern, when the shaft, carrying one of the propellers snapped," said William Chater to the Examiner this morning, in describing his experiences on board the Cunard liner "Ulonia" during the course of her recent eventful trip across the Atlantic with a large party of immigrants aboard.

"A terrific rending sound, followed by a violent vibration throughout the length and breadth of the boat, lasting for several minutes, was the first intimation that the ship's officers received concerning the loss of the propeller. The water immediately rushed into the gap caused by the absence of the propeller and of the shaft, and within a short time the watertight compartment in the bow of the boat was nearly full of water."

Panic Ensued.

"The engines were brought to a standstill," continued Mr. Carter, "and means taken to stem the inrush of the sea. By this time the ship had taken a decided list to the port side. The accident occurred in mid-ocean and for a time occasioned a small panic among the passengers. Their fears were speedily abated, however, when the full extent of the damage was ascertained. The Ulonia limped the remainder of the journey into Halifax by means of the one remaining propeller. The speed of the vessel which, under normal conditions, averaged about eighteen knots per hour, was reduced to about four and one half knots, prolonging the journey by nearly two weeks.

Three Deaths on Board.

Three deaths occurred on board, one being the steward, who succumbed to a brief illness shortly after leaving England, and two Russian immigrant children. The remains of the steward and one of the children were weighted, sewed up in gunny sacks and buried at sea. The body of the second child was interred at Halifax upon the ship's arrival.

The vessel encountered a severe storm after casting her propeller, and for a number of hours was at the mercy of the waves, which repeatedly washed over the upper structure of the ship. Rockets were sent up at intervals to warn other vessels in the vicinity of the Ulonia's position. This was done as a precaution against a possible collision, as the disabled condition of the ship rendered her course very erratic, with the result that the vessel drifted several miles out of her course.

The party who arrived in Peterborough last night, and were passengers on the Ulonia, represent bakers, carters, mechanics and agriculturists. They look none the worse for their three weeks' sojourn on the high seas, and left for their new homes this morning full of life and ambitions for the future.

AUTOISTS MAY MAKE TRIP

Peterboro's New Association Members May Go to Cobourg or South Beach

ON THE 24th OF MAY

The first outing of the Peterborough Automobile Club has been suggested for the 24th of May, with Cobourg or South Beach the objective point. The proposal is still but a tentative one, but it may be fully decided upon at an early date. It is one of the features of every live Auto Club to go on fairly long jaunts into the country. The pleasure thus afforded has an influence that emphasizes the social possibilities of the club and with these that have been established for some years, outings of this nature are held regularly. Several members of the Peterborough Association have expressed themselves as heartily in support of this proposal and there is every prospect of the city's autoists enjoying several jaunts together into the county to some summer resort. Peterborough county presents numerous opportunities for outings although some of the roads are not exactly what the autoist dreams about.

In order to enlist the best efforts of the path masters throughout the county in the improving of the roads, it has been suggested that the Association offer a number of prizes to those who it is considered have kept their sections in the best condition. It would cost the Association but little and might induce the path masters to see that better work is done if at the end of the summer there was the possibility of obtaining the Association's prize. This matter will likely be considered in the near future and action may be taken upon it.

OBITUARY

MR. GEORGE ROBB.

The many friends in Peterborough and district of Mr. George Robb, farmer, of Otonabee, will regret to learn of his demise, which occurred suddenly yesterday afternoon at Ferry Town.

The deceased gentleman was visiting his mother, who lay sick in Ferry Town. Just as he was about to leave the house to return to his farm, he was seized with a paralytic stroke, from which he never recovered. He was taken into the house and Dr. Eastwood of Peterborough was sent for, but to no avail, as the sick man passed away without regaining consciousness.

The late Mr. Robb is survived by a sorrowing wife and one son. Mr. Samuel Atherley of James street, is the father-in-law of the deceased. The funeral will take place to-morrow in Ferry Town.

MRS. M. F. SANDERSON.

The death occurred this morning of Sarah Jane Taylor Sanderson, relict of the late M. F. Sanderson, at the family residence, lot 19, con. 12, Cavan. The deceased had been ill for some time with heart failure which resulted in her death. The late Mrs. Sanderson was born at Cartwright, Durham county, 68 years ago, and has been a resident of Cavan during the past fifty years. Her husband predeceased her twelve years ago. The deceased was highly regarded by a large number of friends in the town ship. Three sons are left to mourn her death. They are William T. Sanderson of Parkhill, and Albert E., and Jos. H., of Cavan. Mrs. Sanderson was a member of the Presbyterian church at Springville.

The funeral will be held on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence to the Little Lake cemetery. Rev. Dr. Marsh will officiate.

MOULDERS SEEM DETERMINED IN THEIR DEMAND FOR A 9 HOUR DAY

Vice-President Keough, of International Molders Here and Meeting of Local Union Will Be Held To-night.

EMPLOYERS NOT IN FAVOUR

A special meeting of the Moulders' Union will be held this evening to consider what action shall be taken in regard to the Union's demand for a nine-hour day.

From the facts learned, the men seem to be determined in their stand that this request should be granted, and on the other hand the employers are said to be equally decided in their opposition to a nine-hour day. Mr. M. J. Keough, first vice-president of the International Moulders' Union, is in the city to-day, and will be present at to-night's meeting.

MEN ARE UNANIMOUS.

To the Examiner he stated that he had no idea as to what the men would decide upon at their meeting to-night. It remained with themselves to deal with the question as they desired. It is significant, however, that the men seem to be unanimous in their desire to secure a working day of nine hours.

A meeting of the Union was held on Thursday night, but there was no news given out as to what was done. To-night's meeting is regarded as an important one, and it is possible, if not probable, that the men will hold out for the granting of their demand.

The nine-hour day is not in vogue in many places in Canada, but it is quite general in the foundries in the United States.

SOME THINGS AND OTHERS

How delightfully rural and "sweet Auburn-loveliest-villagish" it sounds. The mayor of Brockville, proclaimed Thursday, May 9th a general cleaning-up-day.

On the other hand, Peterborough has a full-fledged garbage collection system—with green waggon.

By the way, the drivers of these emerald vehicles should be in uniform or wear some badge of authority, that the irate house-dog, and, in some cases, the equally irate housewife, will recognize and respect.

After all, Peterborough has still a little touch of the rural and of rusticity left. After the city has neatly cleaned the streets and carted the rubbish away, some vandaloid citizens rake up their private premises and dump the refuse on the clean, tidy streets.

Vandaloid is not an "actionable" term—it means, like a vandal; and that's as far as one can conscientiously go in characterizing such actions.

Drive your work, don't let it drive you, especially at this season, when vegetation is as active as a neighbour's hen on a newly seeded garden plot.

The city fathers are out on their annual tramp around the city, looking over the needs of the streets. Will they overlook some of them, or will they see all they look at?

If we are to build many more forty-five thousand dollar school buildings, the School Board should introduce the school penny savings banks to provide money to pay the school taxes.

An Otonabee man going to Port Perry to see his sick mother and being stricken with illness and dying there himself, is one of the sad singularities of human destiny.

A Margaret avenue man worked himself into acute lumbago yesterday putting in his little garden, and this morning worked himself into a towering rage when he saw that a yellow dog had destroyed some of his finest handiwork. He should have had the dog's funeral first.

A Man With Piles Cannot Work

The depressing, undermining influence of piles seems to affect mind as well as body until the sufferer from this humiliating ailment feels miserable and utterly cast down.

The itching, stinging sensations which accompany piles are bad enough. The remedy for sure, and thought of a surgical operation do not tend to cheer one up. Many get discouraged and allow their health to be ruined by this unnatural ailment.

It is no easy to relieve piles by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment that in some strange way surgeons always neglect to give this treatment a thorough trial. If you could read some of the letters from men and women who had suffered for years, many for thirty years you would no longer doubt the effectiveness of Dr. Chase's Ointment in the relief and cure of piles.

Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled.

FRIDAY, MAY 10, 1912

HOW IT IS DONE.

One point of the million points of the high cost of living is explained by the explanation of the rise of bread in Ottawa by a candid baker—the cost of manufacturing bread has not advanced, but the bakers, by combining upon a higher price, can make more money—they want more money and are going to have it. Such beautiful fraternal ideas of working together, generally applied as they are, go a long way to explain the short stretch of a dollar bill or the very little ground a weekly wage cheque will cover. It also generally indicates the extent to which the high cost of living is contributed to by the combination of interests and industries to enhance the price of the products.

GOOD WATER AND TYPHOID.

If a low rate of typhoid prevalence is dependent, as it very largely is, upon purity of water supply, Peterborough is comparatively fortunate in this regard. The Finance and Insurance Chronicle has printed a table of the death rate from typhoid fever in the cities of Ontario. According to this table, Peterborough's mortality from typhoid is the lowest of any city in the Province, except Guelph, which is 13 per 100,000 of population, while Peterborough's is 16. And Peterborough's rate may be accidental. If the figures used by the Chronicle were taken from the mortuary returns of the year when Peterborough's typhoid rate was influenced by the bringing of many cases from Oshawa when that town had an outbreak, we are charged with more than our share of typhoid—of local origin. Taking cities of approximately the same size as Peterborough, we find the number of typhoid deaths per 100,000 to be: Belleville, 19; Stratford, 20; St. Thomas, 20; Kingston, 28; Brantford, 34; Chatham, 53; Woodstock, 49; St. Catherines, 60; Port Arthur, 63; and Sarnia 147. The two latter towns may have been affected by exceptional conditions. Patients may have been sent to these places for a considerable area of surrounding country, unsupplied with hospital facilities. Whatever faults we may have in Peterborough in regard to other things, we can at least boast of our good water, and the incidental immunity from a serious prevalence of typhoid. If we keep our garbage pretty well out of the way; if we keep our premises as clean as possible; if we keep the great disseminator of disease, the house fly, down, by these means we shall generally enjoy the blessings of the good health dependent upon wholesome conditions and surroundings as an offset to high taxation.

IT DEPENDS.

Opponents of municipal trading are always ready with the stock objection that civic operation of public services is more wasteful and less efficient than under private management. But the National Civic Federation of the United States, after investigating the returns of the public and private enterprises of Great Britain, found that the advantage was wholly on the side of the municipal undertakings. They earned larger car revenues at lower cost per mile, had provided much larger allowances for renewals, depreciation and sinking funds, paid higher wages and provided better service. Not only this, but the chief concern of the city and town councils is to extend and cheapen the services, and so increase their value to the general community.

In the disposal of their sewage also British cities have shown themselves ready to experiment and introduce innovations. Recently the Bradford council laid down a plant costing about $300,000 for the purpose of extracting grease from the sewage. Last year's sales of the product netted $132,500 of revenue and a week or two ago a newly-invented machine was installed to extract the grease from condemned meats and carcasses. The residue from the former process was found to be valuable as a fertiliser, and finds a ready sale among farmers, and has even been exported profitably to France and South America.—Toronto World.

They must have a different brand of municipal bodies in Great Britain from what we have on this side of the Atlantic, either in Canada or the United States. The extraction of grease and profit from sewage is in line with the practical optimism that extracts sunbeams from cucumbers. We are lucky, in this country, if we can extract reasonable use from our sewers. Toronto is having never-ending trouble and expense with her sewers; and even, Peterborough, has to wrestle with the problem of refractory and unprofitable sewers. In both cases there is no profit, but a pretty tidy bill of expense. In summary; municipal operation of public utilities has considerable analogy with the doctrine of the equality of man; one man is as good as another—if he is as good. Municipal operation of public utilities is good, if it is good—that is, conducted with regard to business principles, as a private enterprise usually is done. But municipal management, not only of civic utilities, but of civic business, generally, is in general, very much undiluted with the idea and application of business principles. If a private business of any kind were conducted on the same lax principles, with the same absence of the application of business principles, as generally obtains throughout the country, the Sheriff would be putting up the shutters of the business enterprise within three months — its capital would not stand the strain. But a municipal cosporation has unlimited capital, so to speak; it has only, when it has wasted money, to elevate the tax-rate a little, and the municipal shareholders are compelled to subscribe the extra stock. Municipal operation, successfully applied, in the old country, must embody sound business principles, such as are generally entirely absent on the North American continent, in connection with the management of municipal undertakings and with general administration. The success of municipal operation of public utilities depends upon how it is done.

MABEE'S SUCCESSOR.

The Lindsay Post has the following in yesterday's issue:

"The Peterborough Times is either ignorant of the qualifications required for the position of Chief Commissioner of the Board of Railway Commissioners, or it has perpetrated a cruel joke at the expense of J. Hampden Burnham, M.P., West Peterborough.

Scarcely had the people of Canada been apprised of the death of the late Judge Mabee, when the Peterborough journal comes out with a front page article recommending Mr. Burnham's appointment. The lamented death of so distinguished a Canadian should not be the subject for jest of this nature.

The position requires a man with an instinctive sense of right and justice, independent and not easily swayed,—qaulifications which Mr. Burnham does not possess.

If Mr. Burnham wishes to do something to perpetuate his name, and give relief to a suffering public, let him keep silent in the House of Commons."

The jest of the matter is that the announcement of the Times was not a jest. It is asserted on the street that Mr. Burnham's application for the chairmanship of the Railway Commission, originated with the Examiner. This is not the case; the Examiner has not so grotesque an imagination. It first appeared in the Morning Times, prominently displayed in big type on the front page. It was no doubt, written or inspired by, Mr. Burnham himself, and apparently "meant business," was bona fide as an application; for it is known that Mr. Burnham has been soliciting influential Conseravtives in Peterborough to write to the government in support of his application. This is merely mentioned so that the Examiner will not be flattered by being given the credit of conceiving so brilliant an idea as to the possibility of such an application having been seriously made.

Ladies of Culture and Refinement Use Salvia Hair Tonic. It makes the Hair Beautiful

At last a remedy has been discovered that will positively destroy this pest.

That Dandruff is caused by germs is accepted by every sensible person.

Dandruff is the root of all hair evils.

SALVIA will kill the dandruff germs and remove Dandruff in ten days, or money back.

McDermid and Jury guarantees it. It will grow hair, stop itching scalp, falling hair, and make the hair thick and abundant. It prevents hair from turning gray, and adds life and lustre.

SALVIA is a hair dressing that has become the favourite with women of taste and culture, who know the social value of beautiful hair. A large, generous bottle costs only 50c. at leading druggists everywhere, and in Peterborough by McDermid and Jury. The word "SALVIA" (Latin for sage) is on every bottle.

Also sold at Payne's Drug Store.

CHINA'S FIRST TRIAL UNDER BRITISH TRIAL-BY-JURY SYSTEM

The Expositor has received a copy of The China Press, an influential newspaper published in the English language at Shanghai, containing a report of the first trial by jury in the Chinese Empire. The trial was that of Yao Yung Zeh, who was charged with the murder of [illegible] revolutionary leaders when he was magistrate of Shan Sang. Of the interior lay-out we are given the following picture, and it will be seen that it is quite of the orthodox continental character:

The Nantao municipal council chamber was fitted up for the occasion with rows of tables extending from either side of the judges' platform with desks and chairs for counsel.

A long table covered with green cloth extending down to the floor stretched across the front of the platform, behind which the judges sat. The two barristers-at-law, Messrs. Alex. Ting and Ivan Chen, sitting as judges were robed in black with large white collars and white bands around the ends of their flowing sleeves, while Mr. Tsai Ying, the third judge, who is a member of General Cheng's staff, wore a military uniform of brown with gold braid.

At the foot of the platform just below Judge Ting sat Mr. Ou Yang Kong, interpretor for the law firm of Fessenden and Jernigan, who officiated as clerk of the court. To his left at another table sat two assistants, all attired in Chinese dress. The chairs and tables forming the left side of the enclosure, looking from the bench, were reserved for the seven jurymen, who are to pass upon the guilt or innocence of the prisoner, and the tables forming the right side of the enclosure were reserved for representatives of the press.

Close to the reporters' tables a semi-circular railing on a platform near the clerk of the court formed the witness box. Two long, narrow desks on each side of the enclosure toward the rear were provided for the prosecuting attorneys on one side and counsel for the defence on the other. Further back in the centre was another raised platform. With a semi-circular railing [illegible] dock which the accused occupied through the session of the court, guarded by a policeman with rifle and fixed bayonet on either side.

A list of forty names of possible jurors, made up of prominent merchants and gentry, was called and most of them responded when their names were called. Then all the names written on slips of paper were deposited in a box and the seven jurymen were elected by drawings conducted by the clerk and his two assistants. Three of the men were challenged for having knowledge of the case and one was excused on account of sickness, [illegible] on one of the jurors declared that he was biased, and that the questions put to a witness by counsel for the defence were unreasonable. He therefore asked to be excused, and his request was granted. The second day of the trial three of the jurors did not turn up and no action seems to have been taken beyond filling their places.

Before the trial started the question was raised whether English or Chinese law might be cited as examples in the course of the proceedings and after many arguments by counsel on both sides it was decided by the court that English precedents might be taken when the British law in such cases cited did not conflict with the Chinese code.

Rules for the spectators' observance were posted in large characters on both sides of the court room and although there was a large crowd in attendance throughout the day no serious infractions occurred. The rules prohibited the spectators from smoking, expectorating, changing seats, laughing, leaving the court room during the proceedings, talking loud or otherwise disturbing the court. In case of violation of any of these regulations the posted notice stated: "The judges have power to order the offenders to leave the court and to authorise the police attendants to eject any persons who fail voluntarily to obey. General Cheng had a detail of soldiers to stand guard over the court, and these sentinels stood motionless at order arms, with fixed bayonets about the entrance during the trial.

The order of procedure observed throughout the trial was such as usually prevails in British courts, and, as above indicated, the utmost decorum seem to have been observed throughout. The first trial by jury in the Celestial Empire was an unqualified success.

RAILWAY NOTES

The forthcoming sale by auction of a new townsite at Mile 119 on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway in British Columbia, the proposed name of which is Amundsen, is announced by the Continental Trust Co. The site is partly situated on Anderson's Island and partly on the mainland, the two being separated by a narrow slough or creek. The part known as Anderson's consisting of about 80 acres, was sold by Mr. Anderson to the G. T. P., and is to be made the first freight divisional point on the line, east of Prince Rupert. The property on the mainland, which has been surveyed for town lots, is owned by Mr. Chas. W. D. Clifford, ex-M.P.P. from that district, and his associates. Plans are being prepared for the erection of a hotel and a general store, also a boarding house for the men working on the construction.

* * *

The oil tank being constructed by the Grand Trunk Pacific, near their wharf at Vancouver, is now practically completed, so far as the inner steel shell is concerned. The workmen are just finishing the roof. The next operation will be to test the tank—which is built to hold 37,000 barrels o foil. This will be done by filling it with water under pressure. This done the builders will then erect, outside the tank and several feet away from it, a framework to receive the liquid concrete, and the wall thus built of re-inforced concrete will be 3 feet at the bottom and gradually reduced in thickness as it gets higher. Pipes will be laid from the tank under the wharves to the water, and, when it is necessary to re-fill the tank, the fluid will be pumped from the oil tank steamers which will bring it from California.

It is an interesting fact, emphasized by Capt. C. H. Nicholson, Manager Grand Trunk Pacific Coast Steamship Service, that, if a lighted torch was placed in the glass of oil fuel which will fill this tank, it would not catch fire as it is not inflammable until heated to 250 degrees Fahrenheit. The tank and enclosing wall will be ready for use in a month's time.

* * *

At a recent meeting of the Board of Trade of Miniota, Man., a discussion took place as to the possibility of inducing the Grand Trunk Pacific to construct a loop line from that point to Brandon and Ingelow. The railway has already decided to build from Ingelow to Brandon, and it was considered possible that, if a subsidy were secured from the Dominion Government, it might complete the loop. It was finally decided to approach the Boards of Trade of Brandon and Lenore with a view to obtaining their co-operation in securing this subsidy and also to approach the officials of the G.T.P.

FLORIDA---

LAND OF OPPORTUNITY—Home of the successful [illegible] of the orange and grapefruit. Strawberries from the fields marketed at Christmas time.

The Florida truck grower can have his vegetable crops, lettuce, celery, cauliflower, potatoes, tomatoes, cabbage, early corn, etc., on the market earlier than any section of the United States, and at a time when other sections have no crops to offer. This gives him a great advantage in the markets of large centers of population.

The crop-growing season is 365 days. No other portion of the United States equals.

The difference between mean monthly temperature of Florida in January and July is less than 25 degrees, while Maine records 49 and Pennsylvania 48. The state is a "natural irrigated" area with approximate maximum of rainfall —you know it takes water to raise crops.

Have You Labeled Yourself?

By Ruth Cameron

THERE was once a young man who had a habit of making wild and exaggerated statements about many things. People who knew this man took stock of this habit of his and were accustomed to allow for it in listening to him.

Now, one day, this young man made an exact and true statement about a certain matter in which he was deeply interested. "Oh, yes," said his friends in answer, "that sounds well, but you know you are inclined to exaggerate and I'm afraid you are making those figures too big."

plain when they protested the young man indignantly. "But I'm not," that I'm talking about, and you'd better believe me." filed indulgently and went their way.

His friends as they had been listening to one of his still thinking the exaggerated statements. Now later developments proved true, and he went around and absolutely as his friends.

"Yes," they all used to allowing for your exaggerations that yo but we are so we must not blame us for doing it this time."

In which they of this little tale is not — don't

Now the moral just this — If you have taught your friends to expect judge all your acts in the light of that quality. They are simply doing the logical thing.

The man who is abnormally cautious, is indignant when some act of his, which really has nothing to do with his sense of caution, is attributed to that. He has no right to be indignant. His friends were simply applying the rule which he himself taught them.

The woman who is hyper-critical feels aggrieved because some speech of hers, which she intended as kindly, is received as if it were critically meant. She has no right to be aggrieved. Her friends are only seeing in her what she has taught them to look for.

When the boy of Aesop fame called for help at the approach of real danger, no one would believe him in earnest, because he had cried "wolf, wolf," in fun so many times that they thought he must be always mocking them.

In the same way, our daily habits teach people to expect certain things from us, and we have no right to complain when they judge some speech or act of ours in the light of this expectation, even if the judgment does happen to be incorrect.

They are acting in a perfectly logical way, and we have only ourselves to blame if we do not like the interpretation we have taught them to put upon us.

PETERBORO' SUMMER FAIR WILL INDIRECTLY SAVE CITY $30 000 EACH YEAR

Written for the Examiner (By Roy Gilray)

(By Roy Gilray)

In one of our previous articles we pointed out that 100 people were afflicted with consumption each year in Peterborough, of whom 25 failed to recover. This is a very conservative estimate made by one of our local physicians recently in the course of an address on tuberculosis.

The average age at which death occurred among these was, roughly speaking, 30 years. According to the period of expectancy of life worked out by the insurance companies there was, in each case a loss of life period about 33 years.

The Labour Bureau of the Province of Ontario tell us that the sum of $400 per annum is a low average earning power of adult individuals. At this low estimate we are losing in earning power each year the sum of $10,000. Multiply this by 33 and we have the total of earning power of one year's deaths from this disease—the sum of $330,000. Remember this is for Peterborough, alone. When one contemplates the figures for the whole Province or even for the Dominion the monetary loss is appalling.

This surely is bad enough. We are justified in considering, in addition, the extra expense of, in many cases, years of incapacity to work and earn money, of medical care, of nursing, all, or nearly all of which may, by proper care and treatment, be prevented.

This is where the District Nurse will be of great value to the community. She will make frequent visits to the homes of the afflicted, supervising and regulating the home life, and doing everything to encourage the patient with the interest that the Health Association is taking in his recovery. The moral assistance of the other members of the family is essential, and they must be convinced of the necessity of strict obedience to all instructions so that the recovery of the patient will be assured.

In the introduction of this article, we have tried to impress those who measure everything in dollars and cents, but there are others who look deeper into the tragedies that are being enacted on every hand.

Humanity first, mutual safety second, calls for united action. Capitalist and working man, master and servant, are equal in this the greatest of modern missions among mankind; there is no distinction of class or quality; we cannot, by either united or any other effort, defeat death ultimately but we have it in our power to combat disease, some kinds partially, some effectually. That the work we have commenced is necessary cannot be denied; that it is effective is amply proved. The man, the woman, the brother, the sister, the father, the mother, who stands aloof, says in effect: "Let those sink who cannot swim." The one without family, without kindred, who adopts a similar stand, says: "What is society, or what is my brother man to me?" In short, they stand on the banks of the river into which human beings have fallen, and when they could save them by stretching forth a helping hand, they allow them to perish miserably and hopelessly. To do this actually would be criminal; to do it morally is about the same. The person capable of doing it morally would almost do it actually; and the same person, with positions reversed, would be the first to cry out for assistance.

I cannot believe there is such a one in Canada. I do not believe there is such a one in Peterborough, and am satisfied it is only thoughtlessness or ignorance of Christ's command that hinders any citizen doing his part, let it be great or small.

PREPARING THE MOTOR BOAT

Pointers on Restoring Interior Finish to Former Brightness

Any of the "removers" advertised will save time in restoring interior finish of a boat. Apply the liquid kind to the varnished surface and, after a minute or so, the coating will be softened and it may readily be peeled off with a putty knife. Be careful not to gouge the wood; it is wise to have corners of the knife slightly rounded so that a slip will not result in disfiguring the wood.

When the surface has been roughly cleaned with the remover and knife go over it again with steel cabinet scrapers, the kind that look as if they had been made out of saw blades. Should moulding or panels invite your skill it is well to file narrow scrapers to fit. Then proceed with caution and don't let the scraper slip. Unsightly scratches will surely be penalty for haste.

When the scrapers get dull, touch them up with a file or whetstone, sharpening the metal square across. Turn the edges slightly with a smooth piece of steel, the shank of a bit will do, because it is the burr or wire edge that makes the cutting progress. The skilled artisan is able to fix up a scraper, as described, so it will take off a shaving like a smooth plane or simply dust the work.

Follow the scraper with medium sandpaper and go over it again with fine sandpaper, getting into all corners with the point of a skewer such as butchers use. That operation cleans out the dirt that would give the finished job a streaked appearance. Should the wood be discoloured bleach it with a solution of oxalic acid, five cents worth at the drug store ought to do the trick in a large boat. After letting the solution penetrate the wood for a few hours wash it off and follow with strong white vinegar to neutralize the oxalic acid's destructive properties. Now sandpaper the roughened grain.

Applying Oil Stains.

Oil stains may be applied to the wood if the cleaning process has altered the tone of the interior. Apply the stain with a brush—the full strength will give better satisfaction—no more coats may be applied to darken the work, and let it rub in well, several hours after wiping thoroughly with a handful of waste with. The wiping must not be neglected as it helps to get the grain which, otherwise, would be muddy. Follow with a filler recommended by good paint makers.

The interior should now be ready for refinishing and the treatment advocated by paint decorators varies. Some used alcohol-thinned shellac, the white kind for first coat, claiming it will make scraping easier as the varnish that comes later cannot penetrate the wood. Anyhow, rub the first coat, whether shellac or varnish, with fine sandpaper or pumice and water, having allowed plenty of time for the coat to get hard. Some varnishes may be rubbed in ten hours while other brands must be left alone a day or longer. Three coats of varnish ought to give plenty of body. If a glossy effect is desired flow on the final coat of varnish. Dull, or egg shell, finish is had by rubbing with pumice and water.

Use a good quality of varnish on interiors and for open boats nothing is so durable as "spar," which should prevent mottling in rainy weather. Careful finishers will not varnish in damp weather and, if the cabin is cold, the varnish is warmed before being applied. These men, also, will not varnish during an easterly "spell" unless a rush job is imperative, owing to presence of excessive moisture in the atmosphere. They like a brisk north-wester and open up everything to the air. Much of the success in refinishing depends on the shape and quality of brushes. Don't use any old brush, perhaps those that have been in paint, but get the kind recommended by the stores as best for the purpose. Sometimes it is necessary to thin varnish, but the amateur would best go light with the turpentine and apply the varnish as it comes from the can. It may be made more easily worked by warming, which does not harm the body, so essential to a satisfactory job.—Motor Boating.

Also fifteen volumes published by the Norroena Society, dealing with the romances and epics of the Norwegians and comprising also the Atharian tales, the Volsunga Saga, Heimskringla, the Norse Discovery of America and Teutonic Mythology.

It will be noticed that here are some very valuable books in the above-mentioned list. Most of the volumes speak for themselves, but the attention of those interested in agriculture is especially drawn to Haggards work on Rural Denmark. It will be remembered that some two or three years ago a special commission was sent by the Dominion Government to Denmark to study the conditions of agriculture and more especially dairying in that country, and Sir Henry Haggard's book will certainly appeal to all who read the report of that commission. The author apart from his eminence as a novelist is one of the foremost agriculturists in the United Kingdom.

The work of cataloguing, which has been in progress ever since the library was opened, is now completed, so far as the main portion of the stack room is concerned. The only parts left uncatalogued are the Reference Room and the Juvenile Department, both of which will soon be in process of reorganization.

The public are once again asked to kindly take special pains to replace books back in the same places from which they are taken on the shelves. It will not only be a convenience to each individual patron of the Library to do this, but also a very considerable assistance to the staff.

Directions how to use the catalogue have been placed above the catalogue cabinet.

HAVE YOU A SKIN RASH?

Zam-Buk Will End It

For skin rashes, eruptions, eczema etc., either in adults or children, there is nothing known to science which equals Zam-Buk in the quickness and certainty of its curative power. Mr. Raymond Webber, of Allanburg, Ont., writes: "I have tried Zam-Buk for many ailments, and every time have found it successful. Some time ago I had a bad rash all over my body. I tried home-made salves, boil salves, and various home-made preparations, and these proved of no use, but when I tried Zam-Buk I was cured in a quarter of the time that I had been experimenting in vain with other preparations.

"On another occasion I had one of my fingers crushed, and in that case also Zam-Buk was the only remedy I used. It healed the wound splendidly.

"My boy had boils, and once again Zam-Buk brought about a complete cure. We have also used it as a household balm, for the injuries and skin diseases which are common to every person, and can say that in our experience there is nothing to equal Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk owes its unique healing power to certain herbal extracts it contains. Unlike most ointments it contains no poisonous colouring matter, no animal fat, but is purely herbal. For eczema, piles, blood poison, abscesses, ulcers, cuts, burns, and all skin injuries and diseases it is without equal and should be in every home. 50c. box all druggists and stores. Use also Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. tablet.

SAYS DOG WAS NOT VICIOUS

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—In regard to the article appearing in your paper on the 8th May, I wish to state that the dog which bit Cecil Denno was not in any way a vicious one.

If the boy had not thrown stones at him, and in several ways teased him, he would not have been bitten by him.

The dog was lying at the door when the boy came along the street and began playing on the grass at the side of the house, and not across the road as stated.

If every dog that defends himself from stone-throwers is to be called vicious, I think that there are many vicious dogs in this city.

Will you please correct the error in your paper and oblige the owner?

B. Bonnie.

Parnell st., May 8, 1912.

P.S.—The boy was bitten under the right arm only, and not about the left arm, breast and shoulders as your article has it.

more fully. Many a man spends his evenings from home because his wife does not keep the home fit to live in, and I think that while one never sees her in the police court for being drunk and disorderly, she is equally guilty with the one who appears in the dock.

It might seem entirely out of place to write such a letter as this at this time of the year, when you may see any morning you choose, to take a stroll about town, furniture piled on the verandah, pillows and mattresses out the windows and a woman in dust cap trying to beat the colour out of a rug and you hear the poor man saying that he hasn't had a square meal for a week for his wife has been house-cleaning. But there are others which never get such an overhauling and it is to these that I refer.

Will Market Open To Hucksters At 10 Or 11?

Do the citizens want the farmers' market was not opened to these buy-hotel men, grocers, hucksters and others at 10 o'clock, or not until eleven on Saturday mornings.

Previous to a year or more ago the market was not opened to these buyers until eleven, but a change was made for some reason or other and they can invade the market at 10 o'clock.

Ald. Gordon has been looking over the question and has decided that 10 o'clock is quite satisfactory to all parties and nothing is likely to materialize out of a movement that was calculated to be a benefit to householders.

Last Saturday, for instance, those who came to the city on the boats, did not reach the market until half-past ten. The result was that in addition to the ordinary demand of householders there was the demand of retailers and other heavy buyers—a combination that tends to hold up prices.

Between the hours of 10 and 11 most of the farmers reach the market. The householders should be able to have the greatest choice of produce, and the price during that time should be favourable. There is not the opposition of heavy buyers.

The market was intended for the use of citizens in general, and particularly for the man whose wife likes to select supplies of butter and eggs from the farmers at the market. Do the people want the market hour changed, or are they satisfied? Does it please them to have it open at ten o'clock for the heavy buyers referred to? The matter is likely to drop just where it is if everyone is suited. If the people think the hour is too early a little word passed on to the aldermen of their ward should have the desired effect. It may be called a little thing, this question of the market, but the fact remains that it was planned for the general householders in order that they might purchase directly their requirements of butter, eggs, etc., instead of having to secure in a less direct manner. It remains with these householders to secure the closing of the market until 11 o'clock for the big buyers if they have any demands and make them known to their representatives.

C.G.E. Excursion

To Toronto and Niagara Falls on Saturday, June 8.

The excursion of the C.GE. employees to Toronto and Niagara Falls will be held on Saturday, June 8th. Arrangements have been practically completed in all the details and the committee in charge of the outing have left nothing unprovided for the day's enjoyment. Train and boat accommodation for a large number has been secured and it is expected that the largest excursion that has been conducted from Peterborough will go with the C.G.E. employees.

NAVAL MANOEUVRES

King George to Take a Trip Under Water With the Submarine Fleet.

LONDON, ENG., MAY 9.—At the naval manouevres this afternoon King George spent some time under water with the submarine fleet. It is understood his Majesty was willing and anxious to take a trip in Commander Samson's water plane this afternoon, but was advised not to do so until the safety devices are more perfect. Messrs. Asquith and Churchill of the government and Mr. A. J. Balfour of the opposition are out with the fleet manouevres this afternoon. They, too, are scheduled to take a trip in the submarines.

MAN, WIFE AND THREE CHILDREN NEED $927 A YEAR TO LIVE

Mr. James Simpson Addresses Local Labour Organizations on Subject of Proposed Weekly Labour Newspaper --A Liberal Response.

Mr. James Simpson of Toronto, who is in the city in the interests of the Labour Education Publishing Co., an organization which is about to publish "The Industrial Banner," a new labour weekly newspaper, addressed a representatation of a number of the local labour organizations in the Labour Hall last evening.

Although the main object of his visit was to make known the prospective publication, he dwelt upon the Labour movement generally. He wished to bring their attention, he said, to a movement that has been propagated in the Province of Ontario to form a Publishing Company. This Company would be composed of Trades, Unions and Labour organizations in all the towns and cities of the province. It was proposed to form a weekly newspaper in Toronto which would breathe the same sentiments as the working man. He dwelt at length upon the labour conditions in Germany and Britain, emphasizing the good work done in those countries by means of their labour press.

If they studied the working conditions of the city of Toronto to-day, he continued, they would find that there were thousands of working men who do not get more than five or six hundred dollars a year. The gas workers of that city drew up some time ago an estimate of the amount necessary to keep a man, his wife and three children. The figure was $927.65 for the year and then the employers kept them down to mere existence point. And the same conditions prevail in Peterborough, and I know that there are men working in this city who have to work two weeks to pay a months rent. It is no wonder then that the labour men of to-day are assuming a more aggressive attitude than they have ever done before. It behoves the working class to work out their own destiny, as they are quite able. Therefore, I want your co-operation in establishing a newspaper that will print the news that you want to read and in making the labour organization in Canada just what it ought to be. Forty thousand dollars was necessary to commence business and shares were being issued of one dollar each, from one to a hundred dollars to individuals, and from one to a thousand dollars to Unions.

Mr. Simpon's appeal met with a liberal response and so far, the project has been a success.

SHE GAINED 20 LBS.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Marlowe, Ont., writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak, watery blood and dropsy. had nervous headaches, dizziness, and sinking spells, and was, in fact, a confirmed invalid. Doctors told me my heart and kidneys were diseased and gave me up. By using 10 boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been cured of many of my old complaints and gained 20 pounds in weight."

"SCRIBE" ADVOCATES AK "INSIDE" SANITARY INSPECTOR

I have just read in the Examiner of the strenuous campaign of the Health Association and the efforts put forth by those estimable ladies who are not only keeping good homes for themselves and families, but find time to assist others in doing better. This is a noble work and every one should help it all in his power. Their task is a big one and will be for some time. While many are helping them, there will always be those who will say "never mind, if we do get sick, the Health Association will look after us" and they will take little notice of the warnings given. It is of this latter class that I want to express some ideas that have come to me. We are reading a lot in the paper lately about the sanitary conditions of the town and the work of the new Inspector. To my mind, there is a gap open yet between Mr. Spence's work and that of the Health Association. I refer to the inside of the homes. I have been in a number of homes of the careless and sometimes the outside does not look so bad, while the inside is an incubator for germs of any kind that may happen along. Once the germ of consumption is found in a home it will be under the care of the visiting nurse and the house will be put on a sanitary basis. As I have said before, the task of the Health Association is a heavy and difficult one and I think it could derive a great deal of help, or at least the necessity for their work lessened, by having, say a nurse or a woman of experience whose work and powers inside the home would be similar to those of the sanitary inspector outside the home. She could inspect all homes and note the ones that were improperly kept—see if the food were left on a dirty shelf uncovered to the flies all day, floors unscrubbed, beds filthy, etc., etc., and find out if it was because the woman did not know better or didn't care or both; also if there were insufficient food, a drunken husband and "no work," etc. These things could be reported to the police and a clean-up ordered "inside" the same as "outside"; for one is as important as the other to the public health. If the man did not work regularly the nurse would soon know, and reporting the same to the police they could make it much less pleasant for him standing around the street corners, etc. As to the support of such a nurse I think it would be a good idea for the various churches of the city to unite to support her. Say 12 churches united, that would be one month's salary from each per year. The nurse could report the delinquents to the pastor of the church to which they claimed allegiance, and in that way they would come under the influence of both the church and the police, and some home mission work would be done equal to any other that could be obtained by the same amount of money and I am sure every subscriber to home mission funds would give with equal cheerfulness.

If these filthy homes were cleaned up, the food properly cared for and plenty of ventilation, there would be much less need for charitable care of the sick and where it is necessary we should have the funds to carry it out

CHILD WAS SICKLY

Mother Says, "I Think Vinol Saved Her Life."

Parents are wise in trying to break up children's coughs quickly, but they are not always as wise as this mother in the means they adopt.

Mrs. Willis Van Inwegen of Bloomingburg, N. Y., says "My small girl had bronchitis all winter till the doctor said it was chronic and we were afraid we should lose her. I commenced giving her Vinol three times a day and now she is growing fine. I think Vinol saved her life."

Children like to take our delicious tonic, Vinol, because it is pleasant. And it is much better for them than so-called "cough medicines" for they have no strengthening power, while Vinol builds up the body and makes the blood rich. Give Vinol to your delicate, run-down children (and take it yourself if you are not as strong as you should be), and you will be delighted with the results. If you are not we give back your money. ANNUAL MEETING OF PARK ST. BAPTIST CHURCH

The annual business meeting of the Park Street Baptist church was held last night in the parlours of the church. The pastor occupied the chair and the business was conducted in an harmonious manner. The various reports showed progress all along the line, and several good balances were reported in hand by the treasurers. The church has increased in its missionary contributions, and a number of new members have been added to the church, making the present number two hundred and five. Two new deacons were elected, Mr. A. Follis and Wm. Hubel, and a new office created when Mr. Thomas Mark was appointed Secretary of the Building Fund.

A choir committee was also appointed to consult with the leader in the interests of the choir, and worship.

The committee consists of two from the choir and three from the church, Brothers Boore, Garside, A. Jackson, Kemp and Follis.

The Church generously voted an increase of over $100, in order to allow the Pastor to put in a telephone, and pay other sundry expenses connected wih his pastoral duties. Altogether the gathering was a tribute to the faithful pastor and workers of this flourishing and growing church in the South end of the city.

The annual roll call will be held the first Sunday in June. Next Sunday, the 17th, the anniversary of the church will be held. Patrick Morgan will preach three times on Sunday.

11 a.m., subject, "A Glorious Victory".

3 p.m., special address for men.

7 p.m., "Christ, the Liberator".

On Monday evening there will be a platform meeting. Mr. Patrick Morgan and others will speak. All are welcome.

URIC ACID SUFFERING

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

WORK IN FULL SWING.

Opening Of New Church

Murray St. Congregation Are Arranging Their Programme

The congregation of the Murray street Baptist church are arranging the programme for the opening of their new church. The opening services will be carried over three Sundays, commencing on Sunday, May 26th, when Rev. J. L. Gilmour, B.A., Toronto, will occupy the pulpit. In the afternoon there will be a platform meeting, addressed by visiting laymen from Montreal and Toronto. On the following Sunday, June 2, the special preacher will be the Rev. O. C. S. Wallace of Baltimore, Md. On June 10th the officers and their wives will give a reception to the entire congregation, when an opportunity will be given of inspecting the new church. On Sunday, June 9, Rev. Thos. Trotter, D.D., of Toronto, will preach.

LOSS OF THE TITANIC.

(Written for the Examiner by J.M.B.)

On a smiling day in April;
From old Liverpool, so grand,
Sailed the staunch good ship, Titanic—
Bound for Canada's fair land.
Manned with six hundred brave sailors,
Passengers, full ninety score;
Freighted with ten million dollars,
Sped she off old England's shore.

On she sailed thro' sun and shadow.
Sailed this liner, proud and grand;
Till once more the stricken people,
Saw again the welcome land.
Then the sun sank in his glory,
Shadows came to bar their way;
But alas! This ship, Titanic,
Saw no more the light of day.

To the harbours of America
Came the sad news "she is lost,"
All surviving in the life-boats
On the briny waves are toss'd.
Helpless hands were wrung for sorrow,
Hearts grew cold with dread and grief;
Till the liner, the "Carpathian"
Came to give poor souls relief.

Oh, the loyal sons of England!
Buried—rich and poor alike—
In their casket strewn with diamonds
Casting over all a blight.
Fathers, mothers, sisters, brothers,
Gone to meet an awful doom,
Leaving loved ones sad and lonely,
Wrapped in darkest, deepest gloom.

"Never sailed so proud a vessel.
Ne'er was one so brave and grand;
Naught could break her staunch, good timbers;
Naught could sink her; nothing stranded!
Why this boast? Oh, man, 'tis error!
—Bow thy proud heart 'neath the rod—
Art thou greater than thy Maker?
Be still; know that there is God!

LAID TO REST

The remains of the late Mr. Samuel Adams, who passe daway in Edmonton, Alta., arrived by the C.P.R. noon train to-day in charge of his brother, William, of Snowflake.

The funeral took place to-day at 4 o'clock at the Little Lake cemetery. A large number of visitors were present, including many of those in sporting circles who knew him by reason of his aptitude for sports. The beautiful display of floral tributes also denoted a kindly remembrance. The Rev. F. J. Sawers, of St. Andrew's church, officiated.

A Clean WATCH

Your Watch, like your house, should be thoroughly overhauled, at least, once a year.

When you consider there is less than one drop of oil used in the entire watch, it is easy to understand how the oil would dry out or thicken and the watch become inaccurate.

We do all kinds of Watch Repairing promptly and reasonably.

NEW REGULATIONS FOR MOVING PICTURE BUSINESS

More stringent regulations of moving picture shows will be enforced on June 1, with respect to illumination, supervision of films, width of aisles, and licenses.

According to the new regulations, theatres with a seating capacity of 300 or under must have two aisles running from the front to the rear, and three feet in width. With accommodation for 500 or under a theatre must have two aisles each 3 1-2 feet wide, and over this capacity two aisles each 4 1-2 feet wide. The exits running across the auditorium must be 3 1-2 feet wide, regardless of the size of the house.

The regulations do not cover building construction or the number of exits. All this is governed by the Municipal Act.

CHAIRS MUST BE FASTENED.

Another change is in regard to the chairs used in theatres. In many rural towns common kitchen chairs are used, which are not fastened to the floor. According to the new order all chairs must be backed together and nailed to the floor.

There have been many complaints about the lack of illumination in picture shows. The new regulations call for two two-candle power lights during the performance, which will mean that all people in the theatre can be seen. The screen will not be blurred in any way by this light.

CENSORSHIP OF FILMS.

The law will be made more effective in the matter of censuring films. In addition to the stamp of the chairman of the board of supervisors on all films, to make doubly certain that they have the approval of the board, a certificate will be shown on the signs on display in front of the theatres. This change will check the cases of the board's stamp of approval being transferred from an authorized film to an unauthorized one. When a film is shown which has not been looked over and approved by the board a fine of not less than $50 and not more than $200, will be imposed and the film may be confiscated and burned.

LICENSE FEE CHANGED.

As the result of complaints the board is given power to censor all slides used in connection with lectures and entertainments, where necessary.

The license fee for film exchanges is changed from a flat rate of $500 annually to $150, and additional charges of 50 cents for each film used. This change is to protect the exchanges whose businesses have been injured by peddlers going about the country doing a film business without paying a license fee. It will also protect the owners in small towns who formerly have had to pay the same rate as city theatres.

The fee for an operator's license is increased from $1 to $2 a year, and provision is made to the effect that only a licensed operator may handle a machine. A class of apprentices or assistant operators is created, each novice paying a fee of $1 for six months, at the end of which time he will be fully qualified. The license fee for a machine is increased from $50 to $75 a year.

Mothers' Day

In Peterborough, as in other cities of merica and other countries, Mothers Day is now being observed on the second Sunday of May each year. It is the custom for persons of all ages to pay respect to mother whether she is living or past to her reward by wearing on that day a white carnation.

Services calculated to promote appreciation of mother's love or pay tribute to her memory are being held in thousands of Sunday schools and churches on that day. Below will be found the order of service for Mother's Day in Murray street Sunday school at 3 p.m. next Sunday.

There are many tender memories connected with the old building of Murray street Baptist church and as this will be one of the last opportunities of a service in that building and as the attendance will be large this open session of the Sunday school will be held upstairs in the main audience room. Combined interest in the old church building, Sunday school, and Mother's Day will influence many to attend this service. Following is the order of service at 3 p.m. Sunday next:

1. Hymn 1131, Tell Me the Old——
2. Prayer—Rev. Mr. Webb.
3. Collection, books, announcements.
4. Hymn by primary class.
5. Address—Mr. Elcombe.
6. Hymn 1007, Will You Meet Me—
7. Address—Rev. Mr. Pogue.
8. Solo — Mother's Prayer, Mr. Huycke.
9. Recitation. Mother, Miss Helen Blade; Love of God, Miss Ethel Hardwicke.
10. Solo—Has Mother's Prayer Been Answered—Miss C. Kidd.
11. Recitation. Prayer for Mother—Miss Aimee Rathbone; A White Carnation, Mr. Walter Batley.
12. Report—
13. Hymn, 949—Glory song.
14. Prayer—Mr. Benjamin Matthews.

WHITE CAP NOTES

Invitations have been received today by officers of the local club and the sporting editors of the Peterborough papers to be the guests of the Hamilton Club at the opening game in the Canadian League on Tuesday.

THE WRECK OF THE TITANIC.

(Written by E. J. S.)

From the seaport of Southampton
On the morn of an April day,
There sailed the great Titanic,
For a port o'er the ocean wave.

With never a thought for danger,
With two thousand souls, or more,
Who, none of them thought for a moment,
They would ne'er see the other shore.

All on board were lighthearted and happy,
As she glided so smooth o'er the waves;
Not a sign of the dreadful disaster,
Not a hint of their horrible fate.

"But what is that they see flashed o'er the waters
To the ships that have sailed in her wake?"
"We have struck an iceberg" was flashed them;
"We are sinking, come quick to our aid."

All were ordered on deck with their life-belts,
Not knowing that the danger was great,
The brave Captain had said, at the starting,
'Twas impossible, the great ship to sink.

Ah! who can know all the bravery;
That was shown on that vessel, that day,
Or how willingly all those brave heroes
Died, the weaker and loved ones to save.

They were brave, yes, all were brave,
From the Captain to the least who was lost;
But the bravest of all that great number
Were the heroes who stuck to their post.

Lost on the great ship, Titanic,
Sunken, to rise no more;
God rest the souls of those hundreds,
Who sailed to reach the shore.

NEWS FROM THE LEAGUE CIRCUIT

Three of the umpires in the Canadian League officiated in the South Michigan League last season. Manager Cooke knows two of them and says one is a fine arbitrator while the other is a ... head. Which argues trouble when Louie's team plays with the other fellow in charge.—Ottawa Free Press.

Manager Lee is of the opinion that O'Brien, the Binghamton pitcher, will prove a welcome addition to the local team. The big fellow is experienced, and yesterday cut loose for the first time since his arrival, showing a lot of stuff. Kehoe is another who is beginning to get down to business, the soreness having left his arm, and he is expected to make things pretty interesting for Billy Rose and the southpaw job on the local staff.—Hamilton Spectator.

Ottawa, May 8.—Hon. Robert Rogers, minister of the interior, will pitch the first ball at the opening game of the Canadian League here next Thursday's match between Berlin and Ottawa, as well as Mayor Hopewell, the councillors and aldermen.

Manager Cook has signified his intention of retaining all the players now on the payroll at Chatham and it is expected that Schwind and Vallear, the Fort Wayne players will also be retained.

The Peterborough baseball club will ... next week, having ... at the ... tendering were: Peterborough, ... gerald, Guelph; W. H. ... Thomas, Belleville, Manager ... Kane, Brantford; W. A. Mahlon, ... W. Sheridan, Guelph; George O'B... London, and Charles G. Stanley, St. Thomas, Secretary Robinson looking after the interests of the Hamilton, Peterborough, Ottawa and Berlin clubs, those four clubs being well satisfied with the draft, as were St. Thomas, London and Brantford. The Guelph complaints were listened to, and finally two changes were made, affecting Guelph, Ottawa and Berlin, a series being transferred from Ottawa for each town. London and Guelph also agreed to switch dates on May 24, Guelph going to London, instead of London playing at Guelph. These the practically the only changes, and Secretary Robinson was instructed to issue the schedule to the press either Thursday or Friday of this week.—Hamilton Spectator.

Hamilton, May 7. — Secretary M. M. Robinson to-day announced that the Hamilton club had succeeded in landing Schaffer a highly recommended first sacker from the Western League and that he would be here in a few days to fill the vacancy caused by the release of Morgatt, the Cleveland recruit, who was let out on Saturday night.

Lee believes Martin, his new shortstop, will be a completely improved ... when the season opens and his ... is now practically complete. It will be:

Catchers—Hess and Fisher.

Pitchers—Rose, Teed, Garlow, Kehoe, Mullowmeaux, O'Brien.

Infielders—Schaffer, first; Killilea, second; Martin, short, and Keenan at third.

Outfielders—Corns, Farrell, Lee.

Utility—Murphy.

"Chic" Mudller the former Berlin twirler whom Lee purchased from Saginaw, has not yet come into the fold.

Considerable satisfaction was felt last night by Manager Kane after Firstbaseman Ivers had worked out. Ivers was slow in reporting but he had been highly recommended. In his initial practice the big fellow showed something and although he will be expected to go faster, the start he made was impressive. Ivers is a talker on the first cushion, has lots of pepper and his throwing yesterday was remarkably accurate. He is supposed to be some hitter, having clouted the ball at a .457 clip for 60 games last year. The fans were greatly impressed with his first base work yesterday and it is likely Bradley, Weddige and the other candidates will be let out to-day.—Brantford Expositor.

Johnnie Bennie arrived home this morning from Peterborough, where he went with the idea of catching a place on the Canadian league team. It was not because he did not have the ability that he failed to etch a place, but because things were not running smoothly. Templin has nine players on the team from near his home city, Reading, and according to Benzie if a an is not in the clique he stands a poor chance of catching a place. The Peterborough papers had nothing but words of praise for Bennie when he was working out.—Hamilton Herald.

It was for spreading the kind of foolish and utterly foundationless talk that Manager Templin let Benzie go. The Hamilton boy, although the lacked the finish and class of Hartman, was a promising infielder, and would have been given a thorough trial and a chance to make good, if he had kept quiet.

Pitchers Paye, Hess, and First Baseman Engle have been released by the Brantford club, and several more are due to go this week. On Sunday at Niagara Falls, Pitcher Baker, the London recruit, worked four innings without allowing a hit. Brantford won, 5 to 0. The pitchers are Coose, Donovan, Tasker, and likely to be retained by the Red Sox Baker. Ivers, first baseman, has reported to the club. The infielders who have caught on are Novak, Brasel, Courtney, and Cassani, while Hart and Burrill look good in the outfield. Efforts are being made to secure a pitcher of the "Lefty" Smith kind, and the club will then be complete.

Rowe, of Barrie, the pitcher who will try out with Guelph, reported yesterday, and will work out with them. Bridy, the first baseman, arrived last evening. The ... commenced to fall last night, Manager Needham dispensing with the services of Moriarty, outfielder; Flynn, shortstop; and R. O'Connor, catcher. There are three shortstops trying out: F. O'Conor, Burke, and Hackbush. Campbell, a pitcher from Cobalt, is the only one not yet reported.

Conny Murphy will be retained with the Colts this year. He has earned a berth and deserves it. His game yesterday at first base was almost brilliant. He got into the good graces of the crowd with a sensational one-hand stab of a high liner from Martin, and followed up by making a grandstand catch of a foul fly, grandstand in more ways than one, for he took it off the railing in front of the grandstand. Conny is certainly playing great ball this spring and is easily the best utility man in the league, being capable of going any place but the pitcher's mound.—Hamilton Spectator.

CHATHAM, MAY 8.—The Ottawa pitching staff was completed last night with the arrival of Pitcher McManus, a right hander from Fort Wayne. This is the sixth man from Frank Shaughnessy's Central League Club sent here to join the Ottawa crew and they are all first-class ball players. McManus has been working regularly since the start of the Central League season, and on Monday held Terra Haute to five hits and one run.

Manager Cook has one of the snappiest infield local fans have seen for a long time. Detroit travelling men who have been watching the Canadian Leaguers work out here, say that Schwind and Robertson are faster than Bush and Baumann of Jenning's Tigers and both are quite up to the speed of Vitt. Cook is making the second bag impenetrable and with big Champeau on first, a nifty infield is completed. The pitching staff should have the other Canadian League Clubs at their mercy if they keep up their present form. A brigade of London and St. Thomas fans were over yesterday morning, watching the Senators and happened to blow in when the infield was well warmed up and going fast. They predicted that no matter what kind of a start the club from Ottawa got off to, the material was there and they would surely run one, two, three in the Fitzgerald organization.

CROSS STITCHING.

All the Girls Are Making Attractive Things In This Work.

If you are not cross stitching these days you are distinctly not doing the latest fancy work.

The latest cross stitching is Dresden in effect. Even the lettering shows tiny colored flowers mingled with outlines in plain dark colorings, and there are wreaths, baskets, trees and borders graceful in outline and artistic in tint.

These designs come by the sheet. The coloring is stamped and is easy to follow. As the paper tears easily, each sheet should be pasted to a cardboard. This makes it more durable, and it can be propped before the worker when being copied.

Mercerized cottons especially for cross stitching are used. They can be had in lovely soft colors and also in very crude ones, so it behooves the seeker after artistic results to choose carefully. The prettiest effects are obtained by using a very fine canvas and a fine cotton. This quite does away with the coarse look that many object to in cross stitch embroidery.

The colored cottons are generally fast dyes and launder well, so one need not hesitate to use them on household linens that require constant washing.

Guest towels are chief favorites for the Dresden cross stitching. Sometimes these have the initials only; again, there is a narrow border of pink roses and green leaves, with initials to match, or a wreath of the roses and leaves, with a single letter inclosed. Occasionally the letters are placed at one end of the towel, with a cross stitched basket filled with varicolored flowers at the other end.

This is arranged so that when the towel is folded the basket hangs above the initials. Another pretty effect has a stiff cross stitched tree on each side of the towel about an inch in from the edge, with initials on the inside.

A pair of the guest towels make a dainty engagement present of price. When used for the latter a medallion design is suitable in which the initial can be inserted when the winner is known. The hostess may offer to do this or can inclose a square of the canvas and enough cotton to work the letters. If there is no objection to cutting a sheet the desired letter may be included.

Smart porch table covers of heavy crash are being made up with large baskets of cross stitch flowers in detached designs. These are grouped a few inches above the edge, which may be finished in a hemstitched hem or with a heavy compound scallop buttonholed in white mercerized cotton. A heavy lace is occasionally used to edge the table and bureau covers, but it adds to the cost and is less stylish than the plainer finish.

PETERBOROUGH'S GAMES AT HOME AND ABROAD

The Canadian League Schedule Condensed for the Benefit of the Busy Fans—"White Caps" Open Here on May 22 and Have 54 Games at Home.

The Canadian League schedule will be found elsewhere in to-day's sporting page. The schedule is a good one, and the Peterborough directors are well satisfied with it. The London team has to travel a distance of 3,200 miles, the smallest mileage, with the exception of Hamilton, Lee's Colts having to go only 3,100 miles. This is because Hamilton is more centrally located than any of the other teams. The Ottawa team has to travel 7,800 miles, the largest distance of any club in the league. Peterborough is next with 5,800, and St. Thomas, Guelph and Berlin follow in the above order. The St. Thomas team has to travel 4,800 miles. Following are Peterborough games at home and abroad:

"WHITE CAPS" WERE BEATEN IN BASKETBALL GAME

LOST TO Y. M. C. A. 26-22

The White Caps Basketball team, selected from the Peterborough Canadian League Club went down to defeat at the hands of a picked Y. M. C. A. five last night, in an interesting and exciting game by 26 points to 22. The half-time figure was 14 to 12 in favour of the "Y" outfit, who were never headed throughout. The ball tossers made a fine showing, considering that they have had little or no practice together, and that they were handicapped by the enforced absence of Irwin Trout, one of their most capable players. The Americans were in better condition, physically, and had it on Coach Dolan's squad in team work and combination, but the White Caps kept plugging away all the time, and it was anybody's game until the final whistle. Earl Hartman was the pick of the ball team five, scoring seven baskets, several of them on pretty shots from half way out, but at that the Eastern league star did not shoot in his usual form. The baskets bothered him, being much closer to the screen than he has been accustomed to. Catcher Jim Mooney, and outfielder Jimmy Beard did good work as guards, and Babe Tully, the big shortstop, worked hard at centre. Peanuts Scull went on in the second half in place of Mooney, and was generally in the thick of the fray. Ducky Ulmer found the baskets a little small in the first half but he managed to bag a couple of scores in the second period.

The Y. M. C. A. team was selected from the Hustlers and Brownies and put up a snappy, pretty exhibition of basketball. They uncorked a speedy combination and shot nicely. Hanwell and Nicholls, the two forwards, did some fine gunning, and Sandy Hall slipped up the floor a few times and dropped the leather through the charmed circle in clever fashion.

The game was played half under Y. M. C. A. rules and half under the American National Association conditions, the latter being played for the first time in this city.

There was a big bunch of spectators on hand in the gallery. All the ball squad were there, including Manager Templin, while the "Y" team had many supporters. The game caused plenty of excitement, and amusement, and another may be put on the cards. "Faggie" Schwarts says his basketball Yannigans can trim the five that represented the White Caps last night, while the pitching staff of the ball club say Dolan's "Dublin Daisies" couldn't expect to do much shooting without more twirlers on the team.

Mr. J. J. Thompson, Physical Director of the Y. M. C. A., was referee. His duties were light, and only one foul was called during the night. The teams lined up as follows:

Y.M.C.A.—Forwards, Hanwell, Nicholls; centre, Wallis; guards, Loomis, Hall.

White Cap Notes

Manager Templin and his squad did not appreciate yesterday's rain as it caused an enforced rest for the day as far as outdoor operations were concerned. The team was rounding nicely into shape and a lay-off at this stage puts back the training operations considerably. However, this afternoon a full nine innings' game is being played between the Regulars and Yannigans. There will be another battle to-morrow at the Oval, with Derr and Bayer doing the twirling, and no doubt there will be a big crowd of spectators on hand to see the White Caps battle. To-morrow's game will be called at 2.30.

Manager Templin's catching squad is not in the best of shape at present but it is hoped they will be all right for the beginning of the campaign. Trout is still suffering from the effect of the injury he received on Wednesday when he was "beaned" by a pitched ball, and Brede has a sore thumb.

Manager Templin is planning his pitching staff for next week's games. Johnnie Derr is billed to pitch the opener in Hamilton, Bayer will likely be sent in against the Colts on the following day and Germany Schaefler will in all probability be called upon to work in the first game in Brantford.

Yesterday was not altogether wasted as the Regulars of the squad had a profitable talk on signals and all the players worked out in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium.

Teed has been selected by Knotty Lee to pitch the opening game of the season against the White Caps next Tuesday in Hamilton. The Peterborough squad will leave for Hamilton on the 4.28 C.P.R. train Monday afternoon and will not return to Peterborough until the morning of May 23 when the season commences here.

The Examiner will cover all the Canadian League games at home and abroad in complete manner, and will have the scores each evening through special telegraphic service. The fans who wish to keep up to the minute in Canuck League doings, will find the information they are looking for in the Examiner.

The White Caps squad will be the guests of the Marlborough Club at a smoker in the latter's club rooms to-night.

Hamilton Spectator:

Harry Schaefer, the new first baseman, is expected in to-day. His arrival will complete the squad, and the Hams will line up for the opening game with Peterborough on Tuesday, as follows:

Schafer, 1b.
Keenan, 3b.
Lee, r.f.
Corns, c.f.
Killilea, 2b.
Farrell, l.f.
Fisher, c.
Martin s.s.
Teed, p.

This will mean a pretty formidable line-up. The first five players hit over the .300 mark last season and stole 161 bases between them, an average of 32 each. Guess 'twill be enough to worry a few of the pitchers next week.

Walter Teed will likely draw the opening day pitching assignment. He is in the best of shape at any of the twirlers at the present time, although he suffered a slight wrench of his back yesterday.

BRANDT GOES BACK.

Schiff's Valet Is Sent to Dannemora Prison.

New York, May 11.—Folks E. Brandt, former valet to Mortimer Schiff, was ordered sent back to Dannemara prison by the appellate division of the Supreme Court yesterday. The court was unanimous in dismissing the writ of habeas corpus granted by Justice Gerard.

Two hours after the decision was rendered Brandt was arrested in his home at Flushing, L.I., and taken to the Tombs.

By order of the Appellate Division Court he must be returned to Dannemora, where he was serving a thirty-year term for burglary, to which he was sentenced by Judge Rosalsky on the complaint of Mortimer L. Schiff.

Justice Gerard released Brandt in $7,500 bail in habeas corpus proceedings, finding that the former valet had been illegally sentenced for burglary in the first degree by Judge Rosalsky. Bail was furnished by the Empire Security Co. Upon the release of Brandt by Justice Gerard, District Attorney Whitman and Attorney-General Carmody carried an appeal to the Appellate Division, which has sustained their contention that Justice Gerard misinterpreted the legal status of the case.

Five of the justices of the Appellate Division were unanimous in their decision that Brandt should go back to jail, but Justice Ingraham wrote a supplementary opinion to the majority opinion of Justice Miller.

The judgment of the court does not confirm the sentence on a review of the case, but simply determines the legal point whether the sentence was in excess of the original court' spower. It is scarcely likely that the case will be allowed to remain where it is, and it is possible that Governor Dix may exercise his powers of clemency.

Taft's Tour of Ohio.

Washington, May 11.—The complete schedule of President Taft's final campaign tour of Ohio before the Presidential primaries there on May 21 was made public last night.

Political advisers of the President regard his visit to his home state as of the highest importance and Mr. Taft probably never has had a more difficult or exacting program of speech-making mapped out for him. From the time he leaves Washington next Sunday afternoon until he returns on the morning of May 22, the President will be on the go practically every minute. His only real rests will be in Cleveland next Thursday and in Cincinnati the following Saturday and one election day, May 21. On every day he speaks he will make ten speeches, except on Sunday, May 18, when he will make twelve, and on Thursday, when he will speak at a big night gathering at Cleveland.

KING GEORGE VISITS FLEET

His Majesty Has a Taste of War Conditions in Peace

ATTACK BY SUBMARINES

Weymouth, Eng., May 11.—King George spent a long day yesterday on board the battleship Neptune, which headed the first and second squadrons of the fleet out into the channel for gun practice and battle manoeuvres. The weather continued hazy but the two battle squadrons were able to carry out their gunnery practice fifteen miles out at sea, and during the afternoon the roar of the big guns was distinctly audible here and doors and windows rattled under the concussion. His Majesty, therefore, experienced as near war conditions as is possible in time of peace.

King George passed practically the whole morning inspecting the hydro-aeroplane invented by Horace Short, on which Acting Commander Chas. R. Samson on Thursday carried out a series of evolutions round the British fleet. The facility with which the hydro-aeroplane was manoeuvred was a revelation to everyone not immediately attached to the naval flying corps.

It has not yet been divulged whether arrangements have been made to give the King the trip in the air which he desires so much.

The hydro-aeroplane used by Commander Samson has sufficient capacity to carry petrol and oil for a six hours' flight, giving a radius of 300 miles.

Commander Samson yesterday gave the King a brief explanation of the capabilities of the machine with which he soared, volplaned and dodged in and out between the vessels of the fleet, finally skimming the surface of the sea until he came into the vicinity of a breakwater, over which he leaped.

Red Cross and Prisoners.

Washington, May 11.—In order that prisoners of war, as well as those wounded on the battlefield, may receive the benefit of the Red Cross, the International Red Cross conference yesterday adopted a resolution suggesting that the International Red Cross committee of Geneva, an absolutely neutral body, take care of the prisoners of war of both countries engaged.

The resolution was offered by Gen. Michel, head of the French delegation at the conference.

Hughes Compromise Candidate?

New York, May 11.—A mass meeting, which an organization of Brooklyn Republicans have been planning to boom Justice Charles E. Hughes of the Supreme Court for the Presidential nomination, has been called off in deference to the wishes of the justice. Should President Taft fail to win out in Ohio, the plans for the rally will be resumed, it is said.

William Langton Killed.

Toronto, May 11.—While working on an engine driving wheel in the C.P.R. shops in ward seven yesterday afternoon, William Langton slipped and fell. In some manner the heavy wheel fell, crushing his head and chest. He was immediately taken to the Western Hospital, where he died at 4.45.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC IS GOING WEST

Five More Towns Have Arranged For a Service Next Week

ESTIMATES SUBMITTED

Toronto, May 11.—Five more towns in the northern part of the province will be served by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission—Barrie, Stayner, Collingwood, Goldwater and Elmvale. This fact was announced yesterday by the Hon. Adam Beck.

Preliminary estimates have been submitted by the commission to the town of Barrie for a supply of power under contract between the commission and the Simcoe Railway & Power Co., developing at the Big Chute Falls on the Severn River. An extension of the lines built by the commission supplying Midland and Penetang will be made to the five new municipalities in the Hydro-Electric belt. Final estimates will be submitted to these towns in the course of a week or two.

The prices will compare favorably with those prevailing at Stratford, St. Mary's, London and St. Thomas, in the Niagara district. Barrie and Goldwater are submitting bylaws on June 3 and 7. It is expected that Collingwood will take action as soon as the final estimates are submitted. This will mean much for the industrial development of the north.

Contracts have also been let for the material for the new district south of Dundas, including Caledonia, Hagersville and Cayuga. The erection of this line will be under way in the course of a week. A considerable quantity of power in this district will be used by the Alabastine and Crown Gypsum Works. Very favorable power prices will obtain in this district.

Government to Run School.

Toronto, May 11.—It is understood that the Victoria Industrial School at Mimico will be taken over by the Government and placed under the direct supervision of the Department of Education. This report is based on the result of the recent investigation into conditions existing at the institution. The report of the investigators dealt largely with the discipline of the school, gave suggestions for improvement, and called attention to the misuse of that school in casing for youths with a criminal streak. As the care of these young criminals is one of the purposes of the prison farm at Guelph, it is said that the Government hereafter intends to prevent the commitment of them to the school, there being no means of detention or preventing their escape.

The school is provided with facilities to teach the boys trades and as a result of the investigation it is believed that more facilities will be provided in order to make over unruly boys into good citizens.

Sunday Train For I.C.R.

St. John, N.B., May 11.—Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways, before leaving for Moncton and Nova Scotia, to continue an inspection of the Intercolonial Railway, was asked if it was the intention to put on a Sunday train on the Intercolonial.

He said: "Yes, on the main line, but not Halifax and Montreal." He added: "I suppose some of the people down here will be giving me the very dickens about it, but I don't see anything for it but to put on a Sunday train. The passenger traffic is increasing and I think it is up to the I.C.R. to provide more trains."

Quiet In Coal Fields.

Philadelphia, May 11.—Outside of the attack on the Cayuga breaker of the Lackawanna Coal Co., in North Scranton by about 2,000 foreigners, there was no rioting of consequence in the hard coal field yesterday.

The North Scranton disturbance was quickly quelled and everything is quiet to-day.

Chief interest now centres in the action the miners will take on Tuesday when they meet in Wilkesbarre to either approve or reject the action of their representatives who took part in the recent conference in New York.

Brotherhood at Ottawa.

Ottawa, May 11.—The delegation of the Brotherhood Federation left last night for Toronto. During the day they held a meeting at Stewarton Church, where addresses were made and a dinner was tendered to them at the Young Men's Christian Association at which the object of the visit was ably explained.

Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden met the party on Parliament Hill.

Another Postmaster Accused.

Chatham, May 11.—A. J. Pasha, postmaster at Kent Bridge, is accused of partisanship in the federal elections. This he denies. An investigation will be made.

Boy Cannot Recover.

Toronto, May 11.—Stanley Jess, a four-year-old boy was severely injured by being struck by a street car, while crossing Gerrard street last night and is lying in an unconscious condition at the General Hospital. The doctors state that his skull is very badly fractured and that he cannot recover.

Optical Institute Talk No. 3

It Will Pay You

We frequently hear from persons far and near that they would not be without the eye-glasses which they had from the Optical Institute for several times their price. One lady remarked, I wouldn't take $50 for my glasses; another "they are worth ten times their price to me." A gentleman says "I wear mine constantly scarcely know they are on, but have perfect sight far and near. They are worth all they cost me and I want another pair in case of an accident."

The best cost a little more and require a little more time to have made up but it pays, and they are worth all you pay when they please you.

Englishwoman Sentenced to Prison in Poland as a Spy.

Warsaw, Russian Poland, May 11.—Miss Malecka, an English woman, was sentenced yesterday to four years' penal servitude on a charge of being affiliated with the Polish revolutionaries.

Storm of Protest.

London, May 11.—The Liberal morning newspapers protest strongly against the sentencing of Miss Malecka declaring that she was sentenced on the flimsiest of evidence. They demand that the British Foreign Office take strong action against Russia in behalf of the woman.

Miss Malecka was arrested July 4 of last year charged with complicity in plots of the Polish revolutionaries. The British Foreign Office made representations to Russia, which country replied that although Miss Malecka's mother was English and her father a Pole naturalized in England, the father never had received permission to change his nationality, and, therefore, in accordance with British law, his naturalization was ineffective and his daughter was a Russian subject.

To Sell Pulp Limit.

Toronto, May 11.—Tenders will be invited by the Provincial Government for the Abitibi pulp limit. It is understood that this is the first step on the part of the Government in its development policy for Northern Ontario, for which $5,000,000 was appropriated at the last session of the Legislature, and was foreshadowed in a speech made by Hon. W. H. Hearst, Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines. Incident to the lease of this limit will be the construction of works at Iroquis Falls, and in order to facilitate the development of the district, special conditions will be attached to the lease.

Wm. Davidge Acquitted.

Toronto, May 11.—After an hour's deliberation the jury in the case of William Davidge, who was charged with the murder of his wife, Esther Davidge, returned a verdict of not guilty at five o'clock yesterday afternoon. Davidge was immediately discharged.

T C Robinette, counsel for the defence, objected to Crown Prosecutor Blackstock reading the ante mortem statement of Mrs. Davidge to the jury. Mr. Justice Middleton upheld the crown and the statement was read. Mr. Blackstock strenuously objected to his lordship's charge to the jury, holding that he laid too much stress on the need for caution in receiving Mrs. Davidge's statement. Mr. Justice Middleton refused to recharge the jury but promised a reserved case for the crown for the Court of Appeal if such was desired.

SOME WERE NOT HEROIC

Occupants of Boat 15 on "Titanic" Made a Stampede

DISMAY IN ENGLAND

London, May 11.—That all the members of the crew of the Titanic did not act in the manner expected from men of their calling on the night of the disaster is being slowly drawn out from the witnesses at the British Board of Trade enquiry under the searching examination of Sir Rufus Isaacs and other counsel.

From a witness, S. J. Rule, a bathroom steward, it was learned that there was a rush on lifeboat No. 15, and that she left the Titanic with only four or five women and three children, while sixty-one men got away in her.

Rule said that scouts were sent to look for women and children, but they looked on only one deck and then returned.

Sir Rufus Isaacs promised to have every man from boat No. 15 brought before the court as far as possible.

Lord Mersey has decided to inquire thoroughly into the loading of the boats and the failure of those only partially filled to return to pick up those in the water.

So important did the White Star Co. consider the evidence of Charles Hendrickson, one of the firemen of the Titanic, who testified yesterday that his lifeboat had not returned to the scene of the disaster because Sir Cosmo and Lady Duff-Gordon objected that it would be dangerous to do so, that the company's attorney yesterday requested that the cross-examination be postponed. The attorney desired time to consult with the surviving officers who are arriving on the Adriatic. The request was granted.

Ismay Arrives In England.

Southampton, May 11.—The White Star liner Adriatic arrived here from New York at 1.45 o'clock yesterday afternoon. No reporters were permitted to go on board. The passengers report that J Bruce Ismay, managing director of the White Star Line, is in good health. He kept to his own stateroom nearly all the time throughout the voyage, very seldom appearing on deck. Mrs. Ismay went out on the tender to join him.

Cannot Decide on Cards.

Minneapolis, May 11.—Paragraph 260 of the discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church still is undecided and the question of whether dancing, card-playing and kindred amusements are to be left only to the "conscience" of the members of the church remains a bone of contention in the committee on the state of the church.

Dr. Leander W. Mulhall of Philadelphia administered a reproof to the College of Bishops of the church when he said in opposing the striking out of the section, that the bishops' duties are such that they "cannot give full consideration to the spiritual affairs of the church and their judgment in this case is not of the best."

Engineer Is Injured.

Guelph, May 11.—A yard engine leaving Guelph with a load of hay for the provincial prison farm, crashed into a way freight from Toronto on a sharp curve 100 yards east of Trainor's Cut, about 4.30 p.m. yesterday. Both engineers reversed their levers and with the firemen jumped.

Engineer Williamson of Toronto, who was on the engine of the way freight, was slightly hurt.

The yard engine is badly smashed up, and the tender is lying on the embankment. The car containing the hay was completely demolished.

The cause of the accident is alleged to be a mistake by the operator at Rockwood.

St. Thomas Man Killed.

St. Thomas, May 11.—While returning from his work last night at the Hydro-Electric station at the north of the city, Patrick O'Keefe, aged 39 years, fell from the high Pere Marquette bridge into a deep gully, being instantly killed.

Charges at Kingston "Pen."

Ottawa, May 11.—The investigation into conditions at the Kingston Penitentiary, as the result of the recent escape of the Manitoba convicts will be concluded to-day, and the report will be submitted to the Minister of Justice next week. It is, however, practically certain that Dr. Platt, the warden of the penitentiary, will soon be superannuated. Deputy Warden O'Leary will also, it is said, be retired. Strong influence is being brought to appoint John Hughes, the present secretary, as warden to succeed Dr. Platt.

Officials Deny Deal.

Hamilton, May 11.—Directors of the Dominion Power & Transmission Co. yesterday denied the story that a deal had been closed by which the Mackenzie-Mann interests had secured control of the Hamilton radial road or any of the other electric lines of the company.

City officials and those in close touch with the situation here, believe that it will not be long before a deal will be made.

Norwegian Crew Save Lives

Halifax, May 11.—The Norwegian steel bark Urbye from Genoa for Bridgewater, with ballast to load for River Platte, ran ashore at Port Beckerton Thursday night in a thick fog and is a total loss. The captain and crew escaped in the ship's boats. The crew arrived in Beckerton safely and left for Halifax to-day.

Asquith In Taft Plot?

"Then, possibly, you may rather welcome a new diversion. I can assure you our criminals out here are the most interesting portion of our population. I wish I might have your permission."

Standing there before her, bareheaded, his slightly tanned face strong and manly, his grey eyes filled with humour, Miss Maclaire recognized again that he was not of the common herd, and the innate coquetry of her nature obtained mastery. What harm could it do for her to chat with him for half an our? It was better than eating a lonely meal, and, besides, she might learn something of value to report to Hawley. Her own eyes brightened, the slight frown disappearing.

"You are certainly an illustration of your theory," she said pleasantly. "I shall have to say yes, but, really, I did not suppose you would enjoy being ranked among that class."

He drew out a chair, and sat down facing her, leaning slightly forward upon the intervening table.

"Nor would I, only I recognize you do not comprehend. The source of your information is a bit polluted, Miss Maclaire. There are those whose good opinion I do not seek, and you should not form your decisions on the unsupported testimony of a personal enemy."

"Oh, indeed," rather resenting the words, and already regretful of her compliance. "Surely I have as much reason to trust my informant as I have you. He, at least, has proven himself a friend."

"I wish I could feel as fully assured of that as you do," he returned honestly. "I would then have every temptation to meddle further taken away from me. Do you realize that my interest is very largely upon your account?"

"Oh, no," laughing. "I couldn't believe that. I—I have heard it whispered it might be because of the other girl."

"The other girl!" in complete surprise at this swift return.

"Yes, sir," conscious of having attained the upper hand. "Miss Hope Waite."

"Some more of Mr. Hawley's fancies," he retorted, perplexed that so much should be suspected. "Have you seen her?"

"Why, of course. I am a woman, Mr. Keith, with all the natural curiosity of my sex. In this case I had special reason to be interested. One does not meet her counterpart every day."

"The resemblance between you is certainly most striking."

"Sufficiently so," she said slowly, her eyes on his face, "to abundantly confirm in my mind the truth of all that has been told me."

The waiter approached with the orders, and the two remained in silence until he had deposited his load upon the table, and departed. She was watching the face opposite through lowered lashes that veiled her eyes, but Keith was first to break the stillness.

"I wish I might be told what that was."

"To what do you refer?" apparently forgetful as to where their conversation had been broken.

"To Hawley's proposition."

"No doubt," her lips smiling, "but you have come to the wrong market, Mr. Jack Keith."

"Yes," he insisted earnestly, "if this is all straight, with no fraud concealed anywhere, if you have the proofs in your hands, why are you afraid to talk openly? The very manner in which Hawley works should convince you he is himself afraid to face the truth."

"No, you are wrong. There are perfectly satisfactory reasons why we should for the present keep our plans secret. There are details yet to be decided upon, and Mr. Hawley's present objection to publicity is only ordinary prudence."

"Mr. Keith, I cannot help but like you, and I also feel most kindly disposed toward Mr. Hawley. I wish in this I was no longer compelled to consider you an enemy to us both. There is no reason why I should, except for your blind prejudice against this other man who is my friend. I know you have some cause, for he has told me the entire story, yet I am sure he did no more than his actual duty. He let me realise how very sorry he was that the marshal at Carson City had called upon him for assistance."

"Who Hawley" Keith questioned, hardly trusting his own ears.

"Yes; indeed he is a very different man from what you have been led to believe. I know he is a gambler, and all that, but really it is not altogether his fault. He told me about his life, and it was very sad. He was driven from home when only a boy, and naturally drifted into evil company. His one ambition is to break away, and redeem himself. I am so anxious to help him, and wish you could realize his purpose, as I do, and become his friend. Won't you, for my sake? Why, even in this affair he has not the slightest mercenary purpose—he has only thought of what was rightfully mine."

Keith listened, feeling to the full the woman's earnestness, the impossibility of changing her fixed conviction. Hawley had planted his seed deep and well in fruitful soil.

"You make a strong and charming advocate, Miss Maclaire," he returned, feeling the necessity of saying something. "I should like to have you equally earnest on my side. Yet it will be hard to convince me that 'Black Bart' is the paragon of virtue you describe. I wish I might believe for your sake. Did he also explain how he came into possession of these papers"

"Oh, yes, indeed; there is no secret about that. They were entrusted to him by an old man whom he discovered sick in Independence, and who died in his rooms three years ago. Mr. Hawley has been searching ever since for the old man's granddaughter. It is remarkable how he was finally convinced that I was the one."

"A photograph, was it not?"

A gleam of sudden suspicion appeared in the brown eyes, a slight change in facial expression.

"That was a clue, yes, but far from being all. But why should I tell you this?—you believe nothing I say."

"I believe that you believe; that you are fully convinced of the justice of your claim. Perhaps it is just, but I am suspicious of anything which Bart Hawley has a hand in. Miss Christie, you really make me wish to retain your friendship, but I cannot do so if the cost includes faith in Hawley. Do you know that is not even his name—that he lives under an alias?"

"Is there anything strange in that out here?" she asked stoutly. "I told you how deeply he regretted his life; that alone would be sufficient cause for him to drop his family name. Did you ever learn his true name?"

He was not sure—only as Neb had reported what Waite had called the man, yet ventured a direct reply.

"Bartlett, I believe—he uses it now as a prefix."

"Bartlett!—Bartlett!" her hands clasping, and unclasping nervously. "Why, what a strange coincidence!"

"How? What do you mean?"

"Oh, nothing—nothing," biting her lips in vexation. "The name merely recalled something. But really I must go, Mr. Keith, or I shall be late at the theatre. You have not attended since I came?"

"No," arising from the table with her. "However, I have heard you sing before, and hope I may again."

"How tenderly you dwell on that word 'hope,'" she said banteringly; "it almost makes me envious."

"Your resemblance almost makes me forget."

"But not quite."

"No, not quite," he confessed, smiling back into her quizzing eyes.

They went out into the hall together, only to meet with Doctor Fairbain at the door. The latter stared at the two with some embarrassment, for a moment forgetful of his purpose. His gaze settled on the face of the lady.

"Always getting you two mixed," he blurted forth. "Never saw such resemblance — positively uncanny—same hotel too means trouble—this Miss Waite?"

"No, Doctor; I am Miss Maclaire."

"Ought to have known it—if I knew as much about faces as I do about anatomy never would make such mistake—very sorry—what fooled me was seeing you with Keith—thought he was after the other one—gay dog though—never satisfied—was hunting after you."

"After me?" evidently amused.

"Certainly—you—went to the room—then to the clerk—said you were in at supper—just occurred to me streets here bad at night—thought I'd ask you to let me escort you to theatre and back—a bit of lunch later—" he glanced suspiciously at Keith—"probably got here too late."

"Well, really, you have, Doctor," she replied sweetly, veiling her eyes to hide her laughter. "But I can assure you it is not Mr. Keith," courtseying slightly to the latter, "for he has not honoured me, we merely met by chance at the table. I am sure I should enjoy your company exceedingly, but to-night I must plead a previous engagement."

"Ah—ah, some other night"

"With pleasure, yes."

The doctor faded away into the office, not wholly satisfied because Keith still lingered. Miss Christie extended her hand.

"Isn't he a funny man? But I do like him—someway I like so many people whom perhaps I ought not, including you, Mr. Jack Keith. Please think over what I told you about Mr. Hawley, won't you?"

"Certainly; you have given me food for thought. I presume he is to be your escort?"

She bowed, evidently resenting the question.

"Yes, and it may interest you to know that he has something of the utmost importance to tell me to-night—he has actually seen my guardian. Don't you wish you could be there"

She gave him a tantalizing smile, withdrawing her hand, and running up the stairs before he could answer. Over the railing of the landing she glanced down, and then disappeared.

CHAPTER XXVII.

MISS HOPE SUGGESTS.

No sooner had Miss Maclaire vanished than Keith's thoughts turned toward Hope Waite. She would need someone in her loneliness to take her mind from off her brother's death, and, besides, much had occurred of interest since the funeral, which he desired to talk over with her. Beyond even these considerations he was becoming aware of a pleasure in the girl's company altogether foreign to this mystery which they were endeavouring together to solve. He yearned to be with her, to look into her face, to mark how clearly the differing soul changed her from Christie Maclaire. He could not help but like the latter, yet somehow was conscious of totally different atmospheres surrounding the two. With one he could be flippant, careless, even deceitful, but the other aroused only the best that was in him, her own sincerity making him sincere.

Yet there was reluctance in his steps as he approached the door of "18," a laggardness he could not explain, but which vanished swiftly enough at Hope's greeting, and the sudden smile with which she recognized him.

"I was sure you would come," she declared frankly, "and I took an early lunch so as to be certain and be here. It has seemed a long time since."

"And you might have even thought I had forgotten," he answered, releasing her hand reluctantly, "if you could have looked into the dining-room since, instead of staring out of these windows."

"Why? How forgotten?" her eyes opening wide in surprise.

"Oh-" the exclamation decidedly expressive.

"Yes, I come at once to you with the confession. However, our meeting was purely accidental, and so I hope for pardon."

"Pardon from me? Why, what difference can it possibly make to me?"

"Would you have me consort with the enemy" he asked, scarcely daring to press his deeper meaning.

"Oh, no, of course not. What did you talk about? Do you mind telling?"

"Not in the least; our conversation was entirely impersonal. She was telling me about Hawley; what a wonderfully good man he is. I have begun to suspect the fellow has fascinated the poor girl—he is a good-looking devil, possessed of a tongue dripping with honey."

"Surely you do not mean she has fallen in love with him," and Hope shuddered at the thought. "Why—why that would be impossible for—for a good woman."

"Standards of morality are not always the same," he defended gravely. "Miss Maclaire's environment has been vastly different from yours, Hope. She is a variety hall singer; probably, from her own account, a waif since childhood; and Hawley has come to her in the character of a friend, appealing both to her interest and sympathy. I do not know she is in love with him, I merely suspect she may be; certainly she is ready to do battle on his behalf at the slightest opportunity. She believes in him, defends him, and resents the slightest insinuation directed against him. He even escorts her back and forth from her work."

"You know this"

"I certainly do," and he laughed at the recollection. "Fairbain met us coming out of the dining-room—you know what a delightful, blunt, blundering old fellow is! Well, Miss Christie must have made an impression even on his bachelor heart, for he actually requested the privilege of escorting her to the Trocadero, and back to the hotel after the performance to-night—hinted at a lunch, the gay old dog, and pranced about like a stage-door Johnnie. It was a treat to watch her face when he blurted it all out, snapping his sentences as if he swung a whip-lash. She excused herself on account of a previous engagement."

"But that was not necessarily with Hawley."

"I asked her directly, after the doctor had disappeared.

"You must have become very familiar," questioning once again in her voice.

"So Miss Maclaire evidently thought, judging from her manner. However, she answered frankly enough, and, even defiantly, added the information that the gentleman had something to impart to her of the utmost importance, sarcastically asking me if I didn't wish I could be there and overhear. But sit down, Hope, until I tell you all that has occurred."

He went over the various events in detail, watching eagerly the expression as she listened intently, only occasionally interrupting with some pertinent inquiry. The light fell so that she sat partially in the shadow, where her eyes could not be read, yet he experienced no difficulty in comprehending the various moods with which she met his narrative, the colour changing in her cheeks, her supple form bending toward him, or leaning backward in the chair, her fingers clasping or unclasping in nervous attention. He began with Neb's report, repeating, word by word, as nearly as he could recollect, what had passed between Hawley and her father. He paused to inquire if she had ever heard the name Bartlett, but her reply was merely a negative shake of the head. When he described their missing the train, she was, apparently, not convinced as to the General's departure upon it, although finally agreeing that, if he really believed the report that the man sought was elsewhere, it would be characteristic of him to accept the first means of getting there. "If he only knew I was here," she exclaimed wearily, "it might be so different; but, oh, we are all of us groping in the dark." Then Keith turned to his chance meeting with Miss Maclaire, and repeated carefully their conversation, dwelling particularly upon the few admissions which had slipped through her lips. These did not seem important to either, although they treasured them up and talked them over. Then, having exhausted the topic, silence fell between them, Keith asking the privilege of lighting a cigar. Hope, after watching him apply the match, thinking what a fine face he had as the ruddy flame brought it forth with the clearness of a cameo, leaned back, drawing aside the semblance to a lace curtain, and staring forth, without seeing, into the street.

Saves one ton in seven

Figure up your annual coal bill, divide it by seven, and you have the amount the Hecla Furnace will save you every year. ¶ The steel-ribbed fire-pot does it. Adding steel ribs to the fire-pot increases its radiating surface three times more than is possible by any other method. The steel-ribbed fire-pot heats the air quicker. It sends the heat through the registers instead of up the chimney. ¶ Examine the Hecla. Compare it with other Furnaces. ¶ You will find every feature that makes for convenience and ease of operation. But the Hecla is the only one that has the Steel-ribbed Fire-pot—the fire-pot which saves thousands of users one ton of coal in seven.

HECLA FURNACE

No Gas or Dust

Burns wood as well as coal.

And this furnace cannot possibly leak gas or dust. The joints, usually bolted or cemented, are fused in the Hecla in a perfectly tight joint. Time and service cannot loosen the Fused Joint. The fusing welds the Hecla Radiator into one piece.

Redistribution Bill Before Provincial House

Proposed New Constituency to be Formed With Biggar as Seat

The Provincial Parliament now have the new Distribution Bill framed up into working shape, and this will creet 15 new seats and make 54 seats for the whole province.

One of these new seats is allotted to our own town of Biggar, with a district extending thirty miles from east to west and from sixty to ninety miles from north to south, the deflection being caused by the North Saskatchewan River.

Starting from a point on the line between ranges 11 and 12 on the top of township 30, and proceeding straight north along this line to the North Saskatchewan river in township 40; then along the line of the river till reaching the line between ranges 17 and 18 in township 44, and proceeding south along this line to the N. E. corner of township 39 in range 18, and from there straight east to the starting point.

This gives the Biggar constituency an area of somewhere about 2,400 square miles, and includes the towns of Biggar, South Battleford, Naseby, Prestige, Harris, Zealandia, Herschel, Palo, Oban, Mead, Vance, Neola, and a lot of other smaller places inside the area mentioned above.

MARVELS OF SURGERY

Amputated Joints Transplanted From One person to Another

Some marvelous surgical operations have been performed in Paris. M. Tuffier, a member of the Academy of Medicine, has been endeavoring to use joints, such as the elbow or knee joint, which have been removed in amputating, to replace similar diseased or injured [illegible] people. In his report to the [illegible] he described many successes. Among others he cited two particularly gratifying ones. The first was that of a young man of 23 whose elbow had been ankylosed—that is, locked up by [illegible] or other growths into permanent rigidity—for several years, and thus made perfectly useless. M. Tuffier cut out the ankylosis and made a new elbow with an ankle joint he had transplanted from the amputated leg of a woman. This happened 13 months ago, and the patient is now able to make use of the transplanted articulation. In the second case a new joint was given to a young man of 21, who had serious tubercular disease of the elbow. Now, 14 months afterwards, he is well and able to use his arm.

PEAK DISTRICT CAVERNS

An Underground Waterfall Empties Into an Unfathomed Pool

Important and interesting geographical explorations have been made in the Peak District of England by members of the Naturalists' Society. The most notable was an attempt to solve the mysteries of the famous Jug Hole, near Matlock, which for centuries have baffled scientific explorers. When the party reached the entrance to the workings they had to climb down a pile-line for about 50 feet to reach the first level.

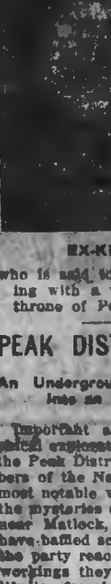
All landed safely, and then they went on hands and knees to a lofty chamber, into which there falls a cascade of water 90 feet in height. The chamber was found to contain many fine stalactites and stalagmites. Some of the stalactites were hollow, a condition rarely found in England.

There was also a pretty deposit of spar. With the aid of powerful acetylene lights the explorers were able to get a fine view of the falls. The temperature of the water was not more than 49 degrees, as compared with 68 degrees on the surface of the hillside. This was taken to confirm the theory that there is an enormous underground pool, as yet unfathomed.

BRONCHITIS,

Hoarseness, Throat Catarrh

Delightful Cure Discovered That Cures Quickly.



Old-fashioned remedies were administered through the stomach only, but as it is impossible to swallow anything into the lungs, little benefit ever resulted.

Strong drugs, such as opium, chlorodyne and cocaine, were resorted to, but did more harm than good.

Nowadays, when a doctor meets a case of catarrh — finds the throat filled with mucus—sore all the way down, he prescribes Catarrhozone because he knows it goes direct to the disease.

Catarrhozone cures by antiseptic balsams that are carried by the air you breathe direct to the source of the trouble.

It aids expectoration — clears away the phlegm—carries health-laden vapors to the sore, irritated tissues.

In one minute you experience decided relief with Catarrhozone and invariably it does cure every type of Catarrh, Bronchitis, irritable throat and hoarseness. Just think of it—a sure cure without noxious drugs—one that is guaranteed and delightfully pleasant to use. Catarrhozone only, complete for two months' use, $1.00; small (trial) size, 25c, at all dealers.

CATARRHOZONE A SURE CURE.

A PECULIAR PEOPLE

Where The Aleuts of Alaska Came From—Homes and Customs

The word "Aleut" in the Kaniagan language means "killer utes," or people, and such they are, for their appearance and modes of life differ to such an extent as to warrant their being called "other people."

Certain that their people came from whose birthplace was believed to be Kamchatka, in Asia, and it is almost race. He is greater of height than the [illegible] Asia. Their appearance is more of the Mongolian, and in artistic work they have much the same skill and [illegible] as the Japanese. The Aleut is superior to the native race. He is cleaner of habit than the Kaimuc and more willing to work.

The tribe's ancient dwellings, now long grown over with grass, representing the age of stone implements, when excavated were found to be large, roomy houses made of sod, built above the ground, and usually of more than one room. Whalebone was often used for parts of the framework. The cemetery of the community was not in a common burial ground, but in a room of the house especially constructed for that purpose. The corpses were buried in a sitting posture.

Certain caves were used also as a place to bury the dead, but owing to the occurrence of skulls with fractures in them it is presumably the warriors who died away from home who were so buried. A few had the distinction of being stuffed with moss and made into mummies and placed in caves. These customs have long since changed, owing to the efforts of the Russian priests; and now few there are that can offer an explanation for the strange burial rooms, the cave burials and the moss stuffed mummies.

The Aleuts occupy the island peninsula of Alaska, and number about one thousand. Three hundred are well cared for at the seal islands; the balance have nothing left but fish, a few fox and the basket industry. The time was when they were employed to kill seals; also their tribe supplied the men that manned the sea otter boats and killed that most valuable of furs.

These furs are practically a thing of the past and the Government has prohibited both the whites and the natives from killing any of them. This is not adding greatly to their troubles, for these fur animals of the sea are now so scarce as to be of little benefit to the Aleuts any more. The basket industry is now their chief support. Their baskets, though the finest in any market, bring them less than one-fourth the retail price, and provisions sell to them at about three times the cost.

A woman will work two weeks to make a basket, and then get $2 for it; pay 75 cents for a pound of tea, 20 cents for a pound of sugar, and 7 cents a pound for flour, and what for clothing? The father can get a few fish to dry, gather a few drift sticks as thrown up by the sea, as no timber is found on the islands. In winter he catches a very few blue fox, perhaps four or five, at $6 each.

Curio seekers pay fabulous prices for an Aleut basket, which is, in truth, one of the best that can be had; the most artistic, the finest weave and the most beautiful of design. One of the prettiest baskets I ever secured came from the house of a widow at the figure of $3.50; a full two weeks work!

KITCHENER'S FRENCH MEDAL

The medal for the Franco-German War of 1870 has only recently been struck off at the Paris Mint, and the first one that was issued fell to the share of the King of Servia, who passed through Paris just at that time. His Majesty, after being educated in part of St. Cyr, served during the war, and was thus fairly entitled to the medal. Two other special examples have now been placed at the disposal of M. Failleres, and one of these will go to Lord Kitchener, who fought amongst the mobiles of the Cotes-du-Nord, in the army of the Loire, where he probably underwent his baptism of fire.

CHLOROFORMS PLANTS

Prof. Johannsen, of Copenhagen, has been chloroforming plants, and with marvellous results. He discovered that plants treated with anaesthetics were stimulated into extraordinary growth. His method is this. Lilies of the valley, lilacs and other dormant plants are placed in an air-tight box, to the lid of which is affixed a small vessel filled with chloroform. This, being heavier than air, settles down and mingles with the plants. At the end of forty-eight hours the specimens are taken out and grown in the ordinary manner. Nothing in the way of forcing or artificial heat is required, but lilacs bloom within two weeks of being chloroformed, and lilies of the valley are hardly so long in coming to maturity.

Soldier Drowned in the Liffey

During some dredging operations in the River Liffey, Dublin, which was carried out by three companies of the Royal West Kent Regiment, a raft capsized, and a number of the men were thrown into the water. Private Hylands was drowned, and a captain during gallant rescue work had a narrow escape.

Ireland's Stamp

A correspondent suggests a design for the first issue of Ireland's new stamp. He would have a harp surrounded with shamrocks as a centre. The four corners to be embellished with a pig, a split hat with clay pipe in hand, a blackthorn, and a picture of Dan O'Connell's statue. They should be printed in black on green paper.

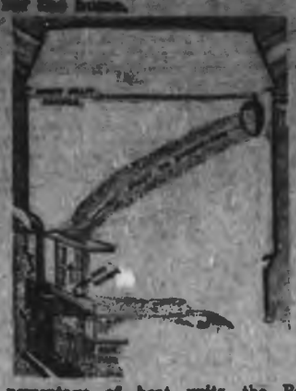
A Forcible Appeal

At one point in the Home Rule debate Mr. T. P. O'Connor was so carried away by the fervour of his eloquence that he brought his fist down on the shiny top of Mr. Healy's silk hat. The House laughed gleefully, and Mr. O'Connor humorously apologised by remarking that as he was defending a bishop it was natural he should make a forcible appeal to his hon. and learned friend.

More Facts About McClary's "Sunshine" Furnace

—The Understudy of the Sun—

There's no dust nuisance about the "Sunshine"—when you push down the ashes the dust is drawn up dust-fine then directly across to ash-pit where it belongs. Look at the illustration and remember to open both "Flue" and "Direct Draft" dampers—these simple devices make the "Sunshine" the cleanest furnace for the home.



Use the cleaner "cup joints" here—the fumes of the ash pit door, the ashes of the fire-pot and the dust all fastened together by our "cup joint."

There's a layer of asbestos cement in each joint—this unites all sections in a permanent way, yet leaves room for the expansion and contraction of the metal.

No wonder that this "Understudy of the Sun" is called the "Sunshine" furnace. Since it diffuses pure warm June air throughout the house.

You don't have to wear overalls when attending to the "Sunshine" furnace—it has a big roomy ash-pan. All the ashes are guided directly into the pan by ash-chutes. A minute or two performs the job. Yes, the "Sunshine" is the clean furnace.

The "Sunshine" Furnace burns either wood or coal. Coke, too, if you prefer it. The "Sunshine" distributes a greater percentage of heat units—the Baffle plates (a new McClary device) decidedly increase the heating efficiency of the furnace.

But—see the McClary agent of your locality. Ask him to show you all the features and exclusive devices which make the "Sunshine" Furnace worthy of the name—The Understudy of the Sun.

If you do not know the McClary Agent, write us at our nearest address and we'll forward you a letter of introduction by return.

AN UNASSUMING KING

His Majesty is no Stickler for Formality When Visiting

King George, when he dines out, demands much less of formality than did King Edward. The late monarch nearly always had his own man to wait on him, invariably settled what brand he would drink earlier in the day, always had his special cigars in gold leaf put before him after dinner, and practically always wore knee breeches, and expected those present to do the same. King George usually dines in the more commonplace trousers, has no particular fads, but, of course, is received with deep respect, walks in first to dinner, sits next his host, and gives the signal to rise from dinner. His Majesty, as a rule, only drinks rather weak whisky and soda, with a single glass of port or Madeira before his coffee. He does not play bridge, and breaks up the party early, for he likes to be in bed by eleven.

Remarkable Church Veteran

Among the signatures to the appeal to the people of Scotland in favor of the Established and the United Free Churches of Scotland is that of Mr. Robert Smellie, Langholm, who is ninety-two years old, who came out of the Established Church in 1843, at the Disruption, and who has been treasurer of the Free Church (now Chalmers Church) ever since. Mr. Smellie is probably the oldest Church treasurer living and has held office longest—nearly seventy years.

AFTER TREATMENT

Peter B. Simmons relates his experience: "I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Dumbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many so-called physicians, wore an electric belt, used [illegible] secrets, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

THE CASE-BOOK OF A PRIVATE DETECTIVE

Inside History of the Methods Employed in Criminal Investigation Embracing True Narratives of Interesting Cases by a Former Operative of the William J. Burns Detective Agency.

5—The Bribe Takers

HOW A CLIQUE OF CORRUPT CITY FATHERS WAS BROUGHT TO BOOK.

(Copyright, 1912, by International Press Bureau.)

The connection of the Burns detective agency with the exposures of bribers and bribe-takers in various towns throughout the country has been so well exploited that it is unnecessary for me to say anything about it here. I am going to tell the actual story of how the ring of choice grafters in the council and out, who had for years looted the city of Springvale finally were run to earth, sent to prison, or otherwise rendered innocuous, and the political life of the city purged for a time, at least.

Springvale is not the real name of the town. The case is too recent, and there are too many raw threads of it still hanging about, to permit the use of the actual name. But shrewd readers, who have kept track of bribery stories in the newspapers in the last year, may be able to guess which of our cities it is that I am telling about. It is a typical case of the exposure of municipal corruption by outside detectives, and has been duplicated in a half dozen instances in other cities to my own knowledge.

Springvale had for years been what a magazine writer once called "corrupted and content." It was a busy manufacturing town. It was prosperous. That is, there usually was plenty of work to be had for the working people, plenty of business for the merchants, and plenty of money to be handled by the local banks. Most of this prosperity was due to the presence of the factories in the town. These factories were in the hands of a clique of men who placed money above all things. They would go to any length to make more money—and one of the easiest ways for them to make it was to violate the law, usually in the form of ignoring city ordinances.

Thus, there were violations of the child labor law, violations of street ordinances, water ordinances, building ordinances—in fact, violations of most of the articles in the municipal code applying to the regulation of factories were to be found in these establishments.

Naturally these violations could not be committed and continued, year after year, without being disturbed, without the connivance of the local authorities. The mayor, the councilman, the chief of police, the building commissioners, in fact, all the active heads of the city government, must have winked at the lawlessness of the factory owners, or the lawlessness would have been stopped.

Naturally, these heads of the local government, being human, and most of them politicians, did not agree to wink so accommodatingly solely for the good of their health. They did it for what there was in it. Thus, the factories became a fertile source of corruption of the city government of Springvale. When a factory needed the stub end of a street in its business, an ordinance would go through the council without any trouble—because the ways had been well greased by the factory's owner. If a factory wanted to tap a city water main and use city water without having it metered, it did it, because the water department was fixed. If a street car line felt that it needed a residence street in its business, that street it got in spite of the protests of property owners. The city hall machinery ran smoothly for the benefit of these factory barons because they controlled the oil that made the machinery go.

The whole town, naturally, in time came to take its moral tone from this influence. The banks were in on the deal. The bank that contributed most to the prosperity of the politicians was the one that got the deposits of city money. Several big merchants fell in line. Special privilege had the town by the throat; and while the town was prosperous in money matters it was poverty-stricken in good citizenship.

A few sterling citizens began to get tired of this state of affairs. They were men who believed that a city should be something besides a mere machine for the manufacturing of money. They believed that a city government should think first of the welfare of its citizens, and of the future of children growing up within its walls. They placed civic spirit above dollars, and to them was due the cleaning up of Springvale.

One of them was a judge on the local bench who had waged uncompromising war against the special interests and corruption. He was the only judge in town who was not the big the temptations of big fees offered interests' bound servant. Then there were two lawyers who had resisted them to turn crooked, one banker, one minister, two or three merchants, two or three others of various occupations, and one old retired capitalist. This man was the backbone and the foundation of the crusade. When this group of public-spirited men had determined on their course he quietly deposited $100,000 cash of his own money to be used in furthering the campaign.

It was the action of the city council in passing an ordinance that deprived the city of a square that had been set aside for improvement into a little park that brought on the war. The council calmly gave this tract to a railroad company for use as a switching yard. The steal was so raw that the mayor, who hitherto had been on the fence, vetoed the ordinance. The council laughed and passed the ordinance over the veto. Obviously there was only one answer to this: The railroad company had come across with enough money to make the council defy all public opinion. They had been bribed.

It was then that the decent and prominent citizens of the town got together and resolved to clean up the town.

"What is the best way to go about it?" asked one of them.

"Get after the council," said the old judge, grimly. "Prove them guilty of bribery. Send them to prison. Break them up. Throw the fear of God so hard into the city government of this town that it will be years before a city official dares to think of taking a bribe."

"That is right," agreed the retired capitalist. "We must scare this town so it will not forget."

The first process of concocting this scare was the sending of Cluffer and Dawson of the Burns Detective Agency to take up a temporary residence at the Imperial hotel—the leading hotel—in Springvale. Cluffer was a merry-looking little Englishman who could make friends with anybody in the world at ten minutes' notice. Dawson was a young, fine-appearing fellow who looked the part of a high class salesman, or a high class gambler, depending on your point of view. They merely registered at the Imperial, and commenced to spend money judiciously in the bars around the city hall. It was not long before they began to attract attention.

As in every city, the liquor emporiums near the city hall were the meeting places for a certain brand of politicians—the brand that Cluffer and Dawson were anxious to meet. Naturally they did not display any of this anxiety. After two or three days of being good fellows around town they began to make the acquaintance of the politicians who were steady customers of the places where the detectives were spending their time and money. At first the politicians were shy about making acquaintances. Later they began to warm up, and after a week of careful work the detectives found themselves part of the little ring that made these bar rooms their headquarters and whose occupations lay in the city hall. There were two councilmen with whom they became especially friendly, Corcoran and Stein, who were the leaders of the city hall clique. When they had established themselves on firm ground with these two, Cluffer and Dawson broached their alleged reason for being in Springvale.

"We represent the American Wood Block company," they said, "and we want to try to sell some blocks in Springvale. We sell the best blocks in the world."

Here they brought out some excellent samples of wooden paving blocks and began to expiate on their merits.

"Not only that, but we can sell these at prices far below those charged for the ordinary blocks," continued Cluffer. "We are so anxious to put our blocks into Springvale streets that we will make the city a price at which it can save all kinds of money on its paving bills. I'll bet you we can save the city $50,000 a year and give it better paving material than it ever had before."

"Well, what of it?" said Stein.

"Well," continued Dawson, "we thought if we could interest you gentlemen and could show you where we could save the city all this money, we might convince you that it would be in the interests of the city to introduce wood paving here."

"Yes," said Stein, who was the spokesman for the councilmen. "What of it?"

"Why," said Dawson, "you gentlemen, in order to help the city save money, ought to introduce an ordinance calling for wood paving on some streets. Then, after we had shown how much we could save the city, we might hope to get some bigger contracts."

Corcoran and Stein laughed as one man.

"Gee, but you're green!" laughed Stein. "Is that really what you got us up here to tell us?"

"Why, certainly," said Cluffer, all innocence. "We're salesmen for the wooden block company——"

"And you've got a couple of wooden blocks yourself," roared Stein. "If that's all you know about selling stuff to cities I don't see you holding your jobs much longer."

"Why?"

"Because that ain't the way it's done," said Stein. "Anyhow, not in Springvale. You got to have a different system than that, Johnnie, to do business here. Save the city money! What the devil do you suppose we care about the city? To hell with the city! If that's all you know about getting city contracts, take your little blocks and go. You can bet you'll never get a contract here, if that's all you know about the game."

Cluffer and Dawson, having found out what they were sent for—that the councilmen of Springvale were reaching openly for graft with greedy hands—and having implanted the germ of wood block paving in the minds of the two leaders, quietly packed their grips, paid their bills at the Imperial, and flitted out of the case.

Then I came into the game. Now, there really was an American Wood Block company, and the president of it was an old man named Steger. He was interested in running down grafters, and for the purposes of this job he loaned me his name and identity.

A few days after Cluffer and Dawson had retired from Springvale Alderman Stein got a letter from the president of the block company. It read:

"My Dear Alderman:

"I am afraid that my two salesmen who saw you in regard to furnishing wooden blocks for paving in your city knew little about how such things are managed. Now you and I, my dear Alderman, are men of experience and we know how such things are done. I hope to have the pleasure of seeing you at noon at the Imperial hotel in your city. It is long since I have taken part in any selling campaign, but in a matter like this, Alderman, I feel it is better and safer that I, and I alone, cover the ground.

"I suggest that you destroy this letter. I have always found it advisable to have as few papers as possible. I am, very truly yours,

"HERMAN V. STEGER,
"President American Wood Block Co."

When Stein got that letter he saw at once that it was from a man of his own heart. The tone of it showed the writer to be "right" according to Stein's peculiar point of view. The cautious advice to destroy the letter was a winner. It showed that "Steger" had been through the mill and was too wise a bird to overlook any bets. Stein sat down and wrote a brief note to Steger, advising him that he looked forward to the latter's appearance at the Imperial hotel with much pleasure.

I came into Springvale at night and registered at the Imperial as Herman V. Steger. I stayed close to my room the next morning. It seemed, indeed, that Stein was awaiting my arrival with much pleasure, for at noon a telephone message from him informed me that, having seen my name on the register, he waited impatiently to welcome me to Springvale.

"Come up, Mr. Stein," I said, "I have been expecting you."

Stein and Corcoran came up together. I had taken the best suite of rooms in the hotel. I had attired myself in a manner as expensive as was consistent with fairly good taste. I wanted to give the impression of plenty of ready money.

Stein and Corcoran greeted me cordially, though quietly.

"Don't be afraid to speak up, gentlemen," I said, laughing. "I have reserved both rooms adjoining my suite as a precaution."

We all laughed together at this sally. I ordered the champagne and cigars.

"Well, gentlemen," I said, "I am here to sell Springvale some cedar blocks. And I won't be so foolish as to talk about how much money I can save the city."

We had another laugh over this. We understood one another right away.

"The whole town ought to have wooden block paving," said Corcoran. "I know it. It's got to have it."

Again we laughed. We were getting along famously.

"Show me a good hand in this matter, gentlemen," said I, "and I'll show you a better one."

"We'll show you something tonight," said Stein. "It's a council meeting night. Just watch tomorrow morning's papers for the proceedings and you'll see how we do things in Springvale."

Next morning I saw that Stein had introduced and the council had passed an ordinance calling for the paving of two blocks of an important street with wood blocks.

"Well," said he, when he called upon me soon after breakfast, "how do you like that for action? That's just a sample we showed you. Now all you got to do is to pay the price and we come across with the whole delivery of goods."

"How large is that delivery?" I asked.

"Why, we'll pave the whole damn city with blocks and specify your brand," said he, "if you'll do the right thing."

"What do you call the right thing?" I asked.

"Well," he said, "some of these aldermen are cheap skates and some are what you call wise guys. Some can be reached for a ten-case note and some want as high as five hundred. There's 15 of 'em to be delivered, and I guess $5,000 would just about be right for what you want."

"Five thousand is what I had thought would be right," I agreed.

"But how is the money to be got to the right men?"

"I'm the money wagon," said Stein. "I handle all such deals for the boys."

Then without any solicitation on my part he began to assure me of his reliability by relating in detail how he had carried money from briber to bribe-takers in half a dozen cases. He had a wonderful memory. He gave dates, places, figures and names with an exactness that was marvelous. He told how So-and-so had given him such and such a sum in such and such a place, how he had split it up in certain amounts and given so much to that alderman and so much to that one, and how such and such an ordinance had been shoved through the council as a consideration. He had been so accustomed to dealing in graft that he looked upon it as a pure business transaction. He even referred to entries in a note book to substantiate some of his statements.

When he was through I said, "Now say you want to see the money in your hands before the ordinance goes through. Now, I don't mind having my money up, but I want to see the goods delivered before I let go of it. Now, you go out and get your men one by one. Come back and give me your word that you've got them, and how much they cost you, and you can have the $5,000. I don't care how much you make out of it; I don't care if it only costs you a thousand to get your men. I want to hear you tell me that you've got 'em before the money becomes yours."

"All right," said he. "I can get my men in one day."

He did, too. That night he was back with a list of his men. So much for this man, so much for that—he had them all there and the amounts required to buy their votes for the shameful measure he was putting through. This measure called for nothing more or less than paving about half of the streets of Springvale, except the boulevards, with wooden blocks. And my company was to have the contract of furnishing them. It was raw, rotten robbery; but Springvale was used to just that sort of thing.

I paid over the $5,000 in cash and Stein made good on his promise. Next council meeting the ordinance went through with a rush. Stein called on me the morning after.

"Well, are you satisfied with the way things are done here?" he said.

"Perfectly, Stein, perfectly," I replied heartily. "Things could not have been done any better to suit me. But, Stein, I wonder if they have been done to suit you?"

"Why?" he said. Then, as it instantly scenting a rat, "Why? What in hell do you mean?"

"Suppose," said I, "that I should tell you that every word that you and I have spoken in this room has been overheard by a committee of prominent citizens in this town and several stenographers. What would you say?"

He looked me up and down and his usually red face began to go white.

"Ain't you in it as deep as I am?" he demanded. "What license you got to talk that way?"

"Oh, I'm just a detective sent down here to get the goods on you, Stein," I said. "Look here."

I went to one of the walls of the rooms, and raising my fist shot it through the wall-paper where the wall had been cut out to make listening from the next room easy. I went to another room and did the same.

"I reserved those adjoining rooms, Stein," said I, "to give those men a chance to listen to you and me."

With that I threw open a door and in came the group of public-spirited men who had set out to clean up Springvale.

"I have often longed for the opportunity, and one fine day I got it. Now you and your clique to the penitentiary, Stein," said the judge. "Now it seems that I am going to have that opportunity."

And he did. Before we had got through with that crowd fifteen of them were in state's prison, two of them were in jail, one committed suicide sentence. It was a terrible toll of punishment, but it was justified.

Stein turned state's evidence and helped us bare bribe cases for five years back. He had been in all of them himself, but he was punished for only one. He got two years. He and I got to be fairly good friends before his trial fell due, and it was partly my intercession, and explaining the great service he had done us in unravelling the whole mess, that kept him from finding a harder fate.

Springvale is fairly clean now, politically. The politicians are too scared to be crooked—for the time being.

R. L. S. IN THE ADIRONDACKS

Stevenson, While Fighting Off Disease There, Seemed Indifferent to the Laws of Health.

Robert Louis Stevenson, for no wise a man, seems to have been singularly unaware of, or indifferent to, the laws of health, but that, too, may have been part of his wisdom. He spent the winter of 1887 in the Adirondacks struggling against the disease which was not to subdue him for seven years. He lived in a little cottage that was much overheated and from which all ventilation was carefully excluded. The smoke of his incessant cigarettes tobscured the atmosphere and perhaps helped to drive away the visitors who came to gaze upon him as one gazes at a lion in a den. Fashionable callers were specially unwelcome and Stevenson once remarked, according to an account in the Medical Record, that "it isn't the great unwashed which I dread, but the great washed." But whoever else was unwelcome there was always a greeting for Richard Mansfield. It is an impressive, almost a tremendous picture, that of the clouded room fitfully lit by the flames of the log fire and Stevenson huddled close to the warmth while Mansfield at the other end of the room gave his weird impersonation of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. It must have been like God looking upon his handiwork and finding it good.

Congressional Library.

The Congressional library at Washington contains 1,891,720 books. There are in the great building 118,165 maps and charts and 230,960 prints and engravings. The library building is said to be the finest in the United States, and from the architectural standpoint it is pronounced by many to be very near perfection. In addition to the mighty array of books, maps, charts and designs, the library contains files of most of the important daily newspapers in the country.

Graceful East Indians.

Describing the women of India, a writer says: "Even the most withered toil-worn hag has a dignity of carriage and a grace of motion that the western woman might envy. The 'sari' is draped in an easy flowing style and adjusted as it slips back with a graceful turn of the silver bangled arm, the skinny legs move rythmically, and the small feet fall with a silent and panthertike tread. It is the beauty of natural and untrammeled motion, and says much in favor of the abolition of the corset, for the Indian women retain their uprightness and suppleness of figure till bowed with age.

"The commonest type is the coolie woman, who undertakes all sorts of rough work, carrying heavy burdens on her head, and she is, perhaps, the least attractive, for her workaday garments are usually faded and dirty; yet, even among this poor class of burden bearers, we see many with handsome straight features and supple well proportioned figures.

"No matter how poor their garments, jewelry of some sort is worn; necklaces of gold or beads, colored glass or silver bangles and heavy silver anklets."

His Life Work.

Is this an artist? Yes, that is what he calls himself.

Is his style impressionistic? It is—it is.

Where did he get the money with which to buy beautiful things? From a rich uncle who died.

Does the artist hold lovely afternoon receptions? He does.

What is he painting? A picture.

How long has he been painting the picture? About seven years.

Will he ever finish it? NO!—Puck.

Tactful Request.

Dobbleigh was a confirmed borrower, and, what was worse, he seldom returned the borrowed articles. He had held on to Whibley's umbrella, for instance, for nearly a year.

"And I'm blest if I know how I am ever going to get it back," said Whibley.

"Easy," said Hickenlooper. "Call a messenger and send Dobbleigh this note."

And he scribbled off the following:

"Dear Dobbleigh: If you can spare it I'd like to borrow that umbrella of mine for a couple of days. Can you oblige me?"—Harper's Weekly.

Helped.

Mrs. Willis has been very watchful of her husband's diet lately, and is in constant fear lest he overeat.

An Encouraging Message

I have a message of hope and good cheer, of encouragement and inspiration to every suffering woman. I have rescued the sufferer due to female troubles and the excitement despondency and mental agony almost to the point of despair, and I have been restored from this condition to a state of vigorous health and to the happy, exhilarating frame of mind which accompanies physical well being. This change has been brought about wholly by the use of ORANGE LILY.

In addition I have had the privilege and pleasure of inducing multitudes of other suffering women to give ORANGE LILY a trial, and have received thousands of enthusiastic acknowledgments of the blessings it has brought to them. The following is a sample:

Truro, N. S., April 5, 1909.

Dear Mrs. Currah.—Your very kind letter was received yesterday. In reply to your question about my health, I am thankful to say that I am very well. As I have never given you a statement of my case you may be interested in it.

For several years I have suffered untold agony. This suffering was continuous, and I would have violent attacks every few weeks, each attack lasting several days. The first Sunday in November, I felt the pain increasing and so did not go to prayers. The rest of the family did go, and soon after the forcing down pains seized me and I had to remain on the floor until their return. I was in great pain all night and was very sick for a whole week.

Then Mrs. L. came to see me and told me of your wonderful medicine. I got my husband to send for it right away, as I was too sick to write myself. (My doctor could do nothing for me.) I have used 5 boxes of ORANGE LILY, have had three months of good rest, and am now well, never better in my life. I have not had the old pains since. I often ask my husband if it is myself that is going around and doing my own work. I can scarcely believe it. It brings tears of joy to my eyes. I could shout it to all the world. I cannot speak enough in its praise.

Your friend, MRS. E. H. F.

Receiving, as I do, dozens of such reports each day, I feel impelled to make known to my suffering sisters the merits of ORANGE LILY. It differs from other so-called remedies in that it is not taken internally. It is a strictly local treatment, and is applied directly to the affected organs. Its curative elements are absorbed into the congested tissues, expelling the stagnant foreign matter which has been irritating the membranes and oppressing the nerves, and a growing feeling of physical and mental relief is noticeable almost from the start. It is a positive, scientific remedy, and even if you use no more than the Free Trial treatment you will be very materially benefited.

FREE TRIAL OFFER

I want every reader of this, who suffers in any way from painful monthly periods, irregularities, leucorrhoea, inflammation or congestion of the womb, pains in the back, etc., to send me their addresses, and I will forward at once, without charge, 10 days' treatment. If your case is not far advanced it may entirely cure you, and in any event it will do you much good. I am so earnest in making this statement, and so positive that it is true, that I trust every sufferer who reads this notice will take advantage of my offer and get cured at home, without a doctor's bill. Address, enclosing 3 stamps, MRS. FRANCES E. CURRAH, Windsor, Ont.

ANIMALS LIKE TO PLAY

Some Appear to Have Real Games and Others Merely Frolic

"Many animals make it a part of their masterful duty to amuse their young," says the author of "Animals at Work and Play." He adds: "Even a ferret will play with her [illegible] little kittens just as a cat will with hers." The same author very interestingly describes the game of "Top the King of the Castle," which he says is played by many lambs.

One lamb mounted a pile of straw and rubbish, and immediately his comrades "stormed" his citadel and tried to pull him from his stronghold. The one that succeeded had a chance to defend the position as the former one had done, and the performance was kept up until all were tired out. A steeplechase was another exciting amusement. In this they jumped over a row of old feed boxes as they ran back and forth across the barnyard.

For genuine amusement in the home, says St. Nicholas, select two well matched kittens and set them to playing—or they will do it without urging. The saucy "faces" they make with ears turned back as they wait to close in with each other, are very amusing. It seems strange that they can keep such serious faces themselves while carrying on such funny performances. But we must remember that all their quick attacks and sleight-y actions while at play are training them for more serious business in later life.

Dogs get a great deal of exercise in their play, but they are not so sly nor so graceful as members of the cat family. My dog has "killed" many a rag while playing at rat catching. Dogs seem to obtain great enjoyment from their play. Their capers with a stick thrown for them to bring back from the land of water have amused many a small master. Little pigs play with as much vigor and dexterity as any animals that I have ever seen; but later in life this capacity entirely disappears.

While some young animals enjoy playing with one another there are others which seem to prefer to play alone. Rabbits appear to belong to this latter class. Many times I have seen young rabbits amuse themselves by suddenly starting off from where they were nibbling grass, and going "like lightning" for ten or more feet, then, with a sharp turn, come back with a leap in the air and snap about again for another run. Suddenly they will stop and listen, then shoot off again and turn themselves in the air with a kick of the hind feet as they skim over the ground.

Chickens perform most absurdly in the barnyard. Rooks are said to go through an elaborate performance of "killing" a biscuit before eating it. Tame sea gulls play a game with sticks and stones, throwing them into the air and catching them in their beaks as they would fish. In the zoo monkeys are the master players, but they have their rivals in the tussling bears, the dancing ostriches, the spouting and driving sea lions. In fact the inhabitants of every enclosure "get gay" at one time or another.

EVERY LITTLE MOVEMENT

In Some Kinds of Business It Has a Cost That's all its Own

In a large publishing house in Chicago which mails annually millions of circulars, form letters and sample copies the saving of even a single motion in the process of folding, enclosing or addressing means an economy, says a writer in Business, that is well worth thinking about.

When this idea first occurred to an officer of the company he devoted several weeks to a careful and analytical study of the work of the mailing department. The girls who folded and sealed the letters had formerly been allowed to arrange their work to suit themselves. A very little observation of their methods showed that there was much room for improvement.

Experiments were made to determine, in just what order each movement should be made in folding the letter and enclosure, picking them up and inserting them in the envelope. Crude as the first attempt necessarily was, it immediately increased the output of a girl. Further study revealed ways not only of eliminating many motions but of shortening the distance traveled by the hands in the motions that remained.

Finally a plan was devised for arranging and handling the envelopes and their enclosures so that each hand on the completion of one motion, was in the proper position to begin immediately the next motion. The final motion—that of throwing the filled envelopes upon a pile—was entirely eliminated by placing a large basket upon the floor directly under the point where the enclosures were inserted in the envelope.

When the enclosures were once inside the girl simply let go of the envelope and it fell into the basket, gravity doing the work formerly done by the girl. After the girls had been taught the new methods of filling envelopes, their output was nearly four times as great as it had been when they were doing their work haphazard in any way that happened to occur to them.

Women Smokers

It is estimated that the number of women smokers in New York City alone is nearly 100,000, and that they consume 25,000,000 cigarettes a year. The heaviest trade is done in the Fifth Avenue and other fashionable districts. The women of San Francisco have gone still further, some of the smartest of the smart set there, it is said, being devotees of the pipe.

FARMING MADE EASY

If This Keeps on "Rural Joys" Will Really Mean Something

Six years ago a farmer put in a small electric plant and the following record of what he made it do is recorded for by Farm and Fireside. In the first place every building, including the dog kennels is lighted by electricity.

A small motor drives a circular saw which cuts expeditiously what little firewood is used on the farm. The same motor turns a lathe, drill and other machinery in a farm machine shop near by.

Another motor drives a vacuum pump, and the sweeping of the house is done in the most modern manner with vacuum cleaning. No dust. All the sting of drudgery is removed.

A pipe from this same vacuum line is run to the cow stables, where two vacuum milking machines milk twenty-five cows each day.

Another small motor runs the milk separator and churn and in the summer an ice cream freezer.

Even the grindstone is turned by electric power, which relieves the small boy from one of his most disliked tasks and gives him more time to attend to the needs of the fishes in the always nearby brook.

Five electric heaters in the house keep the temperature at seventy-five degrees, if desired, when it is zero outside.

In the kitchen all the cooking for a family of five to ten is done upon an electric range. A tiny motor runs the family washing machine and wringer and drives the sewing machine.

Electric fans are installed through the house and a ventilating fan in the attic.

These farm electric plants can be installed at a cost of $400 to $1,000, the cost varying according to the work to be accomplished and the amount of installation work done by the farmer himself.

PERILS OF TIGHT BELTS

Soldiers' Lives Pay the Penalty for Looking Smart

Perils that have no relation to bullets, but which have a stern reality for soldiers were referred to at Hackney at a coroner's inquest concerning the death of William Dixon, who for 17 years was in the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry, and served through the South African War. He died in bed quite suddenly. Medical evidence showed that he had an aneurism, or swelling in the main artery leading from the heart, and this had caused him to faint and die. The Coroner said in the Army the complaint was rather common. Sudden strains were causes, owing to occasional fits of hard labor whilst tightly buttoned up in belts such as soldiers had to wear. It was often found that soldiers died from this cause though it might not be for years after.

Adventurous Scot

Mr. John Cross Buchanan, who died at Glasgow, had had a somewhat adventurous life. As a young man he went to Mexico, and for a time was connected with the banking firm of M'Calmot. Mr. Buchanan afterwards entered upon silver mining, and his ups and downs were somewhat bewildering. He made and lost three considerable fortunes. He returned to Scotland with a moderate competency over twenty years ago and settled down at Helensburgh. Four or five years ago he removed to Glasgow, where his death took place in his eighty-first year.

LEGUMINOTHERAPY

Science of Frivolous Green Peas and Poetic String Beans

Legumintherapy is the latest scientific novelty. It is a big name for vegetable diet—not, however, the ordinary vegetable diet, but according to the National Pharmacist a scientific diet whereby the exact physiological and temperamental relations of each vegetable to the human system are carefully determined.

Green peas, for example, according to this new science, cause frivolity, and should be withheld from young ladies with a tendency to flirt. On the other hand, they are excellent for wall flowers and pessimists, and should be given in generous helpings to bashful boys.

Carrots develop good temper and amiability, and are particularly recommended for janitors, car conductors and ticket agents. The potato develops reason, as well as calmness and reflection; but care must be taken lest it induce apathy and indigerence or that disinclination to work which is observable among boys who are fed daily on fried potatoes.

String beans stimulate the poetic and artistic faculties; while cabbage and cauliflower, nourishing though they are, excite to obstreperousness and are therefore to be shunned by those in training for the parlor.

A Course Dinner Without Any Maid Service.

"One day when company came on the maid's day out we enjoyed that style of serving our dinner," a domestic said the woman with servant troubles, "keeping problems. "We have a maid of fabien which enabled [illegible] furniture. The pre [illegible] was placed each of the left of the person at the head and foot of the table. We omitted a soup course and served meat, salad, dessert and nut sundae.

"The meat and condiments were the only dishes on the table. On side of our side tables we placed the vegetables on trays for passing, and the salad with its accessories, dressing and cheese; on the other side table were the dessert and nuts, the glass of pitcher of water. At the end of the meat course the soiled dishes and meat platter changed places with the salad paraphernalia and a napkin covered the used dishes. At the end of the salad course it and its accompaniments changed places with the dessert and serving dishes. At the end of this course an exchange was made with the nuts.

"On a third neat table in our living room we had previously placed our coffee percolator and cups and saucers, and to that room we adjourned for our after dinner coffee after lifting the two small tables containing all the soiled dishes into the butler's pantry. To get the cloth off the dining table and leave the room, which opens into our living room, in perfect order was the work of but two minutes. By following this plan we found it unnecessary to leave the table once during the meal, and we did not have the annoyance of having the table filled with food that should not appear in a mess."

YOUR GRAY HAIRS QUICKLY VANISH

A Harmless Remedy, Made From Garden Sage, Restores Colour to Gray Hair

A feeling of sadness accompanies the discovery of the first gray hairs, which, unfortunately, are looked upon as heralds of approaching age. Gray hair, however handsome it may be, makes a person look old. We all know the advantages of being young. Aside from the good impression a youthful appearance makes on others, simply knowing that you are "looking fit" gives one courage to undertake and accomplish things. So why suffer the handicap of looking old on account of gray hairs, when a simple remedy will give your hair youthful colour and beauty in a few days' time?

Most people know that common garden sage acts as a colour restorer and scalp tonic as well. Our grandmothers used a "Sage Tea" for keeping their hair dark, soft and luxuriant. In Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy we have an ideal preparation of Sage, combined with Sulphur and other valuable remedies for dandruff, itching scalp and thin, weak hair that is split at the ends or constantly coming out. A few applications of this valuable remedy will bring back the colour, and in a short time it will remove every trace of dandruff and greatly improve the growth and appearance of the hair.

Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist to-day, and notice the difference in your hair after a few days' treatment. All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented. Special agent, the Warne Drug Co.

The Living Room.

In choosing chairs for the living room the individual requirements of the members of the family should be remembered, so that when the family is gathered together there will be a comfortable spot for each member.

Curtains, too, should be chosen in accordance with the needs and desires of the family.

Since the living room is always where the privacy of home life is enjoyed the curtains should, if necessary, serve as protection from passersby.

On the other hand, the room will probably require all the light possible. A happy arrangement is often made by having upper and lower curtains. Such sash curtains are made in two tiers and hung on two sets of brass rods, so that either the upper or lower half, or both, can readily be drawn aside.

Itching and Burning on Face and Throat

Sores Disfigured So She Dreaded to Appear in Public. No Rest Night or Day. Cuticura Ointment Cures.

"My trouble was on my face and throat all broke out in small pimples like a running sore. I did not realize what it was, but it caused me much suffering. I had to scratch it, and the more I scratched the worse it grew. The sores spread over my face and throat and the pimples turned to pustules and formed one scab. I tried all kinds of medicine and doctored with the best physicians, but they did me no good. The last stage seemed to grow me any relief. The sores disfigured my face so much that I dreaded to appear in public.

"I noticed nearly one month I got no rest night or day. At last a friend advised me to try the Cuticura Remedies. I had little faith in them, as I thought I could have given up hope, but as I had tried almost everything I thought I would try one more try, and so I used a little Cuticura Ointment and it helped me from the start. I continued using it and in six weeks' time was completely cured, and can say I would advise anyone suffering from skin disease to use Cuticura Ointment, as it is the best healing balm in the world." (Signed) Reuben Good, Bryan Parsons, Alta., Feb. 13, 1911.

FOUND RELIEF ONLY FROM CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My little girl when only a few months old broke out on the top of her head that in became a solid scab. Then her cheeks became raw and sore and after trying different remedies found relief only from using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. It lasted six months or more, but after a thorough treatment with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment never had any return." (Signed) Mrs. W. S. Owen, Yadkin College, N. C., May 26, 1911.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Ointment have afforded the most successful treatment for skin and scalp troubles of infants, children and adults. A single cake of Cuticura Soap and box of Cuticura Ointment are often sufficient. Although sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world, a liberal sample of each, with 32-p. book on the skin, will be sent free, on application to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., 54 Columbus Ave., Boston, U. S. A.

The Housekeeper's Creed.

"I don't see how Mrs. Brown understands housekeeping so well," said a curious matron the other day of a bride whom she had had under observation. "You know she was a teacher until she married."

It did not occur to her that Mrs. Brown was just applying the same system which she used in her teaching to her home. She was always very systematic in her school work; consequently it was an easy matter for her to have the housekeeping wheels running without friction.

There is an immense reward for the woman who will apply businesslike methods to the ordering of her home. Many a man knows that if his business were run as slipshod as his home he would go into bankruptcy.

In a certain school of housewifery where cookery and cleaning on the most modern lines are taught a "housewives' creed" hangs on the walls. Here are some extracts from it:

"I believe housekeeping and cooking are and should be interesting and worthy work and that the majority of women would enjoy them if they had the opportunity to know more of their science.

"If a man is not ashamed of his profession or work there is no reason why a woman should be of hers.

"I believe before marriage every woman should show to the man whom she is to marry that she thoroughly understands the work of making and keeping the home on a perfectly systematic and business basis, as much as the man has shown her that he has a profession or business capable of providing an adequate income."

Office Lawyers.

"Office practice is what the average lawyer seeks for now," remarked an attorney, "and that is the business that makes the largest returns for the least waste of tissue. More money is made nowadays by keeping clients out of litigation and free from the dangers of the law's delay than by defending them, even successfully, in court. It is safe to say that there are some 6,000 lawyers who are making a very good living in New York from law business that rarely or never takes them into court and that there are a large number of lawyers who from their combined work and directing great enterprises and corporations, advising and guiding wealthy clients, take in each year princely—yes, even fabulous—amounts."—Lawyers' Diary.

Convenient Trunk Cover.

For the woman who is forced to live in a hotel a handy and attractive cover is made of strong tretonne in daisy colorings and design.

Cut it to fit the trunk top, having the top one inch larger than the trunk lid all the way around and the ends and sides long enough to allow a two inch hem around the bottom.

Through this hem run a strong tape that will act as a drawstring, making a bag of the trunk cover so that in case of fire you can empty the contents of the trunk into the improvised bag and throw it out of the window or carry it down the stairs.

When stitching the cover together be sure to make the French seams or use a double row of stitching so there will be no danger of seams ripping if the bag is filled with clothing and other articles.

INDIGESTION GOES IN FIVE MINUTES

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or Indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly written on these 50-cent cases, then you will understand why Dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why Diapepsin always relieves sour, out-of-order stomachs or Indigestion in five minutes. Diapepsin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for Biliousness or Constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever get a little for Ingestion or Gastritis or any other Stomach misery.

Get some Pape's Diapepsin now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of Stomach Trouble and Indigestion.

Romance of a Statue.

The statue of Charles I. which now stands in London was sold to a brazier during the commonwealth with the understanding that it should be broken up. The buyer, however, saw a chance to make money and buried it instead. To cover his action he made a large number of bronze knives and forks, which were eagerly bought by both royalists and Puritans as souvenirs. When the monarchy was restored to power the statue was dug up again and bought by the government to be placed in its present position, where it has remained since 1674.

The Queer Elephant Shrew.

One kind of African mice we seldom see or read about is the little elephant shrew. It is barely four inches long, but the trunk and shortened tail combined gives it another four to five inches. The fur, though drab instead of gray, is otherwise like that of a chinchilla, as also are its large and delicate ears, while both in the formation and the manner of using its legs it reminds one of a new species of miniature kangaroo. Again, at times, when in a sitting posture, it looks not unlike a fluffy young chicken which is trying to put out of sight a worm that has proved almost too much for it. Indeed, at all times the elongated and highly sensitive nose or trunk is very much like a dark colored and uneasy worm—that organ, which during wakeful moments is always slightly on the wriggle. It has swift leaping powers. It will tuck up its appendages and, like a ball, roll over and over in a straight line, and, after a meal, which occurs at very short intervals and consists of several mouthfuls only, quite surprises one by standing stock still, apart only from a gentle quivering of the trunk.

A Certain Shot.

The aged, wrinkled gamekeeper whistled his dog and scratched his towsled head before turning to the company.

"Yes, sir," said he; "the gunmindest master I ever had were Sir Parson Sharpe. All round as a hat, he were."

"And did he go shooting?" exclaimed the audience in the village workingmen's club.

"Shooting!" replied the gamekeeper with a snort of contempt at the question. "Ay, that he did. Yes, he were reg'lar. When he was in the woods and anything rose I'd cry, 'Birds, sir!' and then I'd run behind the partridge and the dogs 'd run behind me."

"And then?" asked the audience.

"Then the gun'd blaze away with both barls."

"And did he ever hit anything?"

"Oh, yes! Sometimes it wur a cow or a horse or a pig or a dog. Now and again it wur a man. But he always hit something. He were a certain shot, he were!"—London Answers.

Spiking the Guns.

The expression "spiking guns" is a survival from the day when all that was necessary to put a gun out of action (provided, of course, that you had access to it) was a large nail or spike and a hammer. You simply drove the nail into the touch-hole at the breech. If the nail was long enough to turn round at the end on the bottom of the bore so much the better. It is just as simple, perhaps simpler, to put a modern gun out of action. All you want is a hammer. The breech-block of the modern gun is held closed by screw threads. After the breech block is shut on the shell a turn of two or three inches engages the threads. By knocking a bur on these threads you prevent them engaging. Any attempt to fire the gun without the breech block being perfectly closed would, of course, be of material assistance to the enemy.

A Giant Baby.

The world's astronomers are now much interested in the planet Jupiter. This planet is the largest in our system, but is said by the scientists to be an infant in swaddling clothes so far as development is concerned. Its volume Jupiter is 1,279 times greater than our own globe. But we are now full grown and, as some astronomers declare, on the downhill side of life. In other words, our little earth is in middle age and will soon be growing old. Great Jupiter, the king of the heavens so far as our planetary system is concerned, is not yet fit for life. From the latest observations of Jupiter it is supposed to be in the act of building, of solidifying. One astronomer says: "I have not the slightest doubt that we are assisting at the creation of a world. Under our dazzled eyes a new world is being created in the infinity, and in Jupiter we hail the world of the future."—Chicago News.

Cupid's Target—A Game.

In the game Cupid's darts are shot from a small bow by each child in turn at a heart shaped target of white with a smaller red heart for a bullseye. The one whose dart comes nearest the middle of the bullseye may receive a gayly beribboned bow and arrow for a prize.

The Two Echoes.

Two echoes, each with mouth and ears,
Lived peacefully for many years
Till one, not meaning to offend,
Said: "Let me hear your voice, my friend.
I know my voice is very fine,
But which is finer, yours or mine?"
"Mine," said the other, loud and clear.
"Mine," said the first in tones severe.
"Mine," said the other echo next.
"Mine," said the first one, rather vexed.
And "mine" was all that they would say,
And neither of them would give way.
For, though most echoes can be mute,
If spoken to they will dispute.
And I am sure these always will,
Since there they are disputing still.

USELESS LINIMENTS

Are being fast driven off the market by the overpowering merit of Nerviline, which has more strength in one drop than is found in a quart of ordinary remedies. Full of pain-subduing properties, healing and soothing, its influence on rheumatism, sciatica, and lumbago is unsurpassed. Nerviline is without question the best household liniment made. For nearly fifty years a staple in every drug store in America.

DROP ALL OTHERS.

"I dropped all liniments but Nerviline because I found Nerviline the quickest to relieve pain," writes H. S. Benton of St. John's. "If my children are croupy or sick, Nerviline cures them. If a case of cramps or stomach-ache turns up, Nerviline is ever ready. We use Nerviline for neuralgia, rheumatism and all kinds of aches and pains; it's good as any doctor."

Use Only "Nerviline"

Good to rub on any part of the body—soothing, antiseptic, and just full of pain-relieving power. Just as good for internal pains, like cramps, toothache, dyspepsia, etc.

You can't beat Nerviline as a general household panacea for the aches and pains of the whole family. Buy it.

LONDON MADE SUITS TO MEASURE

There is a distinctive style and finish about a "Curzon" Suit which the "ready-to-wear" garments sold in Canada and the States lack. Indeed the "Curzon" cut and finish is hardly equalled even in garments sold by the best Custom Tailors, whose charges are always exclusive, if not altogether prohibitive. There is just that ease and comfort about our garments which give the wearer a "well at ease" appearance.

Then there is the cloth to remember: nothing but real British materials every time.

OLD MAN OF THE SEA

MYSTERIOUS MOUNTAIN HERMIT

Strange tales by Pentyarn (Glamorgan, Wales), quarrymen of a mysterious mountain dweller led to a search party discovering a hut built of twigs, turf, and stones inhabited by a middle-aged man on a mountain side near Merthyr Tydfil. On this abode being demolished the stranger constructed a fresh hut, which, having been discovered, has been inspected by hundreds of visitors. The structure is only 7 feet in length by 3 feet in height. Owing to the ground being private property, the police, who are in possession of the facts, are stated to be unable to interfere.

Hairdresser for Workhouse

The North Dublin Guardians have decided to ask the Local Government Board to sanction the appointment of a qualified hairdresser, who is a member of a trades union, as the practice of employing inmates to act as hairdressers is dangerous to the inmates and also to ratepayers, as it leaves them open to claims for compensation.

The Difference

A wealthy French Socialist, who has been in the habit of preaching that no man has a right to have more money than another, has just lodged a charge against some unknown burglars who entered his villa and helped themselves to all they could find!

In Dread Of Croup

The inexperienced mother is always in dread of croup. There is seldom any warning until the child awakens at midnight with the hard, metallic cough and gasps frantically for breath.

There is no time to send for a doctor, no time to go to the drug store, even; relief must be obtained at once. If you are not so fortunate as to have Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house, cause the child to vomit with a spoonful of warm lard or by tickling the throat with the finger.

Then get Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine so as to prevent the more serious attack which usually comes the second night. This treatment is wonderfully effective for croup, bronchitis and colds in the throat or chest. Mothers who make a practice of always keeping it in the house find that they can depend on it in case of emergency.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY

"My boy Frank seemed weak-chested, and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs. D. Stevens, Ninga, Man. "The many medicines used did not seem to benefit him, until we tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and found it to be exactly what was wanted to cure him." No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

Rehabilitating the Goat

At a meeting in Dublin over which Lady Aberdeen presided it was decided to form an "Irish Goat Society," with a view to "rehabilitate the goat in the favor of the public." Lady Aberdeen said the value of the milk of goats for young children was so great that the surprise was that the beneficial results of its use had not been more generally recognised. In Ireland the rearing of goats had been somewhat neglected in recent years, but there were still, it was stated, something like a quarter of a million goats in Ireland, but the goats did not receive the care or attention which their value to the community entitled them to.

WHAT YOU HEAR IN OLD QUEBEC

"I Am Well, Thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Mrs. Gagnon, Riviere au Dore, one of Those Who Raise the Glad Shout of Good Health.

Riviere au Dore, Chicoutimi Co., Quebec, May 10.—(Special.)—"Yes, I am well, and I give all the credit to Dodd's Kidney Pills." Those words have been uttered again and again in almost every corner of the Province of Quebec. This time they come from Mrs. Joseph Gagnon, a well known young married woman of this place.

"My back and head ached and my limbs would swell," Mrs. Gagnon continues. "I always had a bitter taste in my mouth, and especially in the morning. Twelve boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me."

Mrs. Gagnon's symptoms showed beyond a doubt that her trouble was from the Kidneys. Naturally she turned to the old reliable Kidney cure that had proved its worth in thousands of other cases. She took Dodd's Kidney Pills and she is well.

Kidney Disease is the greatest enemy the women of to-day have to fight. Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure it. That's why they have earned the name "suffering woman's best friend."

Suffered With Nerve Trouble For Two Years.

IT WAS IMPOSSIBLE FOR HIM TO SLEEP.

Diseases of the nervous system are very common. All the organs of the body may be sound while the nervous system alone may be diseased, therefore it is necessary for anyone suffering from any nervous trouble to procure a remedy which will at once quieten the nerves and build up the system.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will do this for you, providing you give them a fair trial.

Mr. Chas. W. Wood, Montreal, Que., writes:—"For two years I had suffered with nerve trouble, and it was impossible for me to sleep. It did not matter what time I went to bed, in the morning I was even worse than the night before. I consulted a doctor, and he gave me a tonic to take a half hour before going to bed. It was all right for a time, but the old trouble returned with greater force than before. One of the boys, who works with me, gave me half a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I took them and I got such satisfaction that I got another box, and before I finished it I could enjoy sleep from 10 p.m. until 6 a.m., and now feel good."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Cookery Notes

Lenten Dishes.

Fish Croquettes.—The remains of any fish, one large onion, a sprig of thyme, three sprigs of parsley, a clove of garlic if you like it. Mince all fine and mix. Season to taste, adding a tablespoonful of butter. Add breadcrumbs in proportion to one-third the quantity. When thoroughly mixed make into balls and flatten like cakes; then dip into beaten egg and cover with breadcrumbs. Fry a delicate brown and serve with cream horseradish or tomato sauce.

Potato Salad of Cold Potatoes.—Cold boiled potatoes can be utilised in a salad, although they do not make as appetising a salad as one made of the fresh boiled potato marinated with oil and vinegar while hot. For the cold potato salad take three cold boiled potatoes, one large white onion, two hard boiled eggs, nine tablespoonfuls olive oil, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar, one teaspoonful of salt and four sprigs of nice fresh parsley. A dash of mustard may be added if desired.

Cheese Fondu.—Put two tablespoonfuls of butter into a saucepan and melt without allowing it to brown at all. Then stir in two tablespoonfuls of sifted flour and as soon as smooth pour in half a cupful of fresh milk or cream and let boil about two minutes. Remove from the fire and stir in the yolks of three eggs well beaten; salt and pepper to taste; a grating of nutmeg and a cup of grated Parmesan or Gruyere cheese. Mix all together well and have ready a small pudding dish or individual souffle dishes well buttered. Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth and beat into the mixture and then fill the buttered dishes about two-thirds full. Bake in a moderate oven about twenty-five minutes. Serve immediately, or the mixture, which has risen to the top of the dishes, will shrink or fall.

Stuffed Dried Herring.—Smoked dried herring are popular with a family where they appear stuffed with savory dressing and baked. The bones of the fish are taken out and the place from which they came is filled with a mixture of fine buttered breadcrumbs, finely minced chives and a little parsley. Then the fish are brushed with butter. A very little water is put in the pan and they are baked about fifteen minutes. Serve them with lemon slices.

Orange Salad.—There cannot be a more delicious dinner salad, and certainly hardly a simpler one, than lettuce leaves that are torn, not cut; bits of orange pulp without a trace of white fiber or seeds and a dressing of oil and vinegar, with a scanty sprinkling of sugar.

Baked Halibut.—Any dry white meat fish, such as halibut, is delicious baked in a thick slice that has been dipped in flour, covered with a layer of tomato pulp or with slices of tomato, sprinkled with a little minced green pepper, seasoned with salt and pepper and baked about twenty minutes.

French Fried Stuffed Eggs.—Take four hard boiled eggs, remove the shells, cut a small bit of the end of each and carefully take out the yolk. Mash this yolk with a silver fork until it is perfectly smooth and add to it some salt, pepper, a small piece of butter and some chopped parsley. Replace all in the whites and cover up end. Beat up the white of one raw egg and in this dip the cooked eggs, and afterward roll them in breadcrumbs. Place all in a wire basket and let them cook for two minutes in boiling lard. Serve with tomato or cream sauce.

Cheese a la Newburg.—For cheese a la Newburg, as a girl maker ½ lb her chafing dish, cut the soft part from each clam and chop the tough part very fine. Melt a tablespoonful of butter in the blazer with a little salt and paprika and add the chopped clams. Simmer them for about ten minutes. Then add two tablespoonfuls of sherry and the soft clams. At the last stir in quickly the yolks of two eggs beaten into half a cupful of cream and let come near a boil, but not quite to the point. Serve at once.

One Egg Cake.

Cream a half cupful of butter, work in one cupful of sugar, then one egg yolk. When smooth stir in one cupful of milk and gradually two cupfuls of sifted flour with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Flavor with vanilla, bake and ice with the following: Beat one cupful of confectioner's sugar slowly into the white of one egg and flavor with a half teaspoonful of vanilla. Stir over the fire a half cupful of grated chocolate, two tablespoonfuls of confectioner's sugar and one tablespoonful of hot water until smooth, then add one more tablespoonful of hot water and stir into the sugar and beaten egg. Nuts may be added, whole or chopped.

Cause and Effect.

"When I was shipwrecked in South America," said Captain Bowsprit, "I came across a tribe of wild women who had no tongues."

"The Liver Pills act So Naturally and Easily."

Such a statement, coming from the cashier of a bank, shows what confidence responsible people have in these pills. Mr. A. L. Wilson after trying them wrote:

"I have used Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills and also your Anti-Pain Pills, on myself, with good results. The Liver Pills act so naturally and so easily that I scarcely know that I have taken a pill. Frequently being troubled with headache I take an Anti-Pain Pill and get immediate relief in every case."
A. L. Wilson, Sparta, Ill.
Mr. Wilson was for a number of years cashier of the First National Bank of Sparta.

Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills are different from others. Many kinds of liver pills are "impossible" after one trial on account of their harshness. Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills do not act by sheer force but in an easy, natural way, without griping or undue irritation. They are not habit forming.

If the first bottle fails to benefit, your druggist will return the price. Ask him.

WASTE OF TIME TO BATHE

Scientists Declare Bacterial Growth is Increased by Washing

To take a bath only leaves one's skin in a dirtier condition than before, from the medical point of view. This is the melancholy opinion expressed by the leading microbiologists of the world, whose views are collected by Le Matin.

According to these experts, who have been making a number of tests, the ordinary bath only multiplies the growth of microbes, which always flourish on even the healthiest skin.

Dr. Tsidaka, the famous Japanese bacteriologist, for example, recently had three men bathe in clean water one after the other, the bathers each time being thoroughly scrubbed with fresh water. All afterward were found to have three or four times as many microbe colonies on their backs as previously.

Other scientists agree with the Japanese professor. One says that the idea of cleansing the skin from microbes by the application of soap and water is a pathetic delusion, as the bacterial growth is only stimulated and increased by these means.

TRY TO ESCAPE BRIGHT'S DISEASE

Look Well to Your Kidneys and Keep Them Healthy and Thus Avoid Incurable Diabetes and Bright's Disease.

If you would avoid Bright's disease take Dr. Hamilton's Pills at once—no delay about their action, which is swift and thorough. In every case complete cure attends their use.

Read the following symptoms—they tell if your kidneys are sick or well—whether or no you require a medicine such as Dr. Hamilton's Pills:

WATCH YOUR WATER.
Does it smell bad?
Is it red, bloody?
Painful and too frequent?
Does it drip?
Discolor the linen?
After standing 24 hours, if the urine is cloudy, highly colored, stringy, contains sediment like brickdust, then
YOUR KIDNEYS ARE DISEASED.

To protect your system against the further inroads of kidney complaint rely on Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They give instant relief to the backache, those dragging sensations, desire to urinate too often or too seldom. You'll feel invigorated and braced, your appetite will improve, sleep will be restful. No medicine on earth will do you more lasting good. Price 25c per box, or five boxes for $1, at all dealers.

FIVE CHILDREN POISONED

Died From the Effects of Decayed Herrings

In two days Patrick and Mrs. Magee, who reside about six miles from Montagu, were bereft of five of their six children. The death of the children is supposed to have been due to ptomaine poisoning brought on by eating decayed herrings, of which Mr. and Mrs. Magee and the five children partook freely at dinner. The sixth child was not at home. After dinner the children and mother became ill and as their condition became serious, Dr. Fraar, of Monaga, was sent for. He found all five children very sick, one of them dying an hour after his arrival. Two others died within fifteen minutes of each other, and a day later the other children passed away.

WHEN WIVES WERE CHEAP

There is living in Horsham, at the age of 85, a remarkable old man called Henry Burstow—by hard necessity a shoemaker, by taste a singer of songs and a ringer of church bells. Even now he can sing any one of 400 songs that he knows by heart. Mr. Burstow occasionally reinforces his memory with stories told him by his father, and so can go back to 1830 when a man sold his wife at the November Fair for 3s 6d. He himself can well remember that in 1844 a lady known as "Pin-toe Nanny," was brought into the market place with a halter round her neck and sold for 30s to a man who parted with his watch to raise the price. Nanny changed hands again a year afterward and married one Jim Smith, with whom she lived happily ever after ward.—Westminster Gazette.

Tiny Pet Dogs

The British dog show in London was the Mecca of all dog lovers. There was a remarkable increase in the Borzoi and pet dog classes. Some of the latter reclined on cushions of satin in luxuriously appointed miniature kennels. Two little dwarfs like tiny St. Bernards, which could be put in a waistcoat pocket, were on sale at $10 an ounce.

Novel Parasols

Spring sunshades full of mechanical surprises are the London woman's latest toy. Handles in the form of a negro who suddenly winks an eye or rudely puts out his tongue; cats that slap down their paws to catch mice; crocodiles that creep out of huts; and cats that put out their tongues and grin foolishly—all these are the latest parasol freaks.

TOO OLD AFTER THIRTY

Switzerland Has Been Dismissing Many Woman Teachers

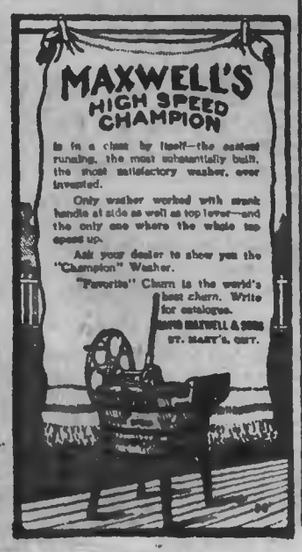
The Central Scholastic Commission at Berne are of opinion that a woman is too old to teach after her thirtieth year, and during the last two years in all the government schools in the Swiss capital, women teachers have been dismissed on attaining this age.

The commission paid no heed to the storm of protests against this absurd rule, but recently a young teacher who was to be dismissed under the "old age" regulation appeared against the judgment under legal advice, and the case came up before the General Council, which promptly decided in her favor.

The verdict will completely change the existing regulations made by the Central Scholastic Commission. The "too old at thirty rule" does not exist for teachers in any other part of Switzerland.

Suffragettes Save Debtors

Sir John Paget, K.C., Bt., deputy judge, sitting in the City of London Court, said he did not want to make any more committal orders against debtors than could be helped, as all the available accommodation in the prisons would very soon be required for another class of offender, as far as he could see.



MAXWELL'S HIGH SPEED CHAMPION

SHE FAINTED WITH THE AGONY

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Her Always

MISS MAGGIE JANNACK

MOUNTAIN, ONT., Dec. 14th, 1910

"I desire to let the world know the great debt I owe "Fruit-a-tives" which saved my life when I had given up hope of ever being well again.

For six years, I suffered from dreadful Kidney Disease. My legs and lower part of my body were fearfully swollen. The pain in my side and legs would be so bad that I would faint with the agony.

Five different doctors attended me and all said it was Kidney Disease and gave me no hope of getting well.

A kind neighbor visited me and mentioned the case of Mrs. Fenwick who had been cured of a sickness like mine. I took "Fruit-a-tives" and in a short time, I began to feel better—the swelling went down—the pains were easier—and soon I was well.

I have gained over 30 pounds since taking "Fruit-a-tives"—and my friends look upon my recovery as a miracle."

(Miss) MAGGIE JANNACK.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c.—or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Roosevelt Only Chinese.

New York, May 11.—The Roosevelt committee yesterday gave out a copy of a letter sent to I. A. Caswell, chairman of the Minnesota Roosevelt committee, in which Roosevelt declares that there is just one candidate whom it is possible to nominate against the "bosses," and that is himself. In an analysis of the Presidential situation, he says Taft has carried only two of nine states in which primaries have been held, and has only forty of the 254 delegates chosen.

Found Traces of Arsenic.

Bad Axe, Mich., May 11.—Traces of arsenic were found in the stomach and liver of the late Royal Sparling of Ubly, by Chemist R. W. Pryer and Dean Victor C. Vaughan of the University of Michigan, according to their testimony at the trial of Dr. Robert McGregor of London, Ont., charged with the murder of the Sparling youth. Experts also testified that Sparling could not have died from any alleged contagious disease.

Will Revise U. S. Patent Laws.

Washington, May 11.—President Taft yesterday took a decided step toward revision of the patent laws, which have remained practically unchanged since 1807. He sent a special message to Congress asking for Legislature authorizing him to appoint a commission to investigate the patent laws and report what changes were necessary to make them fit modern conditions.

Montreal Chinaman a Leper.

Montreal, May 11.—The medical health officer here has decided that Chin Tong, a Chinaman, who was thought to be suffering from leprosy, really has the dread disease. While arrangements are being made for the deportation to China, Tong will be kept in a special shack, which will be burned after he is removed.

Kingston Hotelman Assigns.

Kingston, May 11.—W. A. Telfer, proprietor of the British American and Frontenac Hotels, has made an assignment. His liabilities are about $20,000. He says he was forced to assign by reason of the hold up of the license for the Frontenac Hotel. For some reason, the license commissioners held over his license for the Frontenac, and Mr. Telfer then blocked the transfer of the British American to Messrs. Halliday and Manley. Halliday is now in charge of both hotels for the creditors.

Stars and Stripes Lavishly Displayed.

Calgary, Alta., May 11.—The lavish display of the Stars and Stripes and the almost entire absence of Canadian and British emblems at the opening baseball parade through the streets on Wednesday has led to the committee in charge being virtually swamped with letters from indignant citizens. Members of the committee say that the majority of the ball players are from the other side of the line, hence the presence of the numerous American flags.

Committed for Trial.

Kingston, May 11.—At the penitentiary yesterday the Mecum brothers, Brown, Bonner and McNeil, who escaped from the penitentiary on April 23, appeared before Magistrate on charges of assaulting their guards and escaping, and were sent for trial at the Court of General Sessions next month. Walter Collins, another prisoner, who recently made a murderous attack upon a fellow-prisoner, was also sent for trial.

Removing to Brockville.

Stratford, May 11.—Mr. W. H. Wood, boys' secretary of the local Y.M.C.A. for the last three years, has resigned, and will go to Brockville on August 1 as general secretary. Mr. Wood, in addition to being a popular and successful worker with the boys, is a noted athlete, having been the first Canadian to finish in the Olympic marathon in England.

Ethics of Bribery.

A certain saloon keeper years ago was elected to the legislature of a southern state at a time when there was important legislation pending. He accepted a thousand dollars for his vote on a certain measure. The deal was hardly closed when the opposition came round, offering him two thousand. The temptation was strong, but the new member shook his head.

"No gentleman as is a gentleman," he said, "will sell out twicet on wan proposition!"—Saturday Evening Post.

The London Baby's Plaint.

Please, father, dear father, come home to us now!
The clock in the steeple's run down.
The suffragist ladies have started a row
And smashed all the windows in town.

And now the dear mother is landed in jail
With numerous ladies of note.
They don't care a sixpence for pardon or bail,
But they'd break all the laws for a vote.

We babies are crying for mother to come.
Please, father, bring mother right home!

Meredith for Railway Board?

Toronto, May 11.—That Chief Justice Sir William Meredith, on his retirement from the bench, will become head of the Ontario Railway Board, and that Chairman Leitch will become a judge of the High Court, is a rumor which is making its way about legal circles here.

It is pointed out that the duties of the Ontario Railway Board do not call for the traveling which would militate against Sir William Meredith becoming chief of the Dominion Board.

The name of W. J. Hanna is being mentioned as a possible successor to Judge Mabee.

WHY BEEF IS DEARER

FODDER WAS SCARCE

It may be information to the citizens that most of the beef supplied in the retail shops in this city is largely imported from Toronto. The supplies of beef around Peterborough is far short of the requirements of the market, and to make up the deficiency shipments are being received almost daily from the abattoirs in Toronto.

Such is the statement of prominent cattle and meat dealer and is but a reiteration of what the drovers and others in the business have been saying for some time past.

Price of Imported Beef.

"The butchers are, of course, obtaining a few bullocks around this district," the informant stated, "but the supply is altogether inadequate for the city's demands. Shipments are coming in regularly from Toronto and Hamilton and I understand that 11 3-4 cents is the price charged for beef laid down in Peterborough. I also understand that the butchers are charging a retail price of from 18 to 20 cents and I don't see how they can make much money at that rate. In a carcass there is as much shank as there is sirloin steak, but one price has been paid for the whole carcass by the butcher. I would not be surprised if a higher price would be asked. To my way of figuring it out, 25c a pound would about allow the dealers a good profit.

Last fall cattle could be bought cheaply and it was probably the case that the big abattoirs bought largely and froze their stock which they would keep in storage until Spring. [illegible] my of that beef here if [illegible] being sold at a higher [illegible] price of prime beef [illegible] people must be mak[illegible]

But there is no doubt about the shortage of cattle in this district. The winter was a severe one for those who had cattle. Owing to the small supplies of fodder, cattle feed had to be bought by the farmers and there is no money in that. In a great many cases they disposed of large numbers of cattle, and of course, you cannot expect to secure supplies after conditions that have prevailed during the last year and particularly during the past winter."

A Drover Almost Idle.

A drover stated to the Examiner yesterday that he knew the country for miles around the city, and he did not know where he could get a beef within fifty miles if he had to get one. The country has been stripped of them according to his experience.

A butcher said that during the past two weeks he had killed 131 calves, and remarked that if the providing of veal continued at that rate an idea could be formed of the number of cattle that would be found in the country next year.

Explain Existing Cost.

Such are the statements of a number of local men who are intimate with the cattle and butcher business, and the conditions referred to undoubtedly explain the present cost of a good juicy steak that does not require a trip through a meat chopper before an attempt is made to masticate it.

During the winter numerous reports were published regarding the scarcity of fodder, and showing that farmers were actually disposing of their cattle in preference to feeding them. Western beef is contributing largely to the supply just now, according to one statement, but as far as this district is concerned the drovers are not as actively employed this year as formerly, and if all the reports are true, and there is no reason for doubting them, something will have to be done to replenish the supply of cattle in this part of the country if the price of a decent steak is to remain within the reach of the average purse.

MOTHERS PLEASED WITH BABY'S OWN TABLETS

A mother who has once used Baby's Own Tablets for her little one never fails to show her pleasure at the result. She at once realizes that they are the ideal medicine for baby—being absolutely safe and free from injurious drugs and at the same time a sure cure for all the little ills from which babies suffer. Mrs. P. Therault, Pacquetville, N. B., writes:—"Please send me another box of Baby's Own Tablets. I was extremely pleased with the last. My baby was greatly troubled with constipation and vomiting, but the Tablets quickly cured her." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MOULDERS DECIDE TO PRESS DEMAND FOR A NINE HOUR DAY

Wm. Hamilton Co'y's Directors to Make Their Shop an Open One Beginning Monday Morning—Board Meeting Held To-day.

THE PRESENT SITUATION

Representatives of the Moulders' union presented their demands to the Foundrymen this morning, for a nine hour day.

This was the result of a meeting of the Union, held last night in the Labor Temple. To the Examiner, Mr. M. J. Keough, 1st Vice President of the International Moulders' Union, said: "The committee has decided unanimously to stand by their demand for a nine-hour day."

A representative of the Examiner interviewed a member of the board of directors of the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Co. this morning.

"Have the moulders waited on your company to-day," he was asked.

"Yes, a committee presented a demand for a nine-hour day."

"What action has your Company taken?"

"The Board of Directors held a meeting this morning, and it unanimously decided that commencing on Monday morning the shop would be open. We have taken all the dictation from the Moulders that we intend to. This is the second time during the past three and a half years that we have had demands. Our competitors in Gravenhurst, Orillia, Montreal, Toronto, and other places have open shops. We pointed out to the committee the unfairness of asking us for a nine-hour day."

The directors stated that they could not be expected to pay the same wages for a nine-hour day, that their competitors in other cities were paying for ten hours' work.

Mr. G. Walter Green stated that a demand for a nine-hour day had been received.

Mr. Jas. Hamilton, of the Peter Hamilton Co., Limited, stated that the moulders had presented their demands this morning, which practically meant that they would strike on Monday morning if the demand for a nine hour day was not granted. Mr. Hamilton said that no decision had as yet been arrived at by the company as to what would be done. He felt that because of the conditions existing in other cities the company would oppose granting a nine-hour working day when their competitors in other cities had a ten hour day.

ANNUAL MEETING

Mr. Ryerson Ritchie Will Address Board of Trade on Civic Organization and Development

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

On Tuesday evening next, May 14, in the Council Chamber, at 8 o'clock, the Board of Trade will hold its annual meeting, and the election of officers for the ensuing year will also take place.

Mr. Ryerson Ritchie, a highly esteemed citizen of Peterborough, who is an eminent specialist in civic organization, and stands at the head of his profession on the North American continent, will be present, and has kindly promised to address the members on the most important and interesting subject, "Civic Organization and Development".

Mr. Ryerson Ritchie is well known, both in Canada and the United States as a most successful organizer.

Among some of the important positions which he has filled with pronounced success, are the following:

Secretary of the "Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association of Cincinnati".

Secretary of the "Commercial Chamber of Kansas City".

Secretary of the "Cleveland Chamber of Commerce."

Secretary of the "Detroit Board of Commerce."

Executive Director of the "Chicago Association of Commerce."

Executive Director of the "Boston Chamber of Commerce."

In view of the importance of this meeting it is sincerely hoped that every member of the Board of Trade will be present.

THE DEATH OF MR. P. D. DORAN WELL KNOWN HERE

Was a Member of the Old Firm of Doran & Gibbons Who Had Store in Peterborough

Some of the older residents may remember the firm of Doran and Gibbons, who conducted a dry goods store where the Bank of Ottawa is now located. The death of Mr. P. D. Doran at the age of 73 years on May 4th, in Kingston, recalls this firm who were once regarded as one of Peterborough's prominent business men. Mr. Doran came to Peterborough from Kingston, recalls this firm who were siness in this city he returned to his native town. He was widely known among the older generation, and but a few of the firms that were then in business with him remain to-day. The late Mr. Jas. Dolan, for years a prominent dry goods merchant in this city, was first engaged with Doran and Gibbons, where he secured his experience.

VALUABLE HORSE IS KILLED

Mr. John Newham, of Lot 18, Concession 11, Smith, had the misfortune to lose a valuable young horse through an accident, this week. While doing some work around the farm, his team ran away, and crashed into a pine stump. One of the horses was so badly injured that it died a few hours afterwards. Mr. Newnham had paid $220 for the animal just a week before. The other horse was also seriously hurt and may not survive.

While in Lindsay recently, Mr. W. H. Hill was interviewed by the Warder and naturally said a few good things about the Peterborough schools.

Referring to the educational system and the schools, Mr. Hill stated that Peterborough was particularly fortunate in not only having good schools, but also good teachers. He had often heard of the Lindsay Collegiate Institute and its enviable career, and also commended the Lindsay board of education and the citizens generally on the erection of two new public schools. "Schools," Mr. Hill characterized as "a town's best asset. They are the best possible industry and should be given every support possible."

Car No. 31, Adapted for the Conditions Required in Connection With System Makes Initial Trip This Morning.

FIRST PASSENGERS

METHOD OF PROCEDURE.

For patrons of pay-as-you-enter car service:

Have your fare ready before boarding car if possible.

Deposit fare in the box, which is conveniently located in rear vestibule for that purpose.

Pass into car as expeditiously as possible and avoid congestion.

Exit by rear or front doors.

A new era was recorded in Peterborough Radial Railway history this morning, when the new pay-as-you enter system, so recently accepted by the company, was formally introduced to the public.

One of the new cars, having on board a number of street railway officials, left the King street barns at nine o'clock this morning and a few minutes later was speeding towards the south end of the George street route. Two passengers boarded the car on its maiden trip, at the intersection of George and Charlotte streets. They left the car at Lake street, apparently unconscious of the fact that the presence of the brand new car numbered 31, on George street, was an epoch marking event in street railway circles, indicating, as it did, the formal inauguration of the pay-as-you-enter system.

Will Not Apply to Branch Lines.

At present the new system will be confined to the George street line only, and will have the cumulative effect of educating the travelling public to the new modus of procedure, which will apply to the new cars. The branch lines will remain as formerly, and it will be some time before the pay-as-you enter system will become universal throughout the entire services.

Entrance to these cars, is on the right, and by the rear platform. Here the words "In" and "Out" are conspicuously displayed in large letters, and with the additional use of a railing, the passengers are guided through the proper channels, that will eventually lead them to their fare in the box, provided for that purpose in the rear of the car. The rear vestibule is wide and roomy, and specially adapted for the purpose intended. Two doors one entrance and one exit door are provided at the rear, while one exit door controlled by a lever in the hands of the motorman, is provided for at the front of the cars. There are no doors whatever on the left side of the new cars. These innovations will mean that the passenger will enter the car by the rear, deposit his fare in the box, and pass on into the car, where he will remain undisturbed until his destination is reached. It eliminates the necessity of the conductor forcing his way through a crowded car, in an endeavour to collect fares, much to the annoyance of the passengers and the inconvenience of himself.

Drop fenders of the latest design, that will pick up anything from a pin to a human body, without inflicting injury of any kind, are among the many new features that find a place on the new car. A new system of ventilation, with a forced draught in front and a suction to the rear, render these cars immune from disparaging comment by the Sanitary Inspector. The cars have been pressed into service on different occasions and therefore require little introduction to the public. On Monday two more cars will be placed on the George street route, an innovation which will spell the last word in the final inauguration of the pay-as-you-enter service.

EXTENSION COMPLETED BY JULY 1ST

Mr. Munro Believes That the New Street Railway Line Will Be Ready by That Time

LARGE FORCE AT WORK

That the new street railway extension will be ready for service about the first of July is the opinion of Mr. Munro, manager of the Peterborough Radial Railway Company.

About twenty-five men are engaged on the work at present, and it is expected that this will be increased to about fifty next week. Provision for crossing the C.P.R. tracks at the Canadian General Electric Company's works has been provided for, also the regrading of the approaches to the old track for a couple of blocks on Park street, preparatory to the laying of the new line.

The line will be about four-fifths of a mile in length, and will be a valuable asset to the growth of the south end of the city.

SOME PURCHASERS OF NEW AUTOS THIS SPRING

Mr. J. J. Duffus has delivered 17 new automobiles this spring and has 12 more on the road to be delivered in the near future. Among those who have purchased Ford touring cars are: Mr. Andrew Brown, Dr. Park, Mr. J. W. McDermid, John Douglas and R. J. Doak of Millbrook, Mr. L. M. Hayes, Mr. C. Blewett, Mr. C. A. Tanner of Lakefield, Mr. A. H. C. Long of Port Hope, Mr. Louis Leclaire. Dr. Ross, Townsend Street, has secured a new Ford runabout, and one has been presented to Rev. Dr. O'Brien. Mr. John Carew, of the Carew Lumber Co., Lindsay, has purchased a five-passenger Russell touring car, with a silent Knight 40 h.p. motor, from Mr. Duffus. Mr. Denham has bought a 30 h.p. Russell touring car, and Mr. Campbell, of the Campbell Milling Co., a two-passenger 30 h.p. Reo. Mr. F. Matthews purchased a seven-passenger Russell touring car. These are some of the new cars that have been sold in the city this spring, and which make splendid additions to the already large number of automobiles of which Peterborough people might boast.

Accuser, Judge And Jury

Mr. J. H. Barnham's letter to the Globe re the Peterborough postmastership can be most stingingly characterized by describing it as like himself. The idea of saying that the postmaster of Peterborough, who was wrongly charged with offensive partisanship, should have brought his demand for investigation before Parliament, is moonshine madness. Parliament wastes enough time with the antics of some of its members, without bringing petty matters of administrative routine to discussion at the cost rate of $1,000 or $2,000 an hour. No private person is allowed on the floor of the House, let alone to speak in his own behalf or by counsel. Such a proposal is a crass absurdity, and could only have originated in one brain in Canada.

Mr. Stratton, the late postmaster, denied the charge of "offensive partisanship" and asked only the simple justice of an investigation, which was promised and denied him. Mr. Barnham says he was "guilty"—"from my own knowledge." British justice doesn't usually combine accuser, judge and jury in one person, even if he were competent, fair-minded and unprejudiced. The Peterborough postmaster was dismissed on alleged grounds that had no existence, that were not investigated, not to say proven. The dismissal, made on the unsupported word of the member, is recognition of incompetency, treachery in the administration of the civil service—supremely ridiculous if it were not supremely serious as evidence of the extent to which the "spoils system" is become an integral part of our governmental machinery.

ISMAY IS CHEERED

Managing Director of White Star Line Was Warmly Received on His Arrival in England

BIG CROWD ON HAND

Special to The Examiner:

LIVERPOOL, ENG., MAY 11.—Pale and haggard, but still holding his head high J. Bruce Ismay, the managing director of the White Star Line, and survivor of the Titanic disaster, walked down the gang plank of the steamer Adriatic this morning, amid the cheering of a big crowd, gathered on the docks to meet him. Ismay seemed much touched with the difference between his experience today and the almost brutal reception given him in New York, where his conduct had been condemned without investigation and popular feeling stirred up by the Gotham yellow journals. Ismay declined to make any further statement until he appears before Lord Mersey, but expressed grateful appreciation of the confidence of friends and the British justice given him by British newspapers.

14 Poles Are To Go From George Street

Fourteen high poles, the highest along the west side of George street, will be removed, between Brock and Charlotte streets, in the near future. Ald. Buller told the Examiner to-day that arrangements were practically settled to provide for their removal. This is a matter that the Board of Works has been planning for of late and the securing of it will result in the disappearance of some of the poles, which are regarded as unsightly in any section, and particularly in the heart of the city.

A PICTURE FOR FIRST HOME RUN

Gerald McFadden Offers an Enlarged Photograph of Manager Tompkin

Mr. Gerald McFadden, who is generally to the front in encouraging local baseball, is the first in the field to offer a prize for a batting stunt by the local Canadian Leaguers. He has arranged for a special photograph to be taken of Manager Tompkin and will have this enlarged and framed, and it will become the property of the first White Cap to make a home run on the local grounds. The picture will be on exhibition in the window of McFadden's furniture store Hunter street, in a few days.

LONDON, ENG., MAY 11.—There will be a monster demonstration in Trafalgar Square of labour men and others to protest against the sentence of six months' imprisonment of Tom Mann, the labour leader and writer, convicted of inciting troops to mutiny.

Freight Cars Fell Over Bank

Yesterday afternoon a west-bound freight train ran off the track at the Keene bank, and several cars fell over the bank. The auxiliary was sent from Lindsay and cleared the track, but it was deemed necessary to burn two of the cars as they were damaged beyond repair.

The cause of the run-off was a broken flange.

WHY BEEF IS DEARER

FODDER WAS SCARCE

It may be information to the citizens that most of the beef supplied in the retail shops in this city is largely imported from Toronto. The supplies of beef around Peterborough is far short of the requirements of the market, and to make up the deficiency shipments are being received almost daily from the abattoirs in Toronto.

Such is the statement of prominent cattle and meat dealer and is but a reiteration of what the drovers and others in the business have been saying for some time past.

Price of Imported Beef.

"The butchers are, of course, obtaining a few bullocks around this district," the informant stated, "but the supply is altogether inadequate for the city's demands. Shipments are coming in regularly from Toronto and Hamilton and I understand that 11 3-4 cents is the price charged for beef laid down in Peterborough. I also understand that the butchers are charging a retail price of from 18 to 20 cents and I don't see how they can make much money at that rate. In a carcass there is as much shank as there is sirloin steak, but one price has been paid for the whole carcass by the butcher. I would not be surprised if a higher price would be asked. To my way of figuring it out, 25c a pound would about allow the dealers a good profit.

Last fall cattle could be bought cheaply and it was probably the case that the big abattoirs bought largely and froze their stock which they would keep in cold storage until Spring. If there is any of that beef here it is doubtless being sold at a reduction under the price of prime beef, but the abattoir people must be making a good profit.

No Fodder During Winter.

But there is no doubt about the shortage of cattle in this district. The winter was a severe one for those who had cattle. Owing to the small supplies of fodder, cattle feed had to be bought by the farmers and there is no money in that. In a great many cases they disposed of large numbers of cattle, and of course, you cannot expect to secure supplies after conditions that have prevailed during the last year and particularly during the past winter."

A Drover Almost Idle.

A drover stated to the Examiner yesterday that he knew the country for miles around the city, and he did not know where he could get a beef within fifty miles if he had to get one. The country has been stripped of them according to his experience.

A butcher said that during the past two weeks he had killed 131 calves, and remarked that if the providing of veal continued at that rate an idea could be formed of the number of cattle that would be found in the country next year.

Explain Existing Cost.

Such are the statements of a number of local men who are intimate with the cattle and butcher business, and the conditions referred to undoubtedly explain the present cost of a good juicy steak that does not require a trip through a meat chopper before an attempt is made to masticate it.

During the winter numerous reports were published regarding the scarcity of fodder, and showing that farmers were actually disposing of their cattle in preference to feeding them. Western beef is contributing largely to the supply just now, according to one statement, but so far as this district is concerned the drovers are not as actively employed this year as formerly, and if all the reports are true, and there is no reason for doubting them, something will have to be done to replenish the supply of cattle in this part of the country if the price of a decent steak is to remain within the reach of the average purse.

MOTHERS PLEASED WITH BABY'S OWN TABLETS

A mother who has once used Baby's Own Tablets for her little one never fails to show her pleasure at the result. She at once realizes that they are the ideal medcine for baby—being absolutely safe and free from injurious drugs and at the same time a sure cure for all the little ills from which babies suffer. Mrs. P. Therriault, Pacquetville, N. B., writes:—"Please send me another box of Baby's Own Tablets. I was extremely pleased with the last. My baby was greatly troubled with constipation and vomiting, but the Tablets quickly cured her." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MOULDERS DECIDE TO PRESS DEMAND FOR A NINE HOUR DAY

Wm. Hamilton Co'y's Directors to Make Their Shop an Open One Beginning Monday Morning—Board Meeting Held To-day.

THE PRESENT SITUATION

Representatives of the Moulders' union presented their demands to the Foundrymen this morning, for a nine hour day.

This was the result of a meeting of the Union, held last night in the Labour Temple. To the Examiner, Mr. M. J. Keough, 1st Vice President of the International Moulders' Union, said: "The committee has decided unanimously to stand by their demand for a nine-hour day."

A representative of the Examiner interviewed a member of the board of directors of the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Co. this morning.

EXTENSION COMPLETED BY JULY 1ST

Mr. Munro Believes That the New Street Railway Line Will Be Ready by That Time

LARGE FORCE AT WORK

That the new street railway extension will be ready for service about the first of July is the opinion of Mr. Munro, manager of the Peterborough Radial Railway Company.

About twenty-five men are engaged on the work at present, and it is expected that this will be increased to about fifty next week. Provision for crossing the C.P.R. tracks at the Canadian General Electric Company's works has been provided for, also the regrading of the approaches to the old track for a couple of blocks on Park street, preparatory to the laying of the new line.

The line will be about four-fifths of a mile in length, and will be a valuable asset to the growth of the south end of the city.

SOME PURCHASERS OF NEW AUTOS THIS SPRING

Mr. J. J. Duffus has delivered 17 new automobiles this spring and has 12 more on the road to be delivered in the near future. Among those who have purchased Ford touring cars are: Mr. Andrew Brown, Dr. Park, Mr. J. W. McDermaid, John Douglas and R. J. Doak of Millbrook, Mr. L. M. Hayes, Mr. C. Blewett, Mr. C. A. Tanner of Lakefield, Mr. A. H. C. Long of Port Hope, Mr. Louis Leclaire. Dr. Ross, Townsend Street, has secured a new Ford runabout, and one has been presented to Rev. Dr. O'Brien. Mr. John Carew, of the Carew Lumber Co., Lindsay, has purchased a five-passenger Russell touring car, with a silent Knight 40 h.p. motor, from Mr. Duffus. Mr. Denham has bought a 30 h.p. Russell touring car, and Mr. Campbell, of the Campbell Milling Co., a two-passenger 30 h.p. Reo. Mr. F. Matthews purchased a seven-passenger Russell touring car. These are some of the new cars that have been sold in the city this spring, and which make splendid additions to the already large number of automobiles of which Peterborough people might boast.

A new era was recorded in Peterborough Radial Railway history this morning, when the new pay-as-you enter system, as recently accepted by the company, was formally introduced to the public.

One of the new cars, having on board a number of street railway officials, left the King street barns at nine o'clock this morning and a few minutes later was speeding towards the south end of the George street route. Two passengers boarded the car on its maiden trip, in the north section of George and Charlotte streets. They left the car at Lake street, apparently unconscious of the fact that the presence of the brand new car numbered 31, on George street, was an epoch marking event in street railway circles, indicating, as it did, the formal inauguration of the pay-as-you-enter system.

Will Not Apply to Branch Lines.

At present the new system will be confined to the George street line only, and will have the cumulative effect of educating the travelling public to the new order of procedure, which will apply to the new cars. The branch lines will remain as formerly, and it will be some time before the pay-as-you enter system will become universal throughout the entire service.

Entrance to these cars, is on the right, and by the rear platform. Here the words "in" and "out" are conspicuously displayed in large letters, and with the additional use of a railing, the passengers are guided through the proper channels, that will eventually lead them to their fare in the box, provided for that purpose in the rear of the car. The rear vestibule is wide and roomy, and specially adapted for the purpose intended. Two doors one entrance and one exit door are provided at the rear, while one exit door controlled by a lever in the hands of the motorman, is provided for at the front of the cars. There are no doors whatever on the left side of the new cars. These innovations will mean that the passenger will enter the car by the rear, deposit his fare in the box, and pass on into the car, where he will remain undisturbed until his destination is reached. It eliminates the necessity of the conductor forcing his way through a crowded car, in an endeavour to collect fares, much to the annoyance of the passengers and the inconvenience of himself.

Drop fenders of the latest design, that will pick up anything from a pin to a human body, without inflicting injury of any kind, are among the many new features that find a place on the new car. A new system of ventilation, with a forced draught in front and a suction to the rear, render these cars immune from disparaging comment by the Sanitary Inspector. The cars have been pressed into service on different occasions and therefore require little introduction to the public. On Monday two more cars will be placed on the George street route, an innovation which will spell the last word in the final inauguration of the pay-as-you-enter service.

METHOD OF PROCEDURE.

For patrons of pay-as-you-enter car service:

Have your fare ready before boarding car if possible.

Deposit fare in the box, which is conveniently located in rear vestibule for that purpose.

Pass into car as expeditiously as possible and avoid congestion.

Exit by rear or front doors.

Accuser, Judge And Jury

Mr. J. H. Burnham's letter to the Globe re the Peterborough postmastership can be most stingingly characterized by describing it as like himself. The idea of saying that the postmaster of Peterborough, who was wrongly charged with offensive partisanship, should have brought his demand for investigation before Parliament, is moonshine madness. Parliament wastes enough time with the antics of some of its members, without bringing petty matters of administrative routine to discussion at the cost rate of $1,000 or $2,000 an hour. No private person is allowed on the floor of the House, let alone to speak in his own behalf or by counsel. Such a proposal is a crass absurdity, and could only have originated in one brain in Canada.

Mr. Stratton, the late postmaster, denied the charge of "offensive partisanship" and asked only the simple justice of an investigation, which was promised and denied him. Mr. Burnham says he was "guilty"—"from my own knowledge." British justice doesn't usually combine accuser, judge and jury in one person, even if he were competent, fair-minded and unprejudiced. The Peterborough postmaster was dismissed on alleged grounds that had no existence that were not investigated, not to say, even. The dismissal, made on the unsupported word of the member, is recognition of incompetence fundamental in the administration of the civil service—supremely ridiculous if it were not supremely serious as evidence of the extent to which the "spoils system" to become an integral part of our governmental machinery.

ISMAY IS CHEERED

Managing Director of White Star Line Was Warmly Received on His Arrival in England

BIG CROWD ON HAND

Special to The Examiner:

LIVERPOOL, ENG., MAY 11.—Pale and haggard, but still holding his head high J. Bruce Ismay, the managing director of the White Star Line, and survivor of the Titanic disaster, walked down the gang plank of the steamer Adriatic this morning, amid the cheering of a big crowd, gathered on the docks to meet him. Ismay seemed much touched with the difference between his experience today and the almost brutal reception given him in New York, where his conduct had been condemned without investigation and popular feeling, stirred up by the Gotham yellow journals. Ismay declined to make any further statement until he appears before Lord Mersey, but expressed grateful appreciation of the confidence of friends and the British justice given him by British newspapers.

14 Poles Are To Go From George Street

Fourteen high poles, the highest along the west side of George street, will be removed, between Brock and Charlotte streets, in the near future. Ald. Buller told the Examiner to-day that arrangements were practically settled to provide for their removal. This is a matter that the Board of Works has been gunning for of late and the securing of it will result in the disappearance of some of the poles, which are regarded as unsightly in any section, and particularly in the heart of the city.

A PICTURE FOR FIRST HOME RUN

Gerald McFadden Offers an Enlarged Photograph of Manager Tompkin

Mr. Gerald McFadden, who is generally to the front in encouraging local baseball, is the first in the field to offer a prize for a batting stunt by the local Canadian Leaguers. He has arranged for a special photograph to be taken of Manager Tompkin and will have this enlarged and framed, and it will become the property of the first White Cap to make a home run on the local grounds. The picture will be on exhibition in the window of McFadden's furniture store Hunter street, in a few days.

Labour Men To Protest

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., MAY 11.—There will be a monster demonstration in Trafalgar Square of labour men and others to protest against the sentence of six months' imprisonment of Tom Mann, the labour leader and writer, convicted of inciting troops to mutiny.

Freight Cars Fell Over Bank

Yesterday afternoon a westbound freight train ran off the track at the Keene bank, and several cars fell over the bank. The machinery was sent from Lindsay and cleared the track, but it was decided necessary to turn two of the cars up as they were damaged beyond repair.

The cause of the run-off was a broken flange.

MOTHER'S DAY.

To-morrow is to be celebrated as "mother's day," a modern mode of paying respect and giving recognition to motherhood. It will be observed to-morrow in many of the city churches. Details of the occasion have been previously published in the Examiner, and other reference appears to-day. From the point of merit of the object, no worthier than that of motherhood could be selected. And while a stated and organized recognition of the object, and all that it implies, is meet, it derives its chief value as being a reminder of, perhaps, neglected duty and a stimulus to deeper and more practical recognition of the obligation of cherishing, honouring in the heart, and in our daily demeanour, the most sacred name and person. Our fine sentiments, our professions of respect, reverence and affection count, only as they are transmuted into deeds.

There is need to recall us all to our sense of duty, lest we forget. The mother is so pervasive in our lives, so constant a presence in our lives, from the day she brings us forth, to her life's end, that we sometimes come to take the mother for granted. We fail, perhaps, of appreciation. We come to expect, and even receive, the benefits of the loving ministrations, the tender care, the never-sleeping solicitude, the sacrifices, the unexplaining toil, that mothers give, all throughout our life, almost without our perception, and too often without our recognition. We sometimes forget what mother's love and mother's care mean—the love that bears everything, that endures all things; that outlives ingratitude, neglect and despite; that never deserts us at our worst estate of conduct or life; that follows us through every disgrace, even to the foot of the scaffold; that in all ways, deserves the idea of Coleridge, as expressed in these words:

A mother is a mother still,
The holiest thing alive.

A mother, in the full meaning of the holy word is, without irreverence be it said, in her self-sacrifice and unquenchable love, the only type that humanity affords, of the great Mother's Son, who gave all and suffered all, in the supreme act of self-sacrifice on the cross, which was additionally hallowed by the presence motherlike, of his Virgin Mother, in the last dark hour.

By all means celebrate "Mother's Day," but remember, which is better, that every day is mother's day; that her love neither slumbers nor sleeps, and demands your every-day devotion and tenderest love and help, and your earnest striving to pay the debt you owe your mother, even though you strive for the impossible, for it is a debt that no filial devotion can ever pay.

MAKING CANADA KNOWN.

We do not always realise all we owe to enterprising journalism. On two occasions parties of British journalists have visited Canada, to see for themselves what we are and what we have. Among the British journalists was Mr. C. W. Starmer. Chiefly due to the interest in Canada, excited in the Old Country by these visits, there have been established special editions of two papers, of which he is managing director, mainly devoted to exploiting Canada and Canadian resources and opportunities. The Examiner has received copies of special Canadian editions issued by The Sheffield Daily Independent and The Northern Echo of Newcastle, both papers being under the same control. These editions have been most carefully prepared, and afford a wealth of reliable information relative to the resources, possibilities and conditions of life in this country. We often have to deplore the ignorance of Canada, displayed by leading British newspapers, but here we have evidence of intelligent interest in the country that cannot but bring a rapid advancement in the settlement and development of this country by British people and British capital and enterprise. We think we have got on pretty well of late, but so far we have only scratched the surface of our resources—we have only, so to speak, made assay of the deposits of wealth in our soil and under our soil. We have still millions upon millions of acres of room and resources to be settled and developed.

HON. A. G. McKAY.

Hon. A. G. McKay, late leader of the Ontario Liberal Opposition, has succumbed to the call of the West. He intends to take up residence, and practise law in Edmonton, and, of course, take a hand in politics. For Mr. Hon. McKay is naturally adapted to political life. He is an able and effective man, both as a speaker and as a constructive critic. He particularly shone in the last session of the Ontario Legislature, where his presence was appreciated as it will be missed in debate on important public questions, on which he was always well informed. A public man's value if often determined by the enemies he has made, and by this standard Mr. McKay was a useful man to his country and a formidable opponent; for a most determined and systematic attempt was made to lie him out of public life. But he was appreciated and is now appreciated more than ever by sentiment that counts, unprejudiced and unbiased. The Hamilton Herald (Independent) speaking of Mr. McKay's reported departure from Ontario, says tersely and truthfully:

"If this is so, Ontario has lost and Alberta has gained one of the ablest Canadians of this generation."

VOTE CATCHING TARIFF TINKERING.

If the Conservative government at Ottawa were as alert in attempting to solve the great public questions of the country, as they are in their attempts to save their own skins—manufacturing political capital and strengthening their grip on power and the spoils of office—the chief concern with the present regime—the country, would be better governed. There is a general election on in Saskatchewan and the Dominion government is taking an active interest in it, with the laudable desire of beating the Liberal provincial administration. The west is uneasy about the tariff. It demands a reduction and has long since demanded it. Now, in order to influence the Saskatchewan elector, the tariff tinker is trotted out. The Toronto World announces that the Borden government is to inaugurate "sweeping tariff changes," downward it is understood. These reductions, which will be of a kind to appeal specially to the Saskatchewan voter, will be made by order-in-council. The Westerners wanted to get free access for their grain into the United States, just across the line. The Conservative party opposed that successfully by the votes of easterners, who were not interested in the matter, and against the almost unanimous sentiments of the west, as expressed by the ballot. The government is to throw a sop to the electors in the shape of an emergency reduction of tariff—as an equivalent for conditions of restriction of market and conveyance, that permitted their golden wheat to rot in heaps on the fields. The Customs Act theoretically gives a government discretionary power in regard to tariff reductions; but it never contemplated that this power should be used as a donkey engine to a political party in power; nor that it should be used as an election dodge, as a mere vulgar expedient to catch votes. A stable tariff is a blessing; tariff tinkering is a curse at its best, and especially bad when it is used for temporary and sinister purposes. Tariff reduction, in the interests of the west, was just as urgent a need any time since last November as it is now, on the eve of an election. But one can expect no higher course. The party in power has made ducks and drakes of nearly all the principles upon which it gained power, and it is no surprise, that after the manner of the ward politician, it should prostitute its functions to rear-back exploitation.

BRIBERY BY WHOLESALE.

In order to influence the election in Saskatchewan, the Government newspapers are circulating stories that sweeping reductions are to be made in the tariff, without waiting for the meeting of Parliament. This is a new and ingenious way of dangling bribes before the electors. When there is a bye-election in a manufacturing centre, the Government can, in the same manner, circulate stories that there are to be tariff increases.

Whatever the letter of the law may be, it was never intended that the power of increasing or reducing duties should be taken away from the representatives of the people and handed over to the Government. Such a change would mean the destruction of our system of popular government. If Parliament is to be deprived of control over taxation it might as well abdicate.

Moreover, the new policy opens up tremendous possibilities of falsehood and deception. The promises dangled before the electors as bribes may never be kept; they may be circulated for election purposes and afterwards disclaimed if convenient. All those who are interested in free institutions and clean government should enter their protest against this scandalous abuse of administrative power.—Toronto Star.

TORY HORSES AND GRIT FODDER!

(Toronto Star.)

"It's a wise Government that knows its own friends," says the Kingston Standard, a Conservative daily, referring to its complaint that the Ottawa Government has awarded a contract for supplying feed for army horses to a man who is of the wrong political colour.

It is impossible to reconcile the Standard's outcry on this matter with its oft professed hostility to the spoils system and its advocacy of civil service reform and all that it implies.

If the statement be true that the contract in question was let by tender, and that the lowest tender was accepted, then, those who criticise the proceeding must argue that it is the duty of a Tory Government to accept the lowest tender submitted by a Tory and reject all tenders submitted by Grits. While virtuously rejecting the principle that "To the victors belong the spoils" there is being set up the twin-principle that "To our friends belong the contracts."

No doubt it is customary for political parties in office to reward its friends, but the thing that is customary is not always the thing that is right. It would occasion some surprise if the Conservative Government at Ottawa put an advertisement in the Kingston Standard to this effect:

"Notice is hereby given to the Conservatives of Kingston and district that tenders will be received for so much horse feed delivered at such a place by a given date. No Liberal need tender as this contract is for one of the boys."

Yet is not that the way the Standard thinks the Government should do business on business lines as the Borden Government seems to have done in this case? And why do newspapers profess a desire to see less partisanship and why do they express hopes for cleaner and better government if they are ready to swing around when a contract is let by Government to the lowest bidder?

SIR ARTHUR CONAN BOYLE TELLS OF CONVERSION

Noted Author Explains Why He Now Supports Home Rule —Irishmen Died For the Flag.

One of the influential converts to Home Rule is Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who opposed the Gladstone bills. In a recent letter to Mr. E. J. Kelly, he explains his position thus:

Dear Sir,—Very many thanks for your note. I am an Imperialist because I believe the whole to be greater than the part, and I would always willingly sacrifice any part if I thought it to the advantage of the whole. It was the apparent enmity of Ireland to the Empire which held me from Home Rule for many years, and it is still that view which is hardest to overcome. But I came to understand that these cheers for the enemies of the Empire were symptoms and not the disease, and that if you want to remove symptoms it is not good treatment to continue the cause of them, but rather to alter that, and then the symptoms go of themselves. It seems a simple proposition, but nothing is simple when human prejudice and party politics distort it.

I hope the Nationalists will soon cease to allow their opponents the use of the Union Jack as a symbol. More Irishmen have died for that flag than men of any other race in proportion to numbers. It is the sign of the Empire which Ireland has helped to build, and which, be the local exception what it may, has stood for freedom and progress all the world over. Britain, be the past what it may, has honestly tried to do its best for Ireland for at least one long generation of mankind, the one party by legislation, the other party by endeavouring to restore Ireland's legislature. Surely the days of bitter feeling are drawing to an end, and the Throne and the flag should be recognized, as they are everywhere recognized in the Empire, as being high above the clouds of political ill will. It may be objected that it is putting the cart before the horse, but I am convinced that if the flag were honoured in Ireland, as elsewhere, it would weaken British resistance to Home Rule more than any other cause. Folk do want to be reassured upon the point that an Irish nation would be a loyal friend and not a scheming enemy. Of course the whole lesson of history is that it would be so—this has always been the result of past grants of freedom to various portions of the Empire, but people, especially biased political people, have always some reason why each particular case should be an exception to a general rule.

Yours faithfully,
Arthur Conan Doyle.

Grave No Shelter From Charges Of Offensive Partizanship

There is always been a certain indefiniteness about what constitutes offensive partisanship, but that indefiniteness is being rapidly cleared up by the operations of the Hon. Mr. Pelletier. The New Glasgow (N.S.) Chronicle tells the illuminating story of the dismissal of John McPherson, in his life-time postaster of Tracadie Road Post Office in Guysboro County. Mr. McPherson departed this life five years ago, and the other day his widow, who has kept the post office since his demise, received from the Postmaster General a notification addressed to the dead man, informing him that complaints had been laid against him to the effect that he had been an offensive partisan in both the local and federal elections of 1911

Now there is only one kind of offensive partisanship that can possibly be charged against the late Mr. McPherson in connection with the elections of 1911, at which time he had been four years dead. It is indeed true that he did in those elections fail to work an vote for the Conservative candidate. Some may hold that under the circumstances the omission was excusable, but not so the Postmaster General. There There must be no postmasters, not even dead ones, who were not active on the right side when the destinies of the country were being decided in 1911. The late Mr. McPherson must be dismissed, not because he gave any aid and comfort to the Liberal party, hich indeed he could not do, but because he did not actively support the Conservatives, The fact that he could not do that either is no excuse. The case has its ghoulish aspect, and we should perhaps apologize for troubling our readers with it; we do so not on account of the late postmaster, who is fortunately far beyond reach of anything so sordid, but because of the intensely interesting light which it sheds upon the procedure relating to offensive partisanship under the Hon. Mr. Pelletier.—Montreal Herald.

PETERBOROUGH SUMMER FAIR will

Eclipse anything ever attempted in this Town, and promises to Exert an influence for good
Right away, which will be felt
Before many months pass by.
Order and system will go far to Relieving distress among
Our fellow men,
Ultimately, it is to be hoped,
Giving us a city that will be the most Healthy in Canada.

Surely we see the necessity of
Using all possible
Means at our disposal to Mitigate the suffering that surrounds us on Every side, and, if possible,
Rescue many from premature graves.

Fortunately scientists
Are discovering new methods of cure, at least for Incipient cases, for which we are Right truly thankful.

THE STORY OF A SACRIFICE

How a Poor Young Woman Sought to Help a Consumptive

Written for the Examiner (By Roy Gilray)

Ellen Williams, a young lady full of the bloom of health, which only life in the country can give, is possessed of a remarkable ability for painting, and, at the earnest solicitation of her friends, decides to attend the Acadamey of Art in New York City. Arriving in the great metropolis she at once proceeds to the Academy at the corner of 14th street and 4th Avenue, for enrollment. To her dismay, she discovers that the tuition fees are payable in advance, $100 being the first installment.

Not having much money with her, she starts out with a sad heart to hunt for a boarding house, which must not cost much, at least until she can earn some money.

The look of dismay and dejection, which came over her face, at the Art School was noticed by more than the clerk who waited upon her. A rich young man, of artistic tastes, Jordan Clarkson by name, chanced to see it, too, and was not long in divining its meaning. He could not efface from his memory the momentary agony of the beautiful features of the young applicant. As he sat at his club looking over his evening mail he slowly but resolutely resolved to help this young woman if she were at all deserving. To prove this he immediately determined to go on an expedition of adventure which he had long promised himself. Visiting the Academy next day he learned the young artist's address to be 10 Cherry St., rather an undesirable quarter, but he reasoned that it would give him the long cherished opportunity to see how the "other-half" lived.

Changing his clothes so as to be in keeping with his proposed surroundings he succeeded in securing a room just above that occupied by the young woman, and proceeded to make good use of his powers of observation.

He was not long in making the acquaintance of Miss Williams, and learned that she was working on a diagram for a Christmas Stamp which the Red Cross Society were going to issue, and for which they offered a prize of $100, just the sum needed to gain admittance to the School of Art.

Jordan, too, was interested in this Red Cross campaign against tuberculosis, as he had received a letter from this philanthropic Society, asking for aid.

Ellen's surroundings in this tenement district were not the most elevating. Her neighbour in the next room on the same floor, was a poor washer-woman with two little girls and a son almost grown to manhood, but of no use to her or himself—he was a victim of the White Plague. Here the poor creature laboured from morning till night over her steaming tub in the hopeless task of keeping the ravenous wolf away from the door. In fact, the whole atmosphere was a typical breeding ground for consumption.

After a few weeks' suspense Ellen received the news that she was the winner of the $100 prize. How she wept for joy in her tiny room as she read and reread the welcomed letter, and handled the money order. The intelligence was too good to keep, so she rushed out of her room to that of her poor neighbour; but, hearing a strange voice, she paused, and overheard a doctor telling the weeping mother that her son must be taken out of this at once if she wished him to live.

Creeping back to her room hot tears began to flow, not from the promptings of great joy but from the realization that this poor woman had no money, and the unfortunate son must soon pass away if someone did not come to their aid. Slowly the truth unfolded itself to her sympathetic mind, and, grasping a pen, she inscribed on an envelope "From a Friend," enclosed the order that meant so much to her, and stealthily crept to the door of the sorrowing ones and slipped it under.

Clarkson appeared just in time to see the trail end of the act and from that disappointed look on the young girl's face he was able to interpret its significance. Hearing of the Doctor's ultimatum he hastened to the Red Cross headquarters, secured a District Nurse; and gave orders that the young man be sent to a Sanatorium, and the house cleaned up.

That night Miss Williams received a message to present herself at 765 5th Ave., where she met Jordan Clarkson, though clothed in quite a different garb, and, from his lips, heard the glad tidings that arrangements had been made whereby she would be able to pursue her studies without interruption.

In explanation Mr. Clarkson took both her hands, and, looking into her soulful eyes, exclaimed: "Anyone who has a heart as big as your's, a heart which prompted so great a sacrifice, merits the help of a friend."

* * * *

The ladies of Peterborough, during the long winter months, have been busily engaged in preparing for their great Summer Fair. The amount of time, money and energy which they have "sacrificed" no one will ever know, but the citizens will have an opportunity of forming an opinion on the opening day, May 27th, and they are doing it all that some poor unfortunate victim of consumption may have a chance to live.

How much are you prepared to sacrifice?

"Who of us know
The heart-aches of the men we meet
Each day in passing on the busy street,
The woes and cares that press them,
Forebodings that distress them—
Who of us know?

Who of us think
Of how hot tears have traced the smiling cheek
Of some we meet who would not dare to speak
The pangs they feel, the burdens that they bear,
Each hour that passes through the solemn year—
Who of us think?

Lost Control Of His Temper

Once there was a man whose liver was not working right. When dressing in the morning he had trouble with his collar. Then he lost the collar button. Then he said something.

By the time he got to breakfast he was so irritated that he had no appetite and quarrelled with his wife. He went to the office with a headache and when he had some important business to transact he bungled it.

When you find yourself easily irritated and lose control of yourself and your temper, look to the condition of the liver, and take one of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills at bedtime.

The dark-brown taste will not bother you in the mornings, the tongue will clear up, digestion will improve and you will not have the tired, worn-out feelings which accompany a sluggish condition of the liver.

MOVING TO ORILLIA.

It will take a train of forty cars to remove the machinery in the Sylvester plant at Lindsay to the Tudhope-Anderson Co. factory at Orillia, and another train of thirty cars to bring the West Lorne waggon plant here. The latter closes down on Saturday, for the removal of the plant and stock. The stock of the Sylvester Co. has already been brought to Orillia, but the machinery is still to come.—Orillia Packet.

Can you arrange the above set of jumbled letters into the names of six well known fruits. If so your case shares in the distribution of the above prize. It is no easy task. But by patience and perseverance you can probably make out 4 or 5 of them. To the person who can make out the largest number we will give the sum of One Hundred Dollars. To the person making the second largest number the sum of Fifty Dollars. To the person making the third largest number the sum of Thirty Dollars. To the person making the fourth largest number the sum of Twenty Dollars. Should two persons send answers equally correct, the first two prizes will be divided between them, (each receiving $75.00) Should three send in equally correct answers, the first three prizes will have to be divided, (each receiving $66.66). Should four persons send equally correct answers, the whole sum of $200.00 will be equally divided, (each receiving $50.00), and so on in like proportions, provided they comply with a simple condition about which we will write as soon as answers are received. We do not want a cent of your money when you answer this advertisement. If you can find any of the names, write us (spelled correctly) stating for our reply. Do not delay. To help you we have put a mark under the first letter of each name.

AN INVITATION TO SICKNESS

Thin, Watery Blood Leads to a Breakdown in Health

Thin, impure blood is an invitation to sickness. The blood is at work day and night to maintain life, and any any lack of strength or purity in the blood is a weakness in the defence against sickness. Anaemia is the doctor's name for lack of blood—watery blood. There may be an actual loss in the quantity of the blood, or one or more of its constituents may be lacking. The surest symptom of anaemia is pallor. The trouble is particularly common among young girls between the ages of fourteen and eighteen, but is also found in women of all ages, and quite frequently attacks men. It is nearly always present and prevents recovery after grippe, fevers, malaria and operations and for this reason a tonic medicine is required in all these cases to enrich the blood, build up the nerves and restore health and strength. And there is no other tonic as good as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as has been proved in thousands and thousands of cases, among them that of Miss Annie Turner, Marie Joseph Post Office, N.S., who says: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been of inestimable benefit to me. I was so badly run down that I could hardly go about, was not able to help in the work about the house. As my health grew worse the trouble brought on some species of fit, and when these attacks would come on I would sometimes remain unconscious for half an hour. After many other medicines had failed to help me, my brother got me a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I began taking these. In the course of a few weeks I felt much better, and after taking the Pills for a time longer I was again in the full enjoyment of good health. I feel that I cannot praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too highly and I recommend them to all weak girls."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for 2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FAMILY HEARTH

The heaven that lies about us in our infancy is Motherhood, and no matter how exalted or how depraved we may become we are always attended by the grace of a Mother's love. Nor does that vision splendid ever fade into the light of common day. Every great man has glorified a great Mother.

In the tragedy of Calvary it is beautiful to see the Master looking down upon His Mother in tenderest solicitude, telling her to comfort His beloved disciple, and him to comfort her.

On this day let each of us honor the hallowed memory of his Mother, wearing in token thereof the floral symbol of purity. Of other blessings we may have had great stores, but of that most precious Influence there was but One.

James Whitcomb Riley.

God thought to give the sweetest thing
In His almighty power
To earth; and deeply pondering
What it should be—one hour
In fondest joy and love of heart
Outweighing every other,
He moved the gates of Heaven apart
And gave to earth—a mother!

G. Newell Lovejoy.

The best monument that a child can raise to his mother's memory is that of a clean, upright life, such as she would have rejoiced to see her son live.

Oh! In our sterner manhood, when no ray
Of earlier sunshine glimmers on our way,
When girt with sins and sorrows, and the toil
Of cares that tear the bosom that they soil;
Oh! if there be in retrospection's chain,
One link that knits us with young dreams again,
One thought so sweet we scarcely dare to muse
On all the hoarded rapture it reviews,
Which seems an instant in its backward range
The heart to soften, and its ties to change;
And every spring, untouched for years, to move,
It is—the memory of a mother's love.

Bulwer.

A MAN'S MOTHER.

But your mother's life has not been easy. Your father was a poor man, and from the day she married him she stood by his side fighting the wolf from the door with her naked hands, as a woman must fight.

She worked not the eight or ten hour day of the union, but the twenty-four-hour day of the poor wife and mother.

She cooked and cleaned and scrubbed and patched and nursed from dawn till bedtime, and in the night was up and down getting drinks for thirsty lips, covering restless little sleepers, listening for croupy coughs. She had time to listen to your stories of boyish fun and frolic and triumph.

She had time to say the things that spurred your ambition on.

She never forgot to cook the little dishes you liked.

She did without the dress she needed that you might not be ashamed of your clothes before your fellows.

Remember this now while there is yet time, while she is living, to pay back to her in love and tenderness some of the debt you owe her. You can never pay it all, but pay down something on account this very night.

ROCK ME TO SLEEP, MOTHER.

Backward, turn backward, O Time, in your flight,
Make me a child again, just for to-night!
Mother, come back from the echoless shore,
Take me again to your heart, as of yore;
Kiss from my forehead the furrows of care,
Smooth the few silver threads out of my hair;
Over my slumbers your loving watch keep,
Rock me to sleep, Mother, rock me to sleep.

Elizabeth Akers.

Mother's chair had rocked the whole family. It made a creaking noise as it moved, but there was music in its sound. It was just high enough to allow us children to put our heads into her lap. That was the bank where we deposited all our hurts and worries. Oh, what a chair that was. . . . It was a very wakeful chair! In the sick day of children other chairs could not keep awake—it kept easily awake. That chair knew all the old lullabies, and all those wordless songs which mothers sing to their children. Songs in which all pity and compassion and sympathetic influences are combined. That old chair has stopped rocking for a good many years. It may be set up in the loft or garret, but it holds a queenly power yet.

T. De Witt Talmage.

The purest thing I know in all earth's holding
Is mother love, her precious child enfolding;
Yet when the mother's footstep feeble groweth,
As sweet the child love then which round her floweth.

M. M. Tucker.

THE IDEAL HOME

(The following is our second contribution on the Ideal Home. We received many compliments on the first one published and the following is certainly equally good.)—Editor.

The head of my "ideal home" is a father possessing firmness of character without being a tyrant. He gives the best that he is, socially and mentally, to his wife. The mother is patient, kind and courageous, the children obedient. This home is not the home of wealth, neither is it the home of poverty. Order and system prevail in every department. The radiance of truth rests on each face. There is refinement and culture. The mother tongue is spoken in all its purity. This ideal home is a Christian home. The Bible is read here and its precepts are lived. Books and papers are to be seen everywhere. The books are selected with care so that they may entertain and instruct without corrupting the reader. No profanity or slang is heard here. The cup that inebriates has never had a place in this home. The children honour their parents and the parents respect the rights of the children, and life is made as bright as possible for them. They are early taught to love the beautiful in art as well as in nature. Flowers and music help to refine and beautify their home. This family is taught to deal justly and they weight their fellow-man by what he is and not what he has. This "ideal home" is so attractive that the children are not tempted to spend their evenings on the street or in doubtful places of amusement.

THERE'S ROOM AT THE BOTTOM

Many and weighty are the editorials that have been written on "There is Always Room at the Top." Our greatest writers have pointed young men to the top round of the ladder. This is well, but it is time to call a halt. There are too many at the top and none at the bottom.

"There's room at the top has been preached by our preachers;
Been sung by our poets and taught by our teachers,
Until by such teaching, grown wiser and sadder,
We have almost forgotten the foot of life's ladder."

Young men have a desire to enter some profession. They imagine that only lawyers, editors or politicians ever reach the top of the ladder. Young ladies who have from youth been pointed to the top of the ladder, shun the dish pan and broom as they would the cholera. The piano and music books, to speak French correctly, and waltz gracefully they consider the only stepping stones leading to the top of the ladder. The time has come when it is almost impossible to find a young man or young woman at the foot of the ladder willing to labor at any calling that is honorable and earn a living by the sweat of their brow.

Be not drawn aside by their trite iterations
From the commonplace duties which lie at the bottom,
High places are quite hard to hold when you've got 'em."

Multiplied scores of young men who are complete failures in the various professions would have successfully followed the plow handles, or as grocers might now be "holding down" a fast mail train. But too many imagine they cannot climb the ladder if their fingers are soiled. They forget that

"The road at the top leads o'er rockiest ledges,
Who climbs must hold on by the raggedest edges,
And many a man who has missed his vocation
Is brought to himself by a bad dislocation."

* * *

Let us learn to tip our hats as politely to the young lady who sews for a living or earns it by any honest toil as to the one who teaches French or chews gum in seven different languages. Let us give as warm a clasp of the hand to the honest tiller of the soil, the fireman or brakeman as we do to the lawyer or doctor. Let us recognize honesty and industry wherever found, and the time will soon come when there will be an army of bright, intelligent, honest young men and women at the bottom of the ladder, ready to labor at any honorable calling. Let us remember that the most beautiful lives have blossomed in the darkest places, as pure, white lilies full of fragrance in the slimy, stagnant waters. Wealth, birth and official station may and do secure to their possessors an extreme, superficial courtesy; but they never did nor never can command the reverence of the heart. The most beautiful flowers are found hidden in some shady nook; so the most beautiful lives are often found hidden in an humble home at the foot of the ladder.

Profanity is the foul odor of an impure heart.

They're all new models—but each style has some individual note that will particularly please you.

Some of them are plain and severe depending for their appeal on their artful cut that gives the modish lines. Many are cleverly strapped or set off with buttons or the introduction of a few pleats.

But the greatest merit of our new Summer Skirts lies in their skillful modeling — and painstaking tailoring — causing them to fit as accurately and gracefully as though made to order.

We are noted in Peterboro for our very unusual values in the most fashionable skirts. Come tonight and look at them.

A COMMON ENEMY

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I would like to convey a word of warning to those who are in the habit of using their house plants to decorate the verandah, lawn, etc. A full blown rose tree, pot, jardinier and all, was stolen from the front of my house last night. Also a word of warning to the thief: Keep it well out of sight, for the word has been passed along, and a hundred pair of eyes are on the alert to catch a glimpse of the stolen plant, and if found a case for the police magistrate is ready made.

Yours, etc.,

Champlain First White Man To Navigate The Great Trent Waterway

(Written for The Examiner by Roy Gilroy)

Every loyal and patriotic citizen must have read with interest, not unmixed with pleasure, the report of the Canadian Club's deliberations of last Friday night, particularly that part containing the suggestion of Dr. Cameron to erect in the Public Library a tablet to the memory of Champlain, who was the first white man to visit this section of the country in September, 1615.

Champlain's name stands easily first in the list of illustrious explorers who opened up to the astonished eyes of the old world the wonders of this western hemisphere. Especially in following to their sources the great waterways of the northern half of this continent did this noted Frenchman earn undying distinction.

It is most fitting, therefore, that his advent to this locality, being the first white man to set foot on the site of our city, should be signalized in some tangible manner, in doing honour to a man who helped to lay the foundation of Christian civilisation upon the northern half of the continent. I fact we would be simply following in the footsteps of those who carried to such a successful issue the great Champlain Tercentenary at Quebec in 1908.

This great Frenchman laid strong foundations and did his work, insignificant though at the time it all appeared, in the spirit and after the fashion of the truly grea. It was the kind of work from which, after all, we might have expected great and enduring results, for it was conceived in the spirit of loftiest and most unselfish patriotism, and it was carried out, from the felling of the first tree, absolutely in the fear of God. Champlain was a great humanitarian, and his thought was ever towards the savage peoples who surrounded him, and whose unfortunate plight was so often the subject of his great concern; with all his courage and bravery and aggressiveness, he had nothing in him of the mere love of conquest; he had no grossly selfish interests to serve, either for himself or his country, and that is why he was able to stick to his tasks of discovery and colonization when he was apparently achieving so little either for the glory of France or for the material well-being of himself, or of his countrymen; and he was, besides, and pre-eminently, an earnest, devout, and devoted Christian.

How keen was his interest in the Indians, how sincere was his desire for their well-being, both physical and spiritual, how shrewd his observation of them, and how commonsense and practical were the methods by which he proposed to help them it is worth while quoting from his remarkable Journal to learn:

"These people suffer so much from lack of proper food that they are sometimes obliged to live on shellfish, and eat their dogs, and clothe themselves with their skins to protect themselves against the cold.

"I am of opinion that if we were to show them how to live, and teach them the cultivation of the soil and other things, they would learn very aptly. For many of them possess good sense, and answer properly questions put to them. They have a bad habit of taking revenge, and are great liars, and you must not put much reliance on them, except with force at hand. They make promises readily, but keep their word poorly. The most of them observe no law at all, so far as I have been able to see, and are, besides, full of superstition. I asked them with what ceremonies they were accustomed to pray to their God, when they replied that they had none, but that each prayed in his heart as he wished. This is why there is no law among them ,and they do not know what it is to worship and pray to God, living as they do like brute beasts. But I think they would soon become good Christians, if people would come and inhabit their country."

It is rather interesting to note that they were for the most part anxious to have Champlain and his people live among them for that purpose.

Champlain was accompanied by Father LeCaron, and both had often conversed with the Hurons regarding the Catholic faith, the laws and customs of the French, and they listened attentively, sometimes saying:

"You say things that pass our knowledge, and which we cannot understand by words, being beyond our comprehension; but if you would do us a service, come and dwell in this country, bringing your wives and children, and when they are here, we shall see how you serve the God you worship, and how you live with your wives and children, how you cultivate and plant the soil, how you obey your laws, how you take care of animals, and how you manufacture all that we see proceeding from your inventive skill.

"When we see all this we shall learn more in a year than in twenty by simply hearing your discourse; and thus being convinced that our life is a miserable one in comparison with yours, it is easy to believe that we shall adopt yours, abandoning our own."

* * * * * * * * *

Almost three hundred years have passed and gone since Champlain must have bivouacked time and again as his party stopped at "The Plains" over night preparatory to making the six mile portage to Mud Lake to avoid the mighty rapids of the rivers intervening, and it is to be hoped that Dr. Cameron's suggestion will meet with the encouragement it merits.

SALVES CAN'T CURE ECZEMA

In regard to skin diseases, medical authorities are now agreed on this:

Don't imprison the disease germs in your skin by the use of greasy salves, and thus encourage them to multiply. A true cure of all eczematous diseases can be brought about only by using the healing agents in the form of a liquid.

WASH THE GERMS OUT.

A simple wash: A compound of Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol, and other ingredients as combined in the D.D.D. Prescription. This penetrates to the disease germs and destroys them, then soothes and heals the skin as nothing else has ever done.

We have made fast friends of more than one family by recommending this D.D.D. Prescription to a skin sufferer here and there, and we want you to try it now. We can tell you all about D.D.D. Prescription and how it cures eczema, or you can get a free trial bottle by writing D.D.D. Prescription, 43 Colborne St., Toronto. McDermid and Jury and E. L. Payne, druggists.

"There's an evil in the land,
And the kingdom of our God
Is hindered in its coming.
Then arise with one accord
And put away this traffic
Which threatens love and home;
For the judgment surely cometh,

SELF-CONTROL

Destroyed by Alcoholic Indulgence—The Drink Slavery—Undoing the Work of Civilization—An Interesting Statement by Dr. Vipont Brown.

The physiologist has always laid great stress upon what he calls "inhibition." The word inhibition means restraint. It is the brake that you put on your bicycle to prevent it running away with you down hill. Without this power of inhibition, we should all be mere creatures of impuls and slaves of passion. Indeed, it is the high development of this power of inhibition which, more than anything else, distinguishes the civilized man from the savage. Thus, for example, the hungry man sees food, but his inquisitive impulse is at once checked. In an early stage of his evolution toward civilization it is checked by the recollection, that if he takes what is not his own, disagreeable consequences are likely to follow. And in a later stage of his evolution toward civilization it is checked by the fact that his moral sense or what is right prevents him doing what he knows to be wrong.

Now this power of inhibition, which has only been developed by a long and painful process of education and culture, is weakened under the influence of alcohol. And this is why the modest and reticent man becomes, under the influence of alcohol, pushing, offensive and loquacious. It is not that the alcohol has stimulated his brain; it is that it has paralysed his power of self-control. And because it is the result of paralysis and not stimulation his judgment is impaired, his will power weakened, and his self control diminished. His discretion, also is impaired and thus the alcoholic is often given credit for "Dutch courage." Several years ago a very amateur climber in the Alps told a friend of his that whenever he had a crevasse to jump he always took a nip of spirits and then he jumped like a bird. "You should say rather," answered his more experienced friend, "like a fool."

Those faculties which are the last acquisition of culture and refinement are always the first to go. Thus the power of fine discrimination is soon lost and the connisseur becomes highly appreciative of bad music, poor art, weak jokes, and fatuous literature. Especially does he appreciate himself and his own things, and he thus becomes egotistic and self-assertive. And that all this is the result of paralysis and not the result of stimulation, has been proved by numerous experiments which have been tried chiefly in the psychological laboratories of Germany and America.

I often think that this self-appreciation which results from taking alcohol is one of the most potent factors in the wonderful power of fascination that it possesses over its slaves. Thus, under its influence the cowardly man becomes in his own estimation a hero. The despicable blackguard who is kept by his wife or his mother and never did an honest day's work in his life, becomes a swaggering braggart who has much to be proud of. Now it is easy enough to see how immensely pleasurable this flattering discrepancy between facts and feelings must be to the individual concerned; but surely it is equally obvious how much better it would be could such an one appraise himself at his real worth. Prof. Huxley fully appreciated this deceptive influence of alcohol, and although not always a total abstainer, whenever he had any good original work to do, then for the time being he became one.—British Alliance News.

Alcohol Indispensible Vehicle to White Slave Traffic.

(By Jane Addams, in McClure's Magazine.)

A humanitarian movement from which assistance will doubtless come to the crusade against the social evil, is the great movement against alcoholism, with its recent revival in every civilized country of the world. A careful scientist has called alcohol the indispensable vehicle of the business transacted by the white slave traders and has asserted that without its use this trade could not long continue.

Whoever has tried to help a girl making an effort to leave the irregular life she has been leading, must have been discouraged by the victim's attempt to overcome the habit of using alcohol and drugs. Such a girl has commonly been drawn into the life in the first place when under the influence of liquor, and has continued to drink to enable herself to live through each day. Furthermore the drinking habit grows upon her because she is constantly required to sell liquor and to be "treated."

It is estimated that the liquor sold by such girls nets a profit to the trade of 250 per cent over and above the girl's own commission. Chicago made at least one honest effort to divorce the sale of liquor from the social evil when the superintendent of police last year ruled that no liquor should be sold in any disreputable house. The difficulty of enforcing such an order is greatly increased because such houses, as well as the questionable dance halls, commonly sell liquor under a federal license, which is not only cheaper than the saloon license obtained from the city, but has the added advantage to the holder that he can sell after one o'clock in the morning at which time the city saloons are closed.

The aggregate annual profit of the 236 disorderly saloons recently investigated in Chicago by the vice commission was $4,307,000. This profit on the sale of liquor can be traced all along the line in connection with the white slave traffic and is no less disastrous from the point of view of young men than of the girls. Even a slight exhiliration from alcohol relaxes the moral sense and throws a sentimental or adventurous glamour over an aspect of life from which a decent young man would ordinarily recoil, and its continued use stimulates the senses at the very moment when the intellectual and moral inhibitions are lessened. May we not conclude that both chastity and self restraint are more firmly established in the modern city than we realise when the white slave traders find it necessary both forcibly to detain their victims and to pay young men with alcohol that they may profit thereby?? General Bingham, who as police commissioner of New York certainly knew whereof he spoke, says: "There is not enough depravity in human nature to keep alive this very large business. The immorality of woman and the brutishness of men have to be persuaded, coaxed and constantly stimulated in order to keep the social evil in its present state of business prosperity."

May we not hope that some of the experiments made by governmental and municipal authorities to control and regulate the sale of liquor will at last meet with such a measure of success that the existence of the social evil will be imperiled because deprived of its artificial stimulus of alcohol? The Chicago vice commission has made a series of valuable suggestions for the regulation of saloons and for the separation of the sale of liquor from dance halls and from other places known as recruiting grounds for the white slave traffic: There is still need for a much wider and more thorough education of the public in regard to the historic connection between commercialised vice and alcoholism, of the close relation between politics and the liquor interests, behind which the social evil so often intrenches itself.

ANGLERS' EXCURSION TO IDYL WYLD JUNE 8TH

On the Same Day as the Employees' Excursion to Idyl Wyld

The annual excursion of the C. G. E. Angling Club will be held on Saturday, June 8th, to Idyl Wild. This is the same date as the employees' excursion and owing to the fact that it will be a shop holiday the whole day will be spent at Idyl Wild. The steamer Stoney Lake has been chartered and should provide a long day at the lake resort. The Anglers intend to make this a most enjoyable outing and further details will be announced later.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

MAY 12, 1912.
(Copyright, 1911, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)

The Law of Love. Luke vi.: 27-38; Rom. xiii.: 8-10.

(1) Verses 27-32—What benefit is it to us, to the cause of God or to our enemies if we love them?

(2) What is implied in loving our enemies?

(3) Why is it, or not, natural for us to love our enemies?

(4) If being desirous of loving our enemies and we do not succeed, what means should we adopt to accomplish our desire?

(5) Verses 29-30—Granted that it is the duty of all of us to love our enemies, is it also our duty under all circumstances when we have been smitten on one cheek to turn the other also and if one steals our cloak to let him steal our coat also? Give your reasons.

(6) If a man is not willing to turn the other cheek and give up his coat after having his cloak stolen, provided this was the will of God in any given circumstance, what would you say of such a man?

(7) Why is it, or not, essential for a Christian to hold himself in readiness to do anything God may clearly command, no matter how unreasonable it may look to him?

(8) Verses 31-34—Wherein ought a Christian to be better than a sinner in his treatment of his fellows?

(9) Is it easy or difficult, and why, for a truly good man to literally treat others as he would like to be treated?

(10) When Christian men loan money does Christ mean that they should not be careful to be properly secured, or does he simply mean that there is no more merit in such a transaction than an ordinary sinner would be entitled to?

(11) Verses 35-36—Which is generally the better way to help those in need—to loan them money without security or to give it to them?

(12) What is the reward or profit for loaning money without security to the needy with the sole object of helping them?

(13) What is implied in being merciful as God is?

(14) Verses 37-38—What does Jesus mean by judge not, condemn not and forgive, and what results follow such actions?

(15) What right have we to expect if we give liberally of our money that God will cause our fellow men to give with superabundance to us?

(16) Rom. xii. :8-10—In what spirit should we give, rule and show mercy?

(17) What relation has Christian love with right living?

(18) To what extend does love make us prefer others to ourselves?

RAILWAY NOTES

Plans for the new Grand Trunk Pacific station at Regina are now complete, while those for the hotel will be ready in the course of the next fortnight. The station will be of similar design to that at Winnipeg. It will be a large building, 2 stories high, with a 250 feet frontage and about 600 feet depth, including the train sheds. Owing to the lack of accommodation in the city, a delegation from the Board of Trade waited on Mr. E. J. Chamberlin, General Manager of the company, at Winnipeg recently, to find out when work would be commenced on the building and also to ask that it should have accommodation for 250 guests. Mr. Chamberlin was unable to make any definite statement but explained that work would be started in the near future, while the president would have to decide upon the number of rooms in the hotel.

The Grand Trunk Pacific has started two of their immense track-laying machines at work; one in Alberta and the other in Saskatchewan. The capacity of the last mentioned is 4 miles for each shift, making 8 miles for a double shift day. This is trial speed, for in practice, a pioneer—as these machines are called—seldom exceeds 2 1-2 miles of fresh track for each shift it works. Each shift requires a total complement of 400 men.

Three steam shovels are now on their way to Prince Rupert from Vancouver by water, and in a week or two the water front and railway yards where the Grand Trunk Pacific station site is to be, will be noisy with their clank and rattle as they chew up the rock and muskeg of the reserve as far as the new site of the Prince Rupert Inn.

Latest reports on the construction of the National Transcontinental's Quebec bridge indicate that satisfactory progress is being made. The sub-structure, according to present calculations, will be finished by the autumn, and it is expected that the St. Lawrence Bridge Co. will then be ready to start with the erection work.

The Piano of the Period

New Scale Williams

The music student, the amateur and the finished musician go about the selection of a piano with a somewhat different viewpoint from the average layman. They have a more definite idea of what constitutes Real Artistic Tone Quality. They have different standards, perhaps more exacting, from which to judge tonal effects, and the fact, therefore, that hundreds of New Scale Williams Pianos have been purchased by musicians, is of special significance. It presents the verdict of a competent jury; one which the intending purchaser of a piano can well afford to take into careful consideration. It is the beautiful singing quality as well as the attractive appearance of these pianos which appeals to the artistic sense of the trained musician and music lover.

FURNISHINGS

For the Verandah and Summer Home

MAY 24th is the day set apart by numberless city folks to make their initial trip "Up the Lakes" and prepare their cottages for the Summer months. Of course it will require new Furnishings—new Mats for the floor—new Curtains on the windows—and the cottager's friend, the indispensable Hammock, will be among the numberless items required to add beauty to the Summer home and pad the comfort of the owner and invited guests.

And those who cannot boast the luxury of a "Cottage Up the Lakes" will be interested in making the city home as summery and inviting as possible. The verandah will, perhaps, claim the most attention. Awning Denim will be necessary to curtain off this favourite retreat, forming a room and excluding the burning rays of the sun and the inquisitive looks of passing strangers. Matting will be required for the floor, and, of course, a Hammock is absolutely necessary.

The bedrooms and halls, too, will be made much cooler and more healthy by the means of fresh straw matting.

Up on the Third Floor we are making a special showing of Furnishings for the Summer home, verandahs, bedrooms, etc. Here one will find Japanese Straw Matting at 12½c yard to 40c a yard (an exceptionally choice selection at 25c yard), Japanese Squares, every wantable size in an excellent variety of desirable patterns and colourings—one particularly pleasing mat, size 9 x 10 ft., is marked at $2.39—other sizes at correspondingly low prices; Hammocks at $1 and up to $5; Awning Stripes in combinations of green and white, blue and white, and red and white, at only, yard, 25c.

PREPARE NOW. It pays to select Summer Furnishings early. Not only does one have greater variety from which to choose, but the values are increased by having everything in readiness at the commencement of the season.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE CLUB HELD ANNUAL BANQUET

The Collegiate Institute club held a very enjoyable and successful banquet last night in Hooper's grill rooms. Mr. Burton Throop, president of the club, was toast master. The guests of honour were Messrs. Judge Hucke, Mayor Bradburn, G. N. Gordon, Dr. Middleton, Dr. Carmichael, Rev. Pogue, John Crane, F. A. Ferguson, H. R. H. Kenner and H. P. Masson.

The toast list was as follows: "The King," proposed by the president, Mr. Burton Throop, "Canada," proposed by the vice-president, Mr. W. H. Hill, and responded to by His Honour Judge Huycke; "The City," proposed by Mr. G. S. Matthews, and responded to by Mayor Bradburn; "To the Learned Professions," proposed by Mr. Meredith Huycke and responded to by Rev. Pogue, Dr. Middleton, G. N. Gordon and Dr. Carmichael; "To Our Sister Organizations," proposed by Mr. A. M. Carlisle and responded to by Mr. Masson of Campbellford; "To the School Board," proposed by Mr. F. Cann, and responded to by Mr. John Crane.

His Honour Judge Huycke then proposed a toast to the club and to the Collegiate staff.

In the President's response, he dealt with the success which the club had attained during the past year and outlined the great possibilities for the future.

"WHITE CAPS" ENTERTAINED BY MARLBOROUGH CLUB

Manager Templin's Ball Tossers Were Guests of Honour at a Most Enjoyable Smoker Last Night---Splendid Programme Featured the Evening's Entertainment.

Manager Templin and his Peterborough Canadian Leaguers were the guests of the Marlborough Club at a most enjoyable euchre party and smoker in the club's head quarters last night. Every man in the squad was on hand, and the players were delighted with the evening's events and with the hearty welcome that was tendered them. During the evening they met many fans and were made to feel that the sport-loving people of Peterborough would be right behind them all season and at the same time they themselves created a most favourable impression. There was a large attendance of Marlborough Club members and a big delegation on hand from the Belmont Club, headed by President C. P. Fee.

The commodious and handsomely appointed club rooms were tastefully decorated for the occasion, baseball necessities and White Cap pennants being prominently displayed. As a mark of respect to the visiting ball players the orchestra played "Yankee Doodle" at the beginning of the evening, while a large American flag was hung up.

The early part of the evening was devoted to progressive euchre, in which most of the guests present took part. Great interest was taken in this part of the programme, the game providing plenty of amusement. During its progress Tucker's orchestra rendered an enjoyable programme of popular music. The winner turned up in Mr. Hague, while Mr. Gervin captured the booby prize.

At the conclusion of the card-playing, refreshments of sandwiches and coffee were served, after which there was a delightful musical programme.

President Dinsdale of the Marlborough Club, who efficiently acted as chairman, heartily welcomed the White Caps to Peterborough and assured them that they would have the support of every member of the Marlborough Club. He read a letter from His Worship, Mayor Bradburn, expressing regret at his inability to be present, but wishing the White Caps and the Marlborough Club every success.

Manager Templin, in reply, expressed the thanks of the baseball club for the warm welcome they had received and assured the Marlboroughs that they would return the favour in a different manner later on in the season.

During the programme, President Fee of the Belmonts, was called upon for a speech, and thanked the Marlborough for the opportunity they had afforded of meeting the Peterborough ball club players. He congratulated the Marlborough upon the progress they had made and upon what they were doing to further the interests of club life in this city.

The following most enjoyable programme was presented, encores being demanded in every case:

Selection by the orchestra.
Solo—Mr. Donaldson.
Solo—Mr. W. McIlroy.
Solo—Mr. Teddy Crowe.
Duet—Messrs. Donaldson and Eyres.
Solo—Mr. Deeton.
Step dance—Mr. J. Callaghan.
Banjo Specialty—Mr. Frank Clarke.
Recitations—Mr. Geo. Lynch.
Harry Lauder imitations—Mr. Barret.
Piano Duet — Messrs. Pratt and Langford.
Recitation—Mr. Ed. Disautel.

Mr. A. Quinlan in a neat speech expressed the thanks of the White Caps for their most enjoyable reception at the hands of the Marlboroughs and Mr. W. McIlroy, on behalf on the management of the ball club, also thanked the hosts of the evening for their kindness, after which the ball squad gave three cheers and a tiger for the Marlboroughs, and the latter came back with three rousers for the White Caps and Manager Templin.

A most pleasant evening was brought to a close at 1 a.m. with the singing of the national anthem.

FOR MEN ONLY.

The St. John's Men's Bible class will meet on Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m. The subject will be "The Old Law and the New Life." The meetings are brief, bright and brotherly, and are open for discussion. A hearty welcome to all men. "Only once a stranger" is our motto. Come and join us.

Princess St. Walk Likely To Be Laid

The practical results from the Board of Works' tour of the city yesterday, under the chaperonage of Ald. Buller, will probably be seen when the work to be done is undertaken. The Board is handicapped by the fact that the appropriations do not begin to meet the cost of work that could be undertaken.

The extension of Rutherford Avenue north to Bolivar street, cutting up two blocks, was considered and may be accomplished. It is understood that several houses are in the way of a direct street, and to avoid them a jog in the proposed street would be necessary. However, there is nothing definite in this respect, but the members of the Board were able to see for themselves the situation.

At the C.G.E. it is likely that a crossing will be laid, and a pavement built on the east side of the street. The extension of the pavement south on the west side of Park street from the C.G.E. to Albert street, is to be made, but not until the C.G.E. building is erected. This will widen the street sufficiently for the safety of traffic when the street railway service is extended.

The pavement on the south side of Princess street, which has been before the Council several times, will likely be laid as the result of yesterday's inspection.

Elm street is to be graded and gravelled. A sidewalk is proposed for Donegal street, where required, and the trees trimmed on Smith street west near Jackson's park, where the G.T.R. crosses the street.

These are just a few of the proposals of work to be done throughout the city.

The Board spent the entire day on their tour and wound up their business near the Nicholls Oval, being in time to witness the last innings of the ball practice. Naturally, with the ward system in force the various aldermen did not overlook their respective wards, although no opposition was reported as being made by those who represented the other wards.

The condition of the streets was regarded differently by some of the aldermen. They were in a fairly good state to some, while others considered that they required immediate attention.

ECZEMA AND SORE EYES

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mr. H. W. Lear, Port Plamford, Nfld. "The child was in a bad state and suffered greatly. The doctor failed to help her, and on recommendation of a friend, I used Dr Chase's Ointment, which made a complete cure. With a grateful heart I write you this letter."

MOTHERS' DAY AT MURRAY ST. CHURCH

At the Murray street Baptist church to-morrow morning, a special Mother's Day service will be held. Parents are asked to bring every child in the family to this service.

Boy Shot Dead

Special to The Examiner:

SCRANTON, PA., MAY 11.—One boy was shot dead and several troopers and civilians more or less hurt, when troopers charged the foreign rioters at the mines near here, where a strike is on. Reinforcements of mounted police have arrived and the situation is well in hand.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

Did Not Disappoint.

Don't become discouraged simply because your hair falls and is thin, weak and wispy until you have tried Herpicide. "I first began to use Newbro's Herpicide three years ago, after a spell of fever, which caused me to become almost bald. Herpicide soon restored the quantity and natural colour of my hair. I feel lost without a bottle of Herpicide in the house." Thus Mrs. Anna C. Layn, 921 Second Avenue, Louisville, Ky., tells in her own words how she lost her hair and how she got it back. Mrs. Layn's experience has been duplicated a thousand times and can be repeated thousands more.

Newbro's Herpicide keeps the hair and scalp in a perfectly healthy condition. When the hair papilla has not been destroyed by the ravages of the dandruff germ, the hair will resume its suspended growth.

Newbro's Herpicide kills the dandruff germ and checks falling hair. The itching of the scalp stops almost instantly. Others imitate and make similar claims, but the original dandruff germ destroyer is Herpicide.

Applications of this wonderful remedy may be obtained at any good barber shop.

Send 10c. in postage or silver for sample and booklet to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

OBITUARY

MR. WILLIAM ARMSTRONG.

The death occurred this afternoon at the Protestant Home of Mr. William Armstrong.

The deceased gentleman was a resident of this city, and has been an inmate of the Home since August last. He is survived by a wife and two sons.

Funeral announcement later.

PETERBORO' MAN REPORTED MISSING

A rumour was heard on the street to-day bearing ample substantiation that Mr. Martin Hobbins, formerly of Peterborough, was missing at Perry Harbour, where he has been for some time. According to the information he has been missing for the past ten days. There was no clue it was stated, to his whereabouts, and some disquietude was felt as to the cause of his absence. Mr. Hobbins was quite well known in Peterborough.

REPAIRING DAMAGE DONE AT STONY LAKE

Although the season is yet young for boating, the prospects, according to men interested in the pastime, appear very bright for this year.

The high water of this spring, however, has caused considerable inconvenience at Stoney Lake, where the floating wharves have in some cases been displaced. Mr. John Nugent, who paid a visit to his wharf yesterday, told the Examiner that he found the structure high and dry upon an island and he was forced to obtain the assistance of a steamer to pull it off and replace it. Others experience the same trouble, and Mr. H. P. Lindsay's wharf has disappeared altogether. The men at Stoney Lake say that the water this year rose two feet higher than usual, hence it is that the trouble occurred.

Mr. Robert Neill's boat house will need repairing, as the ice and severe frost of the winter has caused some damage to the premises.

Several new cottages are appearing at Stoney Lake this season and some of the owners are already paying periodical visits to them.

Conditions are such, said Mr. Nugent, that canoeing is quite possible at any time now, in fact although the season will not commence until July 1st, a few boats may be seen on the water already.

The following left for the lake on Thursday: Messrs. H. P. Lindsay, R. Winch, T. E. Bradburn, W. H. Meldrum, E. F. Ackerman, B. Shortly, G. W. Morrow and R. Neill.

MR. R. DOBIE RETURNS FROM EUROPE

Mr. Robt. Dobie arrived home on Friday evening after spending the past two months in Europe in the interests of the C.G.E. Co. Just as Mr. Dobie was about to sail for home he learned of the serious illness of his nephew in a London hospital, and hastened to his bedside. Nothing, however, that could be done proved effectual, and the young man died a few days later. The body was brought home to Guelph, where it was interred on Friday. Mr. Dobie was to sail on the Olympic, but was delayed four days by the stokers' strike. He had to take a German liner sailing to New York.

A SKYSCRAPING AFFAIR

It Chilled the Love of the Two Hated Rivals.

By DONALD ALLEN.

It was a fact well known in social circles in Traverse City that Henry Harrington Hawkins and R. Ogden Winterbury were rivals for the hand of Miss Kate Barstow, but it was only known to three or four people that the aforesaid handsome young girl had already plighted her troth with Burt Rayl, manager of the big department store, and that when the marriage came off he was to have an interest in the business.

Mr. Hawkins was a young man of aesthetic tastes. He was a law student and wrote sonnets to himself, and his income was $8 a week. Mr. Winterbury neither had aesthetic tastes nor wrote poetry. He was employed by a firm publishing a state gazetteer, and he therefore called himself a literary man and tried to make his salary of $12 per week carry out his assertions.

If Burt Rayl had been of a jealous disposition there would have been no rivalry between the other two, but he was not, and as Miss Kate was being kept in caramels and roses by the rivalry and as good looking girls are as prone to mischief as plainer ones she let matters go on.

She knew of the rivalry, but took no notice of it. Both young men were treated alike. They had been friends up to the occasion of a certain lawn party, when both fell in love. From that time on it was enmity. They passed each other in the street to glare and mutter. They sat together in the Barstow parlor, with the young lady making a good third, and smiled and smiled and yet wished each other dead. If one got away early in the evening for a game of croquet with the object of his affections the other waylaid him on his homeward way and hit him in the back with stones. If Miss Barstow attended a sacred concert with Mr. Hawkins it was Mr. Winterbury's turn to throw missiles. Their love for the girl was broad and deep and long and desperate. Neither of them stopped to figure on the cost of pork or potatoes or the price of house rent. That would have been abusing their love.

Things went on. Things go on even if people are in love. Traverse City decided to hold a county fair. All the big hogs, fat cattle, old ganders, fancy bedquilts, gigantic pumpkins, overgrown cucumbers and three legged calves in the county were to be exhibited, and one enterprising individual bought the privilege of setting up a Ferris wheel on the grounds.

When the fair opened, of course everybody was there. That meant that Miss Kate Barstow and Mr. Hawkins and Mr. Winterbury were there. It also meant that when Miss Kate saw the Ferris wheel she was much taken with it and expressed her desire to make the circuit and get a view of the country for miles around.

The rivalry had become desperate by this time. Each rival felt that a crisis was at hand. Each proposed to make that circuit with Miss Kate and to have his fate settled before they had left the car.

Now the law student showed his fine Italian hand. He went to the owner of the wheel and had a very private conversation. Later on he borrowed $20 and passed the bills over to the man.

The transaction had hardly been closed when the literary editor of the gazetteer appeared. He spent some ten minutes watching the machinery operating the wheel, and then he had a talk with the owner.

There were many winks and smiles and more money passed. It was after the last trotting race that the rivals and the girl they loved approached the wheel. Each intended to make the circuit with Miss Kate and leave the other on the ground. Each had also planned that in case he got left the fact should not give the other any advantage. On the contrary, it should be bad for him. It can't be said that the girl had an intuition, but this much is certain—that in the crowd and crush around the car she so managed that Mr. Hawkins had as a partner a very fat woman whose husband was a nervous little man who dared not make the trip, while Mr. Winterbury found a little later that his companion was an old maid of forty or more who wanted to fall in love.

The rivals were thirty feet high when they discovered the mixup, and there was nothing to do but go onward and upward. Miss Kate smiled and waved a hand at them, but that only increased the pain. The owner of the wheel had been closely watching things, but after half a minute he shook his head and muttered:

"Hanged if I know what to do. I have forgotten which I was to keep up there. They have gone and mixed themselves up, and I guess the best thing I can do is to stop the old machine right now."

The "old machine" had made only a half circuit. Mr. Hawkins and his fat woman and Mr. Winterbury and his old maid were right at the top when something went wrong with the machinery, and the motion ceased. After half a minute there were loud demands to know what had happend. The wheel man told them as well as he could. Some cog, lever, cam or ratchet had given out, and it might be a full hour before that big wheel took up its slow and stately movement again.

"Young man, this is a purty how-de-do!" exclaimed the fat woman when the news was shouted aloft. "Here I am up here half scared to death, and down there is my Samuel almost in a fit."

"Well, I'm not to blame for it," replied Mr. Hawkins.

"I believe you are. I can see 'villain' written in every line on your face. Lay as much as the tip of your finger on me and I'll make you rue it to the last day of your life!"

"You shut up and keep quiet!" shouted the young lawyer at her. "Can't you see that your bitching around may upset this car?"

"I'm a dead woman—I know I am!" she wailed as she began to shed tears.

"Didn't I tell you to keep still?"

She sank down in the bottom of the car, crowding his legs until he had to haul them up, and Mr. Hawkins swore according to Coke and Blackstone.

In the next car below Mr. Winterbury and the old maid were also having some conversation. He was a young man and looked like a good thing, and her heart went out to him. As her heart went out she exclaimed:

"What a romantic bower for a pair of lovers! All around us the meadows, overhead the sky! I hope you appreciate the beautiful."

"I'd appreciate a chance to punch that fellow's head down there!" was the savage reply.

"Say not so. I could ride on forever."

"You may ride all you please after I get out."

It was an unkind remark, and the old maid took it so and flared up and told Mr. Winterbury that he was evidently a loafer in disguise and that her brother down below would wallop better manners into him as soon as the wheel turned. Then the rivals caught sight of each other and began to shake their fists and indulge in epithets. These things scared the fat woman until she began to shriek and angered the old maid until she threatened to stab her vis-a-vis with a hatpin if he didn't give over. He gave over, but not until he had said:

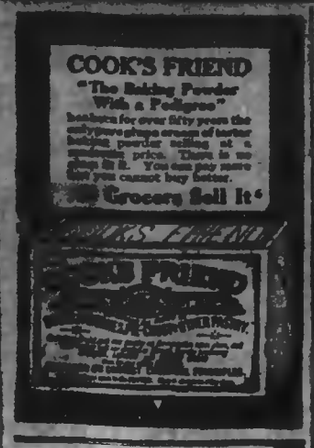
"If I ever catch that long nosed young man on the solid earth I'll read him limb from limb, and if hung for it I'll go to the gallows with a song on my lips!"

A thunderstorm had been creeping up. The owner of the machine didn't know whether he had earned his $40 or not. He finally decided that he hadn't, and, while seemingly industriously at work making repairs, he accomplished nothing and left all his patrons to get wet.

There was a strong wind ahead of the rain, and the people aloft sat with their hearts in their mouths. The thunder roared, and they roared with it. The lightning cut up didos, and shrieks rent the air. When the rain came all were soaked in a minute. This included the fat woman and the old maid, and they privately informed Messrs. Hawkins and Winterbury that their vengeance would be deep and deadly and last through three generations.

The owner of the wheel was a man who believed in giving full measure for the money. He kept the wheel still for the full time he had agreed upon and then added ten minutes. By that time the storm had ceased and the sun of joy shone again. Messrs. Hawkins and Winterbury gave him one long, lingering look as the wheel came round and then leaped from their seats and walked away.

They walked toward and past the girl of their hearts as she stood smiling beside her motor, but they didn't see her. They didn't want to see her. They couldn't want to see her, since she had washed their love away never to return. Henceforth no more caramels, no more roses. It was as if nothing ever had been—nothing but law and literary work.



An Old English Road.

In Wiltshire, England, a causeway built and endowed by a market woman in 1476 still serves the purpose of bringing the neighboring villagers day about into the ancient market town of Chippenham. It runs from Chippenham cliff to the top of Wick hill, in Bremhill parish, a four and a half mile road traversing the heavy clay of the low lying lands on either side the Avon. The raised stone footway is placed high above the horse road and is kept in good repair today, as it has been for some 450 years. The good Maud Heath not only saved enough to build the road, but pursued her trade so wisely that she was able to leave property in trust for the maintenance of her road. Chippenham was bequeathed to Alfred's daughter and was one of the manors permanently held by Edward the Confessor. A large annual wool market is still held in the summer and a cattle show in the winter.

Taal Volcano Getting Ugly.

Water in the center of the crater lake of Taal volcano has become heated to the boiling point, and the whole visible interior of the cone is assuming the features which were present previous to the latest eruption, according to a Manila correspondent. The lake, which was formed when water from the outside rushed in through the crevices formed by earthquakes, is boiling in many places. High up on the walls of the crater steam issues in jets from cracks in the surface and the walls are becoming recolored with the hues which were seen before the great eruption. After the latest outbreak at Taal the activity was stopped by the inrush of cold water to the crater. A new crater lake was formed over a mile in length. The increasing temperature of the water and the presence of steam jets tends to show that the interior of Taal is by no means dead.

The Succession.

A teacher was hearing the class in civics and asked this question:

"If the president, vice president and all the members of the cabinet died who would officiate?"

The class thought for some time, trying in vain to recall who came next in succession.

James at last had a happy inspiration, and he answered:

"The undertaker."—Harper's Magazine.

The High Cost of Living

Canada is a land of countless fertile acres, and yet there is much complaint over The High Cost of Living.

Potatoes are being imported into Canada from Ireland, meat, butter and eggs, are at top-notch prices. Many efforts are being made to ascertain the cause of these ascending prices.

But the potato is not a perfect food for man—neither are eggs, butter or meat. The only complete, perfect food for man is the whole wheat grain. It contains all the material needed for building and nourishing the perfect human body. It is brought to its highest perfection as a food in

BARTLETT HELD REGULARS TO FOUR SCRATCH HITS

Rochester Boy Had Edge on First Division Outfit Yesterday and Yannigans Gave Regulars an Awful Chase for the Game, Losing by 1 Run to 0—A Snappy, Well-played Exhibition.

The White Cap Regulars triumphed over the Yannigans again yesterday, in their practice game at Nicholls Oval, but the Subs chased their rivals all the way, and it was anybody's game until the last man was out, the Regulars winning by 1 to 0. It was a pitcher's battle between Ned Bartlett, the Rochester boy, who twirled for the Yannigans, and Davis the little Philadelphia pitcher, who worked for the Regulars, and both twirlers had the batters pretty well tied in a knot all the way through. Bartlett showed Manager Templin some fine pitching against the Regulars. The Kodak Park phenom held the hard-hitting Regulars to four scattered, scratch hits, all of them more or less fluky, and with airtight support he would not have been scored upon. His curve ball was breaking beautifully and he zinged his fast one in with a hop that puzzled the Regulars, who, for the most part, couldn't have found him with a search warrant. He topped a fine exhibition of twirling by fielding his position beautifully, accepting eight chances—some of them difficult ones. The youngster is coming along like a house afire and will put up a strong argument for a permanent place on the White Caps' pitching staff.

Percy Davis also gave a gilt-edged demonstration of pitching against the Yannigans, although his task was not as hard as that of Bartlett, who had to face the slugging brigade. There were seven pitchers on the Yannigan line-up and Davis had them eating out of his hand all through the engagement, allowing but two hits. He fanned eight men, while Bartlett caused seven to waft the May breeze. There was one complimentary from each twirler.

It was a fast exhibition—a real ball game all the way with pretty fielding on both sides. Derr was in the limelight with a nice running catch of a drive to left centre, and his quick throw to second resulted in a double. Tully picked a drive over third off his shoe tops and Ulmer tore off a pretty one-handed pick-up of a hot grounder along the third base line. The Regulars had a snappy double play to their credit and altogether the fielding was good. The outstanding feature of the engagement, however, was the grand pitching of both twirlers.

The only run in the battle was scored in the first innings, and after that there was little doing. Each side had a couple of chances, but good pitching and gingery fielding cut off any possibility of scoring. The Yanns made a desperate effort in the last innings to sew up the game and pretty nearly succeeded. Their chance was killed, however, when Bartlett was nailed at the plate on Scull's bunt to Davis.

Arthur Johnston handled the exacting role of umpire in good fashion.

In the first innings Schwartz, leading off for the Regulars, slammed the pill to left field. Derr got one hand on the ball, but failed to hold it, and the runner reached second. Hartman sacrificed neatly, sending him to third, and he romped home when Cresswell dropped Tully's fly to right, after a long run. The Regulars had a chance in the second when Dolan, the first man up, was safe on Mooney's fumble of his bunt, but Bartlett fanned Beard and Brode, and caused Johnston to lift one to Derr.

Again, in the fourth, the first man got on Tully being walked, but he was doubled up on Dolan's fly to Derr. The pitcher outfielder pulled off a nice running catch.

Hartman singled, with two gone, in the sixth, but was stranded, Ulmer grabbing Tully's grounder in good style.

With two out, in the seventh, the Regulars got two on the sacks, Beard being safe on Scull's fumble of his grounder, and Johnston driving a safety through short. Bartlett got out of the hole by knocking down Brode's vicious liner and throwing the runners out at first.

Again, in the eighth, with one out, the Regulars started to populate the stations. Schwartz was safe on Ulmer's error and Hartman singled over third. Bartlett fanned. Tully and Ulmer threw Templin out at first, leaving the pair still en route for home. The Subs went out, one, two and three, until the third, when Derr doubled to left field. Bartlett grounded to Tully however, and Scull lifted a foul, which Brode smothered. Cresswell was walked with two out in the fifth, but Derr grounded to Davis.

Mooney was given a lift when Tully booted his bounder in the seventh, and reached third on Brode's low peg to second. He was nailed, however, trying to steal home.

There was a chance for the Yannigans in the eighth when Ulmer, first up, was given a pass, but he was doubled up at third on Cresswell's grounder to Tully. The shortstop's throw nailed Cresswell at first, and Dolan's peg to Hartman caught Ulmer sliding into third. The Yannigans looked like tying up the game, in the ninth, when Bartlett pounded one to left for two bases and went to third on a low throw to second. The pitcher was nailed at the plate, however, when Scull bunted to Davis. Scull stole second and third, but was left there when Baver missed three and Schaeffer lifted a foul to Brode.

White Cap Notes

Derr is pitching for the Yannigans against the Regulars this afternoon.

Bartlett has worked twelve innings against the Regulars, holding them to five hits.

Trout is recovering nicely from the effects of his injury in Wednesday's practice and may be in the game today.

It will be like old times to see Connie Murphy turning cart-wheels on the coaching lines at Hamilton. The ex-Peterborough Midland Leaguer is being carried by the Kolts as utility man.

Harry Schaefer, the Dubuque first baseman, who joined the Hamilton squad on Thursday, was recalled to his home yesterday through the death of his father.

Manager Templin will be in a position to announce his line-up for Tuesday after to-day's game.

The good form shown by Pitchers Bartlett and Davis yesterday and by Derr and Schaeffer on Wednesday, would make it seem as if Peterborough's pitching staff are going to be right there with a large amount of the proper goods.

NEWS FROM THE LEAGUE CIRCUIT

Buffalo Courier: Eddie McGuire, who has signed with the Hamilton team of the Canadian League, is back in town for a few days, or until he recovers from a cold he caught in practice over there. McGuire says big Red Fisher is showing up in wonderful fashion, and the way he shoots them down to second shows he's in better form than ever. Mac. predicts a great season for his former teammate on the Simon Pures. McGuire is a candidate for the short-stop job. He's easily one of the fastest and brainiest players ever developed on the local semi-pro. lots, and should do well within the Canadian circuit, which, from all accounts, is going to be a strong league this year. The prospects in every city in the league are most promising.

Hamilton, May 11.—Elaborate arrangements are being made for the opening day ceremonies. The officials of the Peterborough club will be in attendance, while James J. McCaffrey, and President James P. Fitzgerald, of the Canadian league, will head a large party of Toronto fans here for the day, the official invitations having been sent out yesterday. Mayor Lees, assisted by the controllers, will look after the opening features at the park, the programme for the day being as follows:

Parade from city hall through principal streets, starting at 2.30 and headed by the Ninety-first Highlanders' band, participated in by the players on both teams, the civic officials and many of the guests.

Upon arrival at the ball park the teams will warm up, after which they will line up at the southeast corner of the field and march across the field headed by the band. His worship, the mayor, will then address the players, after which the two managers will raise the Union Jack on the grandstand flag pole. The teams will then take their places. His worship, the mayor, will pitch the first ball, and the season will be under way.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURES

Will be Given at the Salvation Army Temple

Brigadier John Bond, editor of the "War Cry," Toronto, accompanied by Lieut. Gray, the talented artist of the same publication, will visit the S. A. Temple here this evening and tomorrow, and conduct the following services: Saturday, 8 p.m., "From the Cradle to the Gallows and to Honour," being a remarkable pictorial presentation of two careers, sketched by Artist Gray, and interspersed with appropriate comments and singing. Sunday, 11 a.m., altar service in connection with Self-Denial week. 3 p.m., lecture by Brig. Bond, entitled, "Old London's Bedless Ten Thousand," giving sidelights into the condition and resourcefulness of the unfortunate homeless of Britain's capital, illustrated by Artist Gray. 7 p.m., "Lessons From the Titanic Disaster" in word, by Brig. Bond, and in illustration by Artist Gray. This series of meetings will be of exceptional interest and a very hearty invitation is extended to the public generally.

STRINGENT WARSHIP PATROL IS PUT INTO COMMISSION

Suspicion of a Sudden Attack Has Caused Winston-Churchill to Keep Up a Continuous Sentry-go of Warships---Sharp Eye on Germany.

London, May 13.—Under a new scheme of defence initiated by Winston Spencer Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty, the destroyers of the British fleet commenced on May 1 a continuous patrol of the coasts of the United Kingdom. The northeast coast, menaced as it is by the powerful fleet of the German Empire, is necessarily most closely guarded and there the most modern and powerful vessels of the mosquito fleet, supported by submarines, have been stationed.

Heretofore, the two battle squadrons have had attached to them a destroyer flotilla with reserve flotillas at the naval bases at Devonport, Portsmouth and the Nore. The new scheme provides that no steamers are to be permanently attached to the battle fleets. Instead the whole available forces have been organized into eight flotillas, four being in full commission and four in reserve, with nucleus crews.

With the four active flotillas, the first and second, composed of 36 of the newest and most powerful vessels, will have their base at the new naval headquarters at Rosyth, on the east coast of Scotland, and facing directly across to Germany, besides guarding the north-about exit to the Atlantic. The third flotilla will have its base at Harwich another east coast station, and the fourth at Portland on the English Channel, where it will be available for work on any coast. At each of the bases named there will be one reserve flotilla, while other destroyers will patrol other parts of the coast not covered by these.

No fewer than 165 destroyers are included in the new organization, besides eight fast cruisers, eight scouts and eight depot and repair ships. Of this number one-third are assigned to the North Sea, so that with 24 submarines with bases at Dundee and Harwich, the coasts of England should be well guarded. Naval experts in fact estimate that the new scheme doubles the effective strength of the advance guard along the eastern seaboard.

With the exception of the fifth flotilla, all the North Sea destroyers are driven by turbines and the majority burn oil. Most of the vessels at Rosyth have been built since 1910, and have a speed of 29 knots and they will shortly be strengthened by the 27-knot boats. All have either been designed or altered for work in the rough waters of the North Sea. The active flotillas are fitted with wireless telegraphy.

Types Will Not Strike.

Chicago, May 13.—By a vote of 1,099 to 856 members of the Typographical Union yesterday voted not to go on strike in sympathy with the pressmen who now are out in all Chicago daily newspaper offices.

While the vote was decisive, J. M. Lynch, international president of the Typographical Union, and Walter W. Barrett, president of the Chicago local, had expected that the majority against a strike would be larger than the returns showed. Both of them expressed themselves as well pleased with the result, however. From the beginning of the agitation of a strike, they urged the pressmen not to take such a step. They insisted that the present contract with the publishers was binding and could not be broken.

Children of a Mixed Marriage.

Kingston, May 13.—W. H. Wrightmeyer, Children's Aid Agent at Belleville, was here Saturday removing two children from the Catholic Orphanage to his care. The children had been taken from their parents and later returned on the promise that they would be better cared for. Recently the couple parted and the mother, who is a Catholic, placed them in the Catholic home.

The father, who is a Protestant, wanted them brought up as members of his church, hence their removal.

Darrow on Trial Wednesday.

Los Angeles, May 13.—Rivaling in interest the famous case of the McNamara brothers will be the trial on Wednesday on a charge of bribery of Clarence Darrow, famous the world over as a lawyer and labor leader.

Not the least interesting phases of the case that promises to be as dramatic as it is unique are the facts that Darrow will assist in his own defence, and that the testimony expected to convict him was obtained by means of a dictograph.

WILL THE U.S. INTERVENE?

Conejos, Mex., May 13.—(At the Federal Front)—Twelve hours of brisk fighting on the desert plains 300 miles south of the American border between a force of 5,000 rebels under Gen. Orozco and an equally strong body of federals under Gen. Huerta resulted yesterday in a decided advantage to the Government.

It was the steady artillery fire of the Government troops that dislodged the enemy. The aim of the federal gunners was true. They began to shell the rebel positions at daybreak. For a time the insurrector fired in volleys and seven federal officers were wounded. Only a few hours, however, they withstood the cannonading, and soon began evacuating their positions. Gen. Telles arrived at nightfall with 1,500 men in the valley behind Conejos, where the vanguard of rebels gathered. It seems likely that unless the rebels continue to fight desperately, many prisoners will be taken to-day.

Enthusiasm in the federal camp is intense. Word reached here that Torreon is celebrating the victory with street parades and music.

Gen. Telles who had been stationed in the rear of Huerta's vanguard at noon, was sent around to the eastward to flank the rebels and cut off their retreat. Last night federal headquarters claim the rebels are completely surrounded and that the second day of fighting will prove equally decisive.

Orozco in Retreat.

El Paso, Tex., May 13.—Gen. Orozco is retreating northward toward the American border.

A message to the Mexican consul here from Gen. Huerta at the federal front at 11 a.m., declared that Orozco had hastily abandoned his position at Conejos, leaving many guns and ammunition. The federals at noon yesterday occupied the positions held by the rebels.

The fighting began at daybreak.

Washington Anxious.

Washington, D.C., May 13.—The U. S. Government is awaiting the outcome of the battle now going on between the federals and rebels at Tiahuallo, Mexico, with great anxiety. This battle, it is claimed by those who know the situation, will decide whether this Government will be forced to intervene in Mexico, or if the Madero Government is able to cope with the situation.

With the knowledge that they must either win a battle at once or starve, the rebel forces were reported on Saturday as desperately attacking the federal at Rancho Tiahuallo, near Torreon, and exerting every effort to drive the Government forces from their strong entrenchments. So far the best of the fighting had been with the federals. President Madero's forces were strongly equipped with modern artillery and had plenty of supplies.

The rebels, on the other hand, were fighting in a desert and were far from their base, El Paso being the nearest point at which they could purchase provisions. If the federals should succeed in holding the rebels in their present position for a few days, it was believed that the revolutionary forces would have to retreat, in which event it was admitted that the army would break up and the rebellion dwindle to a scattered guerilla warfare.

Although the rebel forces, commanded by Gen. Orozco, greatly outnumbered the federals, the situation had become so serious that Gen. Salazar, who with 3,000 men was defeated in his attempt to get around to the federal rear, was said to have been recalled from Cuatro Cienegas to reinforce the rebels. His arrival was expected in a few hours at his command would bring the rebel forces in the battle to 11,000 men. Salazar's retreat meant the abandonment of operations by the rebels in the regions of Saltillo and Monterey.

Gen. Orozco's plans seemed to have gone entirely astray. Not only was Salazar prevented from making his rear attack on the federals, but the expected rebel forces that were to have attacked Torreon from the south and west while he made his attack from the north, have failed to show and are reported to be kept busy by Government troops.

Heavy bloodshed is expected before Torreon can be taken. Madero has instructed Gen. Huerta to lose his last man before he loses Torreon, which is the railroad gateway to Northern Mexico. Should Torreon fall, the revolution will have to be counted with Mexico City, and Madero himself will have to take the field to defend his Government and his life.

Ralph Smith May Run in Kootenay.

Nelson, B.C., May 13.—The Conservatives will hold a convention on May 16, to nominate a candidate for the Kootenay bye-election, June 20, and R. F. Green of Victoria is the probable choice. No Liberal is yet in the field, but several names are mentioned, including that of Ralph Smith, a former member for Nanaimo.

Brantford Lad Missing.

Brantford, May 13.—Parents of Ivor Rhodes, a ten-year-old English boy, are greatly distressed at the disappearance of a lad from home at 28 Spring street, on Wednesday last. He was last seen fishing from the railway bridge over the Grand River and it is feared he must have been drowned.

LADY TUPPER DIES

Wife of Veteran Statesman Passes Away In England.

London, May 13.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Lady Tupper, wife of Sir Charles Tupper, who died Saturday at Bexley-heath, Kent, had been an invalid for a number of years, suffering from heart trouble. Her condition became serious three weeks ago, death resulting from simple exhaustion.

The body will be sent to Halifax for burial, probably on the Empress of Britain, sailing Friday, May 17, and will be accompanied by Sir Charles Tupper, Stewart Tupper, who only arrived Saturday, and Sir Chas. Hibbert Tupper, who is expected by the Lusitania to-day. Sir Charles Tupper is wonderfully well under the circumstances.

Lady Tupper's maiden name was Frances Amelia Morse, and she was the daughter of Silas Hibbert Morse of Amherst, N.S. She married on Oct. 8, 1866, Sir Charles Tupper, who later became Prime Minister of Canada and filled two terms as High Commissioner for Canada in London.

There were great celebrations on the 50th anniversary of their wedding on Oct. 8, 1906, in Ottawa, when they were presented with many souvenirs, including a gold epergne from the Conservative members of the Senate, a solid gold salver from the Conservative members of the House of Commons and a handsome silver gilt epergne from the Conservatives of Halifax, N.S.

Titanic Victim Found.

Toronto, May 13.—The body of a man who was on his way to Toronto was picked up by the Canadian Government steamer Montagny, together with three other bodies in the vicinity of where the Titanic sank. The man is Harold Reynolds, of the Royal West Kent Regiment, Marston, England. He had been with this regiment for nearly four years, and leaving it was on his way to Toronto, where he was to have gone to Fred W. Canon of 807 Yonge street. Canon had served in the same regiment as Reynolds, and when seen at his home last night stated that he had only came to Canada last November.

Reynolds was an Englishman about 28 years of age and single.

To Investigate Hydro Power.

London, May 13.—The passengers who sailed for New York Saturday on the steamship Mauretania included Lord Montagu of Beulieu, who goes on a two months' trip to the United States and Canada to investigate the progress of motoring and aviation, and also to study the good roads movement. His principal business will be to look into hydro-electric schemes along the Mississippi, in which London is very much interested. He will also look over the life insurance field with a view of combining British companies whereby they will obtain the advantages of united financial strength. Geoffrey Marks accompanied Lord Montagu.

Horse Dragged Child to Death.

Montreal, May 13.—Eight-year-old Walter Maynes was dragged to death by a horse belonging to his father in a field at Ville Emard, when he tied the rope which was about the horse's neck around his waist, and the horse becoming frightened, dashed away.

NESBITT IS BACK

Extradition Proceedings Are a Complete Success

SPIRITED INTO TORONTO

Toronto, May 13.—Dr. W. Bentley Nesbitt returned to Toronto yesterday morning after an absence of a year and four months. He left over the ice of the Muskoka Lakes, riding to the border upon a freight train, and went unattended. He returned accompanied by Detective Boyd of the provincial police, and occupied a stateroom upon the G.T.R. flyer from Chicago aped by the signed and sealed orders of the U. S. Secretary of State and at the urgent seeking of the authorities of his own country.

The doctor's going was quiet and he attracted no more attention than was absolutely necessary. When he came again he slipped, or was slipped, into the city with the utmost secrecy. When the train arrived at West Toronto half a dozen newspaper men boarded it in quest of a word with the doctor or hoping to get at least a glimpse of his once familiar figure. More newspaper men boarded the train at North Parkdale at 7.32, when the train arrived punctual to the minute. They were disappointed, for as the train pulled out for the Union Station, where the doctor was scheduled to alight, he and his escort slipped quietly from the other side of the train and entered a taxi which had waited for them in Queen street subway.

Provincial Detective Greer, who was waiting at the station, came on with the train and the newspapermen to the Union station and went with them to the Court street police station, where it was expected that Dr. Nesbitt would be held until his arraignment this morning. There was nothing doing. The taxi which picked up the doctor and the detective drove to the home of Supt. J. E. Rogers and then whirled away to the jail, where the doctor was received under a special commitment. He will be turned over to the city authorities at the city hall to-day.

The evasion of any observers who might be on hand to witness the doctor's arrival, was made at his own request, and was neatly executed. The doctor expressed a wish that his homecoming might be as quiet as possible. Mrs. Nesbitt is in their island home in Muskoka, and no effort was made to secure bail for the doctor, who, after having a hearty breakfast, which was specially prepared for him at the jail, spent the remainder of the day resting.

Despite the fact that the doctor declared his intention while in Chicago of calling in the assistance of a barber to restore as far as might be his former appearance, he is still wearing the small beard of a Kentucky colonel, although this may be removed before his appearance in the police court.

Government Steamer Employes Strike

Charlottetown, P.E.I., May 13.—Saturday morning the firemen and trimmers on the Earl Grey and the Minto went on strike, demanding an increase in wages and reduction in hours. After a conference with the Marine Department, the latter decided to grant the demands. Henceforth the firemen will receive $33 per month, and the trimmers $29. The length of watches will be four hours.

Buffalo Battles With Wheat.

Buffalo, May 13.—To avert a grain blockade at this port, elevators are being worked day and night and will continue to handle their capacity for the next week. Approximately eight million bushels of grain have been elevated during last week, and to-day twelve big grain carriers were lying inside the breakwater awaiting the turn at the elevators.

It is estimated that there are seven million bushels afloat. The railroads are co-operating with the elevators to prevent a blockade, clearing on an average of 1,500 cars a day for export.

Somehow, it was hard for her to fully realise the situation, and how closely it affected her. The swiftly passing events, the complication arising so suddenly, apparently out of nothing, left her feeling as though she must surely awake from a dream. She could not comprehend what it was all about; the names Bartlett and Phyllis had no clear meaning, they represented nothing but shadows; and this other woman—this music-hall singer—what could there be in common between them? Yet there must be something—something of vital importance to her father—something which had already cost her brother's life. That was the one thing which made it seem an actuality—which brought it home to her as a rugged fact. But for that—and Keith—Ketih sitting there before her—she would have doubted it all. And yet even Keith had come into her life so suddenly, so unexpectedly, as to leave her dazed and uncertain. So strongly did this feeling grip her in the silence that she extended her hand and touched him, as though to make sure of his actual presence.

"What is it, Hope?"

"Oh, nothing—nothing," her voice breaking in a little sob. "It is so silly, but I was just wondering if you were real—everything seems so impossible. I cannot bring my mind to grasp the situation.

He did not smile, but only took the groping hand into both of his own. "I think I understand, little girl," he said gravely. "You are totally unused to such life. Almost without a moment's warning you have been plunged into a maelstrom of adventure, and are all confused. It is different with me—since the first shot at Sumter my life has been one of action, and adventure has grown to be the stimulus I need, and upon which I thrive. But I assure you," pressing the soft hand warmly, "I am real."

"Of course I know that; it makes me glad to know it. If I could only do something myself, and not just sit here, it would all become real enough to me."

She rose suddenly to her feet, clasping her hands together, her face changing with new animation.

"Why couldn't I? I am sure I could. Oh, Mr. Keith, it has just come to me how I can help."

He looked at her questioningly, thinking of her beauty rather than of what she said.

"Do—do I really appear so much like—like that woman?" she asked anxiously.

"Very much, indeed, excepting for the slight difference in age."

"That would never be noticed in the dark, or a poor light. Am I the same height?"

"Practically, yes."

"And my voice?—could you distinguish me from her by my voice?"

"I might; yet probably not, unless my suspicions were aroused. What is it you are thinking about"

She took a deep breath, standing now directly facing him in the light. "Of playing Miss Maclaire tonight," she said quickly. "Of taking her place, and learning what it is of so much importance Hawley has to report. Don't you think it might be done"

The sheer audacity of this unexpected proposal left him speechless. He arose to his feet, gripping the back of the chair, almost doubting if he could have heard aright, his eyes searching the girl's face which was glowing with excitement. Of course he could not permit of her exposure to such a risk; the scheme was impracticable, absurd. But was it? Did it not offer a fair chance of success? And was not the possible result worthy the risk assumed? He choked back the earlier words of protest unuttered, puzzled as to what he had best say. A quick-witted resourceful woman might accomplish all she proposed.

"It looks so simple," she broke in impulsively, moving nearer him. "Don't you think I could do it? Would it be unwomanly?"

"The result, if accomplished, would abundantly justify the means, Hope," he acknowledged at last. "I was not hesitating on that account, but considering the risk you would incur."

"That would be so small—merely the short walk alone with him from the theatre to the hotel," she pleaded. "Once here it could make no difference if he did discover my identity, for there would be plenty of men near at hand to come to my defence. Oh, please say yes."

"If I do, then we must make the illusion perfect, and take as few chances of discovery as possible. I must learn how the other dresses, and when she leaves the theatre. Fortunately for the success of your plan the Trocadero permits no one but performers to come behind the scenes, so that Hawley will be compelled to wait for the lady outside the stage door. I had better go at once, and see to these details."

"Yes," she said, her eyes sparkling with anticipation, "and I am so glad you are willing. I will be most discreet. You are not sorry I made the proposal?"

"Certainly not. At first it struck me as altogether wrong, but the more I think of it the stronger it appeals to me. It may reveal to us the whole conspiracy, and I cannot believe Hawley would venture upon any gross familiarity likely to cost him the good opinion of his ally. There is too much at stake. Wait here, Hope, and I will be back the very moment I learn all that is necessary."

A glance at the office clock convinced Keith that, in all probability, Miss Maclaire had not, as yet, departed for the scene of her evening triumph. Still, it could not be long before she would, and he lit a cigar, sitting down in a corner partially concealed by the clerk's desk to wait her appearance. This required longer than anticipated, and fearing lest he might have missed the departure entirely, he was about to question the busy Thomas, when he beheld Hawley enter hurriedly from the street and run up the stairs. He then had been the laggard. All the better, as he would now have no opportunity to unfold his tale to the lady, as it would be necessary for them to hurry to the theatre. Whatever the nature of the revelation it would have to wait until the walk home. The excitement of the adventure was already creeping into Keith's blood, his pulse quickening.

The two returned almost immediately, conclusively proving that Miss Maclaire, dressed for the street, had been awaiting the arrival of her gallant with some impatience. Hawley was busily explaining his delay as they came down the stairs, and paid little attention to the seemingly deserted office. Indeed, Miss Christie monopolized all his thoughts. With quick scrutiny the watcher noted the more conspicuous articles of apparel constituting her costume—the white mantilla thrown over her head, the neatly fitting blue dress, the light cape covering the shoulders—surely it would not be difficult to duplicate these, so as to pass muster under the dim light of the streets. Far enough in their rear to feel safe from observation be followed, noting with increased pleasure the rapidity with which they covered the required distance. Clearly Miss Maclaire was already nervous lest she have not sufficient time remaining in which to properly dress for her act, and there would be no exchange of confidences on the outward journey. Hawley left her, as Keith anticipated, at the stage entrance, the lady hastening within. Her escort strolled leisurely back to the front of the house, and finally, purchasing a ticket, entered, the performance already having begun.

Keith knew perfectly the arrangement of the theatre—the seats in front; tables all through the centre; a gallery filled with benches; a noisy orchestra beneath the stage; a crowded audience of men, with only here and there a scattered representative of the gentler sex; busy waiters dodging in and out among the tables, and down the aisles, filling orders for liquids from the nearby saloon. The air would be pungent with the odour of drink, thick with the fumes of tobacco, and noisy with voices, except as some special favourite on the stage won temporary attention. The Trocadero possessed but one redeeming feature—no doorway connected stage and auditorium, and the management brooked no interference with his artistes. It had required some nerve to originally enforce this rule, together with a smart fight or two, but at his period it was acknowledged and respected. No sooner had Hawley vanished than Keith found occasion to enter into casual conversation with the doorkeeper, asking a number of questions, and leaving impressed upon the mind of that astute individual the idea that he was dealing with a "gent." enamoured of one of the stage beauties. A coin slipped quietly into the man's hand served to deepen this impression, and unlocked discreet lips otherwise sworn to secrecy. Out of much general information a little of real value was thus extracted—Miss Maclaire's act began at 9.45, and was over promptly at 10.10. It required about twenty minutes more for her to change again into street clothes, and she usually left the theatre immediately after, which would be about 10.30. Yes, there was a vestibule outside the stage door, and on bad nights, those waiting for the ladies could slip in there. But on such a night as this they generally hung around outside. No, there was no watchman, but the manager was frequently prowling around. He'd be busy, however, at 10.30, getting the stage ready for the "Flying Hermanns." Abundantly satisfied and resisting the doorkeeper's professional suggestion that he'd better buy a ticket and take a look at the show, Keith slipped away, and hastened back to the hotel. The more more he investigated the more feasible appeared the girl's plan, and he was now fully committed to it.

COATED TONGUE HEADACHE DIZZY SPELLS

Your overworked stomach is on strike. It refuses to secrete pepsin enough to act upon the food. Refuses also to secrete acid enough to enable the peptic secretion to do its work.

What's the result?—dyspepsia, headache, sick all over.

Give to the stomach the assistance it requires—or in other words try Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which cure more weak stomachs than any other medicine you know of.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills put the kind of life into a weak stomach that enables it to digest and assimilate all kinds of food.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills

Cured Mr. William Martin, a Well-Known Lumberman in Parry Sound.

"I consider that Dr. Hamilton's Pills make the best all round medicine. My stomach got disordered and all kinds of complications set in. My blood grew thin, my color got pale, and I had the worst kind of headaches. The food I ate all disagreed with me and I was constantly bilious and suffering from acute dyspepsia. A wonderful change took place when I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills: they gave me appetite and strong digestion. I had no more bad dreams, no sick stomach or headache. I was in fact like a new man, and will always recommend and use Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

Dr. Hamilton's Pills are sure to benefit at once. Try them. 25c per box, at all dealers, and insist on having only Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. In yellow boxes only.

"NA-DRU-CO DYSPEPSIA TABLETS Proved of Great Value to Me"

There is only one explanation for the numbers of enthusiastic letters that we receive, praising Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, and that is that these tablets certainly do cure any kind of stomach trouble.

Here is a typical letter from Miss Rina Armsworthy, Canso, N.S.:

"It is with pleasure I write to inform you that your Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets have proved of great value to me. I tried remedy after remedy but without any lasting good. Having heard of your tablets curing cases as mine I decided to give them a fair trial. They proved satisfactory in my case."

The remarkable success of Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets is such a success as can only come to an honest remedy, compounded according to an exceptionally good formula, from pure ingredients, by expert chemists. If you are troubled with your stomach just ask your Druggist about Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, compounded by the National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, and sold throughout the Dominion at 50c. a box. 143

CHAPTER XXVIII.
THE STAGE DOOR OF THE TROCADERO.

Hope discovered very little difficulty in duplicating the outer garments Keith reported Miss Maclaire as wearing. The colours, indeed, were not exactly the same, yet this difference was not sufficient to be noticeable at night by the eyes of a man who had no reason to suspect deceit. The girl was in a flutter of nervous excitement as she hastened about the room, donning her few requirements of masquerade, yet Keith noted with appreciation that she became perceptibly cooler as the moment of departure approached. With cheeks aflame and eyes sparkling, yet sparkling aflame and eyes sparkling, yet speaking with a voice revealing no falter, she pressed his arm, and declared herself prepared for the ordeal. The face under the shadow of the mantilla was so arch and piquant, Keith could not disguise his admiration.

"Am I Christie Maclaire?" she asked shyshingly.

"Sufficiently so to fool our friend," he returned, "but I am ready to swear that lady never looked so charming."

"A compliment, and spoken as though you really meant it."

"Have I not been honest enough with you in the past, to be credited with honesty now?" he protested, a little hurt by the bantering tone.

"Of course you have; I merely talk lightly to keep my courage up. You can have no idea how afraid I am."

"Then you are truly an actress, for you appear the picture of enjoyment. But we must go, or Hawley will be there before us, and thus spoil all our plans."

They passed out through the office together, seeing no one familiar to either, Hope keeping her face partially concealed. The east side of the street was less frequented than the other, having fewer saloons along its way, and they chose its darkness. As they advanced, the long habit of frontier life caused Keith to glance behind before they had progressed a block, and he was thus made aware that they were being followed. Conversing lightly, and without a word to alarm the girl, he yet managed to observe every movement of the dimly outlined figure which advanced with them, timing every motion to theirs. Long before they crossed the street to the Trocadero he was convinced there was no mistake—the fellow, whoever he might be, was trailing them. Keith smiled grimly to himself, resolving that, as soon as he had left the lady, he would teach the spy a lesson not soon to be forgotten.

They barely entered the outer circle of the Trocadero lights, noting a group of men thronging about the doors, and hearing the sound of the band within, and then turned swiftly down the narrow dark alleyway leading toward the stage entrance. Keith, having been there before, advanced confidently, but Hope, her heart beating wildly, clung to his arm, scarcely venturing a word in reply to his whispered assurances. Fortunately they encountered no one, and Keith, feeling cautiously in the dark, easily succeeded in locating the opening to the vestibule. Listening intently he became convinced that no one occupied the little shed. He had intended to remain with the girl until the time came for her to emerge, but the remembrance of that figure dogging them all the way from the hotel now caused a change of plan. He held her hand closely clasped in his.

"Now, Hope, I am going to leave you," he whispered, "and your own wit will have to carry you through. I know you will play your part all right, and it will be mine to wait for Christie, and give her some explanation of why Hawley failed to meet her as he promised. It will never do for her to suspect, until you have time to learn all possible. You are not afraid?"

"Yes, I am," clinging to him, "but—but I am going through it just the same."

"The truest kind of courage, my girl. Now slip inside, but hold the door ajar. Hawley will certainly be here within ten minutes, and you must join him at once, or else the other might suspect. You can judge as to its being him even in the darkness. Good-bye."

The longing to clasp her in his arms to speak the language of his heart was almost overwhelming; yet the memory of that figure slinking along behind them, and the brief time before Hawley's probable appearance, for he would leave the theatre at the conclusion of Miss Maclaire's act, restrained all demonstration. This was a moment for action, not for words of love; no daring should hazard the success of the undertaking. He heard the street door close as the girl slipped through the concealment of the vestibule, and then he glided away through the darkness with the stealthy silence of an Indian. There was no one in the alleyway, which was narrow and easily explored, but the glow from the front windows plainly revealed the shadow of a man near the entrance, and Keith slipped up toward him, hugging the side of the building for concealment, prepared to resort to harsh measures. As he reached out, gripping the astonished loiterer by the collar, the two stared at one another in surprise, and the gripping hand as instantly released its hold.

"You, Fairbain! What the devil does this mean? What are you spying on us for?"

Clearly taken aback, yet not greatly disturbed, his eyes showing pugnacious and jaw set, the Doctor rubbed his throat where Keith's knuckles had left a red welt.

"D—— you, I think I'm the one to ask for an explanation," he growled. "She said she was not going with you, and now you are around here together at this hour. I had a right to know whether I was being played with like that."

"But, man, that was not Miss Maclaire I was with; it was Hope Waite. Come back here under the tent flap while I explain."

Fearful of the coming of Hawley he fairly dragged the portly figure of the bewildered Doctor with him, striving, by quickly spoken words, to make him comprehend the situation. Knowing previously something of the issues involved, it was not difficult to make Fairbain grasp the meaning of this present movement, yet his sympathies were at once enlisted upon the side of Miss Christie. He'd be d——d if he he would have any part in such a scheme—if she had a right to the money he'd help her get it—it was a cowardly trick, and he'd fight if necessary, to keep her from becoming a victim. His voice rose, his arms brandishing violently, his sentences snapping like rifle shots. Keith angered, and fearful of a discovery which would leave Hope exposed, realized the futility of discussion and turned to physical force. Grasping the gesticulating man with both hands he flung him backward and dragged him into the empty tent, kneeling on him as he throttled him to the earth.

"Now, Doctor, you listen to me," he said sternly. "I'm through arguing. I hate to treat you like this, for you are my friend, but I'll not stand for interference here. Do you get that, you old fool? Lie still until I get through! I respect your feelings toward Miss Maclaire. She is a good girl, and I hope to heaven you get her if you want her. But you never will if you permit this affair to go on. Yes, I know what I am talking about. In all that Hope and I do we are serving you and Christie—our only fight is with 'Black Bart' Hawley. Stop being a bullet-headed old fool, Fairbain, and understand this thing. Lie still, I tell you, and hear me out! Hawley is a liar, a thief, and a swindler. There is a swindle in this thing somewhere, and he hopes to pull out a big sum of money from it. He is merely using Christie to pull his own chestnuts out of the fire. She is innocent; we realize that, but this fellow is going to ruin the girl unless we succeed in exposing him. He's not only involving her in his criminal conspiracy, but he's making love to her; he's teaching her to love him. That's part of his scheme, no doubt, for then she will be so much easier handled. I tell you, Fairbain, your only chance to ever win Christie Maclaire is to help us down this fellow Hawley. Yes, you can sit up; I reckon you're beginning to see clearer, ain't you"

COULD NOT SWEEP FLOOR

Was So Terribly Afflicted With Lame Back.

It is hard to do housework with a weak and aching back, and no woman can be strong and healthy unless the kidneys are well.

The weak, lame and aching back comes from sick kidneys and should be attended to immediately so as to avoid years of terrible suffering from kidney trouble. Mrs. Harvey W. Brownell, Northport, N.S., writes:—"I now take pleasure in writing you, stating the benefit I received by using Doan's Kidney Pills. About a year ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back, and was so bad at times I could not sweep my own floor. While looking through your B.B.B. Almanac I saw Doan's Kidney Pills were a great remedy, so thought I would try a box or two. After using five boxes I was completely cured, and I am very thankful to have found so speedy a cure."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. In ordering direct specify "Doan's."

Redistribution Bill Before Provincial House

Proposed New Constituency to be Formed With Biggar as Seat

The Provincial Parliament now have the new Distribution Bill framed up into working shape, and this will erect 15 new seats and make 54 seats for the whole province.

One of these new seats is allotted to our own town of Biggar, with a district extending thirty miles from east to west and from sixty to ninety miles from north to south, the deflection being caused by the North Saskatchewan River.

Starting from a point on the line between ranges 11 and 12 on the top of township 30, and proceeding straight north along this line to the North Saskatchewan river in township 40; then along the line of the river till reaching the line between ranges 17 and 18 in township 44, and proceeding south along this line to the N. E. corner of township 30 in range 13, and from there straight east to the starting point.

This gives the Biggar constituency an area of somewhere about 2,400 square miles, and includes the towns of Biggar, South Battleford, Naseby, Traynor, Harris, Zealandia, Herschel, Palo, Oban, Mead, Vance, Neola, and a lot of other smaller places inside the area mentioned above.

GENTLE REPROOF MOST SUCCESSFUL

Some Erroneous Ideas of Modern Expounders of God's Word Corrected.

Washington, D.C., May 12.—"Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou Me more than these?" (John xxi. 15-17.) The context shows that these words were addressed by the Redeemer to St. Peter on the occasion of His third manifestation to His disciples after His resurrection. This was presumably three or four weeks after the Master's resurrection from the dead. His manifestations to the women on the morning of His resurrection and His later manifestation to the two as they went to Emmaus are evidently not counted, but the manifestation the same evening in the upper room, when all the disciples except Thomas and Judas were present, is counted the first. And the manifestation a week later, Thomas being present, is counted the second.

The delay in giving this third manifestation was evidently for the purpose of testing the faith of the Apostles and of leading them to reach a conclusion respecting their future course, which Jesus wished to correct. So far as we can understand the record at least two Sundays passed without any further manifestation of Jesus to His disciples, and then, giving up hope, they decided to return to the fishing business and did so. The journey to Galilee and the resumption of business presumably took another week.

During all those thirty days the mental attitude of all the Apostles and the other disciples can be better imagined than described. They were perplexed; they had indeed had evidences of the Master's resurrection; they had had the Scriptures called to their attention which proved that this was necessary and that God had previously so arranged. They had hoped for further conferences with Jesus and that He would have told them definitely what to do.

Instead, left to themselves, the disciples were thoroughly disheartened. They had left all to follow Him, to tell the people that He was the Son of God, the long-promised Messiah, and that He would soon set up His Kingdom, which would bring blessings, primarily to Israel, to all the families of the earth in harmony with the Abrahamic Covenant. Now apparently all of these hopes were dashed, frustrated. How foolish they thought it would seem for them to try to convince the people that a man, crucified as a malefactor, as a blasphemer, was indeed the Messiah! How foolish it would seem to tell of His resurrection! They felt that they could do nothing else than abandon the ministry as a lost cause; and the resumption of the fishing business was the logical conclusion.

Their first night was a discouraging one—they caught nothing. It looked indeed as though God was punishing them for the course they had taken in becoming disciples of Jesus—that everything was going wrong. But not so; they were merely being taught needed lessons.

In the morning they beheld a stranger on the shore who beckoned and shouted to know if they had any fish for sale. They replied, No, they had made no catch. The stranger suggested casting the net on the other side of the boat. And although the suggestion seemed a foolish one, having been so unsuccessful, yet they did so, and immediately the net was filled with fishes! It did not require long for them to learn the lesson. They knew instinctively that the unknown stranger upon the shore was none other than their Master. They remembered a very similar experience at the time they were first called to leave their nets and to become fishers of men.

All interest had just centered in the fishing business, but now boats and fish and nets all lost their value in the estimation of these fishermen. Here was their risen Lord, for whose third appearance they had been waiting now nearly three weeks. Fearing that the Master would disappear, even before he could get to him, St. Peter plunged into the sea and swam ashore. To his surprise the stranger already had fish and had them cooked, and all were invited to join in the breakfast on the shore of Galilee.

The stranger must now be counting by which they had known their Lord, neither did He have the marks of the nails in His hands and feet, that they might thus identify Him. This was a different manifestation. They knew Him as did those with whom He walked to Emmaus, who recognized Him in the blessing of the bread, and not by His features or clothing or wounds. They recognized that none other than He could have performed such a miracle. They did not ask who He was; they felt a restraint; as we read, "None of them durst ask who He was," but all knew that He was the Lord.

The stranger addressed St. Peter particularly saying, "Lovest thou Me more than these"—these boats and nets, etc., pertaining to the fishing business? St. Peter answered, "Lord, Thou knowest that I affectionately love Thee." He used a word expressing fondness of love. Jesus replied, "Feed My lambs."

Then came the question a second time, "Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou Me?" A great pressure was felt by St. Peter. Why did the Master so particularly question his love? Why should He put this question more to him than to the others? Was it because he had been the first of the disciples to suggest the resumption of the fishing business? Was he to blame for this? But he answered, "Lord, Thou knowest that I affectionately love Thee." Jesus this time replied, "Tend My sheep." For the third time Jesus said to St. Peter, "Simon, son of Jonas, dost thou affectionately love Me?" Here Jesus used the same word that St. Peter had used, as though He questioned the affection and depth of St. Peter's love. Ah! the third time must have sent the memory of St. Peter back to the scene in Pilate's Judgment Hall, when he denied his Master the third time, even with cursing. And now Jesus for the third time had asked him respecting his love and whether it was really a love of affection! St. Peter's choking reply was, "Lord, Thou knowest all things! Thou knowest that I affectionately love Thee!" The Lord's reply was, "Feed My sheep."

In harmony with these words of the Master to St. Peter the chief work of His followers has been to minister to the needs of the spirit-begotten sheep. It is in full harmony with this that St. Paul, addressing the Elders of Ephesus, counseled that they "feed the flock of God, which He had purchased with the blood of His own Son." There is a point here that perhaps is too frequently overlooked. If all of the Lord's followers could realize that the message to St. Peter is the same as comes to all of us, perhaps it would make a change in most of our preaching.

Have not Christians in general overlooked this important lesson, namely, that the chief work of the ministers and under-shepherds of the Lord's flock during this Age is to "feed the flock?" Is it not true that comparatively little feeding is being done? On the contrary, the thought usually received by new converts is, Now you are saved; go, evangelize, and bring others to Christ—especially bring money, for with plenty of it we can convert the world. Work for Jesus by soliciting funds for church expenses, extension, etc., etc.

If the inquirer has thoughts or feelings is it not too often the case that his instructors know not how to answer them, but merely say, "Stop thinking, and go to work." Alas, that this is so true! The "lambs" should be fed until they become "sheep." The sheep should be tended, cared for, guided, instructed, and the sheep should also be fed with the stronger meat than that which the lambs could appropriate. St. Paul gives this thought when on one occasion he urges his hearers to desire "the sincere milk of the Word that they may grow thereby."

But few seem to copy the great St. Paul in respect to their methods. Few seem to realize and apply to themselves the Master's words to St. Peter, "Feed My lambs," and "My sheep." As a consequence, the Church of Christ is in a languishing condition. Many, sincere at heart, know not what they believe. Many would find it impossible to follow St. Peter's admonition, "Be ready to give a reason for the hope that is within you, with meekness and reverence."—1 Peter iii. 15.

There are two reasons which have led up to the neglect of "the doctrines of Christ"—the teachings of the Bible. These two reasons fully explain why so many are telling new believers, Never mind the doctrines of Christ, but go out and convert somebody.

The first of these reasons is the erroneous thought which gained ascendency during the Dark Ages, namely, that from Pentecost until the second coming of Jesus is the time allotted by the Heavenly Father for the world's conversion, and that this is the commission which He gives to His people, and if the world be not converted the responsibility for their eternal torture will fall upon His people.

All of this is a mistake. Not a word of Scripture tells that the Church was commissioned to convert the world before the second coming of the Lord. Quite to the contrary, the Scriptures show that at the Lord's second coming the world will be unconverted. The Apocalypse particularly tells us that when the Lord at His second coming shall establish His Kingdom, the nations will be angry and Divine wrath will come upon them, thereby introducing the great "time of trouble" with which this Age is to end, according to the prophetic Word.

These testimonies do not signify that holiness will perish, nor that all of the Lord's people will be unfaithful, but they do signify that the world in general will not be the Lord's people, they will still be enemies of principles, unconverted. How are we to understand that the Church has nothing whatever to do with the world. Quite to the contrary; while she has not been given the mission of converting the world in the present Age—while that work remains for her to do in the coming Age in connection with the Lord and His Kingdom—nevertheless she was commissioned to do a work of witnessing in the present Age.

The Church's witness was to be the telling of the Message of God's grace to those having an ear to hear, although they be but few. Secondarily, she was to witness to the world by her faithfulness to the principles of righteousness, and thus to show forth the praises of Him who called her "out of darkness into His marvelous light." But this witnessing was not in order to the converting of the world, but in order to gather out of the world the number necessary to complete the Divinely foreordained elect Bride of Christ.

As the first error was in respect to the world's conversion to the Lord the second error was in respect to what would happen to the world if they were not converted to the Lord When the erroneous idea gained credence that everyone who does not accept the invitation and become a member of the Bride of Christ is to be eternally tormented, can we wonder that it led many good people to a frenzy of error respecting what should be done to save their families and neighbors and the heathen millions from a supposed eternity of torture?

It was because of this supposed urgency that those coming to a belief in Jesus were exhorted not to stop to feed, and to grow strong in the Lord and to study His Word, but to be moved by a frenzy of zeal to bring others to the Lord. This frenzy in turn led to most unreasonable teachings and practices which we are only now gradually getting rid of as we realize that a great mistake was made.

How strange that we did not stop to think of the absurdity of our position and how it misrepresented the Heavenly Father in a most detestable light! How strange that any should ever think that when the Heavenly Father sent out the call to those who have the hearing ear, to joint-heirship with Jesus Christ their Lord, He would consign to eternal torment any who would decline to accept the admittedly stringent rules and conditions appertaining to this "call"—the "narrow way" of the footsteps of Jesus—self-denial, etc.!

Well do the Scriptures assure us that the saints "wrestle not with flesh and blood merely," but rather "with wicked spirits in high positions" of influence. (Ephesians vi. 12.) Well does the Apostle tell us that it is the God of this Age who hath blinded the minds of those who believe not. (II. Corinthians iv. 4.) Well can we see how he put light for darkness and darkness for light during the Dark Ages.

We must not leave our text without calling to memory a most wonderfully instructive lesson concerning the proper way to reprove and rebuke our brethren when the same is surely necessary. So far as the record shows, the three inquiries which our Lord made of St. Peter respecting his love for Him were the only rebukes ever given him as an offset, or punishment for his shameful denial of the Master on the night in which He was betrayed.

Had many of us been in the Master's place we would have felt that it was necessary to make St. Peter very humbly apologise before we would have anything further to do with him. We would have been inclined to speak of his weakness, of his ingratitude, of how he knew better, etc., etc. Our sense of justice would in many instances have entirely overshadowed our sense of mercy and sympathy. But not so with the Master. He knew the loyalty of St. Peter's heart. He knew that he had already gone out and wept bitterly over the matter. He knew what a sense of shame would be upon him and how much courage it would mean for him to think at all of meeting the Master whom he had denied.

Surely it was on account of this sympathy for St. Peter and this appreciation of the tendency he would have to become entirely discouraged that led our Lord to mention St. Peter first amongst the Apostles on the morning of His resurrection, saying to Mary, to whom He first appeared, "Go and tell My disciples, and Peter"—don't let Peter think that he is an outcast. Let him know that I think of him and love him and sympathize with him and have forgiven him, because I knew he did it under stress.

And if our Lord and Master has set us such an example of benevolence and forgiveness without request, how are we learning this lesson? To what extent do we forgive others their trespasses and to what extent do we go more than half way to let them know that we harbor no resentful feelings toward them? To what extent do we send them word that we think of them kindly, generously? And when the appropriate time comes and it is proper for something to be said can we not take a lesson from the Redeemer's loving forbearance and gentleness in His merely asking the erring one if he had a proper kind of love, and when he confesses special love, then to ask if he were sure that he had the special love?

No doubt our success as the Master's servants in feeding the brethren, the flock, and helping instead of hindering them, will be in proportion as we remember and copy His style and methods. So, then, while feeding His flock, let us have continually before us the great Shepherd's example of how the flock should be dealt with.

Curious Almshouse.

The most curious almshouse in England is St. Mary's Hospital, Chichester. There eight old ladies live actually in the church, which is a fine old building dating from 1269. It was originally a monastery, but when Queen Elizabeth came to visit there she turned it into an almshouse to endure as long as almshouses exist. The old ladies have two neat little rooms each down the sides of the main church, with windows looking out on the garden. They have each a coal supply, a kitchen range, water and gas laid on, and at the end of the church in the chancel their daily services are held. Their stalls are beautifully carved, and the original seats that the monks used. The church stands in a quiet little square.

Cabot and Columbus.

The discoverer of the North American continent was John Cabot and not Christopher Columbus. Columbus never set foot on the mainland, or if he did there is no record of the fact. The land that Cabot discovered and landed upon in 1497 was probably Labrador. This was fourteen months before Columbus (in 1498) first set eyes on any portion of the mainland of the western world — the portion of South American lying at the mouth of the Orinoco.

Single orange trees have been known to produce 20,000 oranges, while a lemon tree seldom yields more than 8,000 lemons.

is at least five times stronger than ordinary remedies and its worth in any household can't be overestimated. For man or beast, Nerviline is a panacea for all pain.

"Not If It Cost Ten Dollars

A bottle, would I be without Polson's Nerviline," write J. A. Ruth, a farmer living near Trenton, Ont. "Nerviline is the best household liniment I know. We use it for stomach troubles, indigestion, headache, and Summer complaint. I know of nothing better to take in hot water to break up a cold, or to rub on for rheumatism or neuralgia." Every farmer should keep a few bottles of Nerviline handy, and have smaller doctor bills.

Nerviline is a protection and safeguard against the pains and aches of the entire family, and cures rheumatism, neuralgia, toothache, etc. 25 cents for a large bottle.

Cutting Diamonds.

Only since the introduction of high speed electric machinery into the industry has it been possible to cut a diamond across the grain.

Ambrose Channel.

For a width of 1,200 feet the Ambrose channel, New York harbor, has a depth of forty feet at mean low water for over three and one-half miles of its length, and it has the same depth for a width of 1,800 to 1,900 feet over its other three and one-half miles of length. The rest of the full width of 2,000 feet is from thirty-five to forty feet deep.

THRILLING Experiences of Two Women, Who, While Motoring Over the Rocky Mountains, Are Caught in an Electric Storm and Narrowly Escape Being Crushed by Huge Bowlders—Terrible Journey Along the Brinks of Precipices in the Middle of the Night

PERILOUS ADVENTURES TOLD BY AND OF LIVING PERSONS

NEARLY a year ago two young women set out from New York city on a typically American bold attempt to be the first to drive the same automobile from Atlantic to Pacific. It was a wild and dangerous adventure, rife with hardship and peril, and their ultimate arrival alive and unhurt is a fine tribute to American womanhood. The travellers were Miss Blanche Stuart Scott, driver of the car, who is called "Beasie" in the narrative, and who has recently acquired distinction as an aviator, and Miss Gertrude Buffington Phillips.

Miss Phillips relates some hair raising experiences racing against time along the wild trails on the brinks of Rocky Mountain precipices.

By Gertrude Buffington Phillips.

SOMEHOW when I pick up a European periodical and see advertising pictures of handsome cars filled with neat, smiling tourists, gayly climbing some hand made road, with the Jungfrau in the background, the Midi appearing around a walled-in curve or the snowy Pyrenees in the distance, a little shudder creeps down my back. I think of how different it was west of Denver.

Before my eyes come memories of the gloomy abysses on which we verged by day and night as we plunged on in our last race against time, ricocheting over trails where the rotten stone crumbled beneath our wheels and went rattling down hundreds of feet after we passed. I believe even now we could either of us place two chairs in a room the exact distance from each other that would admit the automobile and no more, we grew so used to measuring the perilous trails; on one side a collision with a rocky wall and over and down; on the other side nothing but air, and over and down.

When we set out from New York for San Francisco we had been reminded abundantly that if the desert didn't get us the mountains would, but we thought of them only in the indefinite way a healthy man in the prime of life thinks of old age and senility, and as far as both Betty and I were concerned we felt no realization of what lay before us till we went bowling on to Denver.

On the western skyline we saw the gray, looming, uneven mass of the mighty Rockies, a terrific barrier, a forbidding bulk, with snowy winter on the peaks and all about us a summer baked plain, and realized that we must drive our car up and over that gigantic wall of rock in a struggle of miles, lasting for days; do it or fail.

We had wanted to see all the most interesting places on this vacation jaunt of ours and so many of the early summer days had been used up in side trips that totalled over a thousand miles additional to the usual coast to coast route mileage, and we knew that from Denver we must make all speed so as not to be caught in the midsummer heat of the deserts in Utah and Nevada.

It was Fourth of July in the mile high city when we set out for the first dash. The car carefully inspected as to every bolt, lever, rod and journal, leaped away from the cheering crowds, and the bands, the crackling fireworks and the floating flags, and swiftly the houses fled by. The open country stretched its arms to us and back to Cheyenne we raced, never heeding the clustering prairie dog villages nor scanning the level stretches for sign of human habitation; we had no time for lonesomeness or curiosity, for Laramie was our destination and we must go back to Cheyenne for a permit from the Division Superintendent to cross the Union Pacific Railroad ties over the Platte River at Fort Steele.

There had been a storm warning flying at the government station and we had strapped our ponchos and blankets convenient to hand, for it was late in the afternoon when we had secured our pass and we had no time to lose.

Leaving Cheyenne our road became an upward trail as we breasted the Rockies' first line of defence, the Laramie Mountains. The mistiness of the day increased, threats of storm grew in the air and the sun became a pale copper disk, showing now and then through a deepening fog, till at last even these glimpses failed us and a gray, dead blanket of clouded sky cupped us around. On up in the towering lonely hills we climbed amid mighty desolate rocks, and now and then we could look through a rift in the cloud bold down into a valley equally still and dreary, with a few small settlements studded here and there in the immensity. Lifting our eyes when upper gaps would permit we beheld to the northwest the yet greater mountain piles—cold, snow crowned—looming ghostlike among the stormy clouds, and while an occasional sun shaft dashed brief copper flashes on the rocks at hand the distant ones stood wholly sombre and unlighted.

A freight train, climbing slowly and humanly along a painful and toiling course, with long blasts of its whistle sending sobbing echoes through the desolate hills, cut unexpectedly across our path. We looked on with dismay, because it was a train made up of about forty or fifty cars, and on that terrific grade over the divide we knew that it would take the greater part of an hour in passing. The engine driver knew, too, I guess, for he slowed down to give us the right of way and we passed with a flashing wave of hands and a little thrill of kindred feeling. We were all going in the darkness and the storm.

Up Sherman Pass.

On up through the steep, narrow Sherman Pass we toiled, and when almost at the top we were startled at seeing a great bronze pyramid, a monument topping the very apex of the continent. We wondered who had built it there, for the trail was dimly defined and the railroad had long been lost to view. We pictured all sorts of weird things and told our weird pictures to each other; we were riding under the wings of the storm and it was eerie; nobody had told us of this relic of p

Our Ears Were Full of the Awful Jarring Crash, but We Were a Few, Just a Few, Feet Away from the Reaper's Cycle That Time

But at the top of the pass Nature had in waiting for us a display of her own powers—terrors, beauty and majesty—and we had a Fourth of July celebration such as no small boy, even in his wildest rocket streaked and cracker starred dreams, could conceive. First came a quick assault of cold wind, like the blow of an ice mailed fist in our face. Recovering from this unexpected, staggering attack, we looked aloft to see the clouds marching like a manoeuvring army into line of battle, all in uniforms of black, piped at the edges with the dead gold of the death of day.

A great rebellion had risen as soon as the sun king was no more. Far to the rear a broad flash showed an instant, as if some general had commanded that the advance be signalled, and the distance muffled drums of the heavens trobbed out the first note of the supermontane war.

Roaring, dazzling, blinding, in our very faces came the first grand discharge. The lightning's fiery bolts tore through shredded clouds, smote the earth bound and helpless crags and leaped in matchless fury from cliff to bowlder and on to sheltng slope. Right and left, all about for miles, the blows fell fast and furious, and in the quick intermissions came the awful menacing voice of a thousand thunders, seeming to shake the earth ceaselessly, and reverberating among the butting precipices till the hills whimpered fearsomely. Like charging cavalry on the flanks came the howling wind, delivering every form of horrible noise, from the long groan of the dying, where it poured through narrow gorges, to the shrill shriek of the tortured as it ripped the edge of some sharp point of rocks. Under all the sounds was the steady clicking rustle of the pebbles, shale and loosened rocks bounding ahead, to find refuge in the groves of some slope and then creep chatteringly down to lower levels and repose.

Scarcely could we keep our seats in the car. The blast clutched at us as if it would hurl us out and down the mountainside. The machine trembled, struggled ahead, swerved and hesitated, but we held it to its duty with a fierce will. Shelter there was none. We hall, showing white and silvery in the rapid illuminations of the lightning, but the large stones struck and popped like shots on the rocks and the car, and it seemed that most of them were purposely aimed at our faces. They hurt like the stinging whiplash, but there was nothing to do but go ahead—a cruel and merciless progress. The greater danger was just ahead. One single terrific bolt of lightning bored into the mountain some two hundred feet above us. The shock nearly sent us over the side into the chasm, but we righted in time to hear a mightier, heavier roar up the hill, and by that instant's flash beheld death rushing down upon us. The shaft had loosened, some great bowlders on the heights and they were rolling, bounding, plunging down into the spot where we should be in two seconds.

With a little, queer, low cry Betty threw on every atom of power, every foot of speed, and the car leaped ahead like a hunted thing into the blackness—perhaps into a safe roadway, perhaps over the brink, perhaps into deadly collision with the rocks. Our ears were full of the awful jarring crash, but we were a few, just a few, feet away from the Reaper's cycle that time, and, turning to look, I saw the great mass tumble into the road, then bound and go on, its noise yielding in the distance to the competition of the now lessening storm. Suddenly around the bend we saw in the clearing air, far, far below—far, far away down that tortuous road—many points of light, the lights of a town.

It was long after midnight when we rolled into Laramie, but we were in a stupor when the car came to a halt before the little old hostelry, and had to be helped out.

Into a New World.

This was the first dip into the arduous and perilous, the first stage away from the pleasant, populous country which we had enjoyed too much. Now in rapid succession came thrilling experiences, hard drives, lost roads, mishaps and, always, the desolate hills or empty prairies encircling within the mountains escapelessly. It was a new world, one of which we had not even read. Prowling around the foothills were packs of sly, cringing coyotes or bolder, fierce fanged gray wolves, with now and then a mountain lion or often an antelope to lift its head at the throb of our motor and take one hasty, startled look before bounding away to the friendly cover of the snow capped range. There were days when almost at any time we might look ahead and see wild cats darting away—gray living streaks in the sunshine.

Quickly came our next adventure—board, set deep in the sand, supported by a great cairn of rocks. On its top is a rudely drawn pointing hand and the legend, "28 Miles to Tip Hunter's Saloon, Medicine Bow."

We did not know that Hidgy Mosset had been that way before and that Hidgy Mosset was peculiar. We followed the hand—the saloon keeper's bid for custom in the wilderness—a rather ironical corollary in the land of lost lives and ambitions, and, as if in keeping with Holy Writ, the other road seemed narrow and rough and the way to Tip's broad and smooth.

Soon a sorry change came. In a little while that "road" became nothing more than mere direction signified over ruts, gulches, rocks and sage brush. It would have been nearly as easy to navigate a car over the roofs of a New York block as along that Wyoming "highway." We had gone only a few miles when we dropped into a prairie dog hole and broke a spring. It took quite a long while to block it up successfully with an axe handle and straps, and while Betty was at work on this I discovered that we had lost our acetylene tank, and we fought our way back for two long miles to find that.

We hadn't gone back even as far as the first accident when the other front spring snapped, and that meant the rest of the broken handle, and that was all we had, because we couldn't break up our other axe. Finally we found a piece of sunbaked earth nearly as hard as a rock, but quite light. We chopped this down to the right size and, strapping it in and reinforcing our gas tank, went on, driving with all the speed we dared, while the way was at least as good as a couple of brush filled ruts, because the day was rapidly getting away from us.

Over alkali pits and dried river beds, through sand and rocks and sluggish streams, we kept to the faintly marked breaks in the sage brush, which showed that some time, once, a wagon may have passed that way. Then suddenly the tracks stopped on the brink of a deep, narrow gulch. We couldn't ford there, and it was back track or try cross country, and such country! So we followed the wall of the gorge, jolting, sliding, careening; we struck a sandy hole, and, trying to skirt the edge on a thin shelf of rock, it broke under the weight of the car and down we went—completely stalled in the wilds of the Rockies.

We had to make a try, however, so we got out the digging tools, the broad fifty foot strips of canvas and worked like Trojans, finally hauling the car to solid ground just about the time the sun was getting down toward the west. The little river turned northward at this point, and, although the wall was a sheer shelving. We "sounded" and made a canvas track to the water's edge over the quicksands at the bottom of the bank, shovelled sand into the angle below the drop and dug a couple of wheel ruts up the opposite bank.

Crossing the Stream.

We were well pleased with our work and although we were very tired and wanted to rest there, we felt that by "rushing it" we would soon be out on the other side and would surely find a westward road. As a further precaution I waded out into the deepest part of the stream, ready to push if the engine should begin to lay down, and Betty, taking a quick survey of the hand made course, opened her up and plunged through on high.

In two minutes the car was purring contentedly on the sun baked west bank and we were hauling in the strips of canvas. Then we looked for the trail.

The sun had set, and putting the soaked and crippled car into the best shape possible, we lighted up and struck straight away from the river bank over rocks, hummocks, pits, brush, in fact, whatever lay before the wheels. It was the most terrible ride ever taken, I believe; we surely were in sore straits, no food, almost no gasolene, and at last, when we had almost given up all hope of getting away from that awful loneliness, we shot across a good hard sand road.

Swinging back to it we went straight ahead at full speed—where we did not care, because it must lead to some place where there were food and warmth and shelter—and ere long a light—a single light—began to glow. Then we came to a sleeping town, and, coming nearer to the solitary gleam, saw over the door "Tip Hunter's Saloon." We had reached Medicine Bow after midnight. Instead of fifty-eight miles we had wandered aside a hundred and twenty-nine.

Too tired to talk coherently, we sat down on the steps and munched "bar" cheese and crackers, while Tip himself went cheerfully "out to John and Myra Kelly's to see if I kin dig up a bed fer ye."

Medicine Bow had awakened at midnight—that in itself was an event to be talked of for years thereafter—and from all directions men came hurrying out to see "what the row was." We related our day's experience briefly, and when Betty told about the misleading sign there was a shaking of heads among the loungers, and one of them said:—

"I tell ye, Dave, I knowed Hidgy Mosset war up thar day or so ago agin. We got to look after him. He's too strong on principle by a durn sight. 'Tase, ladies, this feller Mosset's the only prohibish' any on us ever seen."

Tip came back to rescue us from the pelting of questions, and always there will linger in my mind, as something most gracious after that awful day and night, the cheery kitchen, the two twinkling oil lamps, the crackling fire in the range, the supper of ham and eggs and chocolate cake, and a big, sleepy mastiff making overtures for friendship—then a real bed on which to stretch out. Our next day's run took us through Carbon and Hanna.

Lost again the next day, we were set right by two Utah tramps while negotiating the almost perpendicular road to Pathfinder. On by Saratoga, Grand Encampment, Rawlins, Bitter Creek, the Red Desert and Point of Rocks we hurried, day by day, to the fertile valley of the Green River. Thence by the deep cut of Pilot Butte to lovely Bryan, Granger, Opal, and so we came with varied small adventures to Bear River Divide. Here we were held up by a "Hunky" miner driving a high Melvin wagon and flourishing a regular coast artillery gun. But we found it was only our tires he was after, because some motorist had frightened his horses a mouth or two before.

Hotel Lounger's Joke.

We reached Cumberland late in the afternoon and were told that it was only a thirty-five mile run to Evanston, where we had planned to spend the night. It was still very light at six o'clock and local good roads authorities said there was an easy five mile hill, then it was all down grade into Evanston. "Fine roads," they told us. The air was cool and bracing and a glorious sunset diffused a radiant pink-gold glow over all our world. We really believed what the hotel loungers told us. So we settled back with a little sigh of content; we were so tired and it would be so good to have a pleasant evening drive, with no rough trails and dangers to encounter.

Soon the smiles faded from our faces. We found we were facing the hardest kind of a climb in a deep, sandy road, nearly four thousand feet up to the summit of Medicine Butte, a strange mountain of stones and sand, with appalling precipices, huge folds and gulches and long, sloping flues where loosened rocks roll down, bounding and spinning until the eye can no longer follow them. Up and up we toiled, foot by foot, and somehow we got to the top. The vast unknown space ahead illuminated by the great acetylene lamps, we began the twelves of the descent. There was something fear inspiring about travelling the brinks of precipices in the middle of the night many miles from any human habitation, when the lights turned every sage brush into a toppling boulder or a crouching animal, when every deep shadow might have been a hole down which we would plunge to be crushed, and through the night came fearsome growls and howls of the hugh feline prowlers.

We were compelled to combine speed and care and have never deemed it our fault that when we had the seeming choice of two ways and took the one that looked the best we plunged into the enclosed end of an old road. On one side towered the mountain against the night sky, on the other was the blackness of the depths, and suddenly we felt the very earth beneath us slipping, slipping, at first slowly and then rapidly with a curious crumbling sound. There was only time to clutch for support and prepare to leap when the car should go over, but it went down, down, down, more and more rapidly, the locked wheels slipping helplessly in the sand. We were being carried down the mountain side, and it looked as if the long dreaded had at last happened.

Slowly the car became stationary, still right side up, and we held our breath while the mighty rocks crunched by us in the darkness; then after a while all was still.

"Well?" gasped Betty.

"Well?" I echoed.

We climbed out, got the lantern and the tail light and surveyed the face of the bluff. Our one chance was to zigzag slowly up at the imminent peril of starting another slide, but I let Betty do the worrying that time, because I knew full well that she could wiggle a car out of any sort of a hole a motor car can be pushed or hauled out of, so I went up to the top and

Woman's World

Mrs. Agnes L. Riddle, "the Woman Who Does Things"

MRS. AGNES L. RIDDLE.

Mrs. Agnes L. Riddle of Denver has the honor of being the first woman elected to the state legislature from the rural districts of Colorado. Indeed, her constituents regard her as a modern Joan of Arc leading them to victory in their fight for justice and recognition due the farmers of the state.

Mrs. Riddle is the wife of a dairy farmer, and that she is a practical helpmeet is evidenced by the fact that she rises at 5 o'clock in the morning to prepare breakfast for the men on her big dairy farm near Denver, who start at 4 to deliver milk in the city. At 7 she has planned her farm work for the day, and at 8 her horse is harnessed to a light buggy and she is on her way to Denver to attend to the legislative duties of the day when that august body is in session.

Her duties there keep her at the capitol until 5 o'clock, and 6, her dinner hour, usually finds her at home again. Her evenings are devoted to the affairs of the farm. Mrs. Riddle has been for a number of years secretary of the Colorado State Grange association and during that time has done much to ameliorate the farmers' condition. In the twenty-five years since Mrs. Riddle has been mistress of the Glen Riddle dairy farm she has improved the entire farm system of the west by her efforts in the legislature and her earnest work in the grange.

It is easy to guess why this untiring worker in civic affairs is known in her native state of Colorado as "the woman who does things."

Signs of Spring.

Mothers mending pockets,
Sisters trying to sew,
Lest the "taws" and "glassies"
Through the corners go;
Swarming all the sidewalks,
Big round "bumbler" deep,
Where the rolling marbles
Swift to cover creep.

Little hived up dollies
Out to take the air;
Merry hoops a-rolling,
Zigzag, here and there;
Children saying "Pepper"
Fast as rope can swing—
By these signs of springtime
You may know 'tis spring.

BEWARE Young Man

Its the Little Dandruff Germs That Are Causing Your Hair to Thin Out

Parisian Sage Stops Falling Hair

The clever young man of to-day doesn't take any chances on losing his hair. A man who is baldheaded at 30 looks like 45, and is placed at a disadvantage when seeking employment.

If you have dandruff it means down near the roots of your hair an army of dandruff germs are attacking the hair root and destroying its vitality.

Then hair falls out; grows thin and baldness results. Young man; put your faith in PARISIAN SAGE, it will stop falling hair, kill dandruff germs, abolish dandruff and itching scalp, or money back.

PARISIAN SAGE is only 50 cents a bottle at Wm. Madill's and dealers everywhere.

Beirut.

Beirut is wrongly pronounced by seven people out of ten. The old fashioned spelling, "Beyreet," gives the exact sound of the name. It is the port of Damascus.

The Diving Bell.

The oldest intelligence respecting the use of the diving bell in Europe is the relation of an exhibit at Toledo before the Emperor Charles V. in the middle of the sixteenth century, when two Greeks, in the presence of several thousand persons, let themselves down in the water in a large inverted kettle with a burning light and came up again without getting wet.

Cering Apples.

When apples have to be cored, best served whole, it is advisable to core before peeling them, as they are then less liable to break.

Algiers.

The commerce of Algiers is enormous. Wines go to France and thence to New York with French labels. The oil, meat, wool, sugar, potatoes, fruit, dates that crowd the quays, the huge railway yards, the Chicago harvesters, the warehouses and factories speak of a vast industry. French science, thrift and patience have made the desert blossom.

Antiquity of Sugar.

The first mention of sugar seems to have been made by Pliny more than 1,800 years ago, who traces it to Arabia and gives the preference to Indian sugar, which he speaks of as "honey found in canes."

For the Children

Monkey Listening For a Noise in the Package.

In some of their actions monkeys seem to be guided by something higher than instinct. Darwin describes a trick played on a monkey to show its intelligence. Lumps of sugar wrapped in paper were first given to him. Then for sugar a live wasp was substituted, but after meeting with an unpleasant experience from the wasp the monkey put the next package to his ear to learn if it might be safely opened. This action showed that the monkey had memory and considerable wisdom and had discovered that a wasp busses when wrapped in paper.—St. Nicholas.

Signs of the Zodiac.

The zodiac is an imaginary band or belt extending around the circuit of the heavens, having as its middle line the apparent path of the sun. The band extends for a distance of nine celestial degrees on each side of the middle line and is therefore eighteen degrees in width. The name zodiac was given to this celestial belt by the ancients. It comes from the Greek word "zo-on," which means "animal," and was applied to the belt because the twelve constellations that form it are named after animals, with five exceptions, or with only one exception if we consider man as an animal, as, of course, he is.

The twelve constellations are Aries, the Ram; Taurus, the Bull; Gemini, the Twins; Cancer, the Crab; Leo, the Lion; Virgo, the Virgin; Libra, the Balance; Scorpio, the Scorpion; Sagittarius, the Archer; Capricornus, the Goat; Aquarius, the Water Bearer, and Pisces, the Fishes. The sun appears to pass through these twelve constellations, one after another, during twelve months, and astronomers have divided the zodiac, therefore, into twelve equal parts of thirty degrees each, the entire circuit of the heavens being, as you know, 360 degrees. The division into twelve equal parts is more for convenience than anything else, for the constellations vary in size, and these parts are called the "signs of the zodiac." The sun enters Aries at the vernal equinox March 20 and passes into the other signs in regular order from month to month, coming around to Aries again the next March.

Notes About Women.

Miss Grace Sherwood of Ashtabula, the only woman member of a chamber of commerce in Ohio, is an officer in the woman suffrage party of her city.

The Tennessee Equal Suffrage association in convention at Nashville recently elected Sarah Barnwell Elliott as state president. Miss Elliott is one of the most prominent women in Tennessee and a writer and lecturer of national reputation.

The nine-year-old daughter of the governor of Tennessee is said to be a militant suffragette, while neither of her parents claims to be in favor of equal suffrage; a twelve-year-old schoolgirl in Kansas is reported as addressing large school meetings in behalf of votes for women, a ten-year-old girl in Los Angeles did good work for the cause during the California campaign, and a little twelve-year-old actress in New York holds suffrage meetings between acts at the theater.

A large deputation from the Council of Women of Toronto, Canada, recently waited upon the legislation and reception committee of the city council to urge that municipal voting rights be given to women possessing the same property qualifications as those required by male voters.

Votes for women are provided in a constitutional amendment introduced in the house of representatives at Washington a few days ago by Congressman Berger of Wisconsin. The resolution adds to the fifteenth amendment a clause that the right to vote shall not be denied on account of sex.

She Didn't Get It.

"There is a certain book in the library that I want," said Mrs. Sillyone to the librarian of 40,000 volumes. "I can't remember the title or the name of the author, but it is a book of probably 300 or 400 pages, and it is bound in dark green and the title is in gold letters on it.

"It is a story of a nobleman who discovers, after he has married a lady of wealth and title, that he is a changeling and that a certain blacksmith in the town is the real nobleman. A friend of mine has read it, and she is very anxious to have me read it.

"As I say, I can't remember the title of the book or the name of the author, but it is a book of about average size, and I wish that you would get it for me as quick as you can, for my husband is waiting for me in our car out in front of the library, and it always irritates him to be kept waiting. I'd like the book right away, please."—Judge.

Sometimes companions tell me jokes
That I have heard.
Sometimes the woes of other folks
Seem quite absurd.
A chap can't always break away,
And people bore me every day.

Perhaps my jokes are told to some
Who think them trite.
Perhaps my tales of woe become
Annoying quite.
I never thought of it before,
But maybe sometimes I'm a bore.

The Big Loser.

"How is your son?"

"Don't mention him. I've cast him off."

"Good gracious, what has he done?"

"No; chicken farm."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Withered Flirtation.

"Oh, whither away, my little maid?
Oh, whither away?" quoth I.
She gave me a glance all coafraid,
And thus did she make reply:
"Oh, wither away yourself!" said she,
I'd never be seen wither blue of thee!"
And she whithered the while
With a withering smile
That totally withered me.

YOUR FREE DICTIONARY Is Waiting for you.

Our great success in securing the famous Funk & Wagnalls Comprehensive Standard Dictionary and Atlas as a premium gift to our subscribers was the most favourable arrangement made by any newspaper in recent years. We could arrange for only a limited edition of this great work, and the dictionaries are being eagerly snapt up by our readers.

THIS OPPORTUNITY WILL NEVER COME TO YOU AGAIN. The great work is absolutely FREE with the exception of a small expense charge for handling, packing, shipping, etc. Although this is a special edition made exclusively for us, the regular price of the same book is $4, and it is the real value—not a fictitious one.

WARNING TO THE PUBLIC—Many other publishers of obscure dictionaries use the word "Standard." There is but one Genuine Standard Dictionary. It required many years of labour, the services of 257 world-renowned experts, and over One Million Dollars to produce this wonderful work. The Funk & Wagnalls Company originated the word "Standard" as it is applied to Dictionaries, and it is a part of their trade mark.

This Flexible Leather edition is made from the Genuine Funk & Wagnalls Standard Dictionary, which ranks world-wide as the supreme authority on words and their usage. It is the greatest single product of man's brain and the printing press.

BROTHERHOOD FORMED.

Organization of New Movement Completed in Toronto.

Toronto, May 13.—The opening session of the Canadian Brotherhood Convention on Saturday afternoon was devoted to the passing of the constitution. The following was decided upon as the aims and objects of the federation: To unite the men of Canada for Christ; to promote the development of men's christian organizations; to foster worthy ideals of citizenship and to focus public sentiment upon great moral issues.

The constitution adopted is as follows:

The Brotherhood Federation of Canada shall consist of Federated Church Brotherhoods of societies, and individual brotherhoods or societies not included in a federation in the B. F. of C.

Societies and federations which join are expected to recognize the evangelical character of the movement, as set forth in the aims and objects.

The B. F. of C. shall not interfere with the freedom of the federations or individual societies, nor with the relation between societies and the churches.

Federations of societies shall undertake to contribute annually during the affiliation to the funds of the federation, assuming the payment of an annual fee of 50 cents per member by each society. The power to veto joining is reserved to the executive, subject to the federation at its annual business meeting.

Each federation uniting with the B. F. of C. is requested to observe, if possible, the first Sunday in May as brotherhood Sunday, and each society in such federation is requested to make a special collection on that Sunday, of which a percentage shall be forwarded to the treasurer of the B. F. of C.

The Brotherhood Federation of Canada shall hold an annual conference in November, at such place and time as shall be decided by the executive. So far as possible the conference shall be held in different parts of the country.

The constitution was passed subject to the provision that it could be altered by a two-thirds vote of the delegates at any annual meeting of the federation. The first annual meeting of the Canadian Federation will be held next November.

London, May 13.—The House of Lords has taken effective measures to prevent the removal of further historical monuments to America. Aroused by the many recent purchases by Americans of interior decorations of old castles and homes, the Government, through Earl Beauchamp, First Commissioner of Works, has introduced and passed to second reading a bill entitled "Ancient Monuments Protection Bill." The bill gives the Government the right of pre-emption for the purchase from a private owner of monuments of interest, which otherwise might be sold and sent out of the country.

The bill was supported by Lord Curzon and other Opposition peers, and should have a smooth passage through both Houses.

Squabble Shocks Britain.

London, May 13.—The only view which people here are taking of the struggle between Taft and Roosevelt is that it is the worst possible introduction to a serious political campaign.

That a party with as great a history as the Republican organization should experience so deep a cleavage over a dispute which centres so largely on personal matters, is not regarded as an indication of health in the body politic. To us, it seems to indicate that grave problems of the day, which ought to be grappled with seriously by American statesmen, are being thrust aside for the sake of pleasing the public's curiosity as to how far two eminent politicians can go in abuse of each other.

SLAUGHTER HOUSE PARTIALLY DESTROYED BY A FIRE

Efforts of Neighbours of Mr. Robt. Cox Prevented a More Serious Conflagration Saturday Night.

STOCK WAS SAVED

A slaughter house belonging to Mr. Robert Cox, the George street butcher and situated in Douro township, a short distance north of the Golf and Country Club's club house, was partially destroyed by fire at 7 o'clock on Saturday evening. Mrs. Cox was alone in the house at the time and the fire would have been much more serious had it not been for the energetic efforts of Mr. Bert Downer and his family, who hurriedly came to the rescue. They were successful in rescuing fifty pigs, and by forming a bucket brigade, succeeded in holding the fire in the slaughter house. The other barns and outbuildings were all connected with the burning structure, but escaped undamaged.

The origin of the fire is a mystery to Mr. Cox, who estimates his damage at $300, partially covered by insurance. He feels very grateful to Mr. Downer and his family for the great service they rendered him in keeping down the damage as they did.

Special to The Examiner.

OWEN SOUND, ONT., May 13.—After the heaviest rainfall this year, which continued at intervals all day yesterday and a steady downpour all last night, the Georgian Bay districts ever since 8 o'clock this morning have been treated to a good old-fashioned midwinter-like snowstorm. In two hours the fields and the meadows have been covered to the depth of an inch or so, and the snow is still falling.

FOUND ON TRACK UNCONSCIOUS

On the arrival of the Lakefield train on Saturday afternoon the attention of some of the station employees was called to the fact that a man was lying unconscious on the track at the oposite side of the train. The man, who afterwards turned out to be Mr. Tom Bullard of the south end of the city, was taken to the waiting room, and after being attended to by Dr. Amys, was taken home. It was said that the injured man must have fallen either from the coach or from the steps of the coach in attempting to alight.

On inquiring of Dr. Amys this morning it was learned that Mr. Bullard's injuries are only slight.

Appeared in Toronto Police Court This Morning and Case Was Remanded for One Week

PROCEEDINGS BRIEF

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, ONT., May 13.—The city hall corridors leading to the police court were thronged this morning with people anxious to get a glimpse of Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, for the last 14 months a fugitive from justice and exile from this country, brought back here suddenly from Chicago on Sunday morning while his lawyers waited the opportunity to appear, and arraigned in the police court here this morning on charges of fraud. His former general manager, William R. Travers, is here from the penitentiary prepared to give evidence against him. Nesbitt was brought from the jail this morning by a circuitous route and was spirited into the City Hall by a private door. Those who did get a look at the famous doctor noted that his Chicago grown whiskers had disappeared in the night. He presented himself before the Toronto court audience clean shaven, smiling and priestly-looking as of yore.

TORONTO, MAY 13.—Nesbitt walked into the court room, escorted by two detectives. The magistrate read the first of three charges on the calendar against him.

H. H. Dewart, K.C., Nesbitt's counsel, asked that in view of the suddenness of the cases coming up, that they should be adjourned for a week.

Crown Attorney Corley and the magistrate consented. Dewart asked for bail, but the crown authorities had evidently made its opinion beforehand as to this. It was announced that fifteen thousand dollars bail would be required. Mr. Dewart proposed Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., former Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, a cousin of the prisoner, and Dr. Walter McKeown as sureties. These were accepted. The whole proceedings took but a few minutes and then Nesbitt walked out, his liberty assured for a week anyway. Indeed, his many friends, political and otherwise, who gathered about him outside, assured him amid their greetings, that in a few months he would be as big a power in municipal and other politics as ever.

MOULDERS ARE NOT AT WORK

Are Out To-day Following Their Presentation of Demand For a Nine Hour Day

BETW EEN 60 AND 70 OUT

The moulders of Peterborough, in connection with the shops of the Peter Hamilton Co., Ltd., the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Co., Adam Hall, Ltd., and the G. Walter Green Co., Ltd., did not return to work this morning. The moulders are asking for a nine hour working day. Between 60 and 70 employees of the various moulding shops are out.

Mr. G. Walter Green stated to the Examiner that on account of the moulders going on strike and feeling that he could not accede to their demands, he has decided to take the opportunity of making a trip west to look after some of his interests.

Unsightly Skin Diseases

Disfiguring skin diseases always seem to appear on the face and hands, so that they cause a feeling of shame, as well as pain and suffering.

Internal treatments have never proven very satisfactory in the treatment of eczema and similar skin troubles, but when Dr. Chase's Ointment is applied you can see for yourself and feel for yourself the benefits which are being obtained.

It soothes the inflamed, irritated skin so that itching ceases, and by its extraordinary healing power causes a new, smooth skin to form where the sores have been.

In every home there are many uses for Dr. Chase's Ointment, as for pimples and blackheads, barber's itch, chafing, erysipelas, chilblains and wherever there is itching skin or a sore or ulcer that refuses to heal. This ointment is pure, clean and pleasant to use and may be applied to the most delicate skin.

HAS NOT RESIGNED

Owen Sound, Ont., May 13th.—So far Hon. A. G. MacKay, M.P.P., has not resigned his seat in the Legislature but it is expected that it will be handed in at almost any time. In the meantime things are beginning to stir up along political lines in expectation of bye-election at an early date.

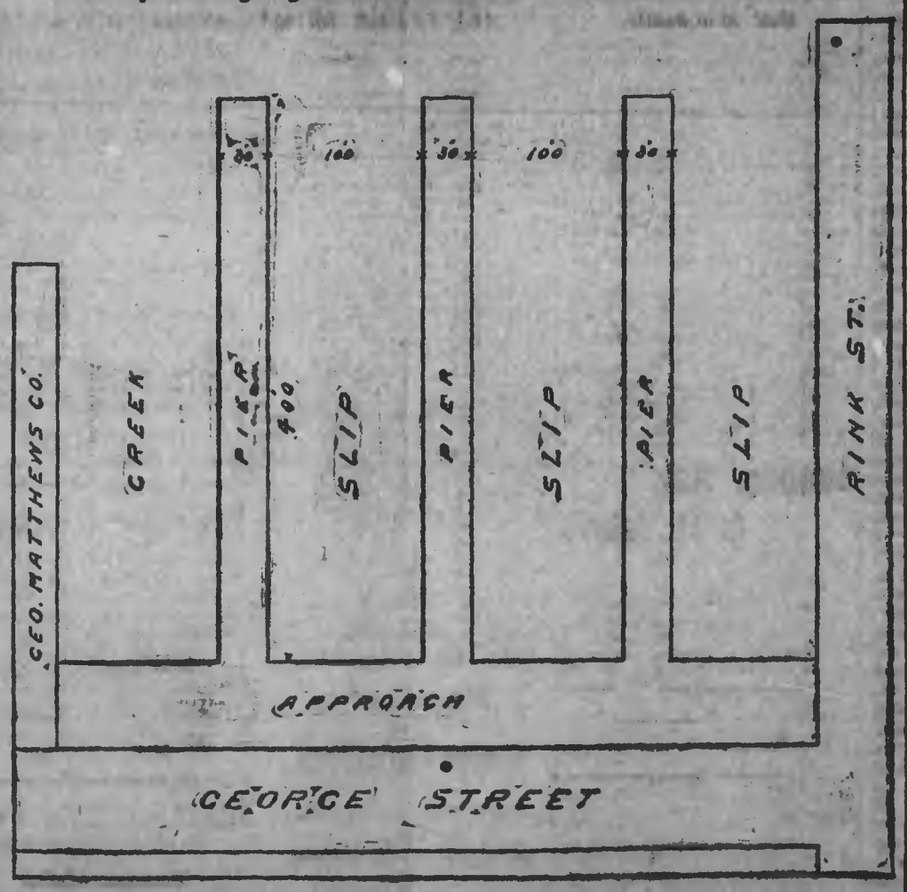
For Of All Sad Words Of Tongue Or Pen The Saddest Are These--"It Might Have Been"

The Docks Peterborough Might Have Had if It Had Not Preferred the Shadow to the Substance



Peterborough's water front is an important asset. From the Hunter street bridge, southward, it was secured to the city by a former representation; and it is due to a former member that the city had provided four hundred feet of water frontage on Little Lake, on George street, north of Rink street, for the purpose of the erection of a system of docks, suitable to the present and future navigation needs of the city. The docks that were to be built were according to the sketch plan printed above.

From this it will be seen that the plans provided for an approach—on the level of George street—400 feet long, by about 60 feet in width. From this approach three piers, 20 feet in width, were to extend eastward at right angles, 400 feet, into deep water. These provided four slips, including the creek. These slips were to be dredged deep enough to float any steamer on the canal, and right up to the approach. This would give 2,600 lineal feet of available wharfage, not counting the landward ends of the four slips, each 100 feet in length. There was to be provided accommodation for 21 steamers at once. Three 100-foot steamers could berth on each side of the three piers, including the Rink street wharf front. And the wharf of the Matthews Company, which would have been built at the same time, would furnish accommodation for at least two steamers. This is what we might have had, and would have had, if the late representative and late government had been permitted to carry out their plans. The wharves would have been substantially built with foundations for the piers resting on solid footing, provided by piling, if necessary.

What we now have, for what we might have had, is a big landing, (or what the spring freshets have left), four or five feet below the level of George street, with some 200 feet—as aginst 2800 feet—of wharf frontage, not counting the extension eastward at the southern end, which is to be devoted to the use of canoes.

The people of Peterborough exchanged this pitiful make-shift substitute for dockage for the large, sufficient substantial system of wharves which would have now been well under way, and built in a way that would not necessitate repairs before they were finished. The people seemed to prefer a misty assurance that they would know whether they were married or not—which, by the way, they haven't got any more than they have got a landing that will stand alone. They exchanged the substance for the shadow.

ELLIOT'S STORE IMPROVEMENTS

Elliot's store has been remodelled and almost entirely re-arranged. The old windows have been taken out and replaced with the modern windows, ith prismatic glass, thus making the interior of the store almost as light as the street. The inside of the windows have been greatly enlarged; new double-acting glass doors have replaced the old doors, one of the stairways at the back has been taken down and the space used for a new wool section. Overlooking this section is a large window and electric light, thus making it very easy to match shades.

Additional shelving has been put on the main floor at the south side.

On the second floor, owing to the north stairway having been taken down, Miss Noble's millinery work room has been doubled in size, giving plenty of scope for her increasing business.

The large room on the same flat as the millinery parlours has been made into a white-wear and corset room. At the rear of this room is the ladies' lavatory and dressing rooms. These rooms have all been repapered and painted.

On the third floor, which extends over the whole floor, great changes have been made. Here there is a great number of wax figures, so life-like that you would think they were alive. They certainly show the dresses very satisfactorily, if one may judge from the remarks the animated crowd of ladies were making regarding them.

This room has also been repapered and painted and rearranged for the convenience of customers.

FELL IN A FAINT

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition. Many spells would come over me and I would fall to the floor. I could not sleep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can work and do my housework. Four boxes have cured me when others had failed."

SPECIAL SERVICES AT THE TEMPLE

Brigadier John Bond, editor of the War Cry, Toronto, assisted by Lieut. Gray of the same publication, conducted special services at the Salvation Army Temple yesterday. The services were held in connection with the self denial campaign week.

Brigadier Bond gave an interesting lecture entitled "Old London's Bodiless Ten Thousand," giving an insight into the condition and resourcefulness of the unfortunate homeless of London.

In the evening Lieut. Gray coupled with the Brigadier spoke upon "Lessons from the Titantic."

THE YELLOW DOG AND AESTHETICS.

The "yellow dog" is the type of malignant uselessness and he has done much to give to the good dog a bad name, which, according to the proverb, is equivalent to hanging him. Now, when everybody is tidying for spring, when the warm fresh earth is on open grounds, and lawns is being made smooth and tidy, and carefully seeded, the yellow dog becomes a soundly-cursed nuisance. Flower beds and vegetable beds that represent a good deal of backache, labour and money, hopes of bloom and fruit are ruthlessly scratched out of shape, wallowed in, and practically destroyed. This is done by the pervasive yellow dog; and every dog, however well bred, becomes a "yellow dog" when he is unrestrained and permitted to work ruin upon our lawns and flower plots.

A good dog is a good thing. The Indian believed he would go with him to the "happy hunting" grounds. If we take the same view it would be a happy thing to send some of our dogs to the happy hunting grounds before us. No matter how good a dog is, he becomes a bad dog when he becomes a nuisance and source of injury to tax-paying citizens — he becomes a malefactor and deserves at least as prompt treatment as a human malefactor. We prevent pigs and cows from running at large in the city. They are revenue-producing animals, and pay their way, which is far more than scores of dogs do.

But we seem to prefer in practice, the yellow dog to aesthetics. So far as the authorities go, some of the aldermen—in the past—have thought more of the vote of the owner of some yellow dog than of the right of citizens, and the beauty and integrity of our public and private places. A year or two ago the City Council made a great spurt—by the way, our city fathers are greater on spurts on the back stretch than in finishing under the wire—in the way of dealing with the dog nuisance, but it ended in nothing. Practically, a dog is considered to have more rights—at least is given more license—than a good, law-abiding, tax-paying public-spirited citizen, who tries to beautify the city and make it worth living in.

It is to be feared that our civilization is only skin deep. Scratch some of our finest feathered citizens and you find the vandal beneath. A man neatly sods or seeds his open lawn; if it is a corner lot heathenish persons at once over tramp the life out of the corner of it to save a few steps. This spring St. Peter's corporation had two or three skilled garedeners at work, tidying the grounds around the Cathedral, and building a boulevard on the south front. To protect this the workmen had to string two lines of ghastly wires. It should be no more necessary to thus restrain persons of right feeling and respect for the rights of others or even well-bred children, from injuring such a work in a public place, than it would be necessary for a man going a journey to lock up his wife to keep her from going astray.

If our citizens had learned in our schools, and in our churches, the real concretion of real religion—"do unto others, etc."—respect for the rights of others—and for those of each other—we would have a more beautiful and orderly city. If the rights of citizens were as practically recognised as the privilege of the vagrant dog, and prowling cur to do damage and undo the work of beauty-loving, public-spirited citizens, we might claim to be civilised. In the contest between the yellow dog and aesthetics the dog has the best of the bout as things go now.

Belfast is not the only place that is talking treason. We in Canada are doing worse. We are actually committing treason. Bar River, in Algoma, and Bruce mines are shipping hay to the United States, ten or fifteen tons daily.

BORDEN'S TRUE DEFINITION.

The question was recently put to The Canadian Gazette, a journal which favours tariff reform and is published in London, whether or not if Mr. Bonar Law becomes Prime Minister of the United Kingdom, Canadian wheat, flour, meats, dairy produce and other foodstuffs will continue to receive free entry into the British market. The Gazette quotes from speeches made by Mr. Law, and thus puts the case briefly as follows:

"In a sentence, then, we have to inform our Toronto correspondent that if Mr. Bonar Law has the decisive word when a Unionist Ministry comes into power, duties ranging from 5 to 10 per cent., will be put (1) on foreign wheat, with free entry for Canada; (2) on foreign flour, with probably a lesser duty on Canadian flour; (3) on foreign animals and meat, dairy products, market-garden produce, and hay and straw, with lesser duties on similar Canadian produce."

In other words if Mr. Law can dictate the Empire's policy, Canada wheat, which now enters free at British ports, will continue to do so, while a duty of about 10 per cent. will be imposed on foreign wheat. Canadian flour, which now enters Britain free will pay a duty while foreign flour will pay a higher duty. It will be the same with animals, meats, dairy and garden produce, hay and straw, etc. Our wheat will go in free as now, while our other products will be taxed as they are not now taxed.

This is a policy which is likely to please neither the consumers of Great Britain nor the producers of Canada. —Ottawa Free Press.

LICENSE ADMINISTRATION.

The Ontario government has removed from office the chairman of the License Board of Centre Huron and the inspector because of charges that a license there was made the subject of a demand for money. The government has showed its determination to enforce decent principle in the administration of the license law. The incident, nevertheless, demonstrates that the control of the license law might be in better shape. At present license commissioners are appointed as a matter of political patronage. This means that often inferior men are recommended by local political machines, and, of course duly appointed by the government, which cannot safely cross the will of the local party executives. The government and province should not be subject to this method of handling such a thing as the liquor interest. There should be a provincial board independent of the government and of political consideration, with full power to appoint or dismiss local boards or to dispense with them altogether. The only wonder at present is that more scandals do not occur in connection with license administration.

Thus speaks the Ottawa Journal, (Conservative); and when an influential member of the party household uses such language it has strong warrant. Party government is the system under which we live, but party government is a far different thing from partizan administration. The evil of partizanship in administration, instead of diminishing, is growing. We have come under the rule of a party that made civil service reform one of the loudest of its slogans. And this party has imposed upon Canada the curse of the "spoils system," the most odious form of political corruption, even in the country where it originated and from which our super-loyal Conservative friends have transplanted it. As a result we have a wild scramble for office. The heelers are hankering after the party crib and they have their way. Thousands of capable and efficient public servants have been displaced, not to give place to better men, but to give place to party workers and the public service is prostituted to paying the "hired man" of the party out of the pockets of the people. This is right enough for the sordid and bucaneering standard of, "to the victims belong the spoils": but it is not right, according to the high standard Mr. Borden very properly set as one of the chief grounds of appeal for public confidence. Premier Whitney promised, on acceding to office, as specifically as a public man of honour is required to be specific, that he would remove the License administration of the Province from political influences." He has done exactly the reverse, he has bedevilled it the more with the partizan influence. We need not go beyond our own fair city and county to see that political considerations have not lost their ascendancy.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION FOR INJURIES.

The long delay in bringing Ontario's laws regarding the compensation of workmen for injuries—or their relatives in the case of fatalities—arising out of their employment is beginning to cause keen resentment in labour circles. It was hoped that Sir

"Nurse I Must Get Better; I Have So Much Work To Do"

One of his nurses reports that the last words uttered by Judge Mabee before the eclipse that ended in death were: "Nurse, I must get better; I have so much work to do." In a few words was thus revealed the man himself — a man who lived to work and who found his greatest pleasure in labour.

Judge Mabee had indeed much to do. His as a big man's tasks, and the nation mourns his passing because just at this critical time, it needs big men.

Upon whom is the mantle of J. P. Mabee to fall—who is to sit down to the dead man's desk, to fill the gap, to tackle the much that even tireless Mabee could not undertake? Upon the Conservative government and upon Premier Borden in particular rests the responsibility of choosing a successor big enough for the big job.

The people will sit in judgment on this appointment. The Conservative government has not been very fortunate in a number of its nominations to office. Men have been chosen for posts, not because of their fitness or their ability, but because of their service to the party. It is not necessary to particularize—even Conservatives are ready to admit the truth of this statement.

But it is to be hoped that Premier Borden and Minister Cochrane will, in this case, rise above the pettiness of party politics. The three chairmen of the Railway Commission, all of whom practically died in harness — Messrs. Blair, Killam and Mabee—have given that institution an international reputation. They gave their lives to the task of making it a board of which all Canadians might be proud. In the splendid result of their labours to be lost now by the careless appointment of a successor?

It is a job for which many men fancy themselves to be competent, when, as a matter of fact, their only competency is their ability to draw down the apparently large salary attaching to the position. The names of a number of gentlemen have been mentioned. The majority of them are good politicians, but one shudders at the thought of any one of them being placed at the head of the Railway Commission.

Let us hope that, in making this appointment, Premier Borden will shut his eyes to all political exigencies, as did Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. G. P. Graham when they selected Mr. Mabee much against his will.

All Canada calls for a big man.—Ottawa Free Press.

William Meredith's inquiry would have been sufficiently far advanced to permit of the introduction of legislation at the last session of the Legislature.

The year's further delay that must now take place will mean that hundreds of maimed workmen and dozens of families of Ontario men killed as the result of industrial accidents must go through life without the aid that a just and progressive law would secure for them. The existing legislation is more fruitful of law suits than of money for the claimants.

Coroners' juries are beginning to take notice of present conditions. On Friday last a jury at Palmerston, after reporting on the circumstances under which a railway employee named George Hassen lost his life in the G. T. R. yards, added the following clause to its verdict:

"We recommend that a fund of some kind, under the guidance of Parliament, be established for adequate financial aid to those dependent upon men whose lives are occupied in such hazardous callings."

The passage of similar resolutions in the case of industrial fatalities of all sorts that come before Coroners' juries in Ontario during the next twelve months would be a powerful lever in the hands of the members of the House who are fighting for a proper Workmen's Compensation Act. —The Globe.

Mothers' Day At St. John's

Yesterday evening at St. John's church, Rev. Canon Davidson dealt with the celebration of Mother's Day, which though neither an ancient nor an ecclesiastical festival, was appropriate as reminding men of the honour due to their parents and emphasizing the glory of motherhood. Canon Davidson took as his text, 1 Sam., 2: 18, "His mother made him a little coat and brought it to him from year to year when she came to offer the yearly sacrifice." Samuel was an example of the power and influence of mothers in marking out useful and honourable careers for their children and by the wise forethought of his mother, the question of choice of profession never embarassed Samuel. And to-day, mothers, by judicious influence as well as by dedication, might do much towards filling up the ranks of the home and missionary ministry.

The hard work, expense and self-sacrifice of mothers for their children exemplified in the text should ever be gratefully remembered by them and called for equally glad sacrifices on the part of children for parents in their old age.

The duties of sons and daughters away from home were next dealt with, of which regular letter-writing was an important factor. In a western church this motto was displayed, "When did you write home last? Do it to-day."

The love of Samuel's mother found expression, like many a mother's to-day, in sewing garments, and in this connection the speaker strongly urged that all girls should fit themselves for the main duties of home life. Sewing, cooking, housekeeping and home decoration were all the distinctive work of women, from which other work in the world could not wholly exempt them.

In conclusion, the speaker pointed out the value of the church as an important connecting link between members of families, widely separated. It was an unspeakable satisfaction to mothers in the old land to know that their sons were regular church attendants, sharing the same divine service and united in the divine family. Inquiries were often made of clergy who were only too glad to give valuable reassurance if they could find any possible grounds for it. At the close of the sermon an appropriate hymn was sung and prayers offered for living relations, as also a memorial prayer in remembrance of departed mothers.

In spite of the threatening appearance of the weather, a large congregation was present who entered most warmly into the service. The heartiness of which was greatly assisted by a large body of young men, belonging to the Bible class.

EQUIPMENT FOR THE GARDEN ARTIST

Local hardware stores are showing an assortment of garden tools without which it is impossible to train the sweet pea, the double aster, or even the humble carrot in the manner in which they should grow. Gardening, that is either the flower or vegetable variety, is rapidly approaching the realm of art. It is no longer regarded as a labour. The lawyer, the pedagogue and the clergyman all have their little plot in the back yard, where they disport themselves and imagine they are back on the land. Some of these plots are bigger than you imagine and there is some real work involved in their care. But to go back to the artistic side of this miniature agriculture and horticulture. The hardware dealers present a line up of small tools and implements that are sure to appeal to the amateur gardener. Think of the fun of performing the delicate operation of removing dandelions from the lawn without leaving it full of holes. You can buy dagger-like shovelettes, which, with a little practice, enable even an office man to skillfully and deftly pluck out the lawn weeds, root and branch, and the lawn itself is left intact.

The dentist seems to have a million tools, but the gardener can load up to run him a close second. Of course the results will be seen in fine weedless flower beds, onion beds, and lawns, and the practice of using the new tools develops a grace and fine touch that will leave its trace upon every action of the otherwise awkward business or professional man.

WAS TROUBLED WITH Headache AND Constipation.

After Suffering For Two Years Was Cured By BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

Headache of whatever nature is nearly always symptomatic of other diseased conditions, rather than a disease itself, but in most cases a disordered stomach, constipation, or bad circulation is the chief source of the difficulty. Burdock Blood Bitters removes the cause of the trouble through its cleansing, strengthening and tonic action on the stomach, liver, bowels and blood. Mr. Wm. Redmond, Cardigan Bridge, P. E. I., writes:—"I have been troubled with headache and constipation for about two years. After trying every doctor I knew, a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I found myself, after using one bottle, getting much better, and after using three bottles I was completely cured.

"After then I was on a visit, and found my cousin very sick, and the doctor told her there was something wrong with her head. I told her to use Burdock Blood Bitters and she was cured in a short time. I can safely recommend it to all."

The Peterborough Canadian League team, from a photograph taken by the Roy Studio during training operations at Nicholls Oval.

Elmer D. Baver, pitcher; Curtis H. Templin, Manager and second base; Stan. Cresswell, pitcher; Bill Schaeffer, pitcher; Frank Dolan, first base; Chas. Tully, short stop; Earl Hartman, third base; Irwin Trout, catcher; A. Quinlan, pitcher; Jas. Mooney, catcher.

THE CANADIAN LEAGUE SEASON OPENS TO-MORROW--"WHITE CAPS" AT HAMILTON

Derr and Mooney Will be the Battery for the Opening Game of the Season—Team is in Good Shape.

CARRYING FIFTEEN PLAYERS

THE WHITE CAPS LINEUP.

Schwartz, l.f.
Hartman, 3b.
Tully, s.s.
Templin, 2b.
Dolan, 1b.
Beard, c.f.
Brode, r.f.
Mooney, c.
Derr, p.

This is the lineup settled upon by Manager Templin for the opening game of the Canadian League in Hamilton to-morrow. The White Caps left Peterborough on the 4.36 C.P.R. train for the Ambitious City this afternoon, and will, in all probability have a workout to-morrow morning on the Hamilton grounds. The squad is in pretty fair condition considering the short training season and Manager Templin is decidedly optimistic concerning the prospects. While the players have not fully gained their batting eye and are not slamming the pill as they will when they hit their stride, they have shown enough in practice to indicate that they will make trouble for the dingers around the circuit. The pitching staff is in excellent shape, and should be able to counterbalance any weakness in batting during the first few games. Derr, Bartlett, Baver and Schaeffer are all ready for the campaign and fit to go the distance.

Manager Templin has selected Johnny Derr to pitch the opening game, and the ex-New England Leaguer should just about get away with the game. He is in fine fettle, having finished his preparation by pitching nine innings, under wraps, on Saturday. Mooney, the peppery catcher, with the steel arm, will be behind the bat, and base stealing on the part of the Kolts, should be reduced to a minimum. Hartman at third, Tully at short, Templin at second, and Dolan at first, make up a snappy infield, and Beard, Schwartz and Brode will take care of the outfield in proper style. Brode is being played in right field on account of his hitting, the stocky little catcher having shown a tendency to knock the cover off the Spalding product every time he comes to the plate.

There were fourteen players in the squad which left this afternoon, the bunch consisting of Pitchers Derr, Bartlett, Baver, Schaeffer and Scull; Catchers Brode Trout and Mooney; Infielders Templin, Dolan, Hartman and Tully, and Outfielders Schwartz, and Beard.

Manager Templin this morning released Pitcher Percy Davis of Philadelphia; Outfielder Johnston of Toronto, and Infielder Joe Ulmer of of Philadelphia. Great interest is being taken in to-morrow's opening game at Hamilton among Peterborough fans and the town seems to have the baseball fever for fair. The Examiner will have the score early to-morrow evening and a representative of this paper accompanied the team to Hamilton to-day, so that a complete report of Tuesday's game will be found in Wednesday's Examiner. The Examiner will continue to keep its readers supplied with up-to-the-minute baseball news throughout the season. The only way to keep posted as to what is going on in Canadian League baseball is to read the Exminer sporting page.

REGULARS WON LAST

Took Third Game of the Series From the Yannigans on Saturday Afternoon by 11 Runs to 6

DERR'S FINE HITTING

A big crowd of fans saw the Regulars beat the Yannigans by 11 runs to 6 in the last practise game of the training season, at Nicholls Oval, on Saturday afternoon. Up to the seventh innings it was a warmly contested game of ball—a nip and tuck affair. In the lucky session, however, the Regulars started to lay the ball down instead of hitting it out and the Yanns' infield blew up with a terrific bang, five runs crossing the pan before the side was retired.

Johnny Derr twirled for the Regulars and did not exert himself at any stage of the proceedings. The game was merely an opportunity for him to get warmed up for the real work in Hamilton to-morrow, and for the greater part of the game he used nothing but speedy straight ones. The southpaw has a world of smoke at that and the Regulars did not meet his fast ones with any degree of familiarity. Baver pitched a heady careful game for the Regulars. He uses his head at all stages and pulled off some classy slab work, fanning no less than fourteen men. His curve ball was breaking nicely and he had splendid control. Derr's batting was one of the features of the game. The pitcher had four nice hits in four times up, smashing the ball out on a line every visit to the plate. Quinlan had the longest hit of the day, a long drive over Beard's head that was good for three bases.

Bill Shaw umpired the engagement. The score follows:

KNOX-BEAT ST. JOHN'S IN CHURCH LEAGUE GAME

The above clubs met at the Exhibition grounds on Saturday afternoon in the opening Church League game of the season. Knox held the upper hand throughout the first half and scored goals through Grisb and Hull. The St. John's defence stood up better the second half, but were not able to prevent Grisb from notching another goal for Knox. A few minutes before time Buntain scored a good goal for St. John's and the game finished in favour of Knox by 3 goals to 1. The St. John's goalkeeper, Flowers, brought off some spectacular saves during the game and had a good say in keeping down Knox's score.

FOOTBALL

At a meeting held last Friday, May 10th, the following officers were elected for "All Saints'" Football Club:

Hon. Pres.—The Rev. Mr. Grobb.
Hon. Vice-Pres.—Mr. C. Sisson.
Pres.—Mr. T. Moffatt.
Vice-Pres.—Mr. G. Aimes.
Manager—Mr. H. Bourne.
Sec.-Treas.—Mr. C. Robinson.
Captain—Mr. T. Vickers.
Vice-Captain—Mr. R. Evans.
Committee—Messrs. Rew, Curtis, Yarrington, Giles and Williams.

A well contested game took place on Saturday, May 11th, between "All Saints" and "Park street." The play was pretty even and at half time there were no goals scored. Within the last three minutes, however, Pagett sent in a lovely shot that beat the "All Saints'" "goalie." The result being 1-0 in favour of "Park street." The star of the game was Evans, who played a marvellous game in goal for the "Saints."

This is the most unusual offer, for these garments are not the commonplace kind. They are fine, perfectly tailored coats, guaranteed to be rainproof. Not only good protectors against rain, but also stylish garments that will give good service for motor use.

They are all imported coats remember, possessing the best qualities their regular prices will buy, and made in the most careful and thorough manner.

You've never seen Raincoats of such fine grades marked before at such little prices—and you have never seen better styles and patterns at any figures. Garments that are both ornamental and useful. Not made alone to keep off the rain, but designed to present a good fashionable appearance for all occasions.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

IF I WERE A MAN

Written For the Examiner by a Woman

(If I were a Man.)

Don't I wish that I were a man. Wouldn't I set the beaver-hatted population an example of brilliant perfection? Wouldn't I make myself generally agreeable to all ladies and talk to 'em as if they had souls above bonnets. What a glorious man I would make! I wouldn't stand on the hotel steps and puff clouds of villainous tobacco smoke into the eyes of all the pretty girls that go past, nor spit on the pavements to spoil their little shoes and injure their tempers. I wouldn't set my huge heels down on the trains of their silken dresses, to tear 'em half off; and I think, I'm not quite sure, but I think I'd knock down the first brute who dared complain of the circumferance of their garments; and when they come into a car or omnibus, I wouldn't stick my nose into a newspaper, or look abstractedly out of the window, nor get up grumbling: always the way with woman. Not a bit of it. I'd spring up like a patent India rubber ball, and if the old bachelor on the right hand side didn't compress themselves into the smallest possible space, to make room for the crinolines I'd know the reason why; and then, when I got married (for to what end was I created, if not to pay the milliner's bills of some blessed little bit of womankind?) Wouldn't I make a model husband? Do you suppose I should bother her sweet life out of her, by grumbling because a paltry button had dropped off a shirt collar, or a string off a dickey. Do you suppose I'd explode, like a camphene lamp, every time I found a rip in my gloves I'd like to see ysiel stooping to any such littleness. I wouldn't consult the almanac every time she bought a new bonnet, to see just how many weeks she had worn the old one; and I wouldn't snarl like a cross tiger-cat whenever the coffee happened to be cold, or the beef raw, just as if I wanted her to abuse herself in dust and ashes; and burn up her rosy little face before the kitchen fire, while I sat with heels on the table, reading the paper, in the next room. I would not use profane language when she asked me to button up her sweet little gaiter boots, or fasten her gloves, or even to carry her parcels down George St., on a rainy day—which latter I consider to be an infallible test of patience and meekness. I wouldn't gorge myself with wine, oysters and cigars at a fashionable down-town restaurant while my wife dined at home on cold mutton, and then look as black as an overcharged thundercloud when the grocers "little bill" came in. I wouldn't expend a small fortune in diamond shirt studs, extravagant broadcloth, and fancy canes, and mutter about hard times when she ventured to ask me for half a dollar to buy check for the baby's aprons. And I rather think I'd go shopping with her, too. When she hinted to that effect, instead of inventing excuses about Smith, Brown, or club—nye, and pay her bills, too, without screwing up my mouth as if I had the cramps in my face. And if she looked into a shop window, and admired a thirty-dollar collar, I'd walk straight in and buy it for her, instead of fidgeting to be elsewhere in the signs opposite, and forgetting to hear what she said, when I came home at night. I would not make a bear of myself behind the evening paper and answer seriously when she timidly asked what I was thinking. Women can't understand politics. No, indeed; I would romp her all the uneducated, play with the children, pull the puppy's ears, and tell her how becoming her new silk was. That's the way to keep the women good natured; take my word for it; and what better right is there in all the world than a good-humored woman. Mind I don't ask the incorrigible old bachelors, because they're not judges of the article. But put the question to any sensible fellow, between the ages of 18 and 28, and see what he will say. I'd make a point of always asking my wife's advice before I went to vote, and doing just as she said about it—then I'd be sure to be always right. And if the bachelor friend of mine had the impudence to ask me to an oyster supper without including my wife in the invitation, do you suppose I'd go. Ask my mother-in-law about that. I wouldn't go to evening parties and flirt desperately with other ladies and talk about my poor, dear wife, whose ill health prevented her enjoyment of society, when I knew very well that she was sitting at home alone with the cat, and crying her eyes out over one of my ragged old coats. Good gracious what a wide field for improvement among the benighted sons of Adam! It puts me completely out of breath to think of one-half the reforms I'd make.

Oh, ir I Were Only a Man.

CASCARETS FOR A SICK, SOUR STOMACH

Gently but Thoroughly Cleanse and Regulate Your Stomach, Liver and Bowels While You Sleep

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nauseau, bloating after eating, feeling of fullness, dizziness and sick headache, means indigestion; a disordered stomach, which cannot be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any.

Try Cascarets; they cure indigestion, because they immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended for ever. A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

"The Modern Knight" Subject Of Sermon To Knights Of Pythias

Rev. H. S. Keith Contrasts Conditions of To-day With Those of Old — Benevolence, Fraternity and Charity the Expressions of Knighthood of the Present Age

ATTENDED DIVINE WORSHIP

Marathon Lodge of the Knights of Pythias was well represented at the evening service at Knox Church on Sunday, during which the pastor, Rev. H. J. Keith, preached a special sermon on the modern knight, contrasting the ideals of knighthood in ancient times, in the middle ages and of the present day. Rev. Mr. Keith's message was not only encouraging to members of the Knights of Pythias, but to the entire congregation, in the manner in which he emphasized the need of charity, benevolence and friendship, in the world of to-day.

His text was 2 Kings, 9-24: "And Jehu drew a bow with his full strength and smote Jehoram between his arms, and the arrow went out at his heart, and he sank down in his chariot.

The knights of early times are typified in Jehu, Samson, David and Jonathan. They warred against the evils resulting from idol worship that crept into the homes of many of the people. They also strove to right the evil influences of kings and their consorts. But the taking of human life, deemed necessary to success in those days, would to-day be pointed out as a weakness.

In the middle ages another type of knight is found, and a development is apparent. Tennyson and Merlin have idealized the knights of that age. Their numbers had increased, and were found in hundreds, as compared with the individuals in the time of Jehu. Sir Gallahad and King Arthur represent the highest type of the knighthood of the middle ages. But they were more idealistic than actual. They too were armoured and their successes generally dependent upon the taking of human life. They do not represent the highest type of knighthood.

The modern knight views human life. He does not take it. He looks into the world afire and realizes that conditions are different. There is a warfare to be carried on, but its forms have changed.

Benevolence, Fraternity, Charity.

The modern knight enters one home and finds there poverty. In another home is misfortune, and into another some calamity has come to make itself felt. The modern knight has learned the secret by which this evil of poverty may be overcome. He terms it benevolence. If there is one power more than another by which the difference in the equalization of wealth is to be remedied it is by the spirit of benevolence. The modern knight realizes the trust that has been given him in this respect.

Another phase of the knighthood of to-day is friendship. A man goes out into life beset by temptations. To help him overcome them, he needs the kindly sypathy and aid of his fellow men. Rev. Mr. Keith referred at length to the beautiful friendship of Damon and Pythias, the friendship chosen by the Knights of Pythias. Another feature of the knighthood of to-day is charity. It overcomes the evil that still lurks in the human heart, of hatred of fellow men. With charity, men are slow to judge others and to condemn.

The equipment of the knights of to-day Mr. Keith contrasted with that employed by the knights of old. The equipment of the knight of the present age is found in his soul. To be victorious he must first be victorious over himself, and be loyal in his heart to the divine commission given him. A supreme Knight has come into the world and has issued a call to the warfare of the present day. He has shown a spirit we should recognize in our relations to our fellow man.

"If benevolence, charity and friendship find expression in our lives, we will be recognized as true knights of the present day."

Protection Of Child Is Most Efficient Means Of Fighting Tuberculosis

(Written for the Examiner By Roy Gilray)

(By Roy Gilray.)

Tuberculosis is common in childhood as well as in adult life. Since physicians have been able to detect this disease in its incipient (first) stage in adults, they have discovered that a very similar condition often existed in the lungs of children.

Undoubtedly much of the delicacy, invalidism, and so-called, minor ailments of children are dependent on, or connected with unsuspected or undefinited tuberculous disease. Therefore, the period of childhood must be given more attention in the future, for it is not possible, but probable, that the seeds which ripen into full-fledged cases of tuberculosis in later life were in very many cases implanted in the tissues during childhood, remaining there until a favourable time appeared for their activity.

Assuming that tuberculosis is comparatively common in children, the most likely way for this condition to arise, since it is a house disease, is for the young child to contract the disease from an afflicted father, or mother, or other adult in the same house. No child should be fondled by an advanced tuberculous patient, and some authorities declare that no child should be left in the same house with an advanced case of consumption.

But, strange to say, nearly half the children that are stricken with pulmonary tuberculosis have come from families which give no previous history of this disease. In these cases some other cause mustbe assigned, and it is my belief that if the cause could be definitely determined it would be found in many cases to be careless spitting about the streets.

This infection may occur from the sputum drying and becoming powdered, and carried by the winds, and thus occasionally germs being inhaled.

Or possibly the adult who comes in from the street carries dust into the house on his shoes (or her skirts), some of the dust being bacillus laden. Once this is deposited on the carpet or floor, it is a simple matter for the young child playing on the floor, to carry the infection to his lips, for it is child-nature to continually stick his fingers or toys in his mouth.

Milk from infected cows is also claimed by some to be a frequent source of infection.

If then, there is the same danger of a child contracting this disease as there is of an adult, it follows that parents should know the signs that the disease manifests in a child, for unless the child is seriously ill, and has been so for some time, the parents at least, seldom assign tuberculosis as a possible cause of trouble.

When they do take a child to a physician, they say it is "run down" or pale or thin or tires easily. Sometimes they report that the child is nervous and cannot attend school regularly. Such a child should have a very thorough chest examination, for when no other cause can be assigned for such a condition, it is usually found that the child is tuberculous.

If these earlier cases are left untreated, they will in all probability become advanced cases in adult years; and, thus by being cared for early, they are prevented from becoming future sources of infection to others. Besides, the recuperative powers are greatest in childhood years, and treatment should therefore be most economically carried out at this time.

In children of school years, tuberculous trouble is more common in girls, but boys are harder to cure. The cause for more girls contracting the disease is due to the fact that they spend more time in the house as they grow older, while their brothers are playing out of doors, and as tuberculosis is a "home disease" they are more exposed to infection; whereas the natural inclination of boys is to take more violent exercise and rest less, which is a serious handicap. Very little trouble is experienced in keeping girls of all ages reasonably quiet, but the boys will be boys whenever they get the doctor or nurse out of sight—much to their detriment.

We have one comforting assurance, however.

It makes no difference how people live, or how much they abuse their bodies or their minds, or how seriously they are exposed to the conditions that are characteriesd as the causes of tuberculosis, unless the germs find their way into and multiply within their bodies, tuberculosis can not and does not affect them. But against this, is the rather startling discovery that the sources of the great majority of all tubercular trouble in children comes from tuberculous cattle.

To those who love the little tots and believe that the highest duty of responsible adults is to make them happy, it is hardly necessary to say that everything possible should be done to prevent their contracting the disease.

The prevalence of tuberculosis in our midst is due largely to ignorance of the disease, but the advent of the District Nurse will change all this. It will be her duty to carry to the homes needing it such information as the situation requires, instructing the family in the proper methods of caring for themselves.

It is just such education as she will impart that will enable mothers to do their best for the little ones, for the best way to fight consumption is to protect the children.

The Peterborough Summer Fair will be the thin edge of the wedge of education which will separate the community from the White Plague, which leaves death and destruction in its wake.

Ill-Health And Success

Is ill-health in the way of your success? Do you lack the energy and vitality, the red blood which is necessary to good health and success in life? What have you done to overcome this condition? For it can be overcome by a little patient treatment.

There are combined in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food the elements which go to form new, rich blood. By using this food cure regularly you increase the quality and quantity of blood in the body. The wasted nerves feed on this rich blood and become revitalized. Mind and body regain snap, vim, energy and all that accompanies health and strength.

Nervous headache and indigestion, nervous prostration and exhaustion give way when this great restorative treatment is used to put new health and vigour into the blood.

Stick to The Old Habits

If you are perfectly well.

If not, Change

(See any fault in that philosophy?)

Thousands continue to "coddle" old habits such as coffee and tea drinking; refusing to believe their aches and ills are largely due to caffeine poisoning. (Caffeine is the drug in coffee and tea.)

Many are awakening to the truth about coffee and tea, and change to

POSTUM

It is made of wheat, and is a rich, palatable food-drink—free from caffeine or any other drug.

If you appreciate health and the full enjoyment of physical and mental power, a 10 days' trial will show

HARD TO LEARN.

Takes Hard Experience To Teach People Some Truths.

Many people jeer at the idea that coffee causes the aches and ails they suffer from; and often such people will go on for years sticking steadfastly to the coffee and suffering month in and month out but maintaining "Coffee doesn't hurt them." (Tea is just as injurious as coffee because it contains caffeine, the drug in coffee.)

A lady says:

"I did not learn the real truth until I made the change, but I can now positively state that the headaches I had for about seventeen years were caused by drinking coffee, for when I changed and gave up coffee and used Postum in its place I experienced entire relief. I have not been troubled with headache since I began Postum.

"This, in brief, has been my experience on the coffee question. Among my friends I have seen many other wonderful instances of the power of this food drink when used in place of the drug drink, coffee.

"Among my friends there are those who tell me of relief from kidney trouble, neuralgia and eczema by leaving off coffee and using Postum and I have even known it to ease rheumatic pains in my limbs.

"I really believe these statements for since I cut out coffee and used Postum, I never seem to have an ache or pain and I would not dare go back to coffee again.

"Not only myself but my family use Postum exclusively and we think there is no hot beverage that can take its place. Nearly seven years' steady use of Postum convinces me I know what I am talking about when I say it is food as well drink and most valuable to build up the system." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Everyone Should Read This

Do you know that there is a store in Peterborough that advertises extensively and yet their advertising does not cost them a cent?

Do you know that it is paid for by customers of the merchants who do not advertise?

Perhaps you don't see how that can be, so we will explain.

When you buy an article from a retailer, you pay for three things—(1) What that dealer paid for it; (2) What it cost him to do business; and (3) His profit.

So you see the greater a merchant's expense in relation to the amount of goods sold, the more he must charge you for what you buy.

We all know that the advertised store does the largest business.

Hence their expenses are lower, and they can make their prices lower than the store that does not advertise.

For instance—"Jones' does not advertise; he sells $20,000 worth of goods in a year; his expense of doing business is $4,000.

"Smith" advertises. His year's business is $23,000; his expense of doing business is $4,400 ($400 more than Jones' because of advertising.

$4,000 is 20 per cent of $20,000, so it costs Jones 20 per cent. to do business.

$4,400 is 19 per cent. of $23,000, so it costs Smith 19 per cent. to do business, and 1 per cent. less than it does Jones.

You will readily see that Smith, the man who advertises, can sell every dollars' worth of goods for 1c less than can Jones, who does not advertise.

In other words, Jones' customers are paying for Smith's advertising because they are paying Jones more for the goods they buy than they would have to pay Smith for the same qualities.

Yes, H. LeBrun & Co. advertise. Their advertising is constantly bringing them new customers, while their big values and considerate treatment hold all their old ones.

It will pay YOU to trade there.

The sooner you find it out, the better it will be for you.

RAILWAY NOTES

An increase in pay for its freight handlers and checkers at Toronto has been announced by the Management of the Grand Trunk Railway, effective from May 1st. This means that where the former class of employees received from 15 to 16 cents an hour, they will now be paid 17 cents an hour. The checkers will receive an increase amounting to $5.00 a month. There are at present about 275 freight handlers and 60 checkers employed by the G. T. R. in the Queen City. "This means," said one of the leaders of the men in a Toronto interview, "that there will be no strike and the men are well satisfied. One cent an hour does not appear very much, but, at the end of the month, it is something. The men are also grateful to the local officials of the company, Terminal Superintendent W. Farrell in particular, for the interest that they have taken in their welfare."

BUILDING FOOD

To Bring the Babies Around.

When a little human machine (or a large one) goes wrong, nothing is so important as the selection of food to bring it around again.

"My little baby boy fifteen months old had pneumonia, then came brain fever, and no sooner had he got over these than he began to cut teeth and, being so weak, he was frequently thrown into convulsions," says a Colorado mother.

"I decided a change might help, so took him to Kansas City for a visit When he got there he was so very weak when he would cry he would sink away and seemed like he would die.

"When I reached my sister's home she said immediately that we must feed him Grape-Nuts and, although I had never used the food, we got some and for a few days just gave him the juice of Grape-Nuts and milk. He got stronger so quickly we were soon feeding him the Grape-Nuts itself and in a wonderfully short time he fattened right up and became strong and well. "That showed me something worth knowing and, when later on my little girl came, I raised her on Grape-Nuts and she is a strong, healthy baby and has been. You will see from the little photograph I send you what a strong, chubby youngster the boy is now, but he didn't look anything like that before we found this nourishing food. Grape-Nuts nourished him back to strength when he was so weak he couldn't keep any other food on his stomach." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

All children can be built to a more sturdy and healthy condition upon Grape-Nuts and cream. The food contains the elements nature demands, from which to make the soft gray filling in the nerve centres and brain. A well fed brain and strong, sturdy nerves absolutely insure a healthy body.

Either Man Must Kill The Fly Or The Fly Will Kill The Man

Written for The Examiner by Roy Gilray

(By Roy Gilray.)

"Where do all the flies come from?" is as easily answered as the question, "Where do all the pins go?" A few years ago the fly was little thought of; its habits and history were almost unknown. Scientists have, of late, discovered some things of importance which affect not only the individual but the very life of the nation. The war on the house fly is one of the best methods of arresting disease that has engaged the public attention for years.

They are now recognized as the chief carriers of disease. They are the most dangerous insects known to man. Flies are the filthiest of all vermin. They are born in filth, live on filth, and carry filth around with them. Flies are known to be carriers of millions of death-dealing disease germs. They leave some of these germs wherever they alight. Flies may affect the food you eat. They come to your kitchen or to your dining table, fresh from the garbage box, from the manure pile, from the cuspidor, from decaying animal or vegetable matter, or from the contagious sick room, with this sort of filth on their feet, and on their bodies, and they deposit it in your food, and you swallow it.

Flies may infect you with tuberculosis, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria and other infectious diseases. They have a habit of feeding on tuberculosis sputum and other discharges of those sick with these diseases, and then go direct to your food, to your drink, to the lip of your sleeping child, or perhaps to a small open wound on your hands or face. When germs are deposited in milk, they multiply very fast; therefore, milk should never be exposed to flies.

To rid yourselves of the pests, screen your windows and doors. Do it before fly time and keep the screens up until snow flies. Screen all food, especially milk. Do not eat food that has been in contact with flies. Screen the baby's bed and keep flies away from the baby's bottle, the baby's food and the baby's "comforter." Keep flies away from the sick, especially those ill with typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria and tuberculosis. Screen the patient's bed. Kill every fly that enters the sick room. Immediately disinfect and dispose of all discharges. Catch the flies as fast as they appear. Use liquid poisons, sticky fly papers and traps. Place either of the following poisons in shallow dishes throughout the house:

(a) Two teaspoonfuls of formaldehyde to a pint of water, or

(b) one dram of bichromate of potash dissolved in two ounces of water, sweetened with plenty of sugar.

To eliminate the breeding places of flies, sprinkle chloride of lime or kerosene (coal oil) over contents of privy vaults and garbage boxes. Keep garbage receptacles tightly covered, clean the cans every day, the boxes every week. Keep the ground around garbage boxes clean. Sprinkle chloride of lime over manure piles, old paper, old straw and other refuse of like nature. Manure should be removed at least every week. Pour kerosene into the drains; keep sewerage system in good order; repair all leaks immediately. Clean cuspidors every day. Keep five per cent. solution of carbolic acid in them all the time. Allow no decaying matter of any kind to accumulate on or near your premises.

Remember—No dirt—no flies.

Another method of waging war on this pest is by the use of "swatters." These can be procured at a hardware store or they can be made at home quite easily. A small bit of wire screening fastened to a stick will answer the purpose.

Traps are very useful, too, as they can quietly perform their death dealing work without wasting the time of any person. Various kinds of bait may be used. Bread saturated with milk or sweetened with water has been successfully tried. The best place to set a trap is in a shady place close to bright sunlight.

In the climate surrounding Peterborough about ten generations of flies are produced in a single summer. As one fly will lay 120 eggs, the result, if all these should be allowed to live and reproduce their kind in like ratio, would be appalling. Here is an excellent opportunity for any ambitious school boy to solve the foregoing problem.

The best and most effective way of destroying flies is to deprive them of their breeding places. A fly cannot develop from the egg in less than eight days; therefore, if we clean up everything thoroughly each week, there need be no flies.

All houses and stores where food is exposed for sale should be thoroughly protected by screens, and any stray flies should be caught upon sticky paper, trapped or poisoned.

The careless and dirty storekeeper must be controlled by public opinion; otherwise he will allow flies to infect the food he sells and continue to distribute disease germs among his customers.

It has been found that the annual outbreak of typhoid fever coincides very closely with the maturity of the first spring crop of flies.

During the recent visit of Dr. McCullough, the Provincial Medical Health Officer, a "Fly Pest" moving film was exhibited. It showed the development of the fly from the egg to maturity and conveyed the lesson of its danger and general nastiness in a manner so graphic that it reached the understanding even of the smallest children.

The indictment of the fly is not a difficult one to draw up nor is it necessary to resort to technicalities to obtain a conviction; and it ought to be obvious that the toleration of the fly in any community is an indictment of its people—proof positive of a low order of general intelligence and civic spirit.

The actual battle in the truest sense of the word, the battle with the fly is a long [illegible] been well begun elsewhere. We have tried to make it clear that it is not impossible nor even very difficult to exterminate the fly. All that is necessary is to "clean up."

All that is required is initiative—there is no obstacle in the way but indifference. The fly, almost alone among the public enemies, has no friends. There are no "interests" such as are behind the drink habit, back of the house fly. He is not useful even for fish bait. Flies are not kept as pets, so there is no sentimental outcry against their wholesale destruction.

Therefore, "Swat the Fly."

This work should be taken up by the Board of Health, who should inaugurate a campaign at once; and, with a view to starting it off with a wave of popularity a prize of $25 should be offered to the boy or girl killing the most flies in a stated time. These can easily be kept track of by measuring them by the quart—one quart contains 12,800 flies. Besides creating an interest in the campaign and teaching many useful lessons in cleanliness it would make Peterborough a healthier place to live in.

TIRED-OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses of eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

The launching of the Y. M. C. A. War Canoe took place on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock from the foot of King street, after which a trip was made around the Little Lake. The War Canoe was presented to the Association by the Peterborough Canoe Co., and it is finished in a dark blue with a white stripe just below the gunwhale, the stripe being broken at the bow and a triangle with a "Y" in the centre, is shown to advantage. On the trip down the river all kinds of salutes were given and it looked very much out of the ordinary to see such a crowd all paddling one boat.

Another trip will be made to-night, leaving the foot of King street at 7.15 o'clock. Among those who made the first trip were the following: D. White, P. Stock, J. Downing, D. Loomis, H. Wallis, H. Portsmouth, J. Mahoney, A. Leader, C. Stewart, J. Johnston; J. J. Thompson was at the helm.

The Junior Leaders held their closing banquet on Friday evening after which an examination was held on the gymnasium floor. This closes the regular Leaders Corps work for the season.

The Junior and Intermediate Leaders Corps will give a short programme on the gym. floor next Wednesday evening, in connection with the reception to be given the new General Secretary, Mr. A. A. Hainsworth.

The Piano of the Period

New Scale Williams

The music student, the amateur and the finished musician go about the selection of a piano with a somewhat different viewpoint from the average layman. They have a more definite idea of what constitutes Real Artistic Tone Quality. They have different standards, perhaps more exacting, from which to judge tonal effects, and the fact, therefore, that hundreds of New Scale Williams Pianos have been purchased by musicians, is of special significance. It presents the verdict of a competent jury; one which the intending purchaser of a piano can well afford to take into careful consideration. It is the beautiful singing quality as well as the attractive appearance of these pianos which appeals to the artistic sense of the trained musician and music lover.

DOG POPULATION OF PETERBORO' WANES

The Sanitary Inspector received notification this morning of the presence in Little Lake of the remains of a horse. Mr. Spence notified Mr. Francey, who is responsible for the disposition of refuse of such nature, and the carcase was removed from the gaze of human eyes.

While the population of Peterborough is increasing by leaps and bounds, the dog census threatens to become stagnant. The Chief attributes this condition to be found in the vigilance by the police department, and the recently inaugurated permanent sanitary inspectorship. Almost daily reports are received by the department to the effect that a certain dog has developed a well-defined man-eating propensity, or that a canine has gone to his happy hunting ground. The former provides excellent target practice for the members of the police force, and the authority of the Sanitary Inspector is called into requisition in disposing of the latter case. It may also be recorded that there is no particular sorrow expressed by the citizens over the discovery that the dog population of the city is at a standstill.

WAGES OF SPIRITUAL BONDAGE IS DEATH

Declares Mr. Patrick Morgan in the Course of an Address at Park Street Baptist Church Last Evening

17th ANNIVERSARY

The Park street Baptist church yesterday passed its 18th milestone under auspicious circumstances. Large congregations filled the handsome edifice, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion, at both the morning and evening services, and throughout the day a general feeling of thankfulness and acknowledgment for the Divine blessings, which the church and its cares has been the object of, during the past year, was manifested.

Mr. Patrick Morgan delivered two very inspiring and appropriate addresses. "Christ the Liberator," was the subject of Mr. Morgan's address in the evening, and his text was taken from the Gospel according to St. John 8th chapter and 36th verse, which reads, "If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed."

WHAT IS FREEDOM?

"It is a blessed thing to be free, if it is properly understood," said the speaker. To be properly understood it must be thoroughly enjoyed. What is freedom? It is not the inherent right of man to follow his own inclinations without hindrance. That is a license ,not liberty. Thousands of souls have been wrecked on the rocks of iniquity through an incorrect interpretation of freedom. Adam, the federal head of mankind, was not created without certain restrictions being placed upon him. Liberty is a voluntary action of thought, heart and body in harmony with the teachings of the Divine Creator. He who does this enjoys freedom. He who does not is a born slave.

Christ brought civil liberty into the world, and the trend of nations through the ages has in no way decreased this love of liberty. The present age has developed an irrepressible passion for liberty. Christ did not come to overturn governments or to revolutionize politics, neither did he come as a great potentate. He came as the "Light of the world," to advance the cause of Christainity and to teach the truth of the brotherhood of mankind. Without such recognition, tyrants became possible.

WOULD SOLVE LABOUR PROBLEMS

Let men have a true conception of their worth irrespective of their social standing, or the amount of wealth which they might possess, and it will do more to solve the labour problem than anything that has ever been known. National despots will be unheard of, and tyrants unknown. The weight of worldly things crushes down buoyancy in the human heart. God has endowed man with an intellectual liberty, and he has endeavourtd to emancipate man by these truths. Every man has a personal responsibility towards God, and upon the fulfillment of this responsibility rests the future destiny of the soul. Man may have mental and bodily freedom, but if he has not freedom of the soul he is in fearful bondage. His soul is in fetters. "What shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?" Those who are not in harmony with God's plan of the universe, is a slave to it. The wages of man's spiritual bondage is death.

Freedom of conscience, sworn allegiance to God, are things we must acquire before we can taste the joys of freedom.

OBITUARY

MRS. THOMAS MARK.

The many friends of Mr. Thomas Mark will sympathize with him in his bereavement, his wife, formerly Alma Irene Tims, having passed away on Sunday after but a brief illness. The deceased was 33 years and 6 months of age. She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Tims of Lifford, Ont. ,one brother, C. H. Tims of Lifford, her husband and infant twin daughters.

The late Mrs. Mark was an adherent of George street Methodist church. The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock, from the family residence, 770 Aylmer street, to the Little Lake cemetery. Rev. Mr. Couch will officiate.

MR. WM. BANCROFT.

The many friends of Mr. Wm. Bancroft will regret to learn of his death at his home in Harvey on Tuesday, May 7th, in his sixtieth year. Mr. Bancroft, was one of the earliest settlers of the township of Harvey, and subsequently was appointed postmaster at Rockcroft, P.O.

The late Mr. Bancroft had many friends, who sympathized deeply with him in his prolonged illness. The deceased was upright and honourable in all his business relations, and as a friend and neighbour, was appreciated for his sterling integrity and neighbourliness. Mr. Bancroft leaves to mourn his loss, a sorrowing wife and eleven children. The children are, Mrs. W. J. Guthrie, Rockcroft; Mrs. James McDonald, Peterborough; Mrs. Fred Baylis, Mrs. John Eastwood, Mrs. James Wilson, Toronto; Misses Maggie and Stella at home; and Messrs. Stanley, Harry and Wilbert, also at home. Ernest resides in Toronto. The funeral took place on Friday last at Bobcaygeon cemetery.

The deceased had been ill for some time, a portion of which he spent in the hospital at Peterborough.

MR. JOHN B. LANG.

The death occurred this morning of Mr. John B. Lang of 668 Rogers Street, East City.

The deceased gentleman, who was 68 years of age, was born in Thorold, Ont., but has been for a great many years a resident of the city. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Thos. Starr of Peterborough, and a son who is living in Boston, his wife having predeceased him.

The funeral wil talke place to the Little Lake cemetery to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Dr. Beattie Nesbitt Will Visit the Place From Where He Made the Start for the Border Nearly Seven Months Ago

$30,000 BAIL

Toronto, May 14.—Dr. Beattie Nesbitt appeared in the police court yesterday morning. He was arraigned upon four charges of making false returns to the Government while president of the Farmers' Bank. Neither plea nor election was made to any of these, and at the request of his counsel, H. H. Dewart, K.C., he was remanded for a week. Bail was granted by the consent of Crown Attorney Corley, who fixed the amount at $15,000, with the doctor's own bond in an equal amount. The sureties accepted were Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., cousin of the accused, and Dr. Walter McKeown. The doctor was greeted by a host of friends in the police court corridor after he was admitted to bail, and left in a taxi for the home of his brother, Frank Nesbitt, with whom he will stay for the present.

Dr. Nesbitt once more succeeded in evading all efforts to secure his photograph. The jail yard was cleared when he left there for the court, and he was protected by a detective on either side as he left his taxi for the Albert street entrance of the City Hall. "I have no fear of the outcome," was the only word which the doctor would vouchsafe upon his case. He said that he would likely go to his island home in Muskoka, where his wife now is. This visit will be made before he again appears in the police court. It was from this place that the doctor made his start for the border a year ago January last.

The doctor had shaved off the beard which he was still wearing when he was brought to the city Sunday morning, and save that a wide western fedora had been submitted for his former habitual silk hat his appearance was much the same as when he was perhaps the most familiar figure upon this city's streets. He has not lost weight, and his manner is the old jovial one that he always used.

Canadian Writer Dead.

Victoria, B.C., May 14.—Miss Agnes Deane Cameron, the well-known writer and lecturer, died at St. Joseph's Hospital yesterday morning, following an operation for appendicitis, after a short illness.

Miss Cameron was a native daughter of Victoria, having been born in 1868, a daughter of Duncan and Jessie Cameron, pioneers of the province. She was educated in the public and high schools of the city, and embraced the teaching profession.

Six years ago, owing to a controversy with the Provincial Department of Education, she terminated her connection with the teaching staff in the city, and ran for the office of school trustee, being elected at the head of the poll.

She later removed to Chicago and won renown as a descriptive writer. She concentrated most of her energies to describing to the world the resources and opportunities of Western Canada. She became associate editor of The Last Best West Magazine, and also was identified with the Canadian Woman's Press Association.

Demented Mother Ends Life.

Pembroke, Ont., May 14.—After having returned from Kingston Asylum with her few days old child two weeks ago, apparently cured of her insanity, Mrs. R. S. Covert of Cobden, shot herself through the head Friday afternoon and died almost instantly. She was 24 years old and the wife of Cobden's principal jeweler. Some time ago she became insane and was taken to Kingston Asylum. She was released, however, two weeks ago, apparently cured, and returned home. A baby was born three weeks ago.

Richard King Drowned.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., May 14.—All doubt as to the fate which befell Richard King, a Toronto boy, who disappeared Thursday night was dispelled Sunday night by the finding of the body near the Government dock in St. Mary's River. It was a friend, Stanley Simpson, who recovered the body, and he located it with the first throw of the hook. The remains were shipped to Toronto.

FALL FROM AEROPLANE

Englishman and American Killed in Aviation Disaster

ENGINE WAS AT FAULT

London, May 14.—Victor Louis Mason, an American identified with extensive mining interests, and at one time private secretary to the American Secretary of War, Gen. R. A. Alger, and to his successor, Elihu Root, was killed yesterday while making a flight at Brooklands with the English aviator, E. V. Fisher. Fisher also was killed, by being pitched out of the machine when at a height of about 150 feet.

Fisher was about to give an exhibition and picked Mr. Mason as a passenger from among the spectators. They circled the track once when, eyewitnesses say, the machine, which was a monoplane, made an abrupt turn. It wavered a moment and then fell straight to the earth. The sudden stoppage in the air threw Fisher headlong from his seat. Mason was pinned beneath the wreckage, which caught fire, and he was badly burned before being extricated. Physicians state that both men died almost instantly.

It is surmised that some fault developed in the engine of the aeroplane, which caused the accident, as the weather conditions were perfect. The bodies were removed to a mortuary to await an inquest, which probably will be held to-morrow.

Fisher was regarded as a daring aviator. He had met with a number of accidents, one in October last, in which he was rendered unconscious and his passenger painfully injured. On another occasion, after a cycling accident, Fisher made a flight with one arm strapped to his side.

Victor Louis Mason resided in Passaic, N.J. He was born in Washington in 1870. His wife was Miss Daisy Comstock Simons of Washington. He was associated with Gen. Alger in Detroit from 1899 to 1902.

Thomas Sopwith was also flying around the grounds with a passenger at the time and witnessed the accident. He flew in the direction of the wrecked machine and alighted close beside it. The two men tried their utmost to beat down the flames.

In the meantime the crowd rushed to the spot, and extinguishers were applied, but when the flames were quenched the machine was almost destroyed.

Fisher's body was found 20 yards away, his neck having been broken. Among the spectators were Flanders, owner of the monoplane, and Commander Samson, who made a notable hydro-aeroplane flight at Weymouth last week.

According to newspaper reports Mr. Mason was a friend of Commander Samson. The latter accompanied him to the grounds and, it is reported, arranged for the flight with Fisher.

Amateur Aviator Killed.

St. Louis, May 14.—Ray Wheeler, amateur aviator, was killed, and Peter Glasser, a companion, was probably fatally injured when their machine struck a telegraph pole at Kinlock Park last night.

The accident occurred when the aeroplane was caught in a whirlwind 100 feet above the earth.

Wheeler and Glasser were thrown 30 feet. Wheeler's skull was crushed, his right leg was broken in three places, and his right arm was fractured. He died on the way to the hospital.

McNamara Fights Extradition.

New York, May 14.—John McNamara, known to the police as "Australian Mack," filed in the U. S. District Court yesterday notice of appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States from a decision of the district court in extradition proceedings brought against him by the Canadian authorities. McNamara is wanted at New Westminster, B.C., to answer a charge of burglary in connection with the looting of the Bank of Montreal at that place.

Arrives With Three Bodies.

Louisburg, N.S., May 14.—The steamship Montmagny, Captain Piliot, arrived yesterday with three bodies of the Titanic disaster—Harold Reynolds of Toronto, C. Smith of the cooking staff, and a young girl about 15 years of age, name unknown. These were landed in Louisburg and expressed to Halifax for burial. The Montmagny sailed at 11 o'clock last night to continue the search after taking on bunker coal.

It Will Pay You

We frequently hear from persons far and near that they would not be without the eye-glasses which they had from the Optical Institute for several times their price. One lady remarked, I wouldn't take $50 for my glasses; another "they are worth ten times their price to me." A gentleman says "I wear mine constantly scarcely know they are on, but have perfect sight far and near. They are worth all they cost me and I want another pair in case of an accident."

The best cost a little more and require a little more time to have made up but it pays, and they are worth all you pay when they please you.

TRIAL IS POSTPONED.

Charles Gibson Will Not Come Up Until the Fall.

Toronto, May 14.—After considering the many intricate points of the murder of Joseph Rosenthal and the attempted murder of Eli Dunkelman yesterday, Mr. Justice Middleton granted the request of Aubrey Bond, counsel for Charles Gibson, to traverse the hearing of the case until next fall. Gibson is charged with the murder of Joseph Rosenthal.

Gibson filed an affidavit stating that Eli Dunkelman lied at the inquest, when he said that Gibson was the only man who accompanied him and Dunkelman to the scene of the murder. He alleges that he introduced two former employes of the hydro, known as "Wilson" and "Alf" to the two Jews, and left them on the Strachan avenue bridge.

Mr. Bond said he had been in communication with a witness who would be prepared to testify that he saw the two Jews talking to two other men on this bridge. Gibson holds that he would have taken steps to locate these two men sooner had he thought that the evidence of Dunkelman would not exonerate him.

The prisoner is without funds, but some citizens are contributing money for his defence. Mr. Justice Middleton was in favor of allowing only a few weeks' stay in proceedings, but Mr. Bond advised the court that he would have to withdraw from the case if such a stipulation were made.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Gen. Nazare Aga, who was Persian Minister to France from 1898 to 1905, died in Paris yesterday.

Harry McKwen, a veteran Brockville bandsman, with an honorable career in the Canadian and British militia, died suddenly yesterday at his home of heart failure.

The Duke of Connaught, Governor-General of Canada, is expected to spend some portion of the summer of 1913 in Newfoundland as the guest of the Government.

W. H. Troupe, a brakeman, was killed at Mitchell, Ont., yesterday morning. While coupling cars in the Grand Trunk yard he slipped, the car running over him.

Raphael Dinsuni was found guilty on manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Fallen in Toronto last December, and was sentenced to seven years in prison.

James Sheridan was found dead in a lumber pile on the C.P.R. wharf at Brockville yesterday. He had been drinking heavily of late and it is thought he passed away in a drunken stupor.

While a 60-mile gale blew down the Niagara river, raising the water ten feet, snow fell for two hours yesterday afternoon. Fears are expressed that the crops will be damaged as a result of the storm.

While a report has not been made public, it is understood that the situation insofar as the probability of the Victoria Museum tower at Ottawa sinking any further is concerned, is not at all alarming.

The U. S. weather bureau reported the Mississippi river at a stand at Baton Rouge yesterday, while other points from Cairo south reported falling stages. Fine weather prevailed all over Louisiana yesterday.

Decoyed Sarnia Woman.

Sarnia, May 14.—Mrs. Mary Williamson of Point Edward disappeared from her home on May 3, and in company with Thomas Harrison, who works at the Imperial Oil Refinery at Sarnia, has been found in Bay City, Mich. The immigration officials at Port Huron were notified by her husband and as a result Harrison has been locked up at the latter place under a charge under the White Slave Act. Mrs. Williamson is being detained as a witness in the case.

This is the second woman that Harrison has enticed across the line for immoral purposes, and this woman, who has returned to her home in Sarnia, has also been secured to give evidence against the prisoner.

People to Elect U. S. Senators.

Washington, May 14.—The House yesterday adopted 237 to 39 a joint resolution providing for an amendment to the constitution to permit the election of U. S. Senators by direct vote of the people. It already had passed the Senate, and now goes to the President.

TAFT IS SARCASTIC

Roosevelt Promises to Bring the Millennium, He Declares

WYOMING FOR PRESIDENT

Steubenville, O., May 14.—President Taft's first day of his final campaign swing through Ohio, which came to an end with a speech here last night, was marked by the most pronounced verbal assaults upon Col. Theodore Roosevelt to which Mr. Taft has so far given utterance.

Speeches that were filled with indignant attack, that bubbled over with uncomplimentary adjectives, Mr. Taft discharged at his predecessor in the White House.

"He says the reason the American people are going to elect him is because he is necessary for the job. That is the description he gives. Well, I hope the American people will not think that he is necessary for the job. I want to call your attention to what the job is which he proposes. It is the millennium that he is going to bring about when he gets into office. All bosses are going to disappear; politicians are going to be fewer and he is going to have a finger in every community, in every state, in every county and everything is going to heaven.

"If that be true the millennium is coming, and that is the job he is to do. It is going to take longer than four years. I beg of you to ask him when he comes here whether he would take a fourth term, ask him whether he is going to take a fifth term, and why he should not continue in office during his life?"

Wyoming For Taft.

Cheyenne, Wyo., May 14.—The Republican and Democratic state conventions met yesterday to select delegates to the Chicago and Baltimore national conventions respectively, and to name national committeemen.

Twelve of the thirteen county delegations to the Republican convention favored Taft instructions. B. B. Brooks, temporary chairman, eulogized the Taft administration.

Eyes on South Dakota.

Sioux Falls, S.D., May 14.—Theodora Roosevelt is coming to South Dakota to make a personal fight for the ten delegates from the state to the Republican national convention. He will make a flying visit June 1, spending that day in the state. It is expected here that Taft and Lafollette also will visit the state. The state primary will be held June 4.

Fire In Toronto.

Toronto, May 14.—Damage amounting to several thousand dollars, fully covered by insurance, was caused by a fire which broke out in the Humber Beach Hotel at 11.45 last evening. The hotel is owned by L. W. Hansen, who took it over last January from T. J. Boland. A refreshment booth, owned by Richard West, not insured, was also burned, and at 1.30 this morning the flames were spreading to a garage west of the hotel and were gradually eating their way through the roof of the hotel proper. The building to the west of the hotel, which is owned by West, was the old restaurant which was owned by Mrs. Meyers at Sunnyside, and was removed to the Humber when the city bought it in order to make room for the Sunnyside bridge.

Sealskin Sacques Will Be Higher.

St. John's, Nfld., May 14.—Yesterday marked the close of one of the most unsatisfactory sealing seasons that Newfoundland has known in many years. Twenty steamers engaged in the fishing industry reported a total catch of 175,126 seals, valued at $329,104. This is hardly more than half the number taken last year when the steamers reported 304,291 seals, valued at $493,656.

The falling off this year is due in a large measure to abnormal ice conditions which have prevailed. There were no serious accidents to the fleet this year, in contrast with past years.

Baby Strangled In Montreal.

Montreal, May 14.—The body of a baby boy, apparently about two weeks old, was found wrapped in a newspaper in a yard off Oliver street, by a corporation workman yesterday. Marks of violence were found on the body and it is suspected that the body was strangled before being left in the yard.

Delegates at the Falls.

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 14.—The Brotherhood Federation were entertained by the city yesterday, after a stormy voyage across the lake from Toronto, at a civic luncheon. Visit to the power houses and a trip around the scenic belt line constituted the program. They went from here to Hamilton.

Phonographs Musical.

Ottawa, May 14.—The Railway Commission has decided that gramaphones, phonographs, and other similar machines, must be classed as musical instruments, and must be so classified in freight designation. This will add materially to the cost of transportation of these "instruments."

London's Empire Concert.

London, Eng., May 14.—A great and enthusiastic audience of 10,000 listened to the Empire Concert, which inaugurated Shakespeare's England at Easlescourt Saturday. The singing of the Imperial choir of 4,000 voices, conducted by Dr. Charles Harriss of Canada, was most imposing. Sir Henry Wood also conducted.

London Needs Carpenters.

London, May 14.—There is a bigger demand for carpenters and bricklayers in this city than it is possible to fill. The Ontario free labor bureau ran place on jobs at once at least a dozen experienced carpenters and bricklayers. A large number of men could be placed on farms in Western Ontario.

WIFE'S HEALTH RESTORED

Husband Declared Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Would Restore Her Health, And It Did.

Ashland, Ky.—"Four years ago I seemed to have everything the matter with me. I had female trouble and kidney trouble and was so bad off I could hardly rest day or night. I doctored with all the best doctors in town and took many kinds of medicine but nothing did any good until I tried your wonderful remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My husband said it would restore my health and it has."—Mrs. MAY WYATT, Ashland, Ky.

There are probably hundreds of thousands of women in the United States who have been benefitted by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over thirty years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering.

Read What Another Woman says:

Camden, N. J.—"I had female trouble and a serious displacement and was tired and discouraged and unable to do my work. My doctors told me I never could be cured without an operation, but thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I am cured of that affliction and have recommended it to more than one of my friends with the best results."—Mrs. ELLA JOHNSTON, 236 Vine St.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

"KEITH OF THE BORDER"

BY RANDALL PARRISH

Keith drew aside the flap of the tent to glance without, the light falling on Fairbain's face as he struggled to a sitting posture. He had had a new thought driven into him, yet failed to entirely grasp its significance.

"But, Jack," he asked, still half angry, "how about the girl? Hasn't she any right to this money"

"I don't know," honestly, "we don't any of us know, but whatever she has the right to she is going to get. You can bet on that, old man. We're bucking Hawley, not Christie Maclaire—get that into your head. He hasn't any right, that's certain, for he murdered and stole to get the papers—be quiet! Here the fellow comes now!"

They peered out together through the convenitne tent flap, Fairbain scarcely less interested than the other, already dimly comprehending that his truly dangerous rival was the gambler, and that he could best serve the lady by helping to prove to her the real character of that individual. He was still blindly groping in the haze, yet out of Keith's sharp, stinging words there had come to him a guide light. The latter gripped his arm in restraint.

"Easy, old man, easy—let him pass."

Hawley turned into the alley whistling, evidently well pleased with the situation and anticipating other delights awaiting his coming. The glow of the Trocadero's lights served, an instant, to reveal his face, shaded by the broad brim of his hat, and then he vanished into the dark. Keith leaning far out, yet keeping well within the shadows, heard the faint creak of the vestibule door and the soft murmur of distant voices. Then he drew back suddenly, his hand again graspin gFairbani. Two figures—those of a man and woman—emerged into the dim light, and as quickly disappeared. Apparently her hand was upon his arm, and he was bending down so as to gain a glimpse of the face partially concealed by the folds of the mantilla. Only a word or two reached them, a little laugh, and the woman's voice:

"Why, of course I hurried; you said you had something of such importance to tell me."

"Fairbain," spoke Keith, his lips almost at the ear of the other. "That was Hope, all right, and she has got him going already. Now, man, will you help us out?"

"I? How?"

"Go back there, and meet Miss Maclaire. I don't care where you take her—lunch, anywhere; only keep her from the hotel as long as possible. You can do it far better than I, for she will not suspect you of any interest in this affair. Tell her any lie you can think up on account of Hawley's absence. Good Lord, old man, can't you see this is your chance; go in and win."

Fairbain struggled to his feet, still a bit dazed and uncertain, yet tempted by the opporunity.

"You're perfectly sure, Keith, this isn't anything that will hurt the girl?"

"Sure! Of course I am. It's just Hawley I'm gunning after. For God's sake, haven't you got that clear yet?"

"I—I reckon I'm an old fool, Jack," admitted the Doctor regretfully, "and when an old fool is in love he hasn't got any sense left. Anyhow, I'll do what you want me to now. Where are you going?"

"To watch those others. There is no knowing what play Hawley might try to pull off, and I want to keep within gunshot of him. Hurry up, man; that vestibule door creaked just then."

He shoved him down the dark alley, and dodged back himself across the front of the tent out into the street. There was a crowd of men in front of the Trocadero, but the couple he sought were nowhere in sight.

CHAPTER XXIX.

BY FORCE OF ARMS.

With her heart throbbing fiercely, Hope clung to the outer door of the vestibule endeavouring to see a little of what was transpiring without. About her was dense darkness, and she dare not explore the surroundings. Behind could be heard, through what must have been a thin partition, the various distractions of the stage, shifting scenery, music, shuffling feet, voices, and the occasional sound of applause. The girl had forced herself to the encounter with Hawley but this waiting here in darkness and uncertainty tried her to the uttermost. If some one should venture out that way how could she excuse her presence or explain her purpose She found herself trembling in every limb from nervous fear, startled by every strange sound. Would the man never come. Surely Christie herself must be ready to depart by this time.

Almost prepared to flee before the terrors thus conjured up within her mind, they left her as if by magic the moment her straining eyes distinguished the approach of a dim figure without. She could not tell who it was, only that it was the unmistakable form of a man, and that he was whistling softly o himself. It might not prove to be the gambler, but she must accept the chance, for flesh and blood could stand the strain of waiting no longer. Yet she was not conscious of fear, only of exultation, as she stepped forth into the open, her blood again circulating freely in her veins. At the slight creak of the door the man saw her, his whistle ceasing, his hat lifted. Instantly she recognized him as Hawley, her heart leaped with the excitement of encounter.

"Why, hullo, Christie," he said familiarly, "I thought I was early, and expected a ten minutes' wait. I came out as soon as you left the stage."

"Oh, I can dress in a jiffy when there is any cause for hurry," Hope responded, permitting herself to drift under his guidance. "Are you disappointed? Would you prefer to commune with nature"

"Well, I should say not," drawing her hand through his arm, and then patting it with his own. "I have seen about all I care to of nature, but not of Christie Maclaire."

"You may learn to feel the same regarding her," Hope answered, afraid to encourage the man, yet playing her part aright.

"Not the slightest danger," laughing lightly, and pressing her arm more closely against his body. "Although I must confess you exhibited some temper when I was late tonight."

"Did I not have occasion to? A woman should never be kept waiting, especially if her engagement be imperative."

"Oh, I am not finding any fault, you little spitfire. I like you all the better because you fight. But the trouble was, Christie, you simply jumped on me without even asking how it occurred. You took it for granted I was late on purpose to spite you."

"Well, weren't you?" and the girl glanced inquiringly up into his face, as they passed out of the alley into the light of the Trocadero's windows. "You certainly acted that way."

"No, I did not; but you wouldn't listen, and besides I had no time then to explain. There's a lot hapened this afternoon I want to tell you about. Will you give me time to talk with you?"

"Why, of course," surprised at the question, yet full of eagerness. "Why should you ask that?"

"Because I want you alone where no one can overhear a syllable. I'm afraid of that d——d hotel. You never know who is in the next room, and the slightest whisper travels from one end to the other. That is one way in which Keith got on to our deal—he had a room next to Willoughby and Scott, and overheard them talking. I'm not going to take any more chances. Will you go to 'Sheeny Joe's' with me?"

She drew back from him.

"'Sheeny Joe's'? You mean the saloon near the depot?"

"Sure; what's the use of being so squeamish? You sing and dance to a saloon crowd, don't you. Oh, I know you're a good girl, Christie, and all that. I'm not ranking you with these fly-by-nights around here. But there's no reason that I can see why you should shy so at a saloon. Besides, you won't see any one. Joe has got some back rooms where he can be alone, and have a bite to eat while we're talking. What do you say?"

"Oh, I would rather not," Hope faltered, bewildered by this unexpected request, already half-tempted to break away and run. "Really I—I don't want to go there."

Hawley was evidently surprised at this refusal, naturally supposing from her life that Miss Maclaire's scruples would be easily overcome. This obstinacy of the girl aroused his anger.

"You women beat the devil," he ejaculated, gruffly, "pretending to be so d——n particular. Maybe you'd rather stand out there on the prairie and talk?" with a sweep of his hand around the horizon.

"Yes, I would," catching desperately at the straw. "I'm not afraid of you; I'm not blaming you at all, only I—I don't want to go to 'Sheeny Joe's.'"

He looked at her, puzzled at her attitude, and yet somewhat reassured by her expression of confidence. Oh, well, what was the difference? It might be better to let her have her own way, and the change would not materially interfere with his plans. Of course, it would be pleasanter sitting together at one of Joe's tables, but he could talk just as freely out yonder under the stars. Besides, it might be as well now to humour the girl.

"All right, Christie," his voice regaining its pleasant tone. "You shall have your way this time. There is too much at stake for us to quarrel over this."

Frightened, yet not daring to resist or exhibit the least reluctance, she clung to his arm, and permitted him to lead her right down a dark passage and out into the open land beyond. He had to feel his way carefully, and scarcely spoke, yet proceeded as though the passage was reasonably familiar and he had some definite point in view. She answered in monosyllables, now thoroughly regretful of having permitted herself to drift into this position, yet not in the least knowing how to eliminate herself. Hawley took everything for granted, her very silence convincing him of her acquiescence. With throbbing pulse, Hope felt he small revolver hidden within her dress, undoing a button so that, in emergency, she might grasp it more quickly. Hawley felt the movement, the trembling of her arm.

"You are afraid, just the same," he said, pressing her to him lover-like. "Darkness always gets on a woman's nerves."

"Yes, that and loneliness," resenting his familiarity. "Do we need to go any farther? Surely we are alone here."

"Only a few steps; the ravine is yonder, and we can sit down on the rocks. I want to smoke, and we will be entirely out of sight there."

He helped her down the rather sharp declivity until both were thoroughly concealed below the prairie level. Feeling about with his hands he found the surface of a smooth rock, and seated her upon it. Then a match flared, casting an instant's gleam across his face as he lighted his cigr. Blacker than ever the night shut down about them, and he groped for a seat beside her. She could perceive just one star peering through a rift of cloud, and in her nostrils was the pungent odour of tobacco. With a little shiver of disgust she drew slightly away from him, dreading what was to come. One thing alone she felt was in her favour—however familiar Hawley attempted to be, he was evidently not yet sufficiently sure of Miss Maclaire to become entirely offensive. She might not have frowned at his love-making, but apparently he had not yet progressed sufficiently far in her good graces to venture to extremes. Hope pressed her lips together, determined to resist any further approach of the man. However, his earliest words were a relief.

"I reckon, Christie," he said slowly, between puffs on his cigar, the lighted end of which faintly illumined his face, "you've got the idea I have brought you out here to make love. Lord knows I'd like to well enough, but just now there's more important matters on hand. Fact is, my girl, we're up against a little back-set, and have got to make a shift in our plans—a mighty quick shift, too," he added, almost savagely.

"I—I don't think I understand."

"No, of course you don't. You imagine all we've got to do in a matter of this kind is to step into the nearest court and draw the money. One trouble is, our evidence isn't complete—we've got to find that woman who brought you up."

"Oh!" said Hope, not knowing what else to say.

"Yes," he went on, apparently satisfied with her exclamation. "Of course, I know she's dead, or at least, you say so, but we haven't got enough proof without her—not the way old Waite promises to fight your claim—and so we've got to hnut for a substitute. Do you happen to know any old woman about the right age who would make affidavit for you? She probably wouldn't have to go to the stand at all. Waite will cave in as soon as he knows we've got the evidence."

He waited for an answer, but she hardly knew what to say. Then she remembered that Keith insisted that Miss Maclaire had no conception that there was any fraud in her claim.

"No, I know no one. But what do you mean I thought everything was straight That there was no question about my right to inherit?"

"Well, there isn't, Christie," pulling fiercely on his cigar. "But the courts are particular; they have got to have the whole thing in black and white. I thought all along I could settle the entire matter with Waite outside, but the old fool won't listen to reason. I saw him twice to-day."

"Twice?" surprise wringing the word from her.

"Yes; thought I had got him off on a false scent and out of the way, the first time but he turned up again like a bad penny. What's worse, he's evidently stumbled on to a bit of legal information which makes it safer for us to disappear until we can get the links of our chain forged. He's taken the case into court already, and the sheriff is here tryin' to find me so as to serve the papers. I've got to skip out, and so've you."

"I?" rising to her feet, indignantly. "What have I done to be frightened over?"

He laughed, but not pleasantly.

"Oh, h——, Christie, can't you understand? Old Waite is after you the same way he is me. It'll knock our whole case if he can get into court before our evidence is ready. All you know is what I have told you—that's straight enough—but we've got to have proof. I can get it in a month, but he's got hold of something which gives him leverage. I don't know what it is—maybe it's just a bluff—but the charge is conspiracy, and he's got warrants out. There is nothing for us to do but skip."

"But my clothes; my engagement?" she urged, feeling the insistent earnestness of the man, and sparring for delay. "Why, I cannot go. Besides, if the sheriff is hunting us, the trains will be watched."

"Do you suppose I am fool enough to risk the trains?" he exclaimed, roughly, plainly losing patience. "Not much; horses and the open plains for us, and a good night the start of them. They will search for me first, and you'll never be missed until you fail to show up at the Trocadero. Never mind the clothes; they can be sent after us."

"To-night!" she cried, awakening to the immediate danger, and rising to her feet. "You urge me to fly with you to-night?—now"

"Sure, don't be foolish and kick up a row. The horses are here waiting just around the end of the ravine."

She pressed her hands to her breast, shrinking away from him.

"No! No! I will not go!" she declared, indignantly. "Keep back! Don't touch me!"

Hawley must have expected the resistance, for with a single movement he grasped her even as she turned to fly, pinning her arms helplessly to her side, holding her as in a vice.

"Oh, but you will, my beauty," he growled. "I thought you might act up and I'm ready. Do you think I am fool enough to leave you here alone to be pumped dry? It is a big stake I'm playing after, girl, and I am not going to lose it through the whims of a woman. If you won't go pleasantly, then you'll go by force. Keep still, you tigress! Do you want me to choke you?"

She struggled to break loose, twisting and turning, but the effort was useless. Suddenly he whistled sharply. There was the sound of feet scrambling down the path, and the frightened woman perceived the dim outlines of several approaching men. She gave one scream, and Hawley released his grip on her arms to grasp her throat.

She jerked away, half-stumbling backward over a rock. The revolver, carried concealed in her dress, was in her hand. Mad with terror, scarcely knowing wht she did, she pulled the trigger. In the flash she saw one man throw up his hands and go down. The next instant the others were upon her.

Lowering the Cost

REDUCED to its simplest terms, the price of an article is the cost of material, labor of manufacture, transportation, distribution, sale, and delivery—plus a profit on each of these.

Let us take the case of a fountain pen to show what price is.

First, the materials must be produced—the rubber in Para—the gold in South Africa or the Yukon—iridium in Siberia.

Then all these must be transported to the factory. There the rubber is vulcanized into holders; the gold refined and stamped into points; the iridium tipped on to the gold; and so on.

The labor operations on a fountain pen run well over the hundred mark, and expensive machinery is required for almost every one of them.

Manufacturing completed, the pens are sold to jobbers and retailers—transported hundreds and thousands of miles. And profits are taken at every step, remember that.

After the wholesale distribution, the retail sale is made—delivery completed, and the pen at last put to its destined use.

Suppose you have paid $2.50 for one of the standard well-known fountain pens. Do you begin to realize what an imposing number of things that $2.50 has paid for? Haven't you a pretty clear idea that, if these operations were applied to the making of one single pen, it would break an oil magnate to buy it?

Is it not perfectly plain that Quantity controls price by one of the simplest of natural laws?

Para rubber by the shipload—gold and iridium by pounds instead of milligrammes—labor of thousands organized and directed—transportation in car lots—and sales by the million—to every schoolboy, stenographer, business man—to every one who writes.

It is all this gigantic expenditure, divided by the countless units of millions of sales, that makes it possible to buy a fountain pen for $2.50. The more sales, the smaller becomes the cost of the unit.

We know that Advertising has raised Quality.

We know it has standardized prices.

And now we see that Advertising increases sales, shortens the road between producer and consumer—and lowers prices.

Advice regarding your advertising problems is available through any recognized Canadian advertising agency, or through the Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Room 503 Lumsden Building, Toronto. Enquiry involves no obligation on your part—so write if interested.

Good Form

Social Amenities of the Schoolgirl.

If there is one way more than another in which a young girl can show bad form it is in the way she treats the less acquaintances of an older sister. Sad to relate, the type of pert younger sister exists, even flourishes, unless there be a strong hand to put her down. And heedless older persons frequently laugh at her and the girl succeeds in "fussing" her older sister the younger one considers herself a huge success and continues in a manner or with lack of it calculated to create a prejudice against herself that only long years can wipe out.

If there is ever a time when a young girl will do well to keep herself out of the way it is when the friends of her older sister are present. Grownup persons, parents and their friends have a certain toleration of children, little or big, which girls and boys of nineteen and twenty cannot be expected to have. There really isn't any use in a little sister making herself unpopular, even if she does create a laugh while so doing, and there is no question that she will be heartily under the ban of an older sister whom the other makes a target for her sharp tongue or whose secrets she "gives away" because the child thinks they are funny.

To tell the truth, it is not only the grown girl who will appear better by the younger one's absence, but the "little sister" herself will gain greater popularity. Grown girls and men who go to see one of their own set do not care to have their time and attention monopolized by one who is too young for their notice or at least whom they consider to be such. Yet because they are well bred they must be polite to her, being annoyed proportionately.

One great objection to a young girl's being with her older sister's friends and probably the strongest reason why she should not be is the almost irresistible temptation to talk personalities, frankly to tell what she knows, not always stopping there, but unconsciously exaggerating. It is not at all improbable that the others may find this amusing, even instructive, in the side lights thrown on the characteristics of older sister and her friends, but that, as a rule, is far from desirable. If it is a joke the younger girl tells or a personal fact that would be unknown save for her it is remembered in the set of acquaintances and also that the younger one divulged.

The listeners may be highly interested at the time, unwittingly flattering the juvenile talker by their attention, but it counts against her later, just the same. Not only does she make herself vastly unpopular with her own family, but outsiders are prone to consider her a "terror," saying, "She ought to be suppressed," themselves developing a fear of her tongue that makes them prefer her absence to her presence.

The same is true if the younger sister refrains from personalities and merely occupies the attention of her sister's friends in other ways. She puts herself forward then undesirably. She gains the reputation of being pert, and instead of their regarding her as a sweet and attractive young girl they think of her as one to be avoided.

The surest way out of the temptation of being funny at the expense of an older sister and her friends is to keep away from where they are.

That does not preclude "having fun" with the older sister when there is no one else about.

Dress Etiquette.

"Last night," said the woman who notices things, "I was at a big affair and sat next the most disagreeable woman I have ever yet experienced. And it was all because she was wearing a hat."

"I know," murmured the aesthetic girl, "just how an ugly hat makes you feel about loving your neighbor."

"But this," went on the woman who notices things, "wasn't an ugly hat. It wasn't even a shabby one. On the contrary, it was an expensive and up to date affair, and when its wearer's features were in their everyday pattern I have no doubt that it was becoming. The trouble was that the other women present wanted to wear big hats at all, but sat in all the formality of bare heads and shoulders. It was one of those affairs which are not easily classed, when you have to guess at the correct attire and every other woman has guessed differently from the one who had come in a hat.

"Instead of making the best of a blunder and taking her hat off, this woman seemed to be trying to convince herself that her guests had been right after all and that all the rest of us were foolish creatures who dressed beyond our incomes and our stations. The effort made her furious. I thought her a most pathetic and humiliating spectacle. I am sure that we exaggerated the importance of dress."

"So do I," said the woman who notices things. "Then we might have time to get something that really satisfied us, if only once in a lifetime."

"I think," the youngest woman put in as she crossed one slim ankle over the other, "I should choose a white wool sweater and a white skirt. As I wouldn't have any other outside garments. I could afford to have them washed as often as I liked."

"I would have a silk gown for summer and a soft woolen one for winter," said the woman who notices things. "They would both wash and both be embroidered."

Georgia Girl in Japan.

Miss Marie De Jarnet Norris is a Georgia girl who has lived a great deal of late years in Japan and writes most entertainingly of her work in that country. She is a portrait painter. She painted the portrait of Princess Murokama, whom she describes as a most cultivated woman, a philosopher, princess and poet. She also painted the portrait of Prince Katsura and other members of the royal family and is enthusiastic in her praise of them.

FIRST APPLICATION DARKENS THE HAIR

A Simple Remedy Gives Colour, Strength and Beauty to the Hair.

You don't have to have gray hair or faded hair if you don't want to. Why look old or unattractive? If your hair is gray or faded, you can change it easily, quickly and effectively by using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. Apply a little to-night, and in the morning you will be agreeably surprised at the results from a single application. The gray hairs will be less conspicuous, and after a few more applications will be restored to natural colour.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur also quickly removes dandruff, leaves the scalp clean and healthy, and promotes the growth of hair. It is a clean wholesome dressing which may be used at any time with perfect safety.

Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist to-day, and see how quickly it will restore the youthful colour and beauty of your hair and forever end the nasty dandruff, hot, itchy scalp and falling hair. All druggists sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if you are not satisfied after fair trial.

Flags at Half Mast.

Perhaps you have noticed that whenever a prominent person dies, especially if he is connected with the government, the flags on public buildings are hoisted only part of the way up. This is called half mast. Did you ever stop to think what connection there could be between a flag that was not properly hoisted and the death of a great man?

Ever since flags were used in war it has been the custom to have the flag of the superior or conquering nation above that of the inferior or vanquished. When an army found itself hopelessly beaten it hauled its flag down far enough for the flag of the victors to be placed above it on the same pole. This was a token not only of submission, but of respect.

In those days when a famous soldier died flags were lowered out of respect to his memory. The custom long ago passed from purely military usage to public life of all kinds, the flag flying at half mast being a sign that the dead man was worthy of universal respect.

The Fox and the Crow.

A crow is sitting on the tree.
She has some cheese in her mouth.
Along comes a sly old fox.
"How I would like to have that cheese," he thinks.
"How can I get it?"
He looks up at the crow and smiles.
"Dear crow, how pretty you are," he says.
"I know you can sing sweetly.
"Will you sing for me?"
"What a nice fox," thinks the crow.
"No one ever told me before how tweetly I sang.
"I will sing for him."
She opens her mouth to sing.
Down falls the cheese to the ground!
There, the fox has it!
See him run!

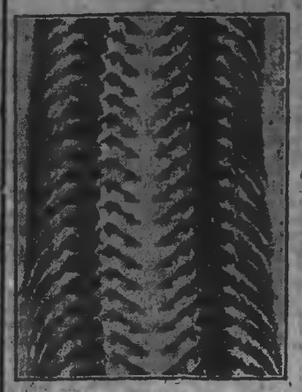
For the Children

A Section of a Snail's Tongue.



This queer looking picture is that of a section of the tongue of a snail. The tongue is greatly magnified to show the rasping teeth.

A snail eats by rasping off small particles with the tongue. This tongue is a narrow band or ribbon with pointed teeth set in rows across it. The common slug, often found in damp places, has more than 25,000 teeth on the tongue, which act like the ridges on a file and scrape the food into the mouth. I once watched with a magnifying lens, says a writer in St. Nicholas Magazine, a small water snail feeding as it slowly crawled up the side of an aquarium, and, although I made no very accurate count, the tongue seemed to be pressed against the glass about forty times a minute.

Man and Object.

Two persons go out of the room and, after agreeing together as to what they shall represent, come back again and sit down side by side in front of the company. One of the two takes the part of some well known person, and the other represents an object which is closely connected with that person. For instance, George Washington and the hatchet or Roosevelt and the big stick, the king of England and his crown, etc.

After the two take their seats the other players in turn ask each of them a question, to which both the man and the object must answer only "Yes" or "No" until the right person and the right article have been guessed. The first player may perhaps ask the man, "Are you alive?" The man will answer "Yes" or "No" according to the character he represents. Then the object may be asked, "Are you made of wood?" "No." Then the second player in order asks a question of each, and so on along the line until all have had a turn at questioning or until the person and object have been rightly guessed.

Suffered Greatly With Her Heart.

Became So Weak At Times Could Hardly Walk.

Many people may be unaware of having anything wrong with their heart till some excitement, overwork, or confinement in an overheated or overcrowded room, or public building makes them feel faint and dizzy.

On the first sign of any weakness of the heart or nerves, flagging energy or physical breakdown, you should not wait until you case becomes desperate before you avail yourself of a perfect cure by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. D. McGilvery, Bathurst, N.B., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I suffered greatly with my heart and became so weak at times I could hardly walk. A friend of mine advised me to try your Pills, which I did, and soon found great relief. They are the best medicine I have ever taken for heart trouble."

CANADA'S BUILDING RETURNS FOR APRIL SHOW 44 PER CENT. INCREASE

April Permits Only $3,000,000 Less Than Those For First Three Months of This Year.

WEST GETTING [illegible]

Permits were issued during April in thirty-three Canadian cities for buildings, with an approximate value of $20,689,200, which is 44.5 per cent. in advance of the permits granted in the same cities in April, 1911. A comparison of April's figures reveals the fact that they are, after eliminating a few cities whose returns have been received erratically, somewhere in the neighborhood of but three million dollars less than the combined returns for January, February, and March. By dividing the cities of Port Arthur into eastern and western divisions, it is found that the east has turned a decrease, shown in March, and a one cent. gain for the first quarter, into the satisfactory advance of 20.3 per cent. The western section shows a large gain of 64.2 per cent., and this in spite of the fact that in many of the cities it was not expected that the high level of last April would be exceeded.

Toronto, although showing a decrease, has the largest total, the decrease being explained by the number of large buildings included in last April's permits. Eight cities are above the million mark, Toronto and Montreal in the East, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver, Saskatoon, and Moose Jaw in the West. No decreases are shown in the West, and only two in the East, St John's and Toronto's declines being 49.6 and 13.1 per cent. respectively.

One noticeable feature this month is the absence of many extremely large percentage increases, as well as the lack of any considerable amount of decreases. Only one gain is above 500 per cent., that shown by Medicine Hat being 947 per cent. Permits for three business blocks, two factories, and a hotel, are accountable for this large increase. Edmonton ranks next to Medicine Hat with a 485 per cent. advance, and Maisonneuve, Brantford, Chatham and Moose Jaw are next in order, all with gains above 300 per cent. Port Arthur and Fort William headed the March figures with respective gains of 1133 and 1806 per cent. This month, however, the increases are much smaller, 23 and 12 per cent. respectively. Although Winnipeg's increase—3.3 per cent.—is small in proportion to those usually shown, it will be noted that last year's total was exceptionally large.

The largest gain in actual figures is shown by Edmonton. Moose Jaw, whose increase itself is larger than the total of any previous month in its history, comes next. Other large gains are shown by Calgary, Vancouver, Medicine Hat, Prince Albert, and Saskatoon, whose gains are all above $250,000.

Reports from the western cities, especially, lay emphasis on the large number of dwellings included in these permits. In Moose Jaw and Vancouver, for example, permits for residences make up 28 per cent. and 25 per cent. of the total valuation of the April permits. In Vancouver, if apartment and rooming houses are included, the amount is 60 per cent. of the total.

Comparing the permits for the four months' period with those of the same period last year, only three cities show a decrease, these being Montreal, Toronto, and St John. The gains vary, of course, but Victoria's, perhaps, is the most striking. The permits issued in that city up to the 30th of April are considerably over three-quarters of the total valuation of permits issued in 1911.

With this large amount of building, added to that which is already under construction, started or soon to be started, not to consider municipal undertakings and railroad extension, it needs no prophetic vision to see that labour and capital in Canada for some time to come will be employed to their fullest capacity.

Peterboro's figures for April, 1911, were $82,345. The returns for the same month this year are $18,308, but this does not include the new C.G.E. building. The returns for April this year are easily over $60,000

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

An Old Letter

There were two letters on his desk this morning.

Baron Charles de Noalles' hand trembled as he picked them up. He had recognized the handwriting of the one on top. So his son had written at last. Nearly two years had passed since he had left his home, and every day Baron Charles had thought, "Tomorrow I will surely get a letter from him."

But now that he actually held his son's letter in his hand his old anger against him returned.

He distinctly remembered every word of their last conversation. It had taken place in this very room. His son had stood on the spot where the rays of the sun now fell on the heavy carpet. It was in the spring, just like now, and he remembered a thrush singing outside the window as he gave his son the choice between giving up the girl he loved or leave his ancestral home forever. And, with calm and clear voice, his son's answer had come, "I am sorry, very sorry, father, but I cannot do what you ask; I cannot give her up, so there is nothing for me to do but to leave you."

And then he, Baron Charles de Noalles, had actually condescended to make generous offers to make his son give up the woman who trusted and loved him. He had told him that he had dragged an honorable name down when he married an actress, a most contemptible creature. Why had he used this expression? He knew very well that he was wrong in doing so, and no breath of scandal had ever touched this woman who had won his son's heart. And George was proud, of course he was proud, being a de Noalles, and a true son of Baron Charles.

In bitter, angry words he had told his father what he thought of a man who would thus slander an honorable woman, and left the house. At the memory of this scene the face of the old baron grew stern and stony and he pressed his lips tightly together. How had his son, the future head of an old noble family, dared to marry a plain actress?

He looked at the envelope once more and examined the stamp. He would not open it until after breakfast. Most likely his son wrote to tell him that she had left him, as most women of her class do in the end. Of course she had run away with a handsomer and richer young man. That she was beautiful no one could deny, who had ever seen her on the stage. Well, it would be an easy matter for his son to get a divorce without any scandal or publicity. Money and influence are able to accomplish wonders nowadays, and Baron Charles possessed both. Then after a while George might return and marry the Countess de Martilly, as he had always hoped he would.

Baron Charles waited patiently until he had finished his breakfast and the valet had closed the library door behind him. Then he began to read the letter. But what was this? He could hardly believe his own eyes.

The letter did not contain a word of what he had hoped; on the contrary George only told of how happy his wife had made him. Not for a single moment had he had cause to regret his choice. He had become an actor himself, and had met with great success. His son an actor. His son on the stage. And they had a baby whom they had named Charles. And George asked him to forgive and forget and let him come home again with his wife and child.

Baron Charles clinched his hands, digging his nails into the flesh. The veins in his temple swelled and a furious anger arose within him against them both—nay, even against the baby he had never seen. His son an actor. His son's wife an actress, and his grandson, the future of his estates, the fruit of a disgraceful union.

He tore the letter into little bits. Never as long as he was alive should any of them cross his threshold. He at least knew what he owed to dignity of his ancestors.

With a deep sigh he leaned back in his chair. He felt suddenly tired. Slowly he ran his fingers through his sparse gray hair and stared into space before him. Then his eye fell upon the other letter lying still unopened on his desk. He saw it was an official document and opened it mechanically, indifferently. It contained two papers, one a letter from the general postoffice, informing him that the letter inclosed had accidentally been found in an old mail bag which had not been opened for many years, and an humble apology for the negligence.

The address of the envelope awakened old memories in his mind. It had been opened and the stamp on it was no longer in use. His name was almost unreadable. He took out the letter, which still had a faint odor of violets. The delicate handwriting was pale and yellow.

Baron Charles put on his glasses and read: "My darling"—Was this letter really for him? Had there really ever existed anyone who would call him "my darling"? Of course it must be so, but it was so many years ago that he no longer remembered. He turned the letter over and looked at the signature: "Always your loving Rose."

He shuddered as he read these words. She who had written them had been dead for many years. It was really a letter from Rose—the girl whom he had loved passionately when his heart was still young.

He had not written her for two whole days, although every day he had thought, "Tomorrow I will surely get a letter from him." How he had hoped that she was looking eagerly for the arrival of the letter-carrier every day, and almost cried when he passed her door! Surely he did not love her as she loved him, or he would have sent her a letter by every mail. But now of course he would write her a long letter and know it would get her an answer by next mail.

As Baron Charles read on the expression on his face softened, his lips trembled, and the tears ran down his cheeks.

The memories of his youth overwhelmed him, memories that had been buried many years. What a fool he had been. Why had he listened to all those worldly wise counselors? Why had not he had courage to brave everybody and remain faithful to the lovely woman who loved him with all her innocent heart and who was the only one he had ever loved?

What had he gained? Nothing at all, while he had lost a whole life's happiness. At this moment he felt like a beggar. In a flash he saw the truth, and realised his whole wasted cheerless life. But this letter from his first and only love had a message for him even today, thought it was not written on the paper.

The letter seemed to say: "Remember our love—consider well that you are about to drive away your son, because he is not such a coward as you were yourself."

He hid his face in his hands and thought of the many years that had passed. Never had he felt as old as he did now.

Then he roused himself and wrote in a trembling hand:

"My Dear George—It is I who must ask you to forgive and forget. If you can do this I shall count the hours until you return with your wife and my little grandson.

"Your affectionate father,
"Charles de Noalles."

WASTED TIME AND MONEY

BEFORE THEY FOUND GIN PILLS

GALETTA, ONT.

"My husband used Gin Pills for Backache and Kidney Disease. The pain in his back was dreadful and the kidneys failed to do their work properly. As he became worse, we found it necessary to begin treatment and unfortunately wasted time and money on remedies that were little or no good. After taking one dose of GIN PILLS, he found them to be exactly what he needed, and after taking two boxes of GIN PILLS, was completely cured. We heartily recommend GIN PILLS, at every opportunity to our friends and relatives". Mrs. JAMES B. MILFORD.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

Saves Worry, Saves Money, Saves the Hair

If you want to free your head of dandruff and stop falling hair, you must sooner or later resort to Newbro's Herpicide.

By using Herpicide first you save yourself worry, which is desirable, you save money, which is a consideration, and you save your hair, which is the most important of all.

Why not profit by the experience of Mrs. S. A. Lee, of 110 South 4th St., Richmond, Va., who writes:

"Four years' residence in India ruined my hair until it was but two inches long and very thin. I tried everything in Europe and America without benefit until I was induced to use Herpicide. My hair is now long, soft and silky and natural colour, while before it was quite gray. My friends never tire of admiring my hair."

Mrs. Lee's story is a typical history of hair troubles. After everything else fails Newbro's Herpicide brings relief. It would be just as effective if used first.

Newbro's Herpicide kills the dandruff germ and prevents falling hair. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly. No matter what the claims of others, Herpicide is the only genuine original dandruff germ destroyer.

Pay Warrants For Veterans

First Issue Commenced Yesterday—Local Veterans Have Yet to Receive Theirs

TORONTO, MAY 14.— Government made the first issuance of pay warrants to the veterans of the Fenian Raids in 1866 and 1870, who were recently granted $100 as a recognition of their bravery in responding to the call to arms when the invasion threatened.

Major J. H. Collins explains the delay in the issuance as being due to the extremely large number of applications, and the lack of information in many cases. Between eight and ten thousand warrants will be issued.

The Local Veterans.

The many Fenian raid veterans of this city, of whom there is a considerable number, will be pleased to note the foregoing action on the part of the government. As far as can be learned, none of the veterans of this city have received their grants. In view of the large number of applications filed, it may be several days before the local veterans receive their pay warrants.

INSURE YOUR RENTALS

Are your Rentals insured? It is surprising how many property owners lose their rent incomes through fire and have no protection. GLIDDEN ORCHESTRA PLEASED HASTINGS

Recent Happenings in the Village on the Trent

HASTINGS, MAY 14.—A real treat was furnished on Friday night in the Town Hall to those who assembled to listen to the "Glidden Orchestra" of Peterboro, under the direction of Professor Glidden. As the several number were of a high-class order of merit, they were such that all lovers of good music could fully appreciate, and were much enjoyed.

Mr and Mrs W. Atkinson have got comfortably settled in their new home, and are ready to receive their friends.

The regular quarterly communion service was held in the Methodist Church on Sunday morning, Rev. T. Anderson officiating.

The members of the W.M.S. met in the church parlour on Thursday afternoon, when a very instructive and interesting programme was given, after which the children of the Mission Band held their regular monthly meeting.

Mr and Mrs Oakman are making preparations for an extended trip across the continent and through the southern states.

Mr and Mrs G. Buchanan, of Harcloch, have been guests of the latter's mother, Mrs J. Carter.

Mr J. Andrews, of Norwood, gave us a call on Friday.

Miss Mable Laing, of Norwood, was in town on Sunday.

We are pleased to learn that Mrs M. Doxee is recovering from her recent illness.

House-cleaning is the order of the day, and the men are going about with long faces, not knowing what orders are awaiting them when they arrive home in the evening.

Mr R. Lees, of Peterboro, has been making a tour of this district in his official capacity as P.S. Inspector.

Miss Hilda West attended the "at home" in the Town Hall at Havelock recently.

Mr Breckenridge, of Westwood, was in town this week. The Squire, despite his many years, is looking hale and hearty.

Mrs F. Runnels has been chosen a delegate to represent the Hastings branch of the W.M.S. at the branch meeting which is to be held in Belleville early in June.

Mr P. Preston is erecting a fine new residence on his farm near town. The structure will be of white brick, which is being laid by Mr T. Hill and assistants.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of little Orville Ausbin Griffin, who fell asleep in Jesus, May 11th, 1910, aged 4 yrs., 9 months and 22 days.
Gone, but not forgotten.

We loved him, yes we loved him,
But Jesus loved him more,
And so He sweetly called him
To yonder shining shore.

The pearly gates were opened,
A gentle voice said "Come,"
And with farewells unspoken,
Dear Orville entered home.

The Elementary Grades Union will meet on Tuesday, 14th at 8 p.m., in St. Paul's S. S. Room.

A Graded Union is an organization of Sunday School Teachers of two or more departments, from various denominations, meeting regularly to help each other to improve the character and conditions of the work, by supplying immediate needs, forming higher ideals, and gaining knowledge and teaching ability.

The union aims to keep in the forefront of al ldesirable progress and ti encourage improved methods, by planning work adapted to the nature and needs of the scholars at the different stages of their development.

The transition to the graded lesson has emphasized the need of more definite grading and separation of departments, suitable equipment, regular promotions and adaptation of teaching.

Better work in the elementary grade will create the need for better work beyond it.

The object of the Union shall be:

(1) To provide mutual acquaintance by Christian fellowship and prayer.

(2) To study approved courses of training on books recommended for specialization.

(3) To stimulate active interest in the study of children, and all that pertains to their development, physical, mentral, moral and spiritual.

(4) To discuss topics relating to the work, and to confer about problems and needs.

(5) To provide for the exposition and presentation of Sunday School lessons for the various departments represented.

(6) To assist in the interdenominational movements which will further the work of the Sunday School.

Al lteachers of children up to the age of 12, and any desiring to train for teachers, may become members of the Union.

The executive hope to meet a large representation from the city Sunday Schools at this the first meeting of the recently organized union.

All conneced with the following departments are expected to be present: Cradle Roll, Beginners Primary and Junior.

The Cause Of Spring Fatigue And How It Can Be Avoided

Lucky the woman who enjoys the glorious Springtime with all the enthusiasm of bounding health. She has either not overrushed during the social season or is blessed with wonderful vitality. Most of us feel distinctly weary and find it hard to conquer.

Spring fever is mirth-provoking. Yet scientists tell us it is a painfully real condition, as real as the hookworm or sleeping sickness.

Instead of blaming it on the weather or trying to force yourself to uncomfortable activity, hunt the cause. There is sure to be a reason for it, and if you fail to discover it you may hurt your health, and certainly hurt the pleasure of living.

Often it is a sluggish liver. The activities and heavy eating of Winter months leave their trail, and there are few digestions so perfect that an overhauling is not needed in the Spring.

Do not get the liver-pill habit. Nothing is more fatal. Use remedies only by advice of a doctor, originally, and if you have a prescription that suits you do not overwork it for every fancied ailment.

WHAT TO EAT.

Often all that is needed is a gentle stimulant for the liver. Lemon and water provides this in a safe way. Drink a glass of water, preferably hot, with half a lemon in it each morning on arising, and again at night, and you will soon cease to feel fatigued; but remember that it may reduce your weight.

Grapefruit is excellent for the liver, and is also a tonic, so eat freely of it as the Spring advances. Three times a day and again before retiring is none too often. Do not use sugar, as it creates an acid which these citrous fruits, like lemons, oranges, and grapefruit, do not have.

Plenty of water is a Spring essential. Take a glass of cold water on arising, another when finished dressing, and exercise vigorously before an open window for five minutes, and you will start the day with an energy that spring fever cannot quell. Try to drink at least two quarts of water a day, always a glass the last thing at night. If a half teaspoonful of salt is used in a cup of hot water at least once a day, especially by those with whom lemons do not agree, the liver will get over its sluggishness and the spirits will improve.

Many women of a bilious tendency take sodium phosphate for at least a fortnight each Spring. They dissolve from one to two teaspoonfuls in half a glass of hot water, taking it before breakfast.

Sometimes malaria is the cause of Spring lassitude, and the woman who feels sleepy and lazy will grow alert if she takes four grains of quinine every day for a week.

Often the blood needs purifying. Our grandmothers doted on sulphur and molasses, but the modern woman purifies more palatably. If she takes sulphur she gets a liquid preparation or capsules, but usually she substitutes diet for drugs.

REMEDIES THAT REMEDY.

The blood will improve if with the approach of Spring one eats less meat and goes in heavily for a diet of greens. Cress, dandelion, and carrot salad are blood purifiers, and lettuce with French dressing is not far behind. Instead of fighting the small child to take noxious tonics, give her five cents a day for several weeks for a glass of plain sarsaparilla. Her skin will promptly benefit, likewise her temper.

If eyes are bright and complexion clear, though there is decided lassitude, a general tonic will help. Each family has some favored prescription which should be taken regularly. A good, inexpensive tonic is made by pouring two quarts of boiling water over a five-cent package of boneset and taking a wineglass of it three times a day.

Often the feeling is pure fatigue. Nothing but rest will cure this. Instead of reproaching yourself for laziness, give in. Nothing builds one up so quickly as a few days at the seashore in the Spring. If that is out of the question, any change of air and scene is valuable. A day or two in bed, with open windows, will make you feel a new person.

Isn't it foolish to drag through two of the loveliest months of the year when by simple precautions you can be alert and happy?

The Master said: "It is only the truly virtuous man who can love or can hate others. A scholar whose mind is set on truth, and who is ashamed of bad clothes and bad food, is not fit to be discoursed with. The superior man thinks of virtue; the small man thinks of comfort. The superior man thinks of the sanction of law; the small man thinks of favors (which he may receive). The reason why the ancients did not readily give utterance to their words was that they feared their actions should not come up to them. Riches and honour are what men desire; if they cannot be obtained in the proper way, they should not be held. Poverty and meanness are what men dislike; if they cannot be avoided in the proper way, they should not be avoided. It is virtuous manners which constitute the excellence of a neighborhood. If a man in selecting a residence does not fix on one where such prevail, how can he be wise? Those who are without virtue cannot abide long in a condition of poverty and hardship or in a condition of enjoyment. The virtuous rest in virtue; the wise desire virtue."—From "The Analects" of Confucius.

Spring Tonics Real and Unreal

Some people use stimulating medicines in the spring. This is a mistake. The action of the heart is increased. You feel better for a time, but the reaction soons sets in. You are discounting the future by using up more rapidly the little strength you have left.

Get a real tonic—a true tonic, one which will increase the amount of pure, rich blood in the body, revitalize the feeble, wasted nerve cells, and so prove of lasting benefit to you.

A good example of a true tonic is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This food cure does not give you false hope, but gradually and naturally builds up the tired, worn-out system. You may not feel the benefits so quickly, but have the satisfaction of knowing that the gain you make is natural and lasting. There is no spring tonic half so satisfactory as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

RAILWAY NOTES

Mr. Sylvester Mackey, Grand Trunk cashier at Transcona, is on a vacation tour in the east. During his absence his duties will be filled by assistant cahier Mosmor.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Steamer "Prince Rupert" has been floated into dry dock at Esquimault in order to have her hull scraped and a new coat of paint applied. When this work is completed, she will be taken back to the yards of the British Columbia Marine Railway, where the big job of installing the tanks for oil equipment as an oil burner will be continued. Up to the present the plates for the reservoirs have all been fashioned and the work of rivetting them together in the space formerly utilized for the stowing of coal will be started at once. The furnaces are about finished, and everything will soon be ready for the installing of the burners. Painters and decorators are engaged with their brushes in beautifying the interior of the steamer, and, when she is ready for service, the passenger quarters should be very attractive.

Which Was Successful?

By Ruth Cameron

MOLLY, the little stenographer lady, was much stirred up. So was the last open fire of the season, before which we were sitting. "That woman" had stirred up Molly, and Molly stirred up the fire, a perfectly good fire, too—the want-to-be-cynic built it.

Molly had been job hunting, not for herself—Molly's employer is still in his right mind—but for another girl.

"You know, big sister," related Molly, "this girl has only had high school stenography, but she's the kind of a girl who will work her head off if you give her a chance, and she just had to have a position right off, and a friend of mine sent her to me, so, of course, I had to find her something. I thought of Miss Ellis right away. She's tremendously successful — she works for a big firm that employs ever so many girls, and they say she has great influence, so I knew a word from her would get my girl a chance. And then I remembered that Miss Ellis had only high school stenography when she started, and had a terrible time getting a place, so I felt sure she'd understand.

"Well, big sister," — Molly drew a long, sighing breath and poked the fire fiercely—"well, I hated to ask it because I could never abide the looks of her, but I remembered what a time I had getting my first position, so of course I went to her. And what DO you think she said?"

Molly paused dramatically, but no once seemed inclined to hazard a guess.

"Well," continued Molly, "she said, 'I came to this city with no more training than your friend had and in just as tight a place, and no one helped me get my position.' Then, of course, I thought she was going to say how hard it was and how she'd like to make it easier for this girl, but she didn't. Instead she just sat there glaring at me, and finally she said again, 'I guess I had about as hard a time as any girl could have, and nobody ever helped me.' And then I realized that she meant that as a reason why she wouldn't help the girl, instead of why she would, and I said 'Oh!' and got up and came out. And WHAT do you think of that, big sister?"

"Did any one help you to get your position, Molly?" asked the lady-who-always-knows-somehow.

"Why no," said Molly, "How could they? I didn't know any one. That's why I knew how it felt and wanted to help her."

Said the man-who-thinks, "Did I hear you call Miss Ellis successful?"

"O-I, yes," said Molly, "she's terribly successful. Why, they say she gets at least thirty dollars a week."

"And still a failure," murmured the man-who-thinks half to himself.

"Why, what do you mean by that?" said Molly.

"He means," said the wants-to-be-cynic, quite forgetting his proper role—and that was especially nice of him for Molly in the course of her "stirring" story had quite spoiled his perfectly good fire—"He means that we have the really successful stenographer right here with us."

And no one disputed his interpretation.

Middy Suit For the Wee Laddie.

STOMACH DISTRESS IS ENDED FOREVER

No Dyspepsia, Heartburn, Gas or Indigestion in Five Minutes

Take your sour, out-of-order stomach—or maybe you call it Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring, the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas, or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.

Doughnuts.

Beat three eggs till light, add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar. Beat again. Sift one level teaspoonful of soda into a cupful of sour cream, add to the sugar and eggs, then add one small teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of cinnamon and half a grated nutmeg. Mix with sufficient flour to make a soft dough. Roll about half an inch thick, cut out and fry in hot lard. It is a good plan to have the dough cut out all ready to fry before heating the lard.

He'd Failed So Often.

"Mr. Timmid has asked if he might call tonight. I think he wants to tell me that he loves me," said Miss Yerner.

"Oh," replied her sister, "that goes without saying!"

"Yes, and I'm afraid that he will too."—Catholic Standard and Times.

How She Felt.

Boudoir of the Kisses.

One of the strangest boudoirs in the world is that belonging to the Princess Abamelak-Lazarew of Florence, Italy, a member of the Russian family of the Demidoff.

The small room is in the famous villa of Pratolina, outside Florence, near Fiesole, and all the pictures, furniture, lights and ornaments represent the osculatory art. In the backs of chairs are cherubs in the act of kissing each other; in the chandeliers are pairs of doves with their beaks touching. Even the electric bell on the table near the princess' couch is made of two little peasant figures, and the sound comes only when their lips touch. There are dainty pictures of all the great love scenes in history and romance, the leavetaking of Romeo, the farewell of Mary Stuart and David Rizzio, the Huguenot lovers, Launcelot and Guinevere and their unhappy followers, Francesca da Rimini and Paolo. The cushions of fine embroidered silk or tapestry show rustic love scenes wherein the actors are saluting each other in vigorous fashion. The princess has passed years in gathering her Cupid trophies, and her room in that wonderful villa is filled with the treasures of the Medici.

Wash and pare potatoes and cut in one-third inch slices. Arrange on skewers in groups of three or four, parboil six minutes and drain. Brush over with melted butter, sprinkle with brown sugar and bake in a hot oven until well browned.

Sweet Potato Croquettes.

To two cupfuls of hot riced sweet potatoes add three tablespoonfuls of butter, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a few grains of pepper and one beaten egg. Shape into croquettes, dip in crumbs, egg and crumbs again, fry in deep fat and drain.

Sweet Potatoes, Southern Style.

Bake six medium sized sweet potatoes, remove from oven, cut in halves lengthwise and scoop out inside. Mash, add two tablespoonfuls of butter and cream to moisten. Season with salt, refill skins and bake five minutes in hot oven.

Salt With Vegetables.

A good vegetable rule is salt with vegetables that are green, no salt in those containing starch or grown underground. Most vegetables are put on in boiling water, though some housewives make exceptions to this rule.

LOSS OF EIGHT YET.

Gen. Orozco Says Rebels Are Still in the Ring.

Saltillo, Mexico, May 14.—(At Gen. Orozco's Headquarters.) — Conceding his defeat in the battle before Conejos, Gen. Pascual Orozco last night was by no means dispirited.

"The revolution has just begun," he said, "and we are confident that we will ultimately overthrow Madero for a just revolution will always triumph."

Gen. Orozco would not say how many men he had lost, but admitted that he had not heard from Gen. Campos and Gen. Aguirmando, whom he sent around to the west of Conejos with 2,000 men to flank the federals. [illegible] the federal army is engaged them and got [illegible] support.

Gen. Orozco was at a loss to understand rumors in circulation yesterday that he had been killed.

"Madero will find me very much alive before many days," said Orozco. Only skirmishing occurred yesterday. The rebels chiefly occupied themselves in recovering from Sunday's fight.

Gen. Enrile Will Recover.

Chihuahua, Mex., May 14.—The condition of Gonsalo C. Enrile, financial agent of Orozco, who was murderously assaulted here early yesterday, was last night unchanged. Enrile's four wounds, inflicted by knife and pistol, are not regarded as fatal. The identity of the assassins is unknown.

Enrile by his activity in the revolution during the last two months has made many political enemies. To him is attributed the financing of the present revolution on behalf of Bernardo Reyes Limantour, former Governor Terrazas and others once identified with the Diaz regime. Enrile opposed Vasquez Gomez and influenced Orozco to denounce him and it is believed Gomez supporters were behind the plot to assassinate him.

Not to Resign Yet.

Toronto, May 14.—Before severing his connection with Ontario politics, Hon. A. G. MacKay will consult his constituents in North Grey. So spoke the ex-leader of the Liberal party to an enquiry made at Edmonton yesterday. Said Mr. MacKay: "I am not in actual practice in Edmonton. I do not immediately intend severing my political relationship with my constituents in North Grey, but will consult them later."

The Liberals of the constituency are casting about, however, for a candidate. The names of Ald. John McQuaker, ex-Mayor Harrison and Mayor Lemon of Owen Sound, and Col. H. R. Cleland of Meaford are mentioned. C. S. Cameron of Owen Sound is favored as the Conservative candidate. Other names mentioned are J. K. Rutherford, Reeve T. W. Thomson, Dr. Howey and Rev. H. A. Fish of Owen Sound, and A. Carnahan of Meaford.

Brantford Boy Still Missing.

Brantford, May 14.—An all day search of the Grand River bed for one mile below the Grand Trunk bridge here yesterday by the city fire department, failed to reveal any trace of the body of Ivor Rhodes, the ten-year-old boy thought to have been drowned, and the authorities have almost concluded that the lad has run away from home. His parents do not believe that he has been drowned, and search of the river may not be resumed. Absolutely no trace has been secured of the missing lad since Wednesday night last.

Royal Party Return to Ottawa.

Montreal, May 14.—Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia left Montreal for Ottawa at one o'clock yesterday afternoon, after a week's social engagements here, the centre of which was the horse show. The royal party traveled in the Governor-General's special train, which consisted of the cars "Cornwall," "York," and "Canada," with one baggage car.

Ismay's Thank Offering.

London, May 14.—The London papers publish a statement made by The Liverpool Journal of Commerce, that J. Bruce Ismay intends to provide an endowment fund for pensions for disabled seamen of all classes connected with the White Star Line, and for their widows, as a thank offering and a memorial to the heroism of the Titanic's crew. The fund, it is further said, will probably amount to $100,000.

British Capital For Coal Fields.

Regina, Sask., May 14.—Word was received from England yesterday that J. H. Haslem has completed the formation of a $5,000,000 concern with British capital, for the exploitation of the Estevan coal fields. It is understood that Viscount Haldane and Winston Churchill have been named as directors of the new concern.

Italian Workman Killed.

Toronto, May 14.—Carol Pengally, an Italian laborer, was instantly killed yesterday morning while at work on the roof of the transformer station at the foot of Atlantic avenue. He came into contact with the high tension wires crossing the roof of the building. There was no one working with him at the time, it is not known exactly how the accident occurred. These wires carry upwards of 30,000 volts, and it is claimed that sometimes the high current will jump a short distance.

Turkey In Bad Fix.

Rome, May 14.—It is announced in the newspapers that the occupation by Italy of the Island of Karpathos, Kaso, Piscopi (Tilos), and Nisyro, in the Grecian archipelago, and belonging to Turkey, together with the capture of the Islands of Stampula and Rhodes, completely closes the Aegean Sea. Turkey is thus blockaded and isolated from the Mediterranean, and she is consequently unable to despatch warships or troops to Tripoli.

Women In Civil Service.

Ottawa, May 14.—There is no foundation for the story published a few days ago to the effect that the civil service commissioners had decided to in future debar women from admission to the general ranks of the civil service.

Raising $250,000 for Anglican Pastors.

Montreal, May 14.—The campaign to raise $250,000 for the augmentation of the salaries of Anglican pastors throughout the diocese of Montreal, was opened yesterday by the Bishop of Montreal. A midday luncheon was held, attended by many prominent church workers, at which it was announced that $70,000 had already been promised. Last night, while official figures had not been compiled, it was stated that this sum had been considerably increased during the afternoon.

If You Like a Little Quiet Fun

Ask some pompous person if Grape-Nuts Food helps build the brain.

Chances are you get a withering sneer and a hiss of denunciation.

Then sweetly play with the learned toad.

Ask him to tell you the analysis of brain material and the analysis of Grape-Nuts.

"Don't know? Why I suppose you based your opinions on exact knowledge instead of pushing out a conclusion like you would a sneeze."

"Well, now your tire is punctured, let's sit down like good friends and repair it."

The bulky materials of brain are water and albumin, but these things cannot blend without a little worker know as Phosphate of Potash, defined as a "mineral salt."

One authority, Geohegan, shows in his analysis of brain, 5.33 per cent total of mineral salts, over one-half being Phosphoric Acid of Potash combined (Phosphate of Potash) 2.91 per cent.

Beaunis, another authority, shows Phosphoric Acid and Potash (Phosphate of Potash) more than one-half the total mineral salts, being 73.44 per cent in a total of 101.07.

Analysis of Grape-Nuts shows Potassium and Phosphorus (which join and make Phosphate of Potash) is considerably more than one-half of all the mineral salts in the food.

Dr. Geo. W. Carey, an authority on the constituent elements of the body, says; "The grey matter of the brain is controlled entirely by the inorganic cell-salt, Potassium Phosphate (Phosphate of Potash). This Salt unites with albumin and by the addition of oxygen creates nerve fluid or the grey matter of the brain. Of course, there is a trace of other salts and other organic matter in nerve fluid, but Potassium Phosphate is the chief factor, and has the power within itself to attract, by its own law of affinity, all things needed to manufacture the elixir of life."

Further on he says: "The beginning and end of the matter is to supply the lacking principle, and in molecular form, exactly as nature furnishes it in vegetables, fruits and grain. To supply deficiencies—this is the only law of cure."

Brain is made of Phosphate of Potash as the principle Mineral Salt, added to albumin and water.

Grape-Nuts contain that element as more than one-half of all it mineral salts.

Every day's use of brain wears away a little.

Suppose your kind of food does not contain Phosphate of Potash.

How are you going to rebuild today the worn-out parts of yesterday?

And if you don't, why shouldn't nervous prostration and brain-fag result.

Remember, Mind does not work well on a brain that is even partly broken down from lack of nourishment.

It is true that other food besides Grape-Nuts contains varying quantities of Brain food.

Plain wheat and barley do. But in Grape-Nuts there is a certainty.

And if the elements demanded by Nature, are eaten, the life forces have the needed material to build from.

A healthy brain is important, if one would "do things" in this world.

A man who sneers at "Mind" sneers at the best and least understood part of himself. That part which some folks believe links us to the Infinite.

Mind asks for a healthy brain upon which to act, and Nature has defined a way to make a healthy brain and renew it day by day as it is used up from work of the previous day.

Nature's way to rebuild is by the use of food which supplies the things required.

"There's a Reason" for

Grape-Nuts

Made by Canadian Postum Cereal Co. Ltd., Pure Food Factories, Windsor, Ontario, Canada.

FROM THE EDITOR

He Forgot That He Had a Stomach.

Talking of food, there is probably no professional man subjected to a greater, more wearing mental strain that the responsible editor of a modern newspaper.

To keep his mental faculties constantly in good working order, the editor must keep his physical powers up to the highest rate of efficiency. Nothing will so quickly upset the whole system as badly selected food and a disordered stomach. It therefore follows that he should have right food, which can be readily assimilated, and which furnishes true brain nourishment.

"My personal experience in the use of Grape-Nuts and Postum," writes a Philadelphia editor, "so exactly agrees with your advertised claim as to their merits that any further exposition in that direction would seem to be superfluous. They have benefitted me so much, however, during the five years that I have used them, that I do not feel justified in withholding my testimony.

"General 'high living' with all that the expression implies as to a generous table, brought about indigestion, in my case, with restlessness at night, and lassitude in the morning, accompanied by various pains and distressing sensations during working hours.

"The doctor diagnosed the condition as 'catarrh of the stomach,' and prescribed various medicines, which did me no good. I finally 'threw physics to the dogs,' gave up tea and coffee and heavy meat dishes, and adopted Grape-Nuts and Postum as the chief articles of my diet.

"I can conscientiously say, and I wish to say it with all the emphasis possible to the English language, that they have benefitted me as medicines never did, and more than any other food that ever came on my table.

"My experience is that the Grape-Nuts food has steadied and strengthened both brain and nerves to a most positive degree. How it does it I cannot say, but I know that after breakfasting on Grape-Nuts food one actually forgets he has a stomach, let alone 'stomach trouble.' It is, in my opinion, the most beneficial as well as the most economical food on the market, and has absolutely no rival." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Lower—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, May 13.—Announcement that the opening of the Dardanelles tomorrow would release nearly 10,000,000 bushels of wheat had a depressing effect to-day on the market here. Closing prices were weak, 1 1-2c to 1 1-2c under Saturday night. Corn at the finish was 5-8c to 7-8c down, with oats off 5-8c to 1c. Provisions scored an advance of 7 1-2c to 27 1-2c net.

Liverpool wheat closed unchanged to ½d lower than Saturday, and corn ½d lower. Paris wheat closed unchanged to ½c higher. Berlin and Antwerp unchanged. Buda-Pest ½c lower.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, May 13.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 150 cars, comprising 3137 cattle, 908 hogs, 155 sheep, 83 calves and 36 horses.

Exporters

Geo. Rowntree bought for H. & S. Company 128 export steers, 1265 lbs. each, at $7.65, average price, and 45 export bulls, 1830 lbs. each at $6.40.

Butchers.

Steers of export weights, $7.10 to $7.35; good butchers, $6.85 to $7.10; medium butchers, $6.60 to $6.75; common, $6 to $6.50; inferior, $5.25 to $5.90; cows, $4 to $6.50; bulls, $4.50 to $6.50.

Stockers and Feeders

One load, 900 lbs. each, was reported at $6.15.

Milkers and Springers

Only a limited number on sale, all of which were bought by Fred Rowntree at $40 to $60.

Veal Calves.

Prices for veal calves ranged from $5 to $8 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep, ewes, sold at from $6 to $7.25; rams, $5 to $5.75; spring lambs at $6 to $7.50 each.

Hogs.

Prices for hogs were unchanged, at $8.25 for selects, fed and watered, and $8.50 to $8.60 f.o.b. cars at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, May 13.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending May 11 were 1460 cattle, 250 sheep and lambs, 2250 hogs and 1200 calves. The supply for sale on the market this morning consisted of 400 cattle, 75 sheep and lambs, 1000 hogs and 200 calves.

A feature of the trade was the stronger feeling which developed in the market for cattle and prices scored a further advance of 25c per cwt., which was due to the very small run, the increasing scarcity of good finished stock thruout the country and the fact that drovers have been compelled to pay higher prices on account of the keen competition for stock between them and American buyers, as prices in the Chicago market are much higher than in the Canadian markets, owing to the scarcity of supplies. The steady advance in prices of late here and in the Toronto market has forced packers to mark up dressed beef 1c per lb., and the prospects are that they will go still higher in the near future, unless supplies of cattle increase. At the above advance noted the trade was fair, but the demand from butchers was principally for small lots to fill actual wants. A few full loads of good to choice steers changed hands at $7.60 to $7.75 per cwt.

The easier feeling which developed in the market for hogs a week ago has continued to prevail and in consequence prices were lowered again to-day 5c to 15c per cwt.

The market for sheep and lambs is strong on account of limited supplies coming forward, for which the demand was good, and sales of mixed lots were made at $8 each. The demand for calves is very good on account of the high prices ruling for beef and all the stock offered met with a steady sale.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $7.10 to $7.60 per cwt.; medium, $6 to $7; common, $5 to $5.90; choice cows, $6.00 to $6.75; medium, $5 to $5.75; bulls, $5.75 to $6.75; milkers, choice, each, $60 to $90; common and medium, each, $40 to $70; springers, $50 to $80.

Sheep—Ewes, $5 to $6.50; bucks and culls, $4 to $5.50; lambs, $7.25 to $7.50.

Hogs, f.o.b., $8.25 to $8.60.

Calves, $5.50 to $8.

LEGISLATURE'S BILL MAKES CITY RESPONSIBLE FOR EXPENSES OF INDIGENT RESIDENTS IN HOSPITALS

City Council Brought Face to Face With the Working of New Bill Which Ald. Buller Claimed Would be a Burden Upon the Province Must Pay $1 a Day for Indigents

COUNCIL LIABLE FOR ONE

A new law passed by the Legislature, which came into force in April of this year, provides that a municipality is responsible for its indigent residents.

The nature of this bill was brought home to the City Council on Monday night at a meeting of the committee of the Whole Council, when a statement received from the Mother Superior of St. Joseph's Hospital stating that four patients were being treated there who were dependent upon charity and whose expense while in the hospital should be met by the city, according to the present law.

Mr. F. W. Miller presented a statement of the nature of the cases to the Council and pointed out that the new measure allows the city fourteen days in which to investigate the cases and decide whether the city is really liable for the expense incurred by these cases while in the hospital.

Old and Feeble of Mind.

One of the patients is an elderly woman of feeble mind and body who has been kept in jail. Mr. Miller informed the Council. She then became ill and was removed to the hospital. As an indication of her condition she had tried to explain that she was but fourteen years old. She was detained in the jail because there was no other place for her.

Met With Misfortune.

A young woman about a year in this country had suffered a severe burn and was confined to the hospital for about three months. Her parents had also been unfortunate. Her father had been injured while at work and was incapacitated for a long time and the mother was ill and unable to work. There were also two children from St. Vincent's Orphanage who were removed to the hospital on account of illness. In each of these latter cases the mother was dead but the father was working, one as a lumberman and the other as a farm help. Neither had contributed toward the support of his child.

Act Burdens the Province.

Ald. Buller—Where is this thing going to end? This Act is going to be a burden to the whole province. I don't care whether it is my Government or the other fellow's, that is going to be a burden. Why, anyone could say they were sick and unable to pay and the city would have to pay the bill. You couldn't find ground enough to accommodate all who would take advantage of that.

Ald. Gordon — They would play "possum."

Mayor Bradburn—That's a fact, but digent and that is the reason the bill has allowed 14 days to the municipality to investigate the cases for its own protection.

Ald. Gordon—The new broom sweeps clean. They had to do something.

Ald. Johnston — I don't think it should be allowed that honest people be imposed upon.

Mayor Bradburn— You cannot let little children suffer for the shortcomings of the fathers who will not pay for their maintenance.

Ald. Gordon—That's true enough, but even the Bible says that the sins of the father shall be visited upon the children.

Mayor Bradbudn—That's a fact, but we are living in a different age to that in which the Bible was written.

Report Conditions Here.

Ald. Gordon stated that the Council should make representations to the Provincial secretary to the effect that jail was no proper place for the old who were feeble minded.

Ald. Johnston—Every Grand Jury makes a report to that effect, but nothing has been done.

Ald. Gordon—The jail is no place for this woman, and the asylums are filled with people.

Mayor Bradburn—The unfortunate part of it is that so many people are going crazy.

Some one remarked that this might happen to the Council of they continued to discuss the subject.

Ald. Duffus suggested that the Medical Health Officer might report on all such cases that the Council was notified about, in order to protect the city.

Ald. Duncan said that the Council seemed liable for the paying of the expenses of the elderly woman, but that since the young woman and the two young girls had fathers living they were not to be classed as indigent

Moved by Ald. Johnston, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that St. Joseph's Hospital be notified that the Council does not consider three of the patients indigent and that the municipality is not responsible for their maintenance.—Carried.

Mr. Miller stated that one of the children had recovered sufficiently to be taken back to the Orphanage. The father of the young woman is now able to do some work.

Ald. Gordon suggested that a spe-

BOARD OF TRADE TO-NIGHT

Remember"—as King Charles I. said to Bishop Juxton—the special meeting of the Board of Trade to-night, in the Council Chamber. An address of special interest and special value, on the subject of "City Development," will be given by Mr. Ryerson Ritchie, a Peterborough citizen, who has made a specialty of his subject. He is the highest authority on the subject in the United States, and has often had special assignments to galvanize dead or moribund Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce into active and useful life. He knows what he is talking about when dealing with Board of Trade matters. At the Council Chamber to-night, at 8 o'clock.

$5 AND $10 GOLD PIECES FIND READY CIRCULATION IN THE CITY

About $12,000 Worth of the New Currency was Issued in Toronto Yesterday---Description of the new Coins.

The new five and ten dollar gold pieces recently issued by the Ottawa mint have found their way into Peterborough. About eight thousand dollars' worth of the gold coins were distributed by the Receiver General's Department in Toronto yesterday, and to-day a number of the new coins were finding ready circulation in Peterborough.

The Examiner had the privilege of examining some of the new currency this morning. The new $10.00 gold coin is a little larger than the new one cent piece, but is considerably heavier. The inscription on the face is the same as that on the new-King George coppers, and bears the Dei Gra stamp.

On the reverse side is the Dominion coat of arms, surrounded with sprays of Maple leaves and with the word "Canada" above and "1912" and "five dollars" as the case may be, beneath.

The five dollar gold pieces are a little larger than an American "nickel," and might be given out in mistake for a 25 cent piece.

HAS WIFE IN PETERBORO—ARRESTED IN DETROIT WITH ANOTHER WOMAN

The following dispatch from Windsor was shown to the police this morning, but they said they had no knowledge of the case whatever:

Pretty Flossie Gee, aged 18, of Hamilton, Ont., is being detained at the Florence Crittenton home for girls at Detroit, while Wm. Dixon, aged 28, married, and father of two children, is locked up at the central station, awaiting the arrival of the Canadian authorities.

Dixon was arrested shortly after five o'clock last evening at a Woodward avenue restaurant in the city of the straits, where he was employed. The girl was taken to the home by Detectives Black and Wilson, from 215 Adams avenue east, where the couple had been living for two months.

Dixon formerly boarded with the girl's parents in Hamilton. His wife and two children, whom he left, are now in Peterborough. When the girl's brother objected to Dixon's presence in the former's home, he came to Detroit last December.

Late in February the girl followed him here and went to board at Dixon's address shortly after first obtaining a position in a restaurant. An aunt, living on Bagg street, told the police of the couple's presence in Detroit, and at the request of Immigration Inspector Coyne, the detectives arrested them.—Hamilton Spectator.

ALD. BULLER MAKES A "WALLINGFORD" SUGGESTION TO SECURE FACTORY

J. Rufus Wallingford is a mythical promoter who keeps within the covers of a certain magazine, and never steps beyond the footlights of "Get Rich Quick Wallingford," the play that Geo. M. Cohan made so successful. So much for J. Rufus.

The council in committee on Monday night was considering a proposition from a manufacturing concern in the United States who asked the city for a bonus, or that a certain amount of stock be subscribed in Peterborough.

Although the bonusing of companies is one of the baits by which most cities lure industries, some of the Aldermen considered that a proposal of that nature might not fare well. Possibly the shades of other proposals of this kind that had been consigned to oblivion passed in review before them. They were somewhat dubious of the subscription of the the stock, at least of all of it, but there seemed to be little doubt about the bonus.

And then Ald. Buller presented a scheme that was truly Wallingford in character, except that the city was to get the benefit. Here, he said, the city owned the Hilliard farm. If this company would employ 200 hands, why not break up the property into building lots, sell them on the strength of the company being given a location on one corner and with the proceeds give the company what it asked, or at least part of their demands. Thus the city would have a new company, which would build up or help build up the northern limits of the city.

Why wouldn't this scheme prove a success? Were not several cities in Ontario angling for companies after the same manner? The only difference was that in other cities individuals were willing to give a factory site and help financially to secure companies because they would make valuable, adjacent real estate in their possession. Did not certain real estate men in Welland adopt a course similar to this?

Why couldn't the city carry out such a scheme with the hope of equal success?

Imagination, they say, evolves most successes. Let no one say Ald. Buller does not possess a keen imagination which likewise does not lack the quality of being practical.

The Manufacturers' Committee are dealing with the company's proposition, but negotiations have not advanced beyond the embryo stage.

Honours For An Old Peterboro' Boy

A despatch from Nelson, B.C., says: "The Conservatives will hold a convention on May 16, to nominate a candidate for the Kootenay, bye-election, June 20, and R .F. Green of Victoria, is the probable choice. No Liberal is yet in the field, but several names are mentioned including that of Ralph Smith, a former member for Nanaimo."

It may be mentioned that Mr. R. F. Green is a Peterborough boy. He left here for the west '85, but is still well known in this city, as he has from time to time entertained many of our citizens who were journeying in the west. Mr. Green is a former member of the McBride administration and has more than once represented his constituency at Ottawa.

PETERBORO'S OPENING GAME

"White Caps" Arrive in Hamilton in Good Condition—Accompanied by Officers of the Club and a Number of Fans

OPENING CEREMONIES

(From Staff Representative at Brittania Park.)

HAMILTON, MAY 14.—Everything looks promising for the Canadian League opening at Brittania Park here this afternoon between Hamilton and Peterborough. The White Caps arrived at eight thirty last night and are registered at Stroud's hotel, where Manager Templin will soon the centre of a lively fanning bee, during the course of which, the Peterborough leader wanted to wager that he had the best infield in the League. The Kolts are supremely confident of grabbing off to-day's game. They will use Walter Twiss on the rubber and the ex-Berlin beaver is said to be going better than ever this season, with Johnnie Derr, the southpaw star, working for Peterborough. Manager Templin is, however, not very anxious over the outcome. President W. H. Denham, Vice-President E. G. Patterson, W. Mellroy, W. R. Travers, Ed. Disautel, Dan McCabe and other members of the Peterborough executive are here for the game. The weather was threatening this morning, but a bright sun broke through the clouds before ten o'clock and the outlook is for clear, cool weather. The grounds dried rapidly and will bein good shape in spite of yesterday's downpour of rain.

Elaborate ceremonies have been arranged for and the Peterborough club took part in the parade at 2.30 p.m. All the players are in good shape.

Chairman of the Property Committee in absence of Ald. Duncan.

RECOMMEND AN EARLY APPLICATION

TORONTO, MAY 8.—The following letter, now being sent out by A. E. Ames & Co., to their clients, in regard to this offering, will be of interest to the investing public at this time:

Dear Sir,—Enclosed herewith please find prospectus and subscription form relating to an offering of $750,000 of 7 p.c. Cumulative Preference stock of the Monarch Knitting Co., Limited, at par with bonus of 15 p.c. of the amount of the Preference stock in Common shares.

It has been our uniform custom, in arranging for flotations of Preference shares, to provide that they be offered on a basis likely to furnish not only a good interest return, but a probable good increase in value of the shares, as evidenced by market quotations. We feel no anxiety that our record in this respect will be injured by the future course of the shares now offered, as we consider the Preference stock should appreciate to par on its own merits within a reasonable time, leaving the valuable Common stock for clear profit.

It will be noted that, with dividends at the rate of 7 p.c. on the Preference stock and 6 p.c. of the Common, the rate yielded on the amount of money invested would be 7.99 p.c.

We strongly recommend you making an early application for these shares, as the Company has a large earning power, is capably managed and is in a strong financial position.

Yours truly,
A. E. AMES & Co.

STRIKING TESTIMONIALS TO MR. AND MRS. FRANK MOHER, DOURO

On the Eve of Departure for Edmonton They are Recipients of Addresses and Material Tokens of Appreciation From the County, the Township and From Their Immediate Friends.

The County Council, the Township Council of Douro, and the residents of that township acted conjointly on Monday evening to present a striking testimonial to Mr. Frank Moher. Mrs. Moher and family on the eve of their departure for Edmonton. The services of Mr. Moher, as its Reeve, as Warden, and member of the Peterborough County Council were fully recognized and eulogised, but perhaps of more significance was the memorial Mr. and Mrs. Moher received from their friends and neighbours, with whom they have so long been associated in the every-day walk of life.

Mr. Moher and family contemplate leaving for Edmonton some time during the present week although they may be delayed until next Monday. Their departure was the signal for the gathering of their friends at their home in Douro, on Monday night, when the numerous expressions of appreciation, well wishes for the future, and regret upon the severance of old ties could not have failed to impress upon Mr. and Mrs. Moher the deep esteem in which they are held by all those with whom they were acquainted, and especially by their immediate neighbours.

Their home was the gathering of a large number of friends, and while there was an undertone of the sadness of parting tinging the affair, it did not lack its pleasurable aspects.

Address from County.

Mr. Ed. M. Elliott, County Clerk, represented the County, and on request, acted as chairman for the evening's proceedings. Mr. Elliott, on behalf of the County Council, read an address from that body, expressing its appreciation of the public service rendered by Mr. Moher as a Councillor, and during his term of office, as Warden. The County Council expressed regret that Mr. Moher's decision to go West was to take him from the Council. The wishes of the Council for Mr. Moher's future success were expressed.

From the Grand L. A.

An address was read by Mr. Augustus Whibbs, on behalf of the C. M. B. A., of which Mr. Moher had held the position of financial secretary at one time and was one of the prominent members. Mr. Whibbs also presented Mr. Moher with a travelling bag.

The choir of St. Joseph o'Church also remembered Mr. Moher, who has long been a member. An address was read by Miss Mary Quinlan and Miss M. Mahony made the presentation of silverware.

Address form Township.

Mr. J. J. Allen presented the address of the Douro Township Council as follows:

F. Moher, Esq., Reeve of Douro,—We, the undersigned members and ex-members of the Council of the Township of Douro, having learned of your intention to leave the home of your birth for the great Canadian West, desire to express our appreciation of your services to this Township since you were first elected Councillor in the year 1904. Your elevation to the Reeve's Chair, in 1905, which you have occupied to the present time with the exception of one year, has seen you give unlimited time and attention to Township affairs, which has resulted beneficially to the residents of the Township.

Your elevation to the Wardenship of the County of Peterborough, by acclamation, was a source of satisfaction to your fellow Councillors in the Township, as well as the ratepayers, generally, and the satisfactory manner in which you discharged the duties of the office to the County showed that your fellow-members in the County Council were justified in your election.

We sincerely regret your departure, but we know that a man of your ability and integrity will get on well in your new home, and we will be pleased at all times to hear of your advancement, as well as that of any member of your fmily, who, together with your good wife, will leave a gap as friends and neighbours, that will be hard to fill.

Douro, May 13th, 1912.

Remembrance from People.

The address of the people of Douro to Mr. and Mrs. Moher was read by Mr. John Garvey, following which Mrs. J. H. Leahy presented Mr. and Mrs. Moher with a purse of gold. The address was as follows:

To our Dear Friends and Neighbours, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moher, and family—

We, your neighbours and friends desire to express our extreme regret upon your departure from amongst us. We claim no credit for this feeling of regret for it is founded on selfishness. The loss will be ours. We know we shall miss you, who have ben one of ous for so many years, but we feel that even time itself will not remove you from our memory. We shall miss the friendly relationship as neighbours that we have enjoyed during your residence in the township—a relationship that which is not so much to our credit for they would be poor citizens, indeed, who could not follow your example in all that makes fellow citizens good neighbours and true friends.

We wish you every success and happiness in your new home, a happiness which we feel is truly deserved.

Words, even as sincere and honest as ours, are weak without deeds. Therefore, in earnest of our good wishes, and as an evidence of the high esteem in which we hold you, we ask your acceptance of this purse of gold—a worthy gift for hearts that are golden such as we have always found yours to be. In the words of the immortal bard of Avon:

"Then westward ho! Grace and good disposition Attend you.

Douro, May 13th, 1912.

Mr. Mohr made a feeling reply to the addresses that had been presented. It was not easy to leave the friends and neighbours among whom he had lived. He and his family would never forget their friends in the Township with whom they had enjoyed so many pleasant relationships. He had tried to fulfill the duties of the township and county offices with which he had been honoured and while the parting was a strain the expressions of appreciation were an assurance that his efforts had not been in vain. Mr. Moher, on behalf of his family, expressed his deep gratitude for the many kind words that had been said, and for the good wishes that had been extended.

17th ANNIVERSARY OF PARK STREET BAPTIST CHURCH

A large number faced the inclement weather last night, and attended the platform meeting in connection with the 17th anniversary of the Park street Baptist church.

The pastor, Rev. W. C. Riddiford, occupied the chair, and conducted the devotional exercises. In his opening remarks the pastor thanked the church and its officers for their faithfulness in the past year, and said that the coming year was to be the banner year of the church's history, in more ways than one.

Miss Ethel Hill, Miss Pearl Brock and Mr. John Miller favoured the assembliy with musical selections which were rendered in a very able manner, and very much appreciated by all.

Rev. H. J. Keith, on behalf of Knox Presbyterian church, conveyed the hearty congratulations of his church to Park street, and wished them every success in the future.

Mr. Patrick Morgan then gave to the audience in a quiet, kind way, the story of his conversion and the programme of his life work in the future. He believed God had a special purpose in bringing him to this country and after his return from his trip on the continent he intended to settle down by God's help to a life of better usefulness to the dominion.

The pastor on behalf of the church thanked Mr. Morgan and all who had so kindly assisted to make the anniversary a success. To-night Mr. Morgal will address a meeting at Gilmour memorial.

BLED TO DEATH

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, MAY 17.—The body of an unknown man, who had bled to death, from a deep gash in the inside of the left wrist, was found behind a sign board at the east end this morning, about seven o'clock, outstretched in the long grass, his clothing and the grass beside him being still wet with blood. The body presented a gruesome sight to the small crowd that gathered. The body was that of a man about 45 years old five feet, seven inches tall, and weighing about 145 pounds. There was nothing to identify him and his pockets were turned inside out. Detectives Newton and Wallace and Acting Detective Nursey were sent to the scene before the body was taken to the morgue and are working on the case in an attempt to solve what may have been a cleverly-executed murder.

Colonel the Honourable Sam Hughes Will Be Present on the Opening Night

SHOULD BE AUSPICIOUS

Colonel, the Honourable Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, will formally open the Peterborough Summer Fair in the Armouries on the evening of May 27th. The Minister of Militia has signified his willingness to assist the ladies and has consented to come to Peterborough for the opening game. It is expected that the formal opening will be held in the evening, and should in itself be a great drawing card for an auspicious opening of this fair for the success of which the ladies of Peterborough have been working for months.

Havelock Man Meets With A Serious Accident

Special to The Examiner:

HAVELOCK, MAY 14.—Mr. M. Joseph, an undergraduate in Science, of McGill University, who came here last week to take up practical work in connection with his course, met with a serious accident on Monday, when the thumb and first finger of his right hand were completely severed.

The accident was caused by an engine running over his hand while he was working in the ash pit. Mr. Joseph had apparently neglected to notify his fellow employees that he intended to work under the locomotive, with the result that the man in charge of the engine was unaware of the danger which he incurred to Joseph when he started the engine.

MINUTE'S WARNING

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, MAY 14.— Sir William H. White, naval expert, who was at one time chief constructor of British naval, in a four column letter to the Times, considers that only one minute elapsed between the time of the warning of the iceberg by the lookout and the collision which destroyed the water tightness of the shell plating for 300 feet from the stem and threw open five forward water tight compartments. He estimates that the rent in the ship's side must have been 25 feet below the water line. The people on the decks, Sir William submits, could have had no alarm of their danger from the slow sinking of the boat. The story of the ship having broken in two, he believes, is incredible.

WHY QUEBEC LIBERALISM IS OPPOSED.

The Liberal Government of Quebec in its appeal to the people at the general elections has to meet the hostility of the Nationalists. Why? Simply because the Liberals have taken up "loyalty and courageously" the problem of contribution to Imperial defence. The Nationalists have "had enough of England and the English." Why is the Conservative Government of the Dominion of Canada opposed to the Liberals of Quebec? For two reasons. One is because they are Liberals. The other related reason is because the Conservative government is composed, to a large extent, of Nationalists, and the Conservative government is, therefore, the natural ally of the Nationalists; it is incorporated with the anti-British Nationalist element —which opposes Liberals because they are loyal to British ideals and interests—and the Conservative Government must follow suit. The Conservative party, under the Dominion organisation, is pouring money into Quebec to assist in defeating the Gouin—Liberal—Government. But, thanks to the inherent loyalty of the mass of French Canadians, the latter will not condemn a good government because it is the government of a party that it is practically and really loyal to British institutions, ideals and interests. The Nationalists and ultramontane clerics denounce Laurier, the representative of Liberalism in Canada, because he is "too British," and the Conservative party of the Dominion join in the cry, at least help the good work along.

HELPING THE STRONG.

The Toronto News states that large areas of land on the outskirts of Toronto are being bought up by a syndicate of British capitalists, who, by gradually acquiring all the land around the city, will force up the prices of city and suburban land. The people at the back of the scheme are prepared to hold the land for 25 years, it is said, in order to make a success of their speculations. Here, suggests the Guelph Mercury, is where the land tax would appear to be the remedy. If the syndicate were taxed up the value of the land alone, they would either let it go, or build houses to rent, in order to save themselves. However, as long as Sir James Whitney has his way, these obstructionists can operate, and hamper the city's growth as much as they see fit.

The Whitney government takes the credit of inaugurating an exaggerated form of paternalism, assuming to help the people to get cheaper light and power, through the medium of the Hydro-Electric enterprise. The interests and welfare of the people at large is the assumed basic principle. It is the right principle, and should be the ruling policy of every government of the people, for the people, by the people. Sir James Whitney adopted the Hydro-Electric when it was practically forced upon him. He damned it with faint praise till he saw that it would be a good card, as a policy, for him to adopt. His faith is it may not have been misplaced by a desire for the popular benefits it would confer—it could be made to serve as a doubly useful to the party machine. Hence the desire to politicalize it, to place it under a department of the government, where it could be more easily used to advance party interests; but the outcry against destroying the usefulness of the Hydro-Electric by making it subject to partisan administration, caused him to hold his hand. This may be an uncharitable view to take, but it is one consistently compatible with Sir James' avowed hostility to a recognition of popular rights and desires. He has been urged to pass a compensation act in the interests of maimed and injured industrial employees and their families. He has been dabbling with the question and a year ago appointed Sir William Meredith to consider the subject and draft a bill. If Sir James had had any heart in the work, if he had had the interests of the workingmen at heart, he could have introduced the legislation last session. He did not do so and another year at least must elapse, without an adequate law; and the sufferers from accident be deprived for another year of compensation. In the interests of the people, protection was demanded against the strong purse, represented by wealthy individuals or syndicates securing and holding land at nominal taxation, to be increased in value by adjacent improvements. Sir James has been bombarded by requests and petitions to legislate so that unoccupied land should bear its share of taxation and so relieve improved property from paying a fine for the public spirit and enterprise that caused the improvements that has built up towns and cities. Sir James Whitney has set his face dead against such a palpable measure of justice to the people. We see the result in the case cited by the News. Here we have the Whitney government, by its neglect, helping the strong—the financially strong—to become stronger. A wealthy syndicate that can afford to let its money lie, is allowed to hold property and practically escape from taxation, and have its value increased by the expenditure and enterprise of others who are taxed to the hilt for every nail they drive in new buildings, whose erection and occupation adds to the value of the property of the strong, who do nothing but sit still and gain wealth by the enterprise and money expenditure of others. This is helping the strong and incidentally penalising the comparatively weak; making public spirit and enterprise a crime punishable by a fine, in the shape of increased taxation; while others, holders of vacant lands, not only escape comparatively scot free, but have the value of their property increased, by no exertion or expenditure of their own.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Tory Toronto doesn't mind, of course, if its baseball team is licked with "remarkable regularity—it's tabu —it's a form of "truck and trade with the Yankees" and therefore disloyal.

The Liberals have been in power at Quebec for fifteen years and have not annexed Canada to the United States, and yet, suggests the Montreal Herald, if they remain in power for another year the thing is as good as done. It is very peculiar.

The Winnipeg Tribune truthfully says: The care of flowers is good exercise for the muscles, and better still for the nerves, for it trains to tenderness of touch; the thought of them is good occupation for the mind; the love of them develops and sweetens the spirit. Love of flowers is sunshine in the soul. The heart that is devoted to flowers is a flower garden itself, sweetening its atmosphere with immeasurable influences for good.

BRITISH CAPITALISTS COMING.

The influx of British capital has become a commonplace in Canada, but the British capitalist is not so familiar an acquaintance. In June and July we are to have sixty of them—in a body. The party, which it is said will represent $205,000,000, will include some of the foremost manufacturers and commercial magnates of the British Isles. It will visit all parts of Canada in a special train, including this portion of Ontario. London will be one of the stopping points, and will be reached about June 21.

The tour is due to the enterprise of the Financial News of London, which has devoted much attention to Canadian affairs. The Canadian Government will co-operate and no doubt public bodies at places to be visited will organise a welcome. The object of the tour is to implant in representative British manufacturers and financiers a personal interest in Canada and the opportunities she offers. As a rule British producers have neglected the Canadian field. British money has been poured out in loans to Canada for public and semi-public purposes—our railways, for instance, are financed almost wholly from Great Britain — but the Briton has been far less ready than the American to seize industrial openings here. Most of the outside capital put in to Canadian industries has been American. The British manufacturer has been derelict in another respect. He has taken no special pains to cultivate the Canadian market. He has not followed up the advantage of tariff and sentimental preferences in his favour. Producing for a world market, he has been more disposed to impose his standards on his customers—with great success in some lines—than to adapt his wares to the various standards of various countries.

The Canadian tour will help to teach this lesson to some British manufacturers and may yield important results. The visitors will be certain of a cordial welcome, and will see Canada at her best.—London Advertiser.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER'S POPULARITY.

There can be no doubt about the enduring personal popularity of the late Premier of the Dominion. Unexpectedly to the audience assembled at Hull the other evening to listen to a speech from Sir Lomer Gouin, Premier of Quebec, Sir Wilfrid appeared on the platform and gave a brief address. He was received with great cheering by his habitant audience.

The Nationalist movement, organized and propagated by Mr. Bourassa and his co-workers, caused the Liberal party a great deal of anxiety a few months ago, mainly because the Liberals had taken up loyally and courageously the problem of a contribution to the British Navy. The Nationalist slanders and misrepresentations caused the loss of several Liberal constituencies, but some, if not all of them, will be recaptured by Liberals at the next election. Meanwhile the Nationalists inside and outside of the Borden cabinet are split up into coteries with anything but kindly feelings toward one another.

The time for the next general election has not been fixed by statute, but according to custom it should be midsummer of 1913. During the coming session there ought to be a redistribution bill passed, and then the election should follow promptly the redistribution. Whether Mr. Borden will try to hold on as long as possible without an appeal to the people, or will resolve to know his fate without delay, matters little to the Liberals, and their veteran leader. Always ready is the motto.—Guelph Mercury.

UPPER ONTARIO.

Much attention has recently been drawn to the district known as New Ontario, Northern Ontario, or Upper Ontario, as a field for settlement. It is a country that cannot be described in a few words, for it is larger than the British Islands, and contains many varities of soil and production. It is not distinctively a wheat province, like Saskatchewan. Yet it has a great fertile belt, and can grow large quantities of wheat and other food products. It has also forests, mines, and water powers. It looks as if it would be the home of a farming, a mining, and a manufacturing community.

If its advantages might be summed up in one word, that word would be "self-contained". The farmer, the food-raiser, has in some cases a market at his doors. For instance, the Cobalt silver districthas next to it a good agricultural country, of which New Liskeard is the centre. The mining men like good living, and are free spenders. Consequently the man who has eggs, butter, meat, and grain to sell has good customers in the men who are toiling in the mines.

These conditions do not prevail everywhere, yet we do find them in other parts of New Ontario besides Cobalt. North and west of Cobalt lies the gold country, with a growing population of mining men, ready to become customers for all that the neighbouring agricultural country can produce. Elsewhere there are forests in which pulp mills and other industries are likely to arise, giving the settlers both employment and markets. If the five million dollars set apart for the assistance of Northern Ontario are wisely spent in encouraging industries and opening roads, the country will afford many attractions to settlers.—Toronto Star.

Canadian Women's Enjoyment And Employment Of Right To Vote

Estelle M. Kerr writes interestingly to The Canadian Courier on the subject of "How Women Vote in Canada."

After pointing out that China is perhaps the only country where women have come into possession of equal suffrage with men without going through the preliminary stages the writer points out that other countries where women are fully enfranchised are Australia, New Zealand, Finland, Norway, Sweden, Scotland, the Isle of Man, and the American states of Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Idaho, Washington and California. Ohio will probably be the next, as the bill for equal suffrage has passed both houses and has been referred to the people, while Kansas and Oregon are expected to follow soon.

There is no part of Canada in which women enjoy the parliamentary franchise, and the complaint is that even the limited municipal franchise which exists is not largely availed of by them.

In Prince Edward Island, Quebec, Alberta and Saskatchewan widows and spinsters over 21 years of age who own property are entitled to the municipal vote. In New Brunswick and Manitoba all widows and spinsters who are ratepayrs to any extent have the municipal vote. In Ontario widows and spinsters who are assessed as owners or occupants of property to the value of $400 or income of not less than $400 have this privilege.

In the above-mentioned provinces a woman on marriage becomes disfranchised and her husband acquires the right to exercise the vote belonging to her property either by herself or in addition to his own; in Nova Scotia, however, whenever a woman actually supports her husband and he has no property or income and he has no property or income of his own, it is she who votes, while in all other provinces the husband, under the same circumstances, is entitled to vote on his wife's property or income. In Nova Scotia, the qualification for widows and spinsters is property to the value of $150, or personal and real property to the value of $300.

In British Columbia widows and spinsters who own property are entitled to the municipal vote, and, in addition to this, the right to exercise full municipal franchise on the same terms as men have been granted to women, married or single, in Vancouver, New Westminster and Victoria.

No woman in any of the provinces of Canada may hold any municipal office. This is very unusual, as in almost all countries where municipal suffrage for women exists, they are entitled to hold office.

Widows and spinsters in all the provinces who are either holding independent property, or who are ratepayers are entitled to vote for school boards. In addition to this a woman property owner in Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia, is not disqualified through marriage from the exercise of the school franchise, as she is in other provinces.

Education is peculiarly a woman's question, yet British Columbia is the only province in which (with the exception of Victoria, Vancouver, New Westminster and Nanaimo), where only women, both married and single, whose names are on the assessment rolls are entitled to vote) wives of voters in school districts have the right to vote for, and to serve as, school trustees, without having to possess separate property or income of their own. It is therefore the only part of Canada where mothers, as mothers, and not as property owners, have the right to control the education of their children.

The information compiled by The Courier's contributor is a welcome addition to the material available for the intelligent discussion of a very debatable question. The chief objection raised in Canada to the granting of equal suffrage to women is that women value so little the limited measure of franchise which is now enjoyed, and it is one not easily strengthened if they could stir up the members of their own sex to take a more lively interest than they now do in municipal and larger politics. —Brantford Expositor.

HOMESEEKERS' AND SETTLERS' SPECIAL TRAINS TO WESTERN CANADA

Via Chicago and St. Paul, May 14th, 28th and June 11th and every second Tuesday thereafter, until Sept. 17th, inclusive. Ald. Duncan Given Leave Of Absence

A meeting of the Whole Council was held Monday night with Mayor Bradburn presiding and all the members present, except Ald. Morgan.

Ald. Duncan asked for six months' leave of absence as he was leaving the city on a trip that would keep him away that length of time. He suggested that Ald. Graham be appointed in his place as chairman of the Property committee. Ald. Graham, he said, did not hold any chairmanship.

Moved by Ald. Buller seconded by Ald. Johnston, that Ald. Duncan's request be granted and that Ald. Graham be appointed chairman of the Property committee during the interim.—Carried.

The Canadian Baseball League Opens In Four Cities To-day

Elaborate Ceremony Prepared for the Opening of the Season in Hamilton To-day.

A GOOD YEAR EXPECTED

HAMILTON, MAY 14.— With the kind permission of one J. Pluv, the well-known weather merchant, the lid will be pried off in the Canadian league to-day and the season of 1912 sent away to an official start, with the opening ceremonies taking place in the following cities:

Hamilton.
London.
Brantford.
St. Thomas.

Peterborough, one of the two new additions to the Canadian league circuit, is the attraction at Hamilton, while Ottawa opens at St. Thomas, Guelph at London and Berlin at Brantford. Elaborate preparations have been made for the opening day and the fireworks in each of the four cities will be on an elaborate scale, parades, bands, speeches and the other usual features predominating.

Hamilton's Opening.

The programme for to-day is a good one. Starting from the city hall at 2.30 a big parade will be held, with the 91st Highlanders' band, the players, civic officials and many of the guests participating. The main streets will be covered, the retinue arriving at the park about three o'clock when the teams will warm up. After the warming up the band and players will form up at the south-east end of the grand stand where the Union Jack will be unfurled and the mayor will make a few remarks, after which he will take his place on the pitcher's mound and proceed to show up Controller John Allan as being a pretty good batsman, no matter what else he is. Controller Bailey will attempt to hold the mayor's curves while Controller Gardner will act as umpire, Controller Jutten being the body guard of the day. Following this the umpire, Stanley Yerkes will call play, "Batter's up," and the big season will be on.

What Hamilton Spectator says:

The Canadian league is but one year old. Organized just a year ago under very adverse circumstances, but enjoying a very prosperous season when it did get going, as a class D organization, it is now out to enjoy an even greater degree of prosperity in 1912 elevation to class C company, and the addition of two more cities to the circuit, making the league one of the best in minor league baseball today. Baseball is meeting with much favour in Canada and is rapidly forging to the front as THE game. The interest which has been evinced in Canadian league doings this spring augurs well for a wonderful season, reports from each city in the circuit tending to show that there never was such enthusiasm shown in any sport as it is at present being evinced over the Canadian league teams and their success in the new league race. With fair weather to-day a great start will be made and the start is everything. Greatly improved ball, better competition, and greater interest are all tending to make the 1912 season one to be long remembered, especially when it is considered that the various clubs have a year's experience to back them up, something which was missing last summer, when all interested were in the game for the first time.

Here in Hamilton, the new Peterborough club will clash with the Kolts in the opening game, and judging from the dispatch received from Peterobrough, the White Caps, as they are known, will prove a formidable combination. Each club has practically completed their regular line-up and will go into the scrap to-morrow in much better shape than was the case a year ago when the teams were only gathered together a couple of days before the season opened. This year they have the advantage of several weeks' training and much better ball should be furnished to start with than was the case just twelve months ago.

A splendid schedule has been drafted, the teams appear to be pretty evenly matched and if the competition measures up to expectation there should be no room for complaint before the season is over. One hundred and two games will be played by each club, the season ending on September 2, furnishing time for a good exciting pennant race. With good umpires, such as have been secured, good baseball and good weather, everything should measure up to a high standard and should prove unusually pleasing to the many patrons of the Canadian league.

Matty Is Frank Gets In Wrong

Has Issued Book in Which He Criticizes Players

Christopher Mathewson has written a book. He may not have written it with his own pen or typewriter, but the name of Mathewson appears on the cover, and it is certain that the principal information published in the book came from Mathewson.

This is a regular book, between neat cloth covers, gotten up in the same style they employ on the "six best sellers."

The Mathewson book is mentioned here because it will be discussed by ball-players. The comments by most of the players will not be favourable to Mathewson.

They say Mathewson is conceited: that he is too fond of himself, and sets himself on too high a pinnacle, and looks sneeringly down on his fellow-players.

There are players for below the Mathewson standard of ability who carry more conceit than the master of pitching ever displayed. That is not the point of the matter, though. Comparisons are unnecessary.

Mathewson criticizes several players in this book. Therefore, Mathewson is dislikd. Christopher says what he pleases in a way he sees fit, and speaks regardless of names or records.

MANAGER TEMPLIN
Leader and Second Baseman of the White Caps.

No one has denied the stories of Mathewson. Those whom he hits feel hurt. They retort by accusing Mathewson of being "swell-headed."

Frankness can be brutal, and Mathewson's evidently is. The truth cuts in several instances. There is no denial, since it is the truth. There are simply personal remarks used as "come backs".

Mathewson is the leading pitcher of baseball. Players cannot point to him and remark that Mathewson has no right to criticize [illegible] are superior to him. Mathewson is fit to sit in judgment over others on his own ground.

The entire discussion will cover several months. Ball players are sensitive and even when not attacked openly and criticized in so many words, they imagine veiled criticisms and believe they see other meanings between the lines concerning them in public print.

It may not have been good taste on Mathewson's part to criticize fellow-players, but two things are certain—Mathewson is in a position to criticize, and Mathewson frankly told the truth. It is the policy that may be out of the ordinary, so Mathewson will be disliked for being frank and unsparing of feelings of others.

TENNIS

There will be a meeting of all members of the Peterborough Lawn Tennis Association in the Y.M.C.A. building at 8 o'clock on Thursday evening, May 16th for the election of officers for the coming year. Everybody interested in tennis should endeavour to be present.

Sporting Editor With Ball Team

The sporting editor of the Examiner accompanied the Peterborough baseball team to Hamilton yesterday, and will be present at the League opening this afternoon. A detailed account of the game will appear in to-morrow's Examiner. This is just another example of how the Examiner endeavours to give its readers all the news. The fact that Peterborough is represented in the Canadian League should be a source of gratification to the citizens who desire to keep Peterborough's name among the foremost cities of the province, if not of the Dominion. Their success will be largely dependent upon the support they receive from the lovers of clean sport. The results of the League scores will be received shortly after the games this afternoon, and will be bulletined in front of the Examiner. Telephone calls will be answered with pleasure by those wishing to learn the scores.

The Girl Who Loves Home Is A Creator of Happiness

If all men were brought to a realization of that trite but true aphorism, "Fine feathers make fine birds," what a lot of disappointed and disillusioned suitors there would be.

Take the parlor girl, the ballroom girl, from her setting of cloudy chiffons, rare laces, glittering jewels, fragrant flowers, and put her in a plain gingham frock of the home girl. Picture her with her elaborately marcelled coiffure drawn back in smooth bands, her dainty French heel slippers replaced by good common sense boots. If she fits into the picture she is certain to make a merry little wife for the man of moderate income. Many a girl who wields a spangled gauze fan with charming grace is all thumbs when it comes to wielding a dust cloth or a cooking spoon.

There are some writers of today, and not a few matrimonial pessimists, who have foolishly advocated the cause of the butterfly maiden, even past the marriage altar. They shake their heads, after the manner of wisdom, declaring that the only way to hold a husband is to keep him chasing the bubble pleasure which floats on the wings of everlasting uncertainty. Such frivolous theories are an insult to an age of intelligent manhood.

Be it understood, there is a vast difference between the home girl and the stay-at-home. The home girl is the one who takes a genuine pleasure in her home and who is always looking toward its comfort and happiness.

THE GIRL WHO LIKES HOME.

The home girl would rather have her friend spend the evening with her at home than go aimlessly about seeking amusement. She delights in hospitality, be it merely a cup of tea or a plate of fudge. Out in the world she may be just an ordinary sort of girl, not half so striking either in dress or manner as her friend, who never goes home until all other resources are exhausted. Yet when a girl of domestic tendencies is in the congenial atmosphere of her own home she expands into a creature of charming grace, and you decided she is really quite pretty. The girl at her best in her own home is a rare prize, a fact few men are not slow to appreciate.

There is something about the dainty maid in simple frock and crisp white apron that appeals to the man of every class and every age. The simple frock may be of tailored linen, the apron a mere dab of lace and lawn and ribbon, but the [illegible] of the housewife is enough to [illegible] the rules and kindle the [illegible] a [illegible] with [illegible] and [illegible] ideas of marriage and [illegible].

What does the home girl do to win her [illegible]? Why, she is the author of the thousand and one small comforts that go to [illegible] the rough [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

An Elementary Grades Union

A Graded Union is an organization of Sunday school teachers of two or more departments, from various denominations meeting regularly to help each other to improve the character and conditions of the work, by supplying immediate needs, forming higher ideals and gaining knowledge and teaching ability. The object of the union shall be:

1—To provide mutual acquaintance by Christian fellowship and prayer.

2—To study approved courses of training, or books recommended for specialization.

3—To stimulate active interest in the study of children, and all that pertains to their development, physical, mental, moral and spiritual.

4—To discuss topics relating to the work, and to confer about problems and needs.

5—To provide for the exposition and presentation of Sunday school lessons for the various departments represented.

6—To assist in all interdenominational movements which will further the work of the Sunday school. All teachers of all children up to the age of twelve, and mothers interested in the religious training of children may become members.

The executive hope to meet a large representation from the city schools, at this, the first meeting of the recently organized union. All connected with the following departments are expected to be present: Cradle roll, beginners, primary and junior classes.

The meeting will commence at eight o'clock in St. Paul's Sunday school room to-morrow night.

Found Dead At His Work

Special to The Examiner:

MANVERS, MAY 14.—Mr. Andrew McKinley of Manvers was found dead on the farm of Mr. G. Tripp, Sunday. The deceased had been in his usual good health on Saturday morning, and went out to work, as usual, with Mr. Tripp, who operates a sawmill. The deceased was seen about four o'clock in the afternoon, occupied in the work of peeling poles. As he did not return home that night a search was instituted on Sunday, which resulted in the finding of his lifeless body in the place he had been working the day previous.

It is supposed that heart failure was the cause of his death, as no marks of violence of any kind were found upon his body. Deceased was unmarried, and leaves one brother, John, a farmer, residing near by.

The late Andrew McKinley was in his 65th year and was an adherent of the Anglican church.

The funeral took place to-day at 2 o'clock to St. Mary's cemetery.

Blocked Again

The Romaine st. sewer was once more before the council at their committee meeting on Monday night.

It appears that Engineer Chipman of Toronto, under whose supervision this sewer and pumping station were constructed, has sent an engineer down on his own initiative, to investigate the sewer's unsatisfactory working. This man reported the sewer plugged, and began the work of opening it, the corporation's men doing the work, and apparently, from City Engineer Hay's report, at the city's expense. The City Fathers are not quite clear as to the expense phase of the situation, and instructed Engineer Hay last night not to have the sewer pipes broken until the Mayor, Ald. Buller and himself are on the spot. In this way the council will assure itself of the cause for the sewer's present blockage.

NOT TO BE CLIPPED

Special to The Examiner.

BOSTON, MASS., MAY 14.—"There is nothing they can print about me now that is any worse than what I have already heard and read," calmly argued Clarence V. T. Richeson with Sheriff Quinn to-day. Since the former Baptist minister of Cambridge received his sentence of death early in January for the murder of his sweetheart, Avis Linnell, all newspapers given him have had news pertaining to the case cut out. The prisoner's plea had its force with the sheriff to-day, however, and anxious to gratify as much as possible every whim of the prisoner, he will get his newspapers uncut. There is little hope that Richeson will escape death.

Mrs. Whitton Won Case In Which Husband Failed

Secured the Reinstatement of "Susie Hal" by National Trotting

The New York Herald on Thursday, May 9th, in its report of the cases dealt with by the Board of Review of the National Trotting Association at the Murray Hill Hotel, New York city, refers to the following case in which Peterborough people were interested:

An unusual incident occurred when a woman appeared as a witness before the Board. She was Mrs. W. J. Whitton, of Peterborough, Ont., Canada. About a year ago Mrs. Whitton's husband purchased a mare, Lady of the Lake, known then as Susie Hal, of Waterloo, N.Y. He bought her in good faith and intended to race her in Canada. After arriving there he found that the made had been suspended as a "ringer" in 1910. Despite the fact that he could have raced the mare on numerous non-association tracks in Canada, Mr. Whitton believed there could be no trouble about getting her reinstated.

Accordingly last December, Mr. Whitton sent a friend to plead for the reinstatement and the application was turned down. Mr. Whitton appeared yesterday morning with a second application and pleaded his own case, only to have it again denied. He had the case reconsidered at the afternoon session and again was the victim of the iron clad rule of the association to the effect that a "ringer" shall ever be valueless. Mr. Whitton pleaded again this morning and the result was that the Board consented to hear Mrs. Whitton.

When the decisions of the Board were announced last night it was found that Mrs. Whitton was successful where her husband failed twice and his friend once. Susie Hal was declared reinstated on the payment of the unlawful winnings of $55 and a recording fee of $50 for changing her name from Lady of the Lake. Mr. Whitton very gladly paid the $105 to get the mare back into good standing.

THE POLICE CALENDAR

A local butcher was fined $10.00 in this morning's Police Court, by Magistrate Dumble. The allegation was that the defendant committed a breach of the health act, by exposing for sale meat that was under the legal age limit of four weeks.

No defence was offered.

The meat was seized by Sanitary Inspector Spence, on the market last Saturday, and the information summoning the defendant to appear in court was laid by the same official.

Three local youths were each fined $2 and costs for riding their wheels on the sidewalk.

The familiar face of Special C. P. R. Constable Pinchin graced the police court proceedings this morning. He was there to substantiate the charge of trespassing which was laid against R. Dundas. Two dollars and costs was the mandamus of the court.

A FINE CONSIGNMENT

The Mann Lumber Co. are exporting a fine consignment of timber to the old country this morning. The parcel was loaded on to trucks at the east end of Sherbrooke street, and comprises six square pieces of rock elm 50 ft. x 16-18 in. square, and eighty logs of rock elm and pine. One of the pine logs contained 1640 ft. of lumber.

OBITUARY

HUBERT FLOYD BRENNAN.

The many friends in Peterborough and district of Mr. Hubert Floyd Brennan, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Brennan of Gravehurst, Muskoka, will regret to learn of his demise, which took place in New York recently.

The deceased gentleman, who was 36 years old, formerly lived in Peterborough. He started his career as a brakesman, twenty years ago, and at his death held a very responsible position with the New York Central and Pennsylvania Railway.

The funeral, which took place at Jersey City, where the remains were interred in the Holy Cross cemetery, was largely attended by the officials and employees of the Company, besides many friends and relatives, including Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Brennan of Havelock (brother of deceased).

The late Mr. Brennan leaves a young widow in Jersey City, besides his father and mother, three sisters and seven brothers and a host of friends to mourn his loss.

AMENDMENT TO LICENSE ACT.

Among the amendments to the Liquor License Act made by the Provincial Government during the 1912 session of the Legislature are one or two of importance. One clause prohibits the establishing of distribution centres by liquor manufacturers. Another amendment provides that anyone found intoxicated in local option territory may be compelled to state where and from whom he got the liquor, the penalty for refusing to do so being thirty days in jail. These amendments will strengthen local option. The amendment to prohibit treating at licensed hotel bars and clubs will not be introduced until the next session of the legislature.

The new amendment renders a man liable for being under the influence of liquor in a local option territory, and also empowers the Magistrate to commit the offender until such time as he divulges the source of his supply.

A case in point is that of a Bridgenorth man, who was fined $20 by Magistrate Dumble, on Saturday last.

Everyone Should Read This

Do you know that there is a store in Peterborough that advertises extensively and yet their advertising does not cost them a cent?

Do you know that it is paid for by customers of the merchants who do not advertise?

Perhaps you don't see how that can be, so we will explain.

When you buy an article from a retailer, you pay for three things—(1) What that dealer paid for it; (2) What it cost him to do business; and (3) His profit.

So you see the greater a merchant's expense in relation to the amount of goods sold, the more he must charge you for what you buy.

We all know that the advertised store does the largest business.

Hence their expenses are lower, and they can make their prices lower than the store that does not advertise.

For instance—"Jones" does not advertise; he sells $20,000 worth of goods in a year; his expense of doing business is $4,000.

"Smith" advertises. His year's business is $23,000; his expense of doing business is $4,400 ($400 more than Jones' because of advertising.

$4,000 is 20 per cent of $20,000, so it costs Jones 20 per cent. to do business.

$4,400 is 19 per cent. of $23,000, so it costs Smith 19 per cent. to do business, and 1 per cent. less than it does Jones.

You will readily see that Smith, the man who advertises, can sell every dollars' worth of goods for 1c less than can Jones, who does not advertise.

In other words, Jones' customers are paying for Smith's advertising because they are paying Jones more for the goods they buy than they would have to pay Smith for the same qualities.

Yes, H. LeBrun & Co. advertise. Their advertising is constantly bringing them new customers, while their big values and considerate treatment hold all their old ones.

It will pay YOU to trade there.

The sooner you find it out, the better it will be for you.

New Hydrant

The Peterborough Water Commissioners met in regular session last evening. Those present were Mr. T. F. Matthews (chairman), Mr. W. H. Hill and Mr. W. H. Moore.

Moved by W. H. Hill, seconded by W. H. Moore, that the annual subscription to the American Water Works Association be forwarded, and that the acting superintendent and any of the water commissioners who desired to attend the convention, be given permission to do so. Carried.

A letter was received from the city clerk, notifying the committee that the Fire, Water and Light Committee had authorized a hydrant in Dufferin street.

Moved by W. H. Moore, seconded by W. H. Hill, that the acting superintendent be authorized to remove the watering trough, now situated at the creek in Charlotte street, at a point on Aylmer street, to be designated by the chairman, Ald. Buller. Carried.

A number of accounts were presented and a motion ordering them to be paid, moved and seconded by W. H. Hill and W. H. Moore respectively.

A number of other items of business were disposed of, after which the committee adjourned.

BOYS RECOVERED FROM ORPHANAGE

KINGSTON, ONT., MAY 14.—W. H. Wrightmeyer, Children's Aid Society agent at Belleville, has arranged for the recovery of two children, who had been placed in St. Mary's-on-the-Lake Orphanage. These two young boys were a few months ago taken from their parents at Tweed and placed as wards in another house, and it appears they were afterwards returned to their parents on condition that they were to be better taken care of. Recently the mother decided to move of her own accord, and, coming to this city, placed her boys in the orphanage.

The mother is a Roman Catholic in religion but the father, being a Protestant, desires that their children shall be brought up as members of his own church. The youngsters were secured by the agent.

MISGUIDING INFLUENCES WHICH CONFRONT UNSUSPECTING EMIGRANT

His Mind is Perverted by the Harrowing Tales of Hardship Which Await Him on the Farm—Stories Emanate From Misfits and Others Possessing a Natural Abhorence For Work.

A WAY TO SOLVE PROBLEM

In spite of the large number of immigrants that are constantly pouring into Peterborough county, the demand for farm labourers continues undiminished. Mr. Howson, local immigration agent, estimates that the supply will be several hundred short of the demand this season. The large influx to the Canadian Northwest of farmers' sons, is largely responsible for this condition of affairs.

The problem of how to keep the boy within the shadow of the parental roof has reached an acute stage, and is one that is not easy of solution.

"Farming it not what it used to be," wailed a farmer from the virgin lowlands of Otonabee, to the Examiner this morning. "The big problem in days gone by, was how to provide homes for the boys when they grew into manhood," he continued. "Nowa-days they remain at home until such time as they are able to shift for themselves, when they migrate to the west or some other over-rated clime." The old man is left at home, where his burdens are increased by the never-ending help problem.

Mr. Howson expects quite a number of families during the course of the next few weeks. Small parties sailing on the s.s. Corsican and Teutonic are expected daily.

A Serious Difficulty.

One serious difficulty presents itself in the handling of the new arrivals during their sojourn in the city, pending, and often evil influences, which is homes, and that is the many distracting, and often evil influence, which is brought to bear upon the immigrant. This is done more often for the purpose of dissuading him to accept farm labour in lieu of employment in the city, where the labour market is already overstocked. Instances have been recorded where boarding house mistresses exercised their influence in this respect for the express purpose of converting the new comer into a permanent boarder if possible. This, with the extravagant claims circulated by the misfits who find farm work uncongenial to their ideas of pursuing their transient course through life with the minimum amount of work, has the effect, oftentimes, of leading the uninitiated new-comer into accepting a course that will ultimately lead him to privation.

A suitable place to accommodate these people during their stay in the city, would fill a long felt want. A place removed from the influence of those who would pervert for their own interests, and conducted by one who was in sympathy with the work is the crying need of to-day.

6,000 Scotchmen Sail.

London, May 14.—During the past week over 6,000 artisans and agriculturists from Scotland have embarked for Canada. They are the pick of their classes, and their departure has renewed the criticism that the land and labour policy of the Government is driving the best men from the country. All of the immigration agents of the various colonial dominions are reporting an extraordinary demand for passage from prospective immigrants, and it is said that the present steamship lines will not be able to handle much more than half of the traffic during the coming season.

4,000 New Arrivals.

Toronto, May 14.—Nearly 1,000 foreign immigrants of the s.s. Mount Royal and Koeln from Antwerp arrived in Toronto yesterday in three special trains. The new arrivals were mostly Russians and Balkan peoples although among them were some of the better class of German settlers for the west.

Fully half of the number continued their journey westward to Saskatchewan, where they will be employed at construction work on the G. T. P. Of the remainder, a large number were sent to North Bay, also for railroad construction work, and some will work on the new C.P.R. Toronto to Ottawa line.

The s.s. Corsican has docked at Quebec, while the Teutonic, Scandinavian and Empress of Ireland are on the St. Lawrence and the passengers are expected in Toronto to-day. The Empress of Ireland, which should have docked last Friday, was delayed by an accident to her engines.

Nearly 4,000 immigrants for Ontario have arrived so far this month. The demand for farm labourers continues undiminished.

LEFT FOR VANCOUVER.

Mr. Fred Smith of Lafayette Avenue, Joins the Exodus to the West.

Mr. Fred Smith of Lafayette avenue, left yesterday for Vancouver, where he will accept a lucrative position. Mr. Smith has been a valued employee of the Canadian General Electric Company for the past seven years, and in going from Peterborough he leaves a host of friends who wish him success in his new field of labour. He was a prominent member of Peterborough Lansdowne Lodge, B. O. E.

The society has lost one of its loyal members in Brother Fred Smith, but what is Peterborough's loss is Vancouver's gain, as the sterling qualities which won for him the esteem and respect of the members of the lodge, and all who knew him, will win for him a place in any lodge room of the Dominion.

Rids Poisons From the Blood

To get the blood pure is a problem which nearly everybody has to face in the springtime. The quicker the poisons are swept from the blood the less suffering there will be from pains, aches and rheumatism.

The liver and kidneys filter poisons from the blood, and you can very materially help them by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

There is no way to purify the blood except through the activity of these two filtering organs. Because they are prompt in awakening the action of the liver and kidneys. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the greatest of blood purifiers.

You need not have the tired, languid feelings which make life a burden to so many people if you use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Backache, headache, biliousness, indigestion and constipation disappear when this great medicine is used.

LEAVES FOR CALGARY TO-NIGHT.

Mr. George Davidson, who has been gatekeeper at the Simcoe street crossing for the past ten years, leaves for Calgary to-night, to join his family.

Mr. John McGinty of Omemee, formerly trackman on the G.T.R., will succeed Mr. Davidson as gatekeeper. The latter takes with him the wish of his friends in railroad circles that he will meet with success on his new venture.

With The Local Boy Scouts

Edited by a B. P. Scout

On Friday evening last the Boy Scouts of the city held a very instructive first-aid drill. Each patrol leader took charge of his patrol and put them through their manoeuvres The boys manifested a keen interest in the work, and a few more drills will bring them up to a high grade of efficiency.

With the departure of His Excellency, Earl Grey from Canada, the association lost its chief scout. During His Excellency's term of office he had taken the keenest interest in the work of the movement, and none regretted his departure more than the Dominion Council and the Canadian Scouts generally. However in his successor, Field Marshal, His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, the Governor General, the association has gained a new friend, and one who has always shown an appreciation of the scout movement.—The Canadian Scout.

Cadet News.

The first step towards placing the movement on a wider national basis is to be made during 1913. Preparations are under way to train 40,000 cadets in summer camps. The Minister of Militia's plan bespeaks the co-operation of school inspectors and school teachers, many of whom are already enthusiastic advocates of the movement. They are to report the number of boys, between 12 and 16 years of age, in each public school section who desire to attend camp, and be trained for a week during the latter part of July or August. The lads will be eligible whether or not they are attending school. When these returns are all in estimates will be made of the number to be called out in each locality. The cadets from a township or similar unit will form a company, and the companies from a given county, town or city will make up a regiment or a brigade.

Obey Orders.

"A Scout obeys orders," whether of his parents, scoutmaster or patrol leader." We quote from "Scouting For Boys." Obedience is the hardest thing to learn in scoutcraft, and therefore each scout should try his hardest to be obedient. And don't grumble while obeying. You are not a true scout if you grumble while carrying out an order.

In every part and corner of life, to lose one's self is to be gainer, to forget one's self is to be happy.

Some of the Scouts are forgetting the important part of the Scout law—"To do good turns every day."

New Recruits.

Many new recruits have been added to the ranks of the Scouts during the past two weeks. The cumulative effect of this will be to give the movement greater impetus and stimulate the Scouts to a wider and more useful range of action.

Be Prepared.

When General Baden-Powell was in South Africa, the natives gave him a name which signified: "The man who is Prepared," and its effectiveness is shown by some incidents which Mr. Blumenfield in an article in "The Outlook" reports: "How useful it may be to have at hand in an emergency a trained and disciplined force of quick intelligent boys, was seen recently at the time of a terrible railway accident on the London-Brighton railway. The local scouts, who were playing football when they heard of the accident, rushed to the scene with their ambulance stretcher, and for many hours calmly and promptly performed noble and terrible duties of rescue among the killed and wounded, giving the most valuable help to the doctors, police and railway servants.

The 1st Troop are certainly progressing. There was a good turn out on Friday last. Drummer Crane got in some good drumming practise. The adjutant and patrol leaders certainly handled the boys well. The Scouts are showing a great liking for their Scout-Master, Mr. Vick. Next week the 1st Troop will meet for first aid practise.

The 3rd Troop had a poor turn out on account of the baseball game. It did not show much of the enthusiasm that was displayed last year. The boys who did turn out showed that there is still the proper Scout spirit. We are hoping for a better meeting next Friday night. First Aid will be the work for next meeting. There is only three nights left in which to prepare the work, so it is necessary for every boy to get busy.

The 4th Troop is still filling up under the Scout-Mastership of Rev. F. Sawers. Any boy in East City who is anxious to become a Scout may do so by applying to him.

It is going to keep the troops busy if they are going to fall in line. The East City boys are showing great Scout ability and zeal.

There is some talk of Knox Church organising a Baden Powell Troop of Scouts. Further news will be published later on regarding this.

There are still vacancies in the 1st, 3rd and 4th Troops for boys. Any boys wishing to become Scouts should get in touch with Commissioner Miller, 562 Bolivar street, and he will put you right.

There was a meeting of Scout officials in the Armouries on Saturday night consisting of His Honour Judge Huycke, Mr. A. H. Stratton, Mr. V. Eastwood, Mr. Kerr, Rev. Mr. Sawers, Scout-Master 4th P. T., and Mr. Miller, Commissioner. A lot of business was discussed, including Scout badges, track waggons, summer camps, and a Scout concert. This certainly looks bright for the local Scouts.

Mr. Vick had the 1st Troop out for practice on Saturday afternoon. The boys had a good time. Well done boys, that is a lot better than hanging around the street corners.

Chief Scout—His Royal Highness The Duke of Connaught, K.C.

Chief Scout for Ontario—His Honour Lieut.-Gov. Sir J. M. Gibson, K.C., M.G.

President—W. K. George, Esq.

Vice President—Lieutenant Col. A. E. Gooderham and J. H. Collison, Esq.

Robbie Smith, drummer of the 3rd Troop will make a good pupil for Mr. Robert Beach, unless the 45th Regiment of Lindsay get him, the same way they have got the buglers.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

SNOW AND FROST AT COLLINGWOOD

Special to The Examiner:

COLLINGWOOD, MAY 14.—Yesterdya snow fell to the depth of several inches in the fruit district west of the town and was followed by several degrees of frost last night. The fall wheat is reported to have escaped.

PREMIER BORDEN GETS FREEDOM OF TORONTO

Special Wire to The Examiner.

TORONTO, MAY 14.—Toronto gave Premier R. L. Borden a royal civic welcome this afternoon on the occasion of his first official visit. In keeping with the precedent which has been followed on other similar occasions, the premier was accorded the freedom of the city. His many virtues were extolled and his good graces for favours to be in future, were received and assiduously courted in time honoured and ancient manner. He will be here all week.

BUST OF LAURIER HAD NOSE BROKEN

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, MAY 14.— Sir Wilfrid's nise is broken. This is the famous bust statue of the former premier which was saved from the Titanic because it was placed on another ship while its sculptor, Paul Chevre, came on the wrecked vessel and was among those rescued. This statue fell when it was being placed in Chateau Laurier yesterday, the thirteenth. The nose was broken off and other damage done. Chevre will probably have to do the job all over again.

BIRTHS.

BRACKEN.—At Havelock, on "Mothers' Day," Sunday, May 12th, 1912, the wife of Mr. O. A. Bracken, of a daughter.

SOME THINGS AND OTHERS

The mid-May frost of last year came on the 8th—this year the 13th.

Postal cards and notes sent the Examiner, containing news, in respect of which it makes some difference whether it is true or not, should be signed by some responsible person.

A pet dog's name may be "Beauty" but it is not the kind of beauty desired in a freshly seeded or planted flower bed.

The thermometer registered last night from 1 to 3 or 4 degrees of frost, according to locality—low or high ground.

The Sanitary Inspector's notice at the "dump" at the foot of Charlotte street is so far recognized that only inoffensive rubbish rubbish is now deposited there—according to the depositors.

Last night's frost—with ice the thickness of a penny, is a blessing in disguise, if it kills the newly-hatched tent caterpillars, which threaten to be unpleasantly numerous this year.

"City" development, in the view of many of our business men, judging by the interest they take in the Board of Trade, seems to be inclined to "bust" development.

It would be a happy thing if the city fathers could find money for street improvement, as easily as they found need for improvement, during their last Friday over-the-city jaunt.

The plague of tent caterpillars (Clisiocampa Americana) threatens to be far worse this year than last.

This caterpillar goes out to feed during the day and returns to the "tent" towards evening, when they should be either burned or crushed.

The Health Inspector has made his first assault on unripe veal. A farmer was fined $10 for exposing for sale, on the market, veal unfit for for food on account of its extremely infantile state.

Dr. Cameron returned to the city to-day from New York, where he spent the past ten days.

Miss Eilleen Eyres of Calgary, arrived in town Monday and will be with Mrs. Eyres, 168 Antrim street till Friday morning.

Mr. George Ruth left to-day for Edmonton and Kerrobert, in the interests of the real estate firm of Moore, Ruth and Austin.

Miss Jean Campbell has returned to her home in Keene from New York, where she has been visiting her brother, Dr. Campbell.

Misses D. Johnson of Norwood, and Rose Davidson of Havelock, left on Sunday for Weyburn, Sask., where they will reside, having obtained positions in a large departmental store there.

Mrs. Thornton Sharp and little daughter have returned to their home in Alberta, after spending the past three months at the home of her father, Dr. W. F. Harrison, of Keene.

Mr. and Mrs. John Owen Hughes, Palmerston avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Beatrice, to Mr. Alexander George Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hall, of Peterborough. The marriage will take place quietly in the latter part of May.—Toronto Globe.

W.R. TRAVERS NOT PRESENT AT TRIAL

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, MAY 14.—W. R. Travers, convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary, was the cause of holding an investigation into the Farmers Bank by Chief Justice Sir William Meredith to-day. Travers wasn't on hand when called upon to give evidence, and it appeared, on investigation, that he was in jail instead of being present as a witness. The investigation was adjourned till to-morrow, till a proper officer is sent down to bring Travers to court.

BOY SCOUT MOVEMENT AT KNOX CHURCH

A special meeting of the Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip was called and held in the Brotherhood Room of Knox Church last night.

Various motion for the good of this body of the church's work were moved and adopted, including the idea of visiting by the members to help swell the ranks on the Sabbath afternoons, and extending the right hand of fellowship; the chartering of the steamer Empress for a picnic on 8th June; moved and adopted that the president (Mr. And. McKenzie) arrange the charter; appointment of committee to meet central committee of Sabbath School to arrange joint rambles and picnics with the Brotherhood; and the appointment of officers for two troops of B. P. Scouts.

After some discussion, Mr. James Milby was appointed scoutmaster, with Messrs Vick and Anderson as lieutenants. A meeting of boys of the south side will be called for an evening next week, when it is hoped the youth of the district will respond by turning up at Knox Church to set this interesting movement in motion.

Athletes Barred

KEENE, MAY 14.—Mr. Herb Miller has rented the agricultural grounds from the society for pasture and posted a notice forbidding any one to trespass. The grounds have always been used for sporting events, but Mr. Miller ordered the ball players off the grounds, which resulted in a deputation of the players calling on the secretary and president of the Agricultural society. The latter granted them permission to use the grounds as in former years. It is not known what steps will be taken by Mr. Miller in the matter.

Trespassing signs seem to be in vogue since Magistrate Dumble handed down his decision a few weeks ago in the case of Easson vs. Dickson, both of this village.

Kaiser Wants Alsace-Lorraine.

Strassburg, Germany, May 15.—The Kaiser yesterday warned State Secretary Von Bulach of Alsace-Lorraine, and Mayor Schwander, of Strassburg, that he would make the territory a mere Prussian province if the hostile sentiment towards Germany is not modified.

Discussing the political situation in Alsace-Lorraine, where strong anti-German and pro-French sentiment is rising, and where the diet attempted to strike the Kaiser's allowances from the civil list, the Kaiser said to the State Secretary and mayor:

"You now only see the best side of us. You may also learn the other side of us. If this continues we will recall your constitution and make you simply a Prussian province."

Death in the Matches.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., May 15.—Dr. McMillan, giving evidence for the crown in the trial of Mrs. McGee, charged with having poisoned her five children, told of a post-mortem examination made in Montreal. He added: "I have no doubt whatever that death was due to phosphorus poisoning. Less than twenty-five matches would contain enough phosphorus to kill an adult."

It has been shown that the woman purchased many matches.

OIL TO BE DEVELOPED

Two Agents Lease a Thousand Acres Near Milton

MAY BE STANDARD OIL MEN

Toronto, May 15.—One thousand acres, comprising seven adjoining farms just north of the C.P.R. station at Milton, were yesterday leased to two men who have apparently unlimited backing, and who are believed to be agents of the Standard Oil Co.

Oil was struck at Milton a little less than two months ago by men boring on the property of Brandon's Brick Works. They went down 1,402 feet, presumably while testing the clay beds, then struck a fair flow of oil. These men since have rigged up an improvised pump and have got four or five barrels an hour, they say. Government geologists here have pronounced the oil to be of excellent quality.

In the last three weeks there has been great excitement throughout the district, and over two thousand acres, exclusive of the thousand acre deal, have been optioned and leased and released by speculators.

The two men, who are said to be backed by the Standard Oil Co., are T. Bracken and J. McKnight. The farms they have leased are William Bowan's 100 acres, Elliott Estate, 200 acres; J. S. McConnell, general manager of the Milton Pressed Brick Works, 200 acre and 100 acre farms; G. R. Cottrelle, 100 acres; Daniel and John McGibbon, 200 acres, and Malcolm Chisholm, 100 acres.

In leasing the properties, they covenant to find oil within a year or drop the operations.

Appeals to Electors.

Montreal, May 15.—The secretary of the Dominion Alliance, John H. Roberts, issued the following statement in regard to the provincial election:

"On the eve of the provincial election, I would earnestly appeal to the good citizens of all parties to cast their votes in favor of temperance and for the minimizing and restrictions of the temptations of the liquor traffic. With no party bias whatever, the Dominion Alliance has decided to ask men of all parties to sustain the candidates of the Government because it has been a good temperance Government, and, therefore, deserves the support of all who place emphasis upon temperance and morality."

DANISH KING IS DEAD

Queen Alexandra's Brother Passes Away

CHRISTIAN IS NEW KING

London, May 15.—King Frederick VIII. of Denmark died suddenly this morning at Hamburg.

King Frederick VIII. of Denmark was born June 3, 1843, and ascended the throne in his 63rd year, after the sudden death of his father, King Christian IX., who died in January, 1906.

Frederick was probably the most popular and beloved monarch, who ever occupied the Danish throne. Of quiet, highly cultured bearing, he led a simple and peaceful life for a man of such high rank. Although he was not a politician in any sense of the word, King Frederick's chief activities were confined to thoroughly acquainting himself with the big topics of the day, concerning the welfare of the country and his subjects.

As a boy he was educated in the public schools and associated and played with children of plebeian birth. This early training developed a most democratic trait in the character of the young prince.

The king was a major-general in the Danish army for a long while before he ascended the throne, and as such attended to his duties with characteristic vigor and diligence, and introduced many innovations that greatly raised the standard of efficiency of the army.

As crown prince he married Princess Louisa, daughter of King Karl XV. of Sweden. She was considered the richest princess of her time. The royal couple had eight children, four boys and four girls. The eldest son, Crown Prince Christian, will succeed his father as head of the Danish monarchy. The king's second son, Prince Charles, married Princess Maud of Wales, the youngest daughter of King Edward VII. of England, and is now King Haakon, the popular ruler of Sweden.

King Frederick was chancellor of the University of Copenhagen and grand master of the Danish Masons. He was fond of traveling, and it was his custom to make frequent trips to other European capitals. A favorite journey of the king and queen was the annual trip to the queen's old home, in Sweden. On one occasion Frederick and a party of English and Americans went for a week's horseback jaunt through the interior of Iceland, and for two days the king remained in the saddle twelve consecutive hours.

Should Unionize Navy.

London, May 15.—According to the Daily Chronicle, present unrest among the sailors in the British navy is due to dissatisfaction with the conditions of the service, especially in reference to pay and punishments. This complaint has become so acute that petty officers and men in the service are contemplating a breach of the King's regulations by forming themselves into a trades union.

The writer makes a long statement in this connection, which the paper prints conspicuously. He says it is time for the nation and the naval authorities to realise that if the Admiralty does not start immediately to reform the legitimate grievances of these 100,000 men, or if the country does not compel the authorities to measure out at least justice, the rank and file of the navy will form an association which will be strong enough to demand redress by methods with which the industrial history of the country for the last year or two has made the country painfully familiar.

Sarnia Girls Deported.

Sarnia, May 15.—Clara Mackenzie and Maud Harkness, two Sarnia girls, still in their teens, were deported by the U. S. immigration officers at Port Huron Monday morning.

An actor who has been appearing in local theatrical circles is implicated in the affair. The man poses as a clairvoyant, and, ostensibly to have their fortunes told, the girls visited him at an hotel in Port Huron. Following their deportation the two girls have disappeared, and the police have been unable to locate them. Startling developments are expected.

Prince at French Manoeuvres.

Paris, May 15.—The Prince of Wales, who has been staying for some time here with the Marquis de Breteuil, intends to leave for the great French naval station at Toulon on June 19, and will embark on board the French dreadnought Danton, the flagship of Vice-Admiral Augustin Boue de la Peyrere.

Alive In Mine.

Duluth, May 15.—Six of the thirteen men entombed at the 2,000-foot level of the Norris mine at Ironwood, Mich., by a cave-in Monday night, are grouped in a small space with five of their comrades dead beside them. Two other bodies have been brought to the surface.

The men still alive are being fed by means of a little pipe driven through the earth. Many rescuers are working to save them.

It is not known just what caused the accident. Some time about midnight Monday something gave way on the 2,000-foot level. Many men were at work there. New timbers recently had been installed and the workings were considered in perfect condition. When the cave-in occurred, men scattered in both directions. The majority escaped up the right path, but 13 blundered into one of the many cross sections of the mine, considering themselves safe there.

Then, with a roar that could be heard at the surface the roof dropped down for yards and the 13 were trapped.

Selling London Electric.

Toronto, May 15.—Advices from London, Ont., received last night, state that the shareholders of the London Electric Light Co. are likely to sell out this month at the rate of $50 per $100 share par value to interests as yet unnamed, and also that the shareholders would be notified by a letter to be sent out from the office of W. D. Matthews, president, Toronto, to-day. Should they approve, a majority of the stock, about 75 per cent., would be deposited with the National Trust Co. by May 27.

Mr. Matthews, when interviewed at his residence last night, stated that negotiations had been going on for some time, and that he thought the sale would go through. As to the interest behind the deal, Mr. Matthews said that he could not give any information at present.

Many people interested in electrical matters throughout the province, are of the opinion that Mackenzie & Mann are behind the deal.

Graham For G.T.R.?

Toronto, May 15.—The Globe this morning says: Hon. George Perry Graham, M.P., Minister of Railways and Canals in the Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, has been offered the presidency of the Grand Trunk Railway Co. as successor to the late Charles M. Hays, who lost his life in the Titanic disaster. Mr. Alfred W. Smithers, chairman of the board of directors, is now on his way to Canada to consult with Mr. Graham as to the vacancy. Prior to leaving England last week, Mr. Smithers, in an interview, said: "I selected Charles M. Hays, and if my next choice is equally successful I shall be abundantly satisfied." It is not known what Mr. Graham's attitude toward the offer is.

LAST BANDIT IS SLAIN

Paris Police Engage in an Eight Hour Battle

DESPERADOES IN HOUSE

Paris, May 15.—The career of the last of France's notorious bandit gangs was dramatically ended yesterday morning when, after eight hours' battle with police and troops, its leader, Octave Garnier, and his confederate, Valiot, were blown up by explosives in a small villa at Nogent-Sur-Marne, on the banks of the Marne, where they had taken refuge.

Shattered by shots of dynamite, their house fell in ruins when melinite was exploded under its walls. The police found Garnier dead and Valiot dying. Five policemen were wounded in the battle.

All the forces for the protection of society had failed for hours to dislodge them. Police came from Paris, four miles away. Several thousand police, gendarmes and Zouaves tried to shoot the bandits and blow up the house. Though the villa was badly damaged by dynamite the bandits miraculously held their own and showed no signs of surrendering.

Unlike Bonnot, whose refuge was dynamited at Choisy-le-Roi, Garnier made his last stand in a house hidden by foliage and surrounded closely by other buildings, rendering an assault difficult and dangerous. Bonnot and Dubois fought in a garage, which could be approached from all sides.

Garnier's mistake came in trying to negotiate stolen securities at a branch of a big banking house, whereby he and his companions, Valiot and Vuillemin were tracked to Nogent.

Louis Lepine, the prefect of police of Paris, with a large body of policemen, left headquarters hurriedly in motor cars for the scene.

M. Lepine had a narrow escape from death. Although some distance from the villa, a bullet passed within an inch of his shoulder and buried itself in the wall of a house, sending up a shower of fragments into the prefect's face. The crowds, forced back further and further, lost patience and vented their feelings in a wild chorus of "Death to the Bandits."

The arrival of a brigade of reserve police was loudly cheered.

From the attic windows the trapped men directed a steady fusillade, and in the flickering glare of torches, the scene was dramatic in the extreme.

Trains from Paris conveying the working people to their homes slowly passed over the bridge, affording thousands a view of the fight.

At 10.15 M. Lepine ordered electric searchlights from Paris, as there was great danger in the obscurity of the besiegers accidentally shooting their fellows.

The prefect also requisitioned extra dynamite bombs and cartridges. Several detectives armed with a new type of steel shield which the police arsenals recently devised, were able to approach within fifteen feet of the house. Holding the shield with the left arm, and crouched behind it, they fired. One shield was pierced, but the detective was not wounded. Sergt. Fleury, who was dangerously wounded earlier in the battle while protected by a steel sheet, owed his injury to the fact that he turned to explain to a comrade how well his armor was working, thus exposing his body.

The firing ceased for a time, the bandits either being exhausted or having ammunition, while the soldiers were forced to discontinue pending the arrival of a new stock of cartridges from Fort Nogent.

Later two more dynamite cartridges were exploded, and a portion of one of the walls toppled over. Nevertheless, the bandits apparently succeeded in finding shelter in what remained of the structure.

Brooklyn Bridge Feeble.

New York, May 15.—That some fears are felt for the safety of the old Brooklyn bridge, which still carries a considerable share of the traffic between Manhattan and Brooklyn, is indicated by orders issued by the city bridge department prohibiting heavy teams from using the roadways and directing the elevated railroads to curtail their traffic during the rush hours.

Extensive repairs are being made to the structure and an official statement says: "It is safe to believe that it will be many years before it will be necessary to condemn it."

Brooklyn bridge was one of the seven wonders of the world when it was built. Begun in 1870, it was opened in 1883. It is 5,989 feet long, with a river span of 1,595 feet, and is 85 feet wide. It cost about fifteen million dollars.

White Keeps Mum.

Toronto, May 15—Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, interviewed at the King Edward yesterday as to the rumored tariff changes, said:

"There is only one time and place for the announcement of tariff changes, and that is when the budget speech is delivered in Parliament. The changes authorized by order-in-council only relate to the remission of duties upon the material for use in our Canadian factories. Some orders of this kind have been made every year, but they will not decrease whatever protection is afforded now to our home industries."

BORDEN IN TORONTO.

Prime Minister Lays Corner-stone of Y. M. C. A. Building.

Toronto, May 15.—In the presence of a large crowd of representative citizens, Right Hon. R. L. Borden, Prime Minister of Canada, laid the corner-stone of the new Central Y. M. C. A. building on College street, at 6 o'clock last evening. Stretching from Yonge to almost Teraulay street, were about 2,000 people, homeward bound, who paused on their way to witness the ceremony.

The corner-stone is situated on the southeast section of the building, the foundation of which is now laid, and a large platform, gaily decorated with bunting and flags, was erected to accommodate the guests at the function.

Bishop Sweeny and Principal O'Meara of Wycliffe College read the service, following which the silver trowel was presented to the Premier.

After the stone was laid several persons spoke. In the course of his speech the Premier said that the affairs of Canada were carried on by the entire people, and the work of the Y. M. C. A. was as patriotic and important as any. "You realize, moreover, that the ideals of democracy must be based upon public opinion of the country, and after all the character of the people is the chief asset of the nation," he said. "And upon the voice and ideals of the people the future destiny of the country must inevitably rest."

Canada was justly proud of its great resources, but this counted almost for nothing unless there was behind them the force of great character among the people, he said. It was to this higher inspiration that the influence of the Y. M. C. A. was especially brought to bear in shaping the character of the young man in the great cities.

He then referred to the young man coming into a city like Toronto from rural Ontario and passing through some critical period, the influence of which shaped his career. Here was where the Y. M. C. A. did its great and patriotic work in the highest sense of the term.

CHAPTER XXX.
IN CHRISTIE'S ROOM.

Keith swept his glace up and down the street without results. Surely, Hawley and his companion could not have disappeared so suddenly. They had turned to the right, he was certain as to that, and he pushed through the crowd of men around the theatre entrance, and hastened to overtake them. He found nothing to overtake—nowhere along that stretch of street, illumined by window lights, was there any sign of a man and woman walking together. He stopped bewildered, staring blindly about, failing utterly to comprehend this mysterious vanishing. What could it mean? What had happened? How could they have disappeared so completely during that single moment he had waited to speak to Fairbain The man's heart beat like a trip-hammer with apprehension, a sudden fear for Hope taking possession of him. Surely the girl would never consent to enter any of those dens along the way, and Hawley would not dare resort to force in the open street. The very thought seemed preposterous, and yet, with no other supposition possible, he entered these one after the other in hasty search, questioning the inmates sharply, only to find himself totally baffled—Hawley and Hope had vanished as though swallowed by the earth. He explored dark passageways between the scattered buildings, rummaging about recklessly, but came back to the street again without reward.

Could they have gone down the other side, in the deeper shadows, and thus reached the hotel more quickly than it seemed to him possible? There was hardly a chance that this could be true, and yet Keith grasped at it desperately, cursing himself for having wasted time. Five minutes later, breathless, almost speechless with anxiety, he startled the clerk.

"Has Miss Waite come in? Miss Hope Waite?"

"Blamed if I know," retorted the other, indifferently. "Can't for the life of me tell those two females apart. One of them passed through 'bout ten minutes ago; Doc. Fairbain was with her. Another party just went upstairs hunting Miss Maclaire, and as they haven't come down, I reckon it must have been her—anything wrong?"

"I'm not sure yet," shortly. "Who was this other person?"

"Old fellow with white hair and whiskers—swore like a pirate—had the sheriff along with him."

It came to Keith in a flash—it was Waite. Perhaps Christie knew. Perhaps the General knew. Certainly something of importance was crystallizing in the actress's room which might help to explain all else. He rushed up the stairs, barely waiting to rap once at the closed door before he pressed it open. The sight within held him silent, waiting opportunity to blurt out his news. Here, also, was tragedy, intense, compelling, which for the instant seemed to even overshadow the fate of the girl he loved. There were three men present, and the woman. She stood clutching the back of a chair, white-faced and open-eyed, with Fairbain slightly behind her, one hand grasping her arm, the other clinched, his jaw set pugnaciously. Facing these two was Waite, and a heavily built man wearing a brown beard, closely trimmed.

"You'd better acknowledge it," Waite snapped out, with a quick glance at the newcomer. "It will make it all the easier for you. I tell you this is the sheriff, and we've got you both dead to rights."

"But," she urged, "why should I be arrested? I have done nothing."

"You're an adventuress—a d——n adventuress—Hawley's mistress, probably—a—"

"Now, see here, Waite," and Fairbain swung himself forward, "you drop that. Miss Maclaire is my friend, and if you say another word I'll smash you, sheriff or no sheriff."

Waite glared at him.

"You old fool," he snorted, "what have you got to do with this?"

"I've got this to do with it, you'll find—the woman is to be treated with respect, or I'll blow your d——d obstinate head off."

The sheriff laid his hand on Waite's shoulder.

"Come," he said firmly, "this is no way to get at it. We want to know certain facts, and then we can proceed lawfully. Let me question the woman."

The two older men still faced one another belligerently, but Keith saw Christie draw the doctor back from between her and the sheriff.

"You may ask me anything you please," she announced, quietly. "I am sure these gentlemen will not fight here in my room."

"Very well, Miss Maclaire. It will require only a moment. How long have you known this man Hawley?"

"Merely a few days—since I arrived in Sheridan."

"But you were in communication with him before that?"

The pleasant voice and quiet demeanour of the sheriff seemed to yield the girl confidence and courage.

"Yes, he had written me two or three letters."

"You met him here then by appointment?"

"He was o come to Sheridan, an? explain to me more fully what his letters had only hinted at."

"You possessed no previous knowledge of his purpose?"

"Only the barest outline—details were given me later."

"Will you tell us briefly exactly what Hawley told you?"

The girl's eyes wandered from face to face, then returned to the waiting sheriff.

"May—may I sit down?" she asked.

"Most certainly; and don't be afraid, for really we wish to be your friends."

She sank down into the chair, and even Keith could see how her slender form trembled. There was a moment's silence.

"Believe me, gentlemen," she began, falteringly, "if there is any fraud, any conspiracy, I have borne no conscious part in it. Mr. Hawley came to me saying a dying man had left with him certain papers, naming one, Phyllis Gale, as heiress to a very large estate in North Carolina, left by her grandfather in trust. He said the girl had been taken west, when scarcely two years old, by her father in a fit of drunken rage, and then deserted by him in St. Louis."

"You—you saw the papers?" Waite broke in.

"Yes, those that Hawley had; he gave them to me to keep for him." She crossed to her trunk, and came back, a manilla envelope in her hand. Waite opened it hastily, running his eyes over the contents.

"The infernal scoundrel!" he exclaimed hotly. "These were stolen from me at Carson City."

"Let me see them." The sheriff ran them over, merely glancing at the endorsements.

"Just as you represented, Waite," he said, slowly. "A copy of the will, your commission as guardian, and memoranda of identification. Well, Miss Maclaire, how did you happen to be so easily convinced that you were the lost girl?"

"Mr. Hawley brought me a picture which he said was of this girl's half-sister; the resemblance was most startling. This, with the fact that I have never known either father or mother or my real name, and that my earlier life was passed in St. Louis sufficed to make me believe he must be right."

"You—you—" Waite choked, leaning forward. "You don't know your real name?"

"No, I do not," her lips barely forming the words. "The woman who brought me up never told me."

"Who—who was the woman?"

"A Mrs. Raymond—Sue Raymond—she was on the stage, and died in Texas—San Antonio, I think."

Waite swore audibly, his eyes never once deserting the girl's face.

"Hawley told you to say that?"

"No, he did not,' she protested warmly. "It was never even mentioned between us—at least, not Sue Raymond's name. What difference can that make?"

He stepped forward, one hand flung out, and Fairbain sprang instantly between them, mistaking the action.

"Hands off there, Waite," he commanded, sternly. "Whatever she says goes."

"You blundering old idiot," he other exploded. "I'm not going to hurt her; stand aside, will you?"

He reached the startledl girl, thrust aside the dark hair combed low over the neck, swung her about toward the light, and stared at a birthmark behind her ear. No one spoke, old Waite seemingly stricken dumb, the woman shrinking away from him as though she feared he was crazed.

"What is it" asked the sheriff, sternly.

Slowly Waite turned about and faced him, running the sleeve of his coat across his eyes. He appeared dazed, confounded.

"My God, it's all right," he said, with a choke in the throat. "She's—she's the girl."

Christie stared at him, her lips parted, unable to grasp what ti all meant.

"You mean I—I am actually Phyllis Gale That—that there is no mistake"

He nodded, not yet able to put it more clearly into words. She swayed as though about to faint, and Fairbain caught her, but slipped through his arms, and fell upon her knees, her face buried in her hands upon the chair.

"Oh, thank God," she sobbed. "thank God! I know who I am! I know who I am!"

"SALT RHEUM"

Had It On Hands For Two Years.

ITCHED SO DID NOT KNOW WHAT TO DO.

Tried Three Doctors and Went to Hospital.

All skin diseases are more or less occasioned by a bad state of the blood, and no one can expect to be free from some form or other of skin trouble unless the blood is kept in good shape. All skin diseases can be very easily cured by the wonderful blood cleansing properties of Burdock Blood Bitters.

This is due to the unrivalled purifying action of Burdock Blood Bitters on the blood, coupled with the thorough manner in which it cleanses and expels the impurities from the body.

Mrs. Richard Coutlee, White Head, Que., writes:—"I have been bothered with salt rheum, on my hands, for two years, and it itched so I did not know what to do. I tried three doctors, and even went to Montreal to the hospital without getting any relief. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters, so I got three bottles, and before I had the second used I found a big change, and now to-day I am cured."

Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for about 35 years and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CHAPTER XXXI.
THE SEARCH FOR THE MISSING

The note of unrestrained joy of relief in the woman's voice rang through the room, stilling all else, and causing those who heard to forget for an instant the sterner purpose of their gathering. Fairbain bent over her, like a fat guardian angel, patting her shoulder, her eyes so blurred with tears as to be practically sightless, yet still turned questionally upon Waite. The sheriff was first to recover speech, and a sense of duty.

"Then this lets Miss Maclaire out of the conspiracy charge," he said, gravely, "but it doesn't make it any brighter for Hawley so far as I can see—there's a robbery charge against him if nothing else. Any one here know where the fellow is?"

For a moment no one answered, although Keith took a step forward, reminded instantly of Hope's predicament. Before he could speak, however, Christie looked up, with a swift gesture pushing back her loosened hair.

"He was to have met me at the theatre to-night," she said, her voice trembling, "but was not there when I came out; he—he said he had important news for me."

"And failed to show up—did he send no message?"

"Doctor Fairbain was waiting for me instead. He said that Mr. Hawley was called suddenly out of town."

The eyes of the sheriff turned to Fairbain, whose face grew redder than usual, as he shifted his gaze toward Keith.

"That was a lie," he confessed, lamely. "I—I was told to say that."

"Just a moment, Sheriff," and Keith stood before them, his voice clear and convincing. "My name is Keith, and I have unavoidably been mixed up in this affair from the beginning. Just now I can believe the doctor o his embarrassment. Miss Hope Waite and I have been associated together in an effort to solve this mystery. This evening, taking advantage of the remarkable resemblance existing between herself and Miss Maclaire, Miss Hope decided upon a mask—"

"What's that?" Waite broke in excitedly. "Is Hope here"

"Yes, has been here for a week; we've had all the police force of Sheridan hunting you."

The old man stared at the speaker, open-mouthed, and muttered something about Fort Hayes, but Keith, paying little attenion to him, hurried on with his story.

"As I say, she decided upon impersonating Christie here, hoping in this way to learn more regarding Hawley's plans. We had discovered that the two were to meet after the evening performance at the stage door of the Trocadero. I escorted Hope there, dressed as near like Miss Maclaire as posible, and left her inside the vestibule waiting for 'Black Bart' to appear. At the head of the alley I ran into Fairbain, told him something of the circumstances, and persuaded him to escort Miss Christie back to the hotel. He was not very hard to persuade. Well, Hawley came, and Hope met him; they went out of the alleyway together, arm in arm, talking pleasantly, and turned this way toward the hotel. The doctor and I both saw and heard them. I was delayed not to exceed two minutes, speaking a final word to Fairbain, and when I reached the street they had disappeared. I have hunted them everywhere without finding a trace—I have even been through the resorts. She has not returned to the hotel, and I burst in upon you here hoping that Miss Maclaire might have some information."

She shook her head and Waite, glaring impotently at the two of them, swore sharply.

"Good God, man! My girl! Hope alone with that d——n villain! Come on, Sheriff; we've got to find her. Wait though!" and he strode almost menacingly across the room. "First, I want to know who the devil you are?"

Keith straightened up, looking directly into the fierce questioning eyes.

"I have told you my name—Jack Keith," he replied, quietly. "Doctor Fairbain knows something of me, but for your further information I will add that when we met before I was Captain Keith, Third Virginia Cavalry, and bearing despatches from Longstreet to Stonewall Jackson."

The gruff old soldier, half-crazed by the news of his daughter's peril, the gleam of his eyes still revealing uncontrolled temper, stared at the younger face fronting him; then slowly he held out his hand.

"Keith—Keith," he repeated, as though bringing back the name with an effort. "By God, that's so—old Jefferson Keith's boy—killed at Antietam. And you know Hope"

"Yes, General."

He looked blankly out through doors, and the sheriff broke in impatiently.

"Well, Waite, if we are going to search for your daughter we better be at it. Come on, all of you; Miss Maclaire will be safe enough here alone."

He took hold of Keith's arm, questioning him briefly as they passed down the hall. On the stairs the latter took his turn, still confused by what he had just heard.

"Who is Miss Maclaire" he asked.

"Phyllis Gale."

"Of course, but who is Phyllis Gale? What has she to do with General Waite His daughter has told me she never heard of any one by that name."

"Well, Keith, the old man has never told me very much; he's pretty close-mouthed, except for swearing, but I've read his papers, and picked up a point or two. I reckon the daughter, Miss Hope, maybe never heard a word about it, but the boy—the one that was shot—must have stumbled on to the story and repeated it to Hawley. That's what set that fellow going. It seems Mrs. Waite's maiden name was Pierpont, and when she was seventeen years old, she was married to the son of a rich North Carolina planter. The fellow was a drunken, dissolute good-for-nothing. They had a daughter—this Phyllis—and when the child was three years old her father, in a fit of drunken rage, ran away, and to spite his wife took the little girl with him. All efforts to trace them failed, and the mother finally secured a divorce and, two years later, married Willis Waite. Waite, of course, knew these facts, but probably they were never told to the children. When the father of Mrs. Waite's first husband died, he left all his large property to his grandchild, providing she could be found and identified within a certain time, failing which the property was to be distributed among certain designated charities. Waite was named sole administrator. Well, the old man took as much interest in it as though it was his own girl, but made mighty little progress. He did discover that the father had taken the child to St. Louis and left her there with a woman named Raymond, but after the woman died the girl completely disappeared."

"Then Miss Maclaire is Hope Waite's half-sister?"

"That's the way it looks now."

"Sure; it's clear enough how that came about. The boy told him about the lost heiress his father was searching after, and showed him his sister's picture. 'Black Bart' instantly recognized her resemblance to Christie Maclaire, and thought he saw a good chance for some easy money. He needed the papers, however, to ascertain exactly the terms of the will, and what would be necessary for the identification. He never intended to go into court, but hoped to either get Waite out of the way, or else convince him that Christie was the girl, relying on her gratitude for his profits. When Waite played into his hands by coming to Carson City, the chance was too good to be lost. I'm not sure he meant to kill him, but he did mean to have those papers at any cost. Probably you know the rest—the girl was easy, because she was so ignorant of her parentage, and nothing prevented Hawley from winning except that Waite got mad and decided to fight. That knocked over the whole hing."

They were outside now, and the first touch of the cool night air, the first glance up and down the noisy sreet, brought Keith to himself, his mind ready to grapple with the problem of Hope's disappearance. It seemed to him he had already looked everywhere, yet there was nothing to do except to continue the search, only more systematically. The sheriff assumed control—clear-headed, and accustomed to that sort of thing—calling in Hickock and his deputies to assist, and fairly combing the town from one end to the other. Not a rat could have slipped unobserved through the net he dragged down that long street, or its intersecting alleys—but it was without result; nowhere was there found a trace of either the gambler or his companion.

The dug into saloons, bagnios, dance-halls, searching back rooms and questioning inmates; they routed out every occupant of the hotel, invaded boarding houses, and explored shacks and tents, indifferent to the protests of those disturbed—but without result. They found several who knew Hawley, others who had seen the two together passing by the lighted windows of the Trocadero, but beyond that—nothing. Convinced, at last, that the parties sought were not alive in Sheridan, and beginning to fear the worst, the searchers separated, and began spreading forth over the black surrounding prairie, and by the light of lanterns seeking any semblance of trail. There was no lack of volunteers for his work, but it was daylight before the slightest clue presented itself. Keith, with the sheriff and two or three others, had groped their way outward until, with the first flush of dawn, they found themselves at the opening of a small rocky ravine, near the foot of "Boots Hill." Peering down into its still shadowed depths, they discerned what appeared like a body lying there motionless. Keith sprang down besidt it, and turned the rigid form over until the dead face was revealed in the wan light—it was that of the red-moustached Scott. He staggered back at recognition, barely able to ejaculate.

"Here, Sheriff! This is one of Hawley's men!"

"You know the fellow"

"Yes, his name was Scott."

"Well, he's been dead some hours, a least six I should say; shot just above the eye, and good Heavens! look here, Keith, at the size of this bullet wound; that's no man's gun in this country—no more than a '32' I'd say."

Redistribution Bill Before Provincial House

Proposed New Constituency to be Formed With Biggar as Seat

The Provincial Parliament now have the new Distribution Bill framed up into working shape, and this will erect 15 new seats and make 54 seats for the whole province.

One of these new seats is allotted to our own town of Biggar, with a district extending thirty miles from east to west and from sixty to ninety miles from north to south, the deflection being caused by the North Saskatchewan River.

Starting from a point on the line between ranges 11 and 12 on the top of township 50, and proceeding straight north along this line to the North Saskatchewan river in township 40; then along the line of the river till reaching the line between ranges 17 and 18 in township 44, and proceeding south along this line to the N. E. corner of township 70 in range 18, and from there straight east to the starting point.

This gives the Biggar constituency an area of somewhere about 2,600 square miles, and includes the towns of Biggar, South Battleford, Naseby, Traynor, Harris, Zealandia, Herschel, Palo, Swan, Mead, Vance, Neola, and a lot of other smaller places inside the area mentioned above.

KITTY

She Is the Cause of a Young Man's Sudden Change of Mind

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"Confound the woman!" ejaculated Bob Folsom as he slammed the door. "I'd like to get hold of that cat. If I did it would never get out alive again." He stalked moodily to the window and listened, as if fascinated by the low pitched voice of the woman calling insistently in the yard below.

"Here, kitty, kitty, kitty, kitty!" she called.

"She's been doing that every night for a week," grumbled Bob, leaving the window when the sounds had died away in a murmur of endearments. "If I had only known there was a cat loving spinster in the house I would have stayed on the outside. No cats for me—not on your life!"

Bob looked around at the well furnished room containing furniture of his own. The low bookshelves were filled with his books. Everything in the two large apartments was his own. He resolved to remain there until that remote time when he would fall in love and marry. "That may be—never," he always told himself cynically.

At breakfast he approached his boarding mistress concerning cats.

"Ah, Mrs. Porter, didn't I hear a cat in the hall just now?" he inquired as he sipped his coffee.

Mrs. Porter smiled impersonally. "Probably you have heard a cat, Mr. Folsom. There are three in this house."

"Three!" Bob was aghast. "And are they all lost at night and do their mistresses have to call them home at precisely 9 p. m., and"—

"Dear me, no! They are very quiet, stay at home cats—that is, all except Miss Lane's Snowball. He's an Angora and quite valuable, I believe. He has been a runaway lately and does not come home until poor Miss Lane has become hoarse with calling him. She has a touch of asthma, you know."

"I hope Snowball gets over his wanderlust before long," remarked Bob as he pushed his chair away from the table.

Mrs. Porter looked pained. "I am very sorry if it annoys you," she said rather stiffly, "but Miss Lane is my best boarder, and she happens to own this house, and Snowball is the apple of her eye. Perhaps he will stay in now."

"Oh, it doesn't matter," Bob hastened to say, already feeling somewhat ashamed at his complaint against Snowball's asthmatic mistress. "I only happened to hear her calling every night and I wondered—you know," his voice trailed into embarrassed silence as he escaped into the hall and took his hat from the rack.

As he walked toward the front door, shrugging into his overcoat as he went, he observed a handsome white Angora cat sitting on the newel post. "Snowball, I'll be bound!" he said to himself, lifting his hand to pat the beautiful creature. But Snowball's white paw shot out and his claws dug deep, leaving a long ugly scratch on the back of Bob's hand.

"Here, kitty, kitty, kitty, kitty!" called a voice from the floor above. "Come, Snowball!"

Snowball mewed delightedly in return and darted, a flying streak of white, up the stairs.

Bob sent one upward glance to where a face leaned over the banister of the second story. A stiffly brushed pompadour of gray hair above a high forehead and a pair of gold spectacles glistened down at him. He turned away impatiently. Snowball's mistress was all that his imagination had painted her.

As he went down the street he mentally cursed the cat that had administered the ugly scratch, and he was filled with unreasonable wrath at Miss Lane for harboring the vicious beast.

"That's the main trouble with boarding houses," he said to himself. "They are filled up with old maids and cats and parrots. I don't believe there is any hope of my finding a home anywhere unless I get married—and where is the right girl?"

Where was she? Up to this time she had never existed for Bob Folsom. He had his ideal, and he was especially convinced that she could not have red hair and be loved by him. Neither could her eyes be green. Her hair must be a soft dusky black and her eyes that rare hazel— He reached his office at this juncture and was compelled to drop day dreams in the face of dry realities.

That evening as he sat before the cosy hearth fire he heard the voice in the yard calling the recalcitrant Snowball.

"Here, kitty, kitty, kitty!" There were the same deep lower notes lifting upward to the last piercing, and to Bob Folsom's nervously sensitive hearing, irritating "Kitty."

For an hour the calling continued at frequent intervals and then suddenly ceased, much to Bob's relief. "Gracious," he muttered to himself as he prepared for bed, "I'm getting to be as old maidish as Miss Lane can possibly be—bet a dollar her name is Jemima!"

It must have been after midnight when Bob was awakened by a hideous yowling under his window. Then he realized that it must have been following him through his dreams, for he had been dreaming of the irascible Snowball.

"Huh—guess he stayed out tonight and is just getting in! I'll soon put a stop to you, son."

Bob looked around the room for some missile to toss down upon the indignant Snowball, who obstinately voiced his complaints beneath Bob Folsom's window. Bob knew that all the other bedrooms in the house faced upon the front and sides, and it was doubtful if any one else in the house could be disturbed by the cat cries.

He decided that a paper weight was too heavy, a sofa pillow too soft, his boots quite out of the question. Snowball must be broken of this midnight serenading under his window. He whooped softly as a happy thought struck him. On his washstand was an unopened package of an especial talcum powder that he used when shaving himself. A quantity of this white powder sifting down from nowhere in particular upon the upturned face of Snowball would effectually put that feline nuisance to rout.

As Bob opened the half pound package of talcum powder he chuckled softly to himself, not hearing footfalls on the carpeted hall nor the careful opening of the rear basement door. His own window was wide open, and he thrust his head out, turned the package upside down and shook the powder out. Then he crumpled the pasteboard container and tossed that down after it.

Snowball's cries ceased instantly, but they were followed by a feminine exclamation of surprise.

"Great Jove, if I haven't sprinkled Miss Lane! What in thunder is she doing down there, anyway?"

Thoroughly chagrined and penitent at the outcome of his joke upon the white cat, Bob Folsom paused, uncertain what to do. Miss Lane was an elderly woman, and the sudden descent of the powder must not only have startled her, but might have caused her suffering. Bob remembered what Mrs. Porter had said about Miss Lane's asthma, and he resolved to make amends as far as lay in his power. Consequently he dashed into a bathrobe and slippers and went out into the darkened hall and down the black pit of the stairway to the basement hall. He was groping his way toward the rear door, which he could see was still open, when a voice close beside him asked quietly:

"Who are you, and what do you want?"

"I—I beg your pardon, Miss Lane, is it not?" he stammered.

"Yes, I am Miss Lane." Bob heard a button click, and instantly the hall was flooded with light.

He leaned weakly against the wall and actually stared at the vision that confronted him. If this was Miss Lane who was the glassy eyed lady who had peered at him over the banister that very morning?

She was beautiful. She was young, not more than twenty-three, with a peach tinted complexion, green eyes, dark [illegible] and [illegible] hair. She [illegible] with the exception [illegible] in every respect, and he should have turned away from her with superb indifference only he fell head over heels in love with her at once—yes, and then and all. And the bright auburn red hair was powdered thickly with white talcum, and the peach tint of her complexion was dusted with talcum, and the dark blue silk of her dressing gown was flecked with it, and even the tip of her adorable nose. As for Snowball, draped in the curve of her soft arms, he was tossing powder with every angry shake of his head.

Of course Bob Folsom had to apologize, and he did it hastily, stumbling over his words as he watched for some gleam of forgiveness in the green eyes.

"Of course you didn't know," she said when he had concluded, "and of course poor Snowball doesn't like it a bit. I'm glad that I went down after him instead of Aunt Cleopatra. She would really have minded the powder." She smiled sweetly at Bob as she proceeded on her way. "I wonder if you would mind closing the door and putting out the lights. I heard you coming downstairs, and I was so frightened that I did not stop to close the door. I felt that I must find out who it was."

"Your voice did not sound frightened, and—well, really, I'm afraid I've been awfully old maidish about that cat. I suppose you were anxious about him"— he was saying when she interrupted him with a negative gesture of her head that sent two long red braids flying over her shoulders.

"No, indeed; I'm not a bit anxious or fond of Snowball—he is so cross and scratchy. But Aunt Cleopatra adores him, and that is why I've had to go down and call him in every evening at bedtime. I suppose you heard me."

He blushed and nodded sheepishly. "I thought it must be Miss Lane—your aunt, you know."

She cast an enigmatic smile over her shoulder as she went up the stairs, the snow white cat hugged close to her bosom. When she had disappeared Bob Folsom locked the door, snapped out the light and tiptoed up to his room. Before he returned to bed he stood looking out into the moonlit yard, his face soft with the wonder and delight of one who sees beloved dreams coming true.

"It is my dream girl all right, even if her hair and eyes are not the color I wanted. I wonder how I could have admired any other combination! Everything seems to go by contraries. It's Aunt Cleopatra instead of Jemima. Her name must be something very beautiful and golden. I wonder how soon I can find out!"

Of course Bob Folsom found out the girl's name long before he married her, and what do you think it was?

Kitty!

A WEAK, ACHING BACK CAUSED HER MUCH MISERY

Could Not Work and Had No Ambition For Anything.

Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble do not know the suffering and misery which those afflicted undergo.

Weak, lame or aching back comes from the kidneys, and when the kidneys are out of order the whole system becomes deranged.

Mrs. W. R. Hodge, Fielding, Sask., writes:—"A few lines highly recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. For this last year I have been troubled very much with nasty sick headaches, and a weak, aching back which caused me much misery, for I could not work and had no ambition for anything. My kidneys were very badly out of order, and kept me from sleeping at nights, I tried many kinds of pills and medicines but it seemed almost in vain. I began to give up in despair of ever being well and strong again, when a kind neighbor advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, which I did, and am thankful for the relief I obtained from them, for now I am never in trouble with a sore back or sick headaches. I will always say Doan's Kidney Pills for mine, and can highly recommend them to any sufferers."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

JASPER PARK. CANADA'S NEWEST NATIONAL PLAYGROUND.

A couple of years ago there was drawn a line by the Federal Government on the map of the Dominion around 5,000 square miles of primeval forest situated in the southwest corner of the Province of Alberta and on each side of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway line. "This is Jasper," said the Government, "and it shall be henceforth a National Park."

So far so good, but it is impossible to transform the wilderness into a well ordered park by simple picture of any Governmental decree, however effective in other directions—the railway was constructed and passed over the spot of steel was still at Edson, over 100 miles away to the east—something else had to be done, and so Mr. J. W. McLaggan, chief forest ranger, was appointed acting superintendent of Jasper Park, with two assistant rangers. Just three men to oversee 5,000 square miles, to maintain law and order, and to be responsible for the protection of timber, fire and game! This might seem rather a large order to the well-fed city clerk whose day's work begins at three minutes after nine in the morning and ends at one minute to six at night, but Mr. McLaggan, whom we will allow to speak for himself, apparently regards his task as a mere matter of course:—

The Beginnings of Jasper Park.

"At the time I was placed in charge of this work," he writes in his first annual report for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1911 (which has just been published), "Jasper Park was entirely new and undeveloped. The line of the Grand Trunk Pacific was located crossing the Park from east to west, but the contract had not been started.

"There were at that time seven squatters located along the Athabaska River within the boundaries of the park, six of them have been settled with by various sums paid for improvements.

"They have all removed outside the park. I am pleased to say that settlement was reached with these squatters by mutual agreement between myself and them, and all have carried out the terms of agreement very satisfactorily, and seem to be satisfied with the treatment received from the department.

Railway Facilities in the Park.

"When work started on the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific it was found necessary that stopping places should be established at suitable points in the park to accommodate the travelling public, and with this end in view, there have been eight places allowed, with restaurant, sleeping and stable accommodation, there being room for 800 teams in these places during the past winter.

"Three blacksmith shops, three general stores, one butcher and one veterinary license have also been issued. This, with railway construction camps, has given ample accommodation for freighters and travellers. Due care has been taken in the selection of those obtaining permits and business has only been allowed where absolutely necessary. It has been my endeavor to keep out any questionable business or gaming places. This was, of course, in keeping with the park regulations.

"Considerable work has been done on the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific during the year. There is some 80 miles of railway in the park.

"We have been able during the year to open a pack trail leading from the Grand Trunk Pacific at mile 85 to the Hot Springs, a distance of about 14 miles. This makes travelling to the Hot Springs very much easier than by the old trail. Steps have been taken to locate a waggon road to the Hot Springs, but as this is very important work and there seems to be two possible routes, both of which would be rather expensive, I am not in a position to recommend either. This work would need to be looked over by a competent engineer before being undertaken.

Canyons, Lakes and Waterfalls Galore.

"I may say that during the past year some very fine canyons, lakes, and waterfalls have been discovered which, with the hot springs, sulphur springs and other attractions known stamp Jasper Park already as one of the greatest of the Canadian Parks, and since it is as yet almost entirely unexplored, and since the known scenic features combine mountains, lakes, rivers, and waterfalls, intermingled in such a way that its beauty is beyond the power of pen to describe, its future possibilities seem limitless"—Mr. McLaggan, it will be seen, is not only a man of action, but a master of the English language.

"There were quite a number of wild animals seen during the past year, consisting of mountain sheep, goats, deer, bear, beaver, otter, marten, and fox, some of which seem quite tame.

"Fish, consisting of mountain and rainbow trout, jackfish, and white fish, were reported plentiful in the lakes and creeks during the summer season.

"Game wardens have sealed all firearms in the park so far as known, and I am pleased to say that very few reports have been received of infractions of the game regulations.

"We have been very fortunate in the matter of fires, there being only one place in the park, where fire got away from the right-of-way while burning was being done, and it only burned over about five acres of scrub timber.

Horses swimming the Athabaska, Jasper Park, Alta.

Nothing remains to mark the site of the old Jasper House, which at one time was a busy trading post of the Hudson's Bay Company, except a pile of stones which formed the rude fireplace and some dilapidated graves, with their tumble down and decaying wooden palings and crosses, which mark the sleeping places of those who in the long ago spent their lives in this remote part of the west.

Relics of Historic Interest.

The ruins of Henry House, the former headquarters for this region of the North-West Fur Company, are just opposite the point where the Maligne river joins the Athabaska, and is another point of historic interest, and it seems a pity that these two houses should not have been preserved as relics of the past.

Forty-eight miles of the valley of the Athabaska from the eastern boundary of the park, and at the junction of the Miette and Athabaska rivers, is the proposed divisional point of the Grand Trunk Pacific. It is named by the railway company "Fitzhugh," in honor of the then Vice-President of the Grand Trunk Company. The townsite is located on a level plateau about sixty feet above the valley of the Athabaska river. It is about two miles in length and about a mile in width.

The townsite overlooks the beautiful wooded valley of the Athabaska, which here stretches away for miles to the southwest, forming a very lovely picture. The Miette river comes rushing down from the summit of the Pass, fourteen miles distant, to swell the waters of the Athabaska.

In the background, in every direction, are towering mountains, and among the hills at an elevation of about 200 feet above the townsite, is a bench of land with two beautiful little lakes of the purest water.

A survey of a tourist townsite for park purposes will be made during the coming season. This will be the starting point for many tourist parties up the valley of the Athabaska to the falls about ten miles distant. These falls have a sheer drop of eighty feet and are about 150 feet in width. The town will also be on the direct route to Mount Robson, which will be a future Mecca for mountain-climbers.

"Fitzhugh" is at present the headquarters for the engineering staff of the Grand Trunk Pacific, also the base of supplies for all construction material for the railway and will remain so until the steel reaches Tête Jaune Cache. The townsite is overgrown with a thick growth of young evergreens, which only require to be thinned out to form one of the loveliest parks imaginable.

The construction of a trail to Maligne Lake, a distance of about thirty miles, was completed in the spring of 1911. This lake has been described by Mrs. Schaffer, of Philadelphia, the first person of note who ever visited it, as being the most beautiful sheet of water she has seen in fifteen continuous years of exploration in the Rocky Mountains."

South End of Jasper Park.

Snow-Capped Hills, Beautiful Valleys.

On either side of the valley are ramparts of hills behind which are towering snow-capped mountains rising in majestic grandeur and overlooking the beautiful valley. What is beyond this first range of mountains is yet unknown, and it will for years to come form an inviting field for the adventurous exploring tourist.

Innumerable mountain streams, fed by the glaciers on the mountain tops, come rushing down over the waterfalls and rapids to mingle their pure waters with those of the Athabaska. At one place, known as the "meeting of the waters," where a number of small streams join the Athabaska, there is a scene of surpassing beauty. The river leaves Jasper Lake by seven distinct channels, forming beautiful little wooded islands. These channels unite again to form one broad river. Along the route are a number of places of historic interest.

HASN'T SHE LOVELY HAIR!

How often have you heard this remark? Very often indeed: Everyone admires well kept, luxuriant hair because it is a real beauty in itself, and as Balzac says in his famous work on beautiful women:—"The soul of lovliness of a beautiful woman lies in the tresses of her hair."

Any woman can have beautiful heir if she will but give it proper care with a proper hair dressing. Sageine is such a dressing. It will bring life and beauty into dull faded hair and make it clean, flugy and attractive.

Since the introduction of Sageine in America it has met with wonderful success and is the popular hair tonic with leading men and women everywhere.

THE LATE LADY NAPIER AND ETTRICK.

There can be few Britons who do not feel a kindly glow of gratitude to the Emperor of Germany for his gracious and very human message to the relatives of the late Lady Napier and Ettrick, says "T.C.B.", writing in the Edinburgh "Scotsman" recently. "In remembrance of happy days I spent with her in my youth, you might be convinced of my sincerest sympathy." That is not from the throne, but straight from the heart; and all who had the high privilege of being admitted to Lady Napier's friendship know, or rather feel, know what it was that impelled Kaiser Wilhelm to write, not as a mighty Sovereign, but as a warm-hearted man. For her Ladyship, "grande dame" as she was, living in the atmosphere and pageantry of Courts from her childhood, was one of the most womanly of women—to the tips of her fingers an aristocrat and lady of the highest culture, but above all gentle and sympathetic, with "a tear for pity, and a hand

Open as day for melting charity."

When with her accomplished husband she stepped down from the Viceregal throne of India, the cynosure of four hundred millions of people, they quietly settled down in his Lordship's patrimonial residence of Thirlestane at the very head of Ettrick, miles and miles from the nearest house of the kind, with no neighbours but the farmers and farm labourers on the estate. There they were simply "the laird and his leddy," and no one seeing them go out and in among the cottagers in their lowly dwellings could have imagined that all their lives they had been familiar with kingly and imperial palaces, received not only with glittering state, but with warm personal affection by Sovereigns and potentates in Europe, Asia, and America. Lady Napier never ceased to keep herself "au courant" of all that was going on in the great world in the realms of politics, art, and literature; but in and about her home at Thirlestane you would have thought her world was bounded by the hills on either side of Ettrick, and her greatest concern was for the humble families around her, especially for those in pain or mourning. If anyone wants to know what Lady Napier was, let him go and ask in the farmhouses and farm cottages of that remote pastoral region. He will come away proud of belonging to the same human family. The feeling towards her and her husband was a kind of worship, of grateful trust mingled with respectful affection. One could see it all when she walked about amongst their people—

"Queenly responsive to the loyal hand Raised from the clay it worked in as she passed."

RAILWAY NOTES

In order to complete financial arrangements in connection with the organization and construction of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway to connect Vancouver with Fort George on the Grand Trunk Pacific, Mr. D'Arcy Tate, Vice-President and General Counsel of the Company, accompanied by the president, Mr. John W. Stewart, has left Victoria for London, Eng. Mr. Tate does not expect to be in England more than a few days and is confident that, on his return, the announcement of the initiation of actual construction will be made.

The Company already has its surveyors out at work both in the vicinity of North Vancouver and of Fort George. It is the intention to push northward from the latter point and to collect very thorough and reliable reports on the nature of the country and ist agricultural possibilities. "Before all," said Mr. Tate, in an interview previous to his departure, "the railroad, as far as at present planned, will be one to develop the interior of the province and to tap the Peace River country, bringing its wealth down to Vancouver and Victoria. By the terms of the charter, communication must be established between the mainland and this city within 3 years and no effort will be spared to shorten the time as much as possible."

Mr. Patrick Welch, the Vice-President and General Manager, is now busily engaged preparing plans for the employment of a sufficient number of men and the locating of camps. Although the company has until July 1st in which to make a beginning on the work, the officers do not intend to take advantage of that by letting time get ahead of them.

The first consignment of pictures for the bedrooms of the Chateau Laurier, the new $2,000,000 hotel erected in the city of Ottawa by the Grand Trunk Railway System, has been forwarded from Montreal. No other hotel in Aerica will have a finer collection, as great care has been observed in choosing suitable subjects and good engravings. The best reproductions from the galleries of London, Paris and Berlin comprise the major portion of these pictures which are black and white, sepia, and hand coloured. The frees are of delicate and chaste patterns, specially made from exclusive models after the style Louis XIV., Louis XV. and Colonial styles.

Mr. J. B. Shelton, car foreman of the Grand Trunk Pacific shops at Transcona, Man., is at present busily engaged in building a new truck and sleeping car for the use of his employes when called to wrecks. The car will be a model of its kind and will materially add to the comfort of the men. Mr. Shelton's long experience as master car builder on several trunk lines makes his addition to the force at Transcona another link in the chain that will make that point one of the most enterprising mechanical centres in Canada.

Eight Years of Bad Eczema on Hands

Miss Mary A. Bentley Montreal

Cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment

Miss Mary A. Bentley, 93 University St., Montreal, writes, in a recent letter: "Some nine years ago I noticed sm. ll pimples breaking out on the back of my hands. They became very irritating, and gradually became worse, so that I could not sleep at night. I consulted a physician who treated me a long time, but it got worse, and I could not put my hands in water. I was treated at the hospital, and it was just the same. I was told that it was a very bad case of eczema.

"Well, I just kept on using everything that I could for nearly eight years until I was advised to try Cuticura Ointment. I did so, and I found after a few applications the burning sensations were disappearing, I could sleep well, and did not have any itching during the night. I began after a while to use Cuticura Soap. I stuck to the Cuticura treatment, an' there't if I could use other remedies for over seven years with no result, and after only having a few applications and finding relief from Cuticura Ointment, it deserved a fair trial with a severe and stubborn case. I used the Cuticura Ointment and Soap for nearly six months, and I am glad to say that I have hands as clear as anyone. It is my wish that you publish this letter to all the world, and if anyone doubts it, let them write me."

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. For a liberal free sample of each, with 32-p. book, send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., 58 Columbus Ave., Boston, U. S. A.

AVOID DIPHTHERIA

How [illegible] an to Have This Disease How to Kept Away

A drinking cup for a child costs a cent; a funeral costs a hundred dollars.

Diphtheria is a fall disease. It begins to make its appearance in September. It is at its height in October.

It is the most deadly of children's diseases—claiming even more victims than measles.

Diphtheria is actively contagious and it hangs on long after the patient is apparently well. The germs may remain in the throat for weeks after the patient is up and around. Such a person is dangerous to others as long as the germs remain.

To protect your children from diphtheria:

Give them individual drinking cups for school use and train them to use them always.

Teach them to be careful not to use pencils, toys, etc., that other children have had in their mouths.

When there is diphtheria in the neighborhood keep them at home and keep them away from children from homes where there is diphtheria or even sore throat.

Helen plays with strange cat on way to school; then she drinks from the cup used by other children; later she rubs her slate "clean" with her fingers.

When school is over Helen kisses her chum goodbye for the day; on way home she puddles through a mud puddle; a few days later her home is quarantined, for Helen has diphtheria.

An English Chemist Has Discovered How to Grow Hair

In England the ladies have entirely abandoned wearing rats, which is due entirely to this new discovery.

It has been proven that Henna leaves contain the ingredients that will positively grow hair. That they contain this long-looked-for article is proven every day.

The Americans are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract from Henna leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale.

This preparation is called SALVIA, and is being sold with a guarantee to cure Dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed, SALVIA makes a most pleasant hair dressing. McDermid and Jury, your druggist, is the first to import this preparation into Peterborough, and a large, generous bottle can be purchased for 50c. Also sold at Payne's drug store.

The play was just splendid, the leading man grand.
(But really, now, must you hold on to my hand?)

You thought the distinguished star's action was good?
Yes, I thought so too. (Now, please don't be rude!)

How strange! You liked D. in the emotional part?
(Why, of course, Mr. Silly, I still have a heart.)

What's that? The lovemaking at all times was tame?
(Mr. Smith, do be careful! There are rules to this game!)

No, I didn't take notice. Were the stage settings bare?
(Now, Mr. Smith, stop it! You're messing my hair!)

Yes, I fancy the orchestra was a bit loud.
(Ful-lease—Mr. Smith—you will spoil my draw a crowd!)

The plot of the piece? Um-m! A little too light.
(Well, if you must have it, just one then. Good night!)

A Peaceful Country.

One afternoon during an adjournment for the holidays a number of prominent senators and representatives visited Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson.

A venerable negro acted as guide for the party, and the distinguished callers were much interested in his quaint disquisitions upon the place and its memories. Without a comic king,
Nor did he have a navy chap
His tender songs to sing;
He didn't have a drunken lout

And so his comic opera

And then he wrote a funny farce
That didn't hinge upon
The man who kissed the servant girl
Because his wife was gone.
He didn't have the gay old man
Who gets the champagne jag,
And hence the farce was not produced
They said the thing would lag.

Woman's Power Over Man

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to awaken and hold the pure and honest love of a worthy man. When she loses it and still loves on, no one in the wide world can know the heart agony she endures. The woman who suffers from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organism soon loses the power to sway the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks, her attractiveness, her amiability and her power and prestige as a woman. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N.Y., with the assistance of his staff of able physicians, has prescribed for and cured many thousands of women. He has devised a successful remedy for women's ailments. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive specific for the weaknesses and disorders peculiar to women. It purifies, regulates, strengthens and heals. Medicine dealers sell it. No honest dealer will advise you to accept a substitute in order to make a little larger profit.

MESSAGE FROM STEAD?

Medium Says He Suggested Playing the Last Hymn.

Manchester, Eng., May 15.—The Daily Dispatch says that it learns that a message was received from Wm. T. Stead, who perished on the Titanic, through the medium at a seance at Rotheday, on April 28th.

The medium, who is the wife of a friend of Stead's swooned. She jumped up and seizing other women there, pushed them across the room, urging them to "enter the boat." Afterwards she cried out, "God pity us." She followed this with, "Thy will be done," and "Nearer, My God, to Thee." After an interval the medium spoke again. She said: "I know I have passed over. The past has been like a nightmare with a sudden awakening."

The question was asked: "Who are you?" and the medium replied: "I am Stead. I know where I am. I was here before, but was unable to make an appeal to all God-fearing men and women for help. Could you see the misery of the lost, as I saw it, your hearts would bleed for them; called to part with all their cherished hopes and plunge into the terrors of the unknown, you would weep and pray for them."

Mr. Stead, through the medium, went on to speak of the foolishness of the riches and possessions of this earth. It was at his suggestion, so the spirit said, that the band played "Nearer My God to Thee," as the ship went down.

To Boost the North.

Toronto, May 15.—With the aim of giving a big impetus to the New Ontario movement, the city council of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., have decided on a novel campaign.

Four special trains will run from New Ontario on June 21, which is designated "New Ontario Day," and arrangements have been made with the Toronto Board of Trade for a mass meeting in Massey Hall, on the following day, while speakers from the "hinterland" will address many clubs and other organizations in Toronto. It is also planned that the hundreds of New Ontario visitors parade up Yonge street.

Mayor Munroe and Ald. McPhail and Sargeant of the Soo are in charge of the program.

It is proposed to ask the six Toronto daily papers to allow the six New Ontario editors to take charge of their editorial pages for one day to present the case of New Ontario fully, the understanding that New Ontario men be allowed liberty to discuss matters in their own way. It is also reported that New Ontario's claims will be set forth simultaneously in practically every daily in the province.

Invitation to Connaught.

St. John's, Nfld., May 15.—The Duke of Connaught, Governor-General of Canada, is expected to spend a portion of the summer in Newfoundland as the guest of the Government. Governor Ralph Champney Williams is now en route to Canada to extend a formal invitation to the duke.

American Crews Barred.

Ottawa, May 15.—The Railway Commission, according to a statement yesterday by Commissioner Scott, will issue a mandatory order prohibiting the Midland or Great Northern Railway from operating its trains by American crews from the boundary to Winnipeg.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE

Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK

Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head

FOR A SICK, SOUR, BILIOUS STOMACH, GAS OR INDIGESTION SURELY TAKE CASCARETS

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, blasting after eating, feeling of fullness, dizziness and sick headache, means indigestion; a disordered stomach which cannot be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any.

Try Cascarets. They cure indigestion, because they immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. Their prime object is to relieve trouble by morning — a 10-will straighten you out by morning — a 10-cent box will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

California for Roosevelt.

San Francisco, May 15.—Theodore Roosevelt and Champ Clark were apparently victorious by a large margin yesterday over their respective Republican and Democratic rivals in California's preferential Presidential primary. This statement is based on returns received from 583 precincts out of 37 in the state as follows:

Republican: Roosevelt 26,220, Taft 16,303, Lafollette 9,954.

Democratic: Clark 5,974, Wilson 2,504.

Women voters played a large part in yesterday's primaries. Reports from all parts of the state indicate that they went to the polls in greater numbers than the men, in proportion to registration.

Wife Won His Freedom.

Baltimore, Md., May 15.—Hugh C. Lyons of Toronto, Ont., convicted of flim-flamming, and sentenced to the Maryland penitentiary here for three years, was given his freedom by Presiding Judge Elliott in the Criminal Court. Lyons owes his liberty principally to the devotion displayed by his young wife, who came here from Toronto and finally succeeded in obtaining a review of the case by Judge Elliott.

The Lady Mayor of Hunnewell.

The lady mayor of Hunnewell,
Who leaves her knitting and her jail
To take the reins of civic power
And make the grafter slink and cower,
Doth find the duties of a mayor
Are not unmixed with anxious care.
Of course she means to clean the town,
To mop it up and sweep it down,
To scrub away those grimy stains
And put the wicked ones in chains.
And yet, alas, and who can tell
What will befall fair Hunnewell?
And must its new spread moral wings
Be clipped by base contingent things?
Ah, lady mayor of Hunnewell,
You may regret your yarn and jail.

MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Lower, Chicago Steady—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, May 13.—Active demand here for spot delivery of wheat rescued the option market from the bears. A big decrease in the world's supply total helped. Prices at the close were steady at a range varying from ½c lower to ¼c advance, as compared with the previous close. Corn scored a net gain of ⅛c to ¼c; oats finished ⅛c off to ⅛c up, and provisions were more expensive by 5c to 7½c to 15c.

Liverpool wheat closed ⅝d to ¾d lower than yesterday, and corn ⅛d to ¼d lower. Paris wheat closed unchanged to ⅛c higher. Antwerp 1½c lower. Berlin ¼c higher. Buda Pesth ⅝c higher.

MONTREAL, May 14.—The export trade in Manitoba spring wheat continues very quiet on account of the limited demand from foreign buyers and the fact that they are not disposed to pay the prices asked as the few bids coming forward are away out of line. There is no change in the butter market, prices being maintained under a steady demand from the northwest for supplies. Cheese is strong with a fair amount of business passing for export account. Egg are active and steady. Provisions rule firm with a good trade doing.

KING OF DENMARK DIES IN CHARITY WARD OF A HAMBURG HOSPITAL

Frederick the Eighth is Suddenly Stricken With Apoplexy While Walking on the Street and is Picked Up, Unrecognized by the Police.

QUEEN MOTHER'S BROTHER

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., May 15.—It is now known here that King Frederick Eighth of Denmark, a brother of Queen Alexandria of England, father of King Hzakon of Norway, and closely related to all the reigning houses of Europe, handsome in figure and popular with his people, met his death at Hamburg, Germany, last night alone, unrecognized and unattended, and lying in the public charity ward of the city hospital. With the Queen and his suite King Frederick arrived and registered incognito on Monday, travelling home from the south, presumably fully recovered from an attack of inflammation of the lungs. Last night at ten his majesty left the hotel unaccompanied for his usual stroll before retiring. He fell unconscious to the pavement with apoplexy and the police took him to an hospital nearby. When he had not returned at midnight, members of the party became alarmed, and on searching the unindentified body in the public morgue at the hospital, made the discovery. The Queen Mother Alexandria and Dowager Empress of Russia, both sisters of the dead king, are at Marlborough House, and are reported very ill as a result of the shock of their brother's death. King George and Queen Mary joined them at 1 o'clock this morning immediately the news reached Buckingham. The flags are at half mast on all public buildings, and for the second time this year the British court is plunged into mouning.

GIRL'S COLOUR RETURNS

Was Pale and Sickly Last Spring.

"Every boil is worth five dollars," is an old saying among people who think that the impurities of the blood escape when a boil breaks.

But that is a great mistake. A boil is only a sign of impure blood and has no purifying power. The only thing to do is to enrich and vivify the blood and the best thing for this is Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil.

Other signs of bad blood are pale skin, weakness, nervousness and run down condition of the system.

Miss Alice Jones, a bright young girl of Richmond Hill, N.Y., was pale and weak for months. She began taking Vinol and it not only made her well and strong but also brought back her healthy colour. She also says: "I like to take Vinol as the taste is pleasant."

This is the very best time of year to put your blood in good order and build up your system, and we guarantee that Vinol will do this. If it does not we give back your money. BRITAIN TO BUILD MORE WARSHIPS

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., MAY 15.— In the Commons this afternoon, Winston Churchill, the first Lord of the Admiralty, made the announcement that Great Britain would build more warships, to keep pace with Germany's naval activities, as recently announced. The supplementary estimates would be passed immediately. Churchill's announcement was greeted with enthusiastic cheers from all members except the radical Socialists and Labourites.

ROBBERS HOLD UP A TRAIN AND GET AWAY WITH $150,000

Overpowered Express Messengers and Brakeman and Dynamited the Safe

Special to The Examiner:

NEW ORLEANS, LA., MAY 15.—While the Northeastern Railroad express train for New York stopped for water, about midnight, near Hattefield, Miss., two masked men slipped along side, quietly overpowered the express messengers and brakeman, quickly dynamited the safe in the express car and got clean away with one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, largely in government bonds and cash. They escaped on horseback A large posse of sheriffs and deputies are now scouring the country after them. It developed later that the bandits had overpowered the engineer and firemen at the previous station and ran the train themselves, slowly, to the tank. No passengers were awakened or molested.

OPENING OF ICE CREAM SEASON AT GEO. REILLY'S DRUG STORE

All Ready for a Big Summer's Business in Neilson's Celebrated Ice Cream---Starts Off To-morrow in Good Style

Hello! Hello! mark it down that George J. Reilly's summer resort will be formally opened for the ice cream season, to-morrow, May 16th. Preparations have been going on for some time, in renovating and refurnishing these popular premises for catering to a larger summer trade tha ever. The ice cream pavilion will be in splendid readiness for visitors.

Mr. Reilly has put his ice cream auto in first-class trim for delivering the ice cream and ice cream bricks. Watch for it—you can't mistake it. The bells will let you know when it is coming; stop it and buy our Ice Cream Brick—all flavours, made by Neilson of Toronto, and sold only by Mr. Reilly. the up-to-date druggist, at 25c each, any flavour. If the auto does not call on you let Mr. Reilly know, or call him up by 'phone, 442, and he will see that it does. Bricks will be sent to any part of the city within 20 minutes after order. The auto will be out selling ice cream bricks, at all hours and late. Don't be afraid to call up any hour, for Mr. Reillly is bound to accommodate his patrons every way, if possible, day and night.

The demand for Neilson's high-grade ice cream in Peterborough is expected to be large than ever this season.

Come and see what a nice cool spot Reilly's ice cream pavilion is; with plenty of accommodation and fresh air for all.

Don't forget to call at thedrug store and indulge in a healthy, sparkling soda, or cool dish of ice cream. A full line of ice cream specialties, also cones, for 1c to 5c each.

Watch for the big electric sign over the store.

HAVE YOU ENTERED THE ALFALFA COMPETITION?

Several Entries Have Already Been Received---Many Valuable Prizes Are Offered to Successful Competitors of Peterborough County.

There is still time for Examiner readers to enter their alfalfa fields in the Alfalfa Competition that is to be conducted in Peterborough County by Farm and Dairy, our local farm paper. Several entries have already been received, but there is room for many more. All Examiner readers who have three or more acres of alfalfa seeded last spring should enter it in this competition. There is no entry fee, the only requirement being that the competitor be a subscriber to Farm and Dairy, and you stand the chance to win a valuable prize.

Farm and Dairy would like to have entries from every part of the county. So far more of the entries have come from Smith and Enniamore townships. Does this mean that these two townships only have farmers who can grow alfalfa successfully? Among the Smith township entries, a nice field has been entered by Ernest A. Scott. Mr. Will Scotthas also entered three acres that has come through the winter in splendid shape. In Enniamore, C. and E. Telford, and W. J. Telford, both of whom were prize winners in the Farm and Dairy Farms Competition, have entered for the Alfalfa Competition also.

Farm and Dairy requests that entries be made at once in order that they may draw up a schedule for the judging, which will be done the first week of June. Send entries to the Editor, Farm and Dairy, Peterborough, Ont.

The Peterboro Light & Power Company's show-room will be open on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings during May, and June from 8 to 10 p. m. for the convenience of those wishing to secure gas appliances or to arrange for gas connections.

FOREIGNERS FIGHT A DUEL ON TRAIN

New Arrivals Relate to Examiner the Story of How a Couple of Foreigners Try to Emancipate Each Other With Knives

FLOURISH REVOLVERS

A knife and pistol duel between a couple of foreigners, apparently Scandinavians, furnished some excitement for a trainload of immigrants a short distance east of Montreal yesterday. Among the party who witnessed the fracas were a number of immigrants who were billed for Peterborough. They arrived in the city this morning and in conversation with the Examiner related their version of the thrilling incident.

Knives Were Drawn.

The blood curdling event was staged on an immigrant special that was speeding its way into Montreal, towards nightfall. The car in which the fight took place was crowded with men, women and children, and when the combatants arose and commenced to brandish a couple of ugly looking dirk knies, excitement ran rampant. The men parried and made several murderous close-in attacks on each other after which they would fall away and cleave the air in a terrifying manner.

Blood Flowed Freely.

The crimson red flowed freely and the fight was waxing hot, while the occupants of the swaying car stood paralyzed with fear at the gory sight. Children screamed and women fainted, and it was not until the combatants—perhaps desiring to expedite matters—pulled a couple of revolvers from their pockets and were about to level them at each other when a couple of men sprang forward and intercepted. A short struggle ensued and the men, covered with the crimson red that flowed freely from their wounds, which were caused by the knife, were pinioned.

Handed Over to the Police.

Upon the train's arrival at Montreal the duelists are handed over to the police, who were on hand to receive them, having been notified by wire prior to the train's arrival.

The party, who arrived in Peterborough to-day, were passengers on the S. S. "Asonia." The voyage occupied nearly twelve days, and was uneventful. The weather was cold and disagreeable. No icebergs were encountered, as the vessel took the northern route to avoid the possibility of such an occurrence.

HOW FORMER LOCAL MAN MET DEATH

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ONT., MAY 14.—Dudley Mooney, a former London man, who enlisted with the Canadian South African Constabulary and went out for the Boer War, returned home today. He tells an interesting story of the death of Lorne Boak, a former St. Thomas school teacher, and a man named Roberts, who at one time lived in Westwood, near Peterborough. During the Zulu campaign thirteen members of the constabulary were marching through Zululand when they were suddenly ambushed by a band of blacks. Boak, stating that he would walk ahead while the others stopped to drink from a stream, started out, and in an instant was cut down, seven assegais panetrating his body. Mooney jumped at Roberts' shout of warning, and as he turned saw an immense Zulu with his spear poised only a few feet away. A bitter fight was in progress in an instant, Mooney shooting explosive bullets from his revolver, and tearing a leg off his man. Boak, Roberts and five others fell pierced with assegais, while the rest, with one exception, were injured more or less seriously. A shot from a rudely constructed rifle made from a piece of gas pipe wounded Mooney in his leg, but he, with others, remained to bury their comrades. Boak was dug up by Zulus and his body hacked to pieces, but the remains were later gathered and reinterred.

Well Known Authority on Civic Matters Expatiates Upon the Possible Development of Peterboro'

AT THE BOARD OF TRADE

"There are men in this room tonight who will be living when Peterborough may be a city of half a million people." This striking assertion was made by one of the highest authorities in civic development in the United States—Mr. Ryerson Ritchie. The occasion for this remark was an address given by Mr. Ritchie on "Industrial Growth and Civic Development" before a large gathering of citizens at the annual meeting of the Board of Trade, which was held in the City Council chamber Tuesday evening.

Not Unreasonable to Suppose.

"The very fact that such an assertion strikes you as absurd," said Mr. Ritchie, "illustrates your want of faith in your city if not in your province and country. It is easy enough to say "The Twentieth century is Canada's" but to believe in its realisation seems beyond our limited vision."

What I suggest as a possibility for Peterborough has actually happened in the United States under my own observation. Little more than fifty years ago the city of Cleveland was no larger or more important than the present city of Peterborough. To-day its population is more than 600,000. The State of Ohio is not as rich in natural resources as the province of Ontario; and Ontario's development has just begun. In relation to the development Peterborough is most favourably situated. There is nothing unreasonable or extreme in saying that within a half century Peterborough may have a population of half a million people.

Peterborough Lacks Conception.

There is much to be said in commendation of Peterborough, of the high character of her men and women, of her physical attractions and natural beauty. Peterborough has much to be proud of and much to be thankful for. But on this occasion I want you to look at the city in the abstract. Let us leave the hydraulic lift-lock out and speak of hydraulics and lifts that are applicable in the work of construction and development of the future city.

It is more than likely that if I had lived in Peterborough during the last thirty years I would not see its faults. But my life has been spent in a foreign land and my occupation has been with institutions that found many flaws in urban conditions and sought practical ways to mend them. The community that cannot stand self analysis lacks the true spirit of progress. Improvement is the spirit of the age and the most interesting scenes of action are in our cities.

In studying the indexes of character in this particular community I have formed a new conception of it, and I have lost the impressions of my boyhood. We have a new city, different in many particulars from the town of my youthful days. My new conception is that Peterborough is much like other communities of equal size—no better, no worse. The city of today does not possess qualities that entitle it to superior rank, save only the rich gifts of nature. I have been trying to analyze Peterborough's public spirit, trying to find out its purpose as a city. I do not think that Peterborough has a definite conception as to its particular place in Canada, nor of its own future as a city.

Industrial Growth.

Peterborough has an ambition to become a greater manufacturing centre but has not yet decided what particular class of industries it desires. A survey of all the conditions affecting manufacturing should indicate those industries that will be an economic in this locality. Industries that do not fit ultimately fail and as you want stability and growth you will naturally exercise care in the selection of new institutions.

The ordinary methods of boards of trade in seeking industries often fail, simply because they are superficial in their analysis and judgments; they lean upon the public purse or appeal to public spirit rather than to business discernment. The average board of trade, if not its industrial commissioner, frequently takes the shadow for the substance, rushes into public view on flimsy pretexts and not infrequently discredits both the industry and the city.

Theory of Bonusing is False.

Industries that are looking for money to establish themselves for bonuses, for the exemption of land gifts, are not the kind of industries you should spend your energies upon. I believe that it is wrong to tax the general public for the benefit of any industry, great or small. Neither the ratepayers of the city or their government have any business to pay tribute to a private interest. The growth of industry is not a governmental responsibility; the proper function of the city government is preservation. The theory of bonusing manufactures is, in principle, false, unbusinesslike and pernicious and I

RICHESON'S EXECUTION

Special to The Examiner:

BOSTON, MASS., MAY 15.—Clarence V. T. Richeson and two other murderers, condemned to electrocution, were removed to Charleston State prison, last night. The Warden has foiled a horde of curious ones, who wished to be shown over the institution, by cancelling all visiting hours for three weeks, during which the time of the executions will take place. Richeson passed a restless night.

Whipping Up Tired Nerves

The driver reaches his destination sooner by whipping up his tired horse, but no one supposes that the whip imparts strength to the horse. It merely causes the more rapid expenditure of strength.

And so it is with stimulants. When the system is run down the use of stimulating medicines merely calls forth the additional expenditure of the waning vitality and in reality hastens the breakdown.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food it not a stimulant. It does not give rise to false hope by whipping up the exhausted system. It is a true tonic and cures by gradually and naturally building up the feeble, wasted nerve cells and adding new, firm flesh and tissue. You need not expect any startling results from the first few doses, but can be certain that the benefits to the body are thorough and lasting.

LONDON, ENG., MAY 15.—That the Leyland liner "Californian" passed near enough the Titanic when she was sinking to see her rockets and that her wireless operator was asleep and no information was obtainable, was part of the evidence gleaned this morning in the Titanic investigation. It created a sensation in the big audience.

The local stock market developed an irregular tendency. Lehigh Valley and Reading contributed their usual degree of activity, with some early strength. The former weakened towards the close, while the latter took a spurt.

Other movements of note included Canadian Pacific, which rose to 269, thereby eclipsing all previous records. The market opened with C.P.R. listed at 264 3-4. Persistent buying is considered to be an attribute to the steady rise in this stock.

HAY SELLS FOR $150 PER TON

Former Peterborough Boy in Writing Home Comments Upon the High Price of Foodstuffs

Mr. J. T. C. Lang is in receipt of a letter from Mr. J. F. B. Fairburn, of Uldermere, Alberta, in which the writer comments upon the prevailing high prices for produce in that portion of the Dominion. Eggs are in good demand at $1.50 per dozen, while a ton of hay will realise $150. Oats are worth about $14 a bushel.

Mr. Fairburn is actively engaged in his profession of civil engineering, and is very optimistic as regards the possibilities which the Albertan province offers to the newcomer.

He is an old Peterborough boy, having left here a few years ago to engage in his chosen profession. Mr. Fairburn is a nephew of His Honour Judge Roger, of Cobourg.

Joseph Shearer Is Granted Release

Mr. G. N. Gordon has received word from Mr. Thomas Mulvey, K.C., under Secretary of States, that his efforts to secure the release of Joseph Shearer from the Central Prison, Toronto, have resulted in the young man being let out on parole. On the 18th day of April, 1911, Shearer was committed to the Central Prison for two years, less one day, for his part in the stealing of grain from the Quaker Oats Co. Mr. Gordon wrote in July last and several times since then to secure the release of Shearer and Chief Thompson had received communications from the department regarding the young man. Mr. Gordon received notification of the success of his efforts today and Shearer will be given his release at once.

GIVES HIMSELF UP

Special to The Examiner

ROCHESTER, N.Y., MAY 15.—George Hanny, who in November, 1908, left Fort Erie, Canada, for Buffalo, with nine Chinese to smuggle into the States, five of whom drowned when the boat upset, has returned here voluntarily from Canada and paid $500 fine for attempted smuggling. One of his confederates is serving a years imprisonment and another is still at large.

SOME THINGS AND OTHERS

An Anglicised Italian gave us the wireless telegraph, and now simon pure Italians have evolved the wireless telephone. But the street poles still stand on George street.

A Massachusetts woman was drowned while attempting to save a pet dog from the same fate, and the dog saved himself. When a woman prostitutes the nobler attributes of her soul to such an extent, to the worship of a dog, the question of the survival of the fittest seems hardly debatable.

Apropos of the nuisance of the crowing cock, is it not possible to take the crow out of him by a surgical operation—remove his siren whistle.

Are the members of the Board of Health members "for their health," that is, are they content to occupy a position that keeps others out, who might show public spirit enough to attend a meeting once a month?

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

WEDNESDAY, MAY 15, 1912

CONGRATULATIONS.

Hearty congratulations are due to Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine, who was last night re-elected for the fifteenth consecutive time, secretary of the Peterborough Board of Trade. He has stood to his guns manfully, some times in face of discouraging indifferences. He has done well his share in making the Board of Trade a beneficial civic asset.

THE VALUE OF PREVENTION.

The Montreal Herald prints this sarcasm:

Up in good Ontario, where they carefully keep children under fifteen outside of moving-picture shows unless accompanied by an adult, they make no effort to prevent them from attending any kind of thatrical performances, including burlesque. These little paradoxes are singularly typical of Ontario.

There is some point in this; and the point is that we are inclined to spasms of virtue, righteous hysterics. We depend too much upon momentary emotion, and pay too little attention to character building. We neglect home training—school training. We send children forth into the cold world, ill clad with protective principles, and then we have to cloak them, tie them down to rules to protect them, when the protection should be within themselves, in solid character, and moral sense of responsibility. It may be difficult to provide this, but there should be some effort to this end. Real reform, to be real, must originate in the individual. Refrom from the outside, supported by props, which the careless foot, in the hurly-burly of human movements, may knock out easily, are not so dependable as inner strength. This is not to disparage the importance of help, but sole dependence upon help does not tend to permanent and solid improvement. We deal too much with effects and neglect causes too much in most of our good works. We deplore the results of bad and imprudent marriage. We spend money and waste effort in caring for the fruits of these ill-assorted marriages. We deplore the prevalence of the feeble minded, and the reproduction of the vicious through such marriages. We allow, without interference or impediment, the weak-minded, the vicious, the alcoholic, and other unfits to mate and reproduce their kind, and then hold up our hands in horror at the depravity of humanity, and the decadence of the race. We make a big fuss about certain aspects of marriage that invite the reproaches of bigotry; but we fail to appreciate that care, even excess of it, and circumspection in avoiding undue facility of marriage is in the right direction. While it is proper to make marriage of proper subjects easy, it is equally proper to put as many obstacles as possible in the way of the marriage of the unfit, either in the way of character and physical and mental qualities, or age. Marriage is the foundation of society and the more its character is watched over, guarded and protected, the better will society be. The infinite social evils that confront and appal the forces of reform are contributed to by opening wide the gate to marriage of the unfit—the pollution of society at its source. We hack at the twigs and branches of the upas tree of social wrongs, but we greatly fail to lay the axe to the root of the tree. In the matter of moral, as well as physical, disease, prevention is better than cure.

With the thumping parliamentary support Toronto gives Rt. Hon. Mr. Borden, one would expect that he would give the city a square deal. Between drinks at the civic banquet given in his honour yesterday, he promised Toronto a "Federal square" deal.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

To-day there is voting in [illegible] general elections. The last message of Sir Lomer Gouin, Liberal Premier, was: "The Liberal party will achieve a splendid victory to-morrow. I have an absolute conviction of it."

The corporation of Port Arthur is suing Toronto Saturday Night, for damages in respect of an article it printed criticising the town's finances. If it hasn't any better luck than others who have "got after" Saturday Night, it will have to pay the costs.

The Brantford Expositor fears that many claimants will receive the $300 Fenian Raid Veterans' bounty, who have no right to it, in other words, have not earned it. It suggests that a large part of the two million dollars necessary will be wasted. We pay more than half a million a year in sessional indemnity to members of Parliament. Is any part of the two millions that would be thus paid out in in one parliament, wasted?

The politically wicked will cavort with unholy glee. Sir Wilfrid Laurier's "nose is out of joint." The bust of the great Canadian which is to adorn the rotunda of the Chateau Laurier, in Ottawa, fell yesterday while it was being placed, and the nose was broken. But Mons. Chevre, the great French sculptor, who designed and carved the bust, repaired the damage. Chevre should have known better than try to place a statue on the 13th day of the month.

THE CENTURY OF PEACE.

A number of representative Canadians, including Sir B. E. Walker, Sir T. G. Shaughnessy, Sir W. R. Meredith, Sir William Mackenzie, Sir L. A. Jette, and Senator Cox have issued invitations for a meeting to be held at Ottawa on the fourth of June for the purpose of forming a Canadian National Association or committee to co-operate with the committees of Great Britain and the United States in arranging for a proper celebration of the approaching century of peace between these three English-speaking countries. The circular reads:

"This century of peace will have been completed on the one hundredth anniversary of the Treaty of Ghent, which was concluded on Christmas Eve, 1814, and ratified on the 17th of February, 1815. It naturally possesses a special interest for Canadians, inasmuch as Canada is immediately adjacent to the United States, and is the portion of the British Empire that witnessed the actual conflicts of the war of 1812-14. The bitterness engendered by those feuds has happily long since passed away, and it seems fitting that we should participate in celebrating the blessings of peace which for a period of one hundred years will have existed between us and our neighbours. It is not quite apparent to what extent this movement has taken concrete form in the United States, but the favourable manner in which the proposal has been received there, as evidenced by the representative character of the national committee, and the enthusiasm with which the idea has been taken up by our friends in Great Britain, indicates that the time has arrived when some tentative step may with propriety be taken by Canada."

It is to be hoped the movement to have a proper observance of the peace centennial will be heartily supported by Canadians, and that no effort will be spared to impress the entire world with the significance of the event. If it is possible to maintain peace between three English-speaking countries, having many conflicting interests and differences of opinion, for an entire century, perpetual peace of world-wide extent is not an impossibility.—Brantford Expositor.

TORONTO'S FAILURE.

The Toronto News, commenting upon the loose-ends' style of management of the city Hydro-Electric enterprise which permitted huge thefts of copper wire, says:

"The issue at stake is a large one. The success or failure of the Hydro-Electric venture must have an important bearing upon the public ownership movement not only in Toronto but throughout the Province. Let municipal control prove abortive in this instance and the cause will receive a body blow. For the mismanagement lately revealed weak members of the Board of Control and City Council were and are in some degree responsible. Much of the construction work was performed before the commission was given control. All along it has been in the power of Council to interpose in so far at least as to expose the true conditions of the service. Controllers and aldermen must not be allowed to evade their responsibility and lay it upon others. The situation will yet be saved, but only by men big enough to realize the importance of the crisis.

If the present condition persists it will grow worse, the city's first large venture in public ownership will prove a costly failure, the democratic movement for the popular ownership and control of public utilities will be seriously retarded, and popular sentiment set against municipal enterprise just as the time approaches when we should be preparing to take over the Toronto Railway Company's franchise and property. In order to strengthen the cause of public ownership in this city and throughout the country we must exert every possible effort to place the Toronto Hydro-Electric system upon a sound basis, and under expert economical management.

The fears of the News are justified. The conditions developed justify the Examiner's differentation of public ownership and public operation — where it is municipal—of public utilities. In spite of every precaution—as experience has proved—municipal operation is bound to be a failure. If Toronto's Hydro-Electric system had been placed earlier in the hands of an independent commission, relieved of the bedevilling influences of municipal politics, there would be an assurance of efficient management and efficient service at a cost regulated by the application of business principles. We have proved this in Peterborough with our municipally owned water works. From the beginning they have been managed by a commission entirely free from municipal control. The result has been success—a marked success, which the most reckless will not say would have been possible under municipal management. It is unfortunate that public ownership and moral control of public utilities should be discredited by the inevitably bad results that come from the civic or municipal administration. Public ownership is solely justified by results—efficiency of service and economical management. These it is admitted, cannot come from municipal or civic management, bound to be complicated by the intrusion of ward politics, with their elaborate implication of evil consequences.

Official Labour Intelligence Of The Conditions Of The Season

The almost unprecedently rapid rise in prices, which has been in progress since about July last, scored another point in advance last month, according to the latest estimate of the Department of Labour. This was largely due to the effect upon the general level of the strengthening in the price of cattle and hogs, and their products which took place in April. Grains also were upward, while some of the metals, notably copper, tin, and spelter, developed great strength. Raw cotton, raw rubber, coal and coke are among the important articles now moving upward. On the other hand, dairy products were generally weaker, from seasonal causes. The final effect is summed up in the statement that the Department's index number moved up during the past month from 134.2 to 135.4 Last year at this time it stood at 126.4 These numbers, it is to be understood, are percentages of the general level of prices throughout the last decade of the last century, the period selected by the Department as the standard for comparison in its measurement of price fluctuations.

As is usual at this period of the year, the number of labour disputes in existence has recently increased, in connection with the settlement of wages schedules for the coming season of activity. There were nineteen strikes reported to the Department of Labour in April, 1911. About fifty firms and 6,000 employees were involved, the loss of time being estimated as in the neighbourhood of 35,000 working days. The only important new disturbance, however, was that of railway construction hands in British Columbia. On the whole, the situation from the standpoint of working days lost, has been more favourable than last year. Only eleven disputes were reported unsettled at the end of th month.

There was a larger return of industrial accidents to the Department during April than in the preceding month or in April, 1911. Altogether, 62 workmen lost their lives and 227 were seriously injured. The record of fatal accidents was favourable, there being 28 fewer fatalities recorded than in March, and 17 less than in April, 1911. The number of non-fatal accidents, however was 45 more than in March, and 108 more than in April, 1911. The only disaster of the month involving the death of more than one workman, occurred on construction work at Callender, Ont., on the line of the Canadian Northern Railway, where two men were killed by flying rock.

FLORIDA---

LAND OF OPPORTUNITY—Home of the successful cultivation of the orange and grapefruit. Strawberries from the fields marketed at Christmas time.

The Florida truck grower can have his vegetable crops, lettuce, celery, cauliflower, potatoes, tomatoes, cabbage, early corn, etc., on the market earlier than any section of the United States, and at a time when other sections have no crops to offer. This gives him a great advantage in the markets of large centres of population.

The crop-growing season is 348 days. No other portion of the United States equals it.

The difference between mean monthly temperature of Florida in January and July is less than 25 degrees, while Maine records 59 and Pennsylvania 55. The state is in the humid area with approximate maximum of rainfall —you know it takes water to raise crops.

Many acres of good, arable land obtainable at reasonable cost.

"WHITE CAPS" DROPPED OPENING GAME OF THE SEASON AT HAMILTON YESTERDAY

Templin's Team Was Beaten 3 to 2 But They Gave Kolts an Awful Argument for the Honours—Peterborough Fans Were Delighted With the Spirit Shown by the "White Caps" Who Outhit the Lee Bunch 9 to 6—Derr Outpitched Teed and Should Have Had a Win.

Special Staff Correspondence.

Old Man Hard Luck butted into the opening game of the Canadian League Baseball season in Hamilton yesterday, and Manager Templin's Peterborough White Caps were beaten by Knotty Lee's Colts by 3 runs to 2. As our old companion Christy Mathewson has so ably expressed it: "We got none of the breaks".

Pitcher Johnny Derr outpitched Walter Teed, the flower of the Kolts' artillery, and the Petes outhit the Ambitious City team by 9 to 6, but in spite of this superiority in pitching and hitting, the White Caps had to content themselves with the small end of the score. A high throw to first base after dropping the the third strike on Jo Jo Keenan, by Catcher Mooney, the direct result of having his finger split open a second before by a foul tip, gave the Kolts two runs and the edge in the second innings, and from then on it was an uphill fight on the part of the Petes. And they did battle all the way down the stretch, the gingery, snappy work of the squad, in spite of the early setback, delighting the Peterborough delegation in the stands. The youngsters in the team were as steady as the veterans, and the whole outfit were on their toes and fighting all through the piece. Half a dozen times afterwards they looked like pulling the game out of the fire, notably in the eighth innings, when they had a man on second and third, with none out, but the Kolts got out of the hole, several close decisions going against the Petes to help the Hamilton squad.

The change from the heavy, slow grass diamond at the Oval, to the lively skinned infield, at Hamilton, bothered the White Caps, and they booted a couple on that account, but they soon settled down and their work was, for the most part, clean cut. Dolan covered first in clever fashion, accepting twelve chances, without a skip, and Hartman and Tully did some nice work on the third-base side of the diamond, the third baseman fielding a couple of sharply-hit balls, perfectly. Templin had a light day at second. All the outfielders had several nice running catches to their credit. Jimmy Beard is charged with an error, but his miss was an excusable one. He dropped a Texas Leaguer, which it looked for a while as if Tully was going to reach it. Seeing that the ball was out of the shortstop's reach Beard dashed forward at the last moment and missed the drive while going at full speed. Outside of his one bad throw, Mooney caught perfectly, and his hitting helped some, as well.

The Kolts fielded in snappy fashion. Schaefer, the new firstbaseman, is a fast fielder, with a good whip. The veteran, Jo Jo Keenan, held down third cleverly, and Maguire and Killilea pulled off some pretty stops and throws. "Bud" Fisher, the lanky catcher, has a grand arm, and his pegging to bases was perfect yesterday. The outfield looked after everything that came their way, in good style.

Johnny Derr pitched a grand game of ball for the White Caps and should have been credited with a win. Six scattered singles were all the supposedly hard-hitting Kolts could corall from the portside flinger, and he had the advantage on them all through, going stronger at the finish than in the opening innings. Derr was as cool as the weather and was at his best in the pinches. The ex-Haverhill boy should win many games for Templin this season.

The White Caps got to Teed for nine perfectly good hits, one of them a double, by the agile Mr. Schwartz, who left fields for us, but at that the former Berliner twirler pitched a nice game with few traces of his former wildness.

In spite of the rather cold weather 2500 people saw the game, and the season was ushered in with the customary ceremonies. There was a parade around the city, headed by the Kilties' Band, and comprising the civic officials, the officers of the League, President McCaffery of the Toronto Ball Club, and the Hamilton and Peterborough teams. At the grounds the players marched across the field and were addressed by Mayor Lee, who afterwards pitched the first ball and then Umpire Yerkes, the old pitcher, took charge of the game.

The Peterborough fans present were highly satisfied with the showing of the team, in spite of the fact that a defeat was registered. They looked the better team, all the way, and were steady and aggressive throughout after an opening that might easily have caused a blow-up. The way they stuck to their guns and the spirit shown was what particularly pleased the bugs from Peterborough, and they returned home last night confident that Manager Templin had made good in everything he has promised, and that he has gathered together a team of real ball players who should be in the first flight all through the season.

For to-day's game Ned Bartlett, the young Rochester pitcher, will be used by Peterborough, with Derr replacing Brode in right field. Lee will probably use Rose, a left-hander, on the rubber. The story of yesterday's game, by innings, follows:

First Innings.

In the first, for Peterborough, Schwartz grounded to Keenan, and Hartman and Tully fanned.—No runs.

For Hamilton, Schaeffer missed three; Keenan smashed a single on a line to right field, and Connie Murphy followed with a slashing one-sacker down the third-base line. Derr got out of the hole by fanning Corns and forcing Killilea to hit an easy grounder to Dolan.—No runs.

Second Innings.

Templin was safe on Killilea's fumble; Dolan sacrificed; Beard grounded to Teed and Templin was called out on a close decision at third. Brode singled, sending Beard to third and Mooney followed with a solid sigle to centre scoring Beard. Brode however, was caught between second and third and run down by Killilea.—One run.

Hamilton won the game in their half, Farrell was walked and Fisher sacrificed. Hartman making a neat play on the bunt. Maguire came through with a single, scoring Farrell. Teed lifted an easy fly to Schwartz and there were two down. Then Schaeffer was hit by a pitched ball and he and Maguire pulled off a double steal. Mooney missed the third strike on Keenan and then threw high to first. Maguire and Schaeffer scored. Fisher ended the innings by grounding to Hartman.—Three runs.

BABE TULLY, the White Caps' Short-Stop, Who Had Two Hits Yesterday.

Third Innings.

Derr grounded out to Killilea and Schwartz lifted a high one to Farrell in left; Hartman singled, but was out stealing, Fisher to Killilea.—No runs.

Corns was safe on Tully's fumble. Killilea missed three. Farrell sacrificed, going out, Mooney to Dolan. Fisher grounded to Hartman, a neat pickup by the White Caps third baseman.—No runs.

Fourth Innings.

Tully led off with a single to left centre. Templin sacrificed, going out, Schaeffer to Teed, the pitcher covering the bag in clever fashion. Dolan walked; Beard smashed a grounder at Maguire who tossed Dolan out at second, and Killilea's throw beat Beard at first.—No runs.

Maguire flew out to Beard. Teed's high fly dropped safely into right field. Schaeffer followed with a single, but Beard grabbed Keenan's fly to centre and Templin threw out Murphy at first.—No runs.

Fifth Innings.

Brode struck out. Mooney singled over second. Murphy nailed Derr's line smash to right. On the hit and run play, Schwartz pushed a single between first and second, Mooney going to third on the play. Hartman ended the innings by grounding to Killilea.—No runs.

Schwartz corralled Corns' smash to left; Killilea missed three, and Farrell lifted a fly to Brode.—No runs.

Sixth Innings.

Tully singled and went to second on a wild pitch only to be caught off second on a snap throw from Fisher. Templin grounded to Keenan and Dolan died on a bounder to Teed.—No runs.

Fisher fanned. Maguire singled,

but was doubled up on Teed's grounder to Hartman, the latter pulling off a fast double play with the assistance of Tully and Dolan.—No runs.

Seventh Innings.

Beard flew out to Corns. Brode's fly was captured by Farrell, and Mooney fanned.—No runs.

Schaeffer singled, but was doubled at first on Keenan's fly to Brode; Murphy was walked and Beard dropped Corns' short fly to centre after a long run. Killilea died on a grounder to Derr.—No runs.

Eighth Innings.

Derr led off with a line drive to right for a single. Schwartz followed with a smashing two-bagger to left centre, leaving two on and none out. A passed ball scored Derr, and Peterborough's chances looked rosy. However, Schwartz was caught at the plate on Hartman's grounder to Teed. Tully grounded to Maguire and Templin fanned.—One run.

Farrell lifted one to Dolan; Fisher grounded to Derr, and Maguire to Dolan.—No runs.

Ninth Innings.

OPENING DAY NOTES.

The Hamilton team give promise of being the noisiest team in the League. There is Connie Murphy to start with—the Peterborough fans know what he can do in the sound producing line—and he has an able assistant in Jo Jo Keenan, the Adonis of the Canadian League. The two will be the clowns of the circuit, hitting about .300 in the Goat League. Germany Schaefer, the new first sacker, has a voice that rasps like a file, and when he breaks into a trio with Keenan and Murphy, the result is awe-inspiring. Murphy tried some of his howling on the coaching lines yesterday, but Umpire Yerkes put the Maxim silencer on him.

The snappiest play of the game was the double-killing pulled off by Hartman, Tully and Dolan. The ball was hit sharply at Hartman who fielded it beautifully and snapped the ball to second. Tully covered the bag on the dead run and made a perfect throw to first while under full steam.

Schwartz with a double and single, and Tully and Mooney with two one-sackers each, led in the hitting for Peterborough. Schwartz's drive was the only extra base-hit of the game.

The Hamilton infield had a pretty double play to their credit. Killilea's throw to first to complete the double was bad, but Schaefer scooped the ball in nicely.

There were half a dozen times when Peterborough's chances for a win looked good.

All the visiting teams except Berlin were bumped yesterday, even the All Star Ottawas.

The Peterboro Light & Power Company's show-room will be open on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings during May and June from 6 to 10 p. m. for the convenience of those wishing to secure gas appliances or to arrange for gas connections.

Your Safety Depends on the Engine you use

This fact has been demonstrated many times over. It does not pay to buy any but the highest grade engine for your Motor Boat.

FAIRBANKS-MORSE ENGINES are of the highest grade and quality. Repeat orders from all the prominent boat builders and previous owners of Fairbanks-Morse Engines are surely sufficient evidence that it is an engine worth buying.

Easy running, lack of vibration, absolute reliability, careful workmanship, are the cardinal features. No expense is spared to make the FAIRBANKS-MORSE ENGINE the "best ever."

FANS SATISFIED WITH THE RESULT

Judging from the telephone enquiries received by the Examiner yesterday afternoon and evening, regarding the ball game in Hamilton, practically the whole city was anxious to learn the outcome of the "opener." When Peterborough's first run came there was a general feeling of hope and satisfaction, which was, however, soon dampened a few minutes later, when it was learned that Hamilton had put three across. However, the succession of naughts for Hamilton was reassuring, and it was generally claimed that the bad innings could only have resulted from an error. Then the White Caps' second tally in the eighth was an indication that the Peterborough team were there or thereabouts.

The Examiner had a fast telegraph service from Brittania Park and put a sporting extra on the streets at 6.15 with the score by innings. The telephone was kept busy with calls about the score and although the result was a loss there was not one derogatory remark.

"That's fine," one voice remarked. Sounded like a girl's. "I thought it might have been a large score."

"Quite satisfied," a young man said. "We can't hope to win them all, but that score shows Peterborough was fighting all the way."

That was the tenor of the remarks, and it was the right spirit.

The Examiner has arranged for the results of the games every day in the Canadian, International, American and National leagues. They will be received between six and seven o'clock, daily, and will be bulletined at the Examiner office. The Examiner will be pleased to answer telephone calls during the evenings. If you want the results of the games in any of the leagues call the Editorial Room of the Examiner—Bell, 57 Machine.

WANT LINDSAY TO ENTER THE MIDLAND LEAGUE

The chances of the town of Lindsay being represented in the Midland baseball league are not very hopeful, but nevertheless certain of the local fans are putting forth an effort to have a team in the league. Mr. B. H. Sisler of Bowmanville, was in town on Saturday and looked up a number of the local baseball enthusiasts with a view to having Lindsay represented in the league.

Mr. Sisler, who is the manager of the Goodyear Tire Works at Bowmanville, stated that there promised to be a number of good teams in the league this year.

The Lindsay fans would be pleased to see a team from this town in the league, but material of a senior calibre appears to be scarce.

FOOTBALL

There will be a practice match on the carpet factory field to-night (Wednesday) for All Saints. All the members are expected to turn out so that the team can be picked for Saturday.

"DON'T BOTHER ME" SAID SIR COSMO GORDON

Special to The Examiner:

LIVERPOOL, MAY 14.—Sir Cosmo and Lady Duff Gordon, survivors of the Titanic, arrived from New York to-day, on the Lusitania. Both declined to discuss the stories regarding their escape from the sinking liner. Questioned about the testimony of Hendrickson, who said that Sir Cosmo refused to let the lifeboat put back to rescue drowning people, Sir Cosmo said: "Go away and do not bother me."

We Announce a Brilliant Display of the Requirements of the June Brides

Offering A Better, Bigger And Broader Array Of Muslinwear, Dresses, Fabrics, etc., Than Has Ever Been Exhibited In Peterboro

The Bride of June, whose trousseau is as yet uncompleted, will especially appreciate this exposition of muslin undergarments, silk and mull dresses, and light fabrics of every sort.

It is the most pretentious display of this character ever attempted in Peterborough. It comprises only garments and materials of the very highest and most meritorious quality. It exploits fabrics which could be well used for the bridal outfit of a princess, and of her attendants. It offers muslinwear and dresses of fascinating style and charming attractiveness.

This exhibition of the June Bride's requirements is indeed out of the ordinary, and unlike anything of the sort---hitherto held in Peterboro. In quality, in diversity, in beauty and in attractiveness, it eclipses any similiar array ever attempted here.

Our windows are displaying some of these bridal goods, and they should be closely inspected by every one interested in June Weddings. :: :: ::

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

"PETERBOROUGH WILL GROW IN SPITE OF ITSELF, RESPONSIVE TO EXTERNAL INFLUENCES"

hope the legislature of Ontario will make bonusing of any kind illegal. Good industries—the kind you can get—really prefer freedom from municipal obligatation. All they should ask for are sound business reasons for their establishment, cheap power and competent labour.

The industrial growth of a community is not dependent alone upon a specific or economic advantage. Iron ore and raw cotton are hauled a thousand miles to the mills of Ohio, Pennsylvania and New England. Wool is brought from Australia to Peterborough. Raw material is often of insignificant value compared with the cost of operating machinery and skilled labour. I say skilled labour advisedly. Cheap labour is not an element of permanent industrial or communal prosperity. Given a location such as this with its facilities for good transportation and distribution, normal taxation and land cost, Peterborough ought to become a great manufacturing centre. With the wonderful water powers nature has given you, you should be able to outrival every city in central Ontario. With cheap power to offer manufacturers, you need have no anxiety as to your industrial future.

Live Board of Trade Needed.

The acquirement of cheap water power is necessary to the future growth of Peterborough. If Peterborough bend down its own water powers you could successfully meet any competition for power-using industries. It will lose a large measure of this advantage if the water powers are owned and controlled by private corporations, for the simple reason that the main object of a private corporation is private profit. In the present situation Peterborough needs a vigorous Board of Trade to stand with the Mayor and Board of Aldermen in their purpose to place Peterborough where it naturally belongs, in the front rank as an industrial city.

We hear much of the influx of settlers in the Northwest, but comparatively little of the influx of industries. But manufacturers are constantly coming to Ontario from the United States and from Europe. The enormous aggregate of importations and the rapid growth of the purchasing public in Canada are sufficient inducements to the foreign manufacturer. What is Peterborough doing to originate and attract sound manufacturing institutions? Does it initiate and promote industry by adhering closely to business standards?

Civic Development.

It is good business judgment to so diversify the architecture of homes and the utility of lands as to maintain and enhance their value. An artistic home can be built as cheaply as an ugly one and costs less to keep in good condition. But the ambition to grow fast is characteristic of too many American and Canadian cities. Their attractive homes and neighbourhoods are regarded merely as external evidences of wealth. With the excitement attendant upon "growth," new allotments are laid out. Then come rows of cheap houses, much alike in style, each with its little space of lawn or garden, all set in line and offered for sale or rent on easy terms and with "all modern improvements." The kind of construction one finds in these new neighbourhoods shows a degradation of the builders' art. These blocks of poorly-built, box-like houses are not a good investment, even from the viewpoint of the real estate agent or building contractor, because they emphasize neighbourhood distinctions and the inevitable tendency is deterioration and a rapid lowering of values in such sections.

This unintelligent and undirected way of booming a town's growth emphasizes social distinctions on a money basis. No matter what education or taste a man with small resources may have, or may desire to impart to his family, he is almost obliged to live in one of these new neighbourhoods. A "class" is assigned to them—the class of limited income. The homes of the prosperous are in sections by themselves. This is hard on people who measure class distinction otherwise than by money standard. The intelligent planning of the city corrects many of the grosser faults and mixes up the dwellings of the people in such a way as to enhance the beauty of the whole city and make a truly democratic community. In England, where social distinctions are more pronounced than here, noteworthy progress has been made in diversifying the use of lands by the classes in the so-called garden cities.

City of Opportunities.

Canada is young—its development is ahead. In this development Peterborough has its opportunity and if it is to become a great metropolitan city, it will be because it possesses the elements and the abilities to be great. If this city shall refuse to rush headlong into the business of promoting more growth, if it shall stand firmly for a finer and more rational development, if it shall preserve the ethics of commerce with rigorous tenacity and hold to the elemental principles of civic excellence, it will inevitably prosper.

Loyalty to country—to the Empire—is expected of every Canadian, but the true patriot must first be loyal to his community. Peterborough is the home of your homes. Here your boys and girls are housed and clothed and educated—trained for their place in life, their duty to their fellows and to themselves. As citizens, you make the environment of these men and women of to-morrow; you make the schools and churches, the shops and factories, the streets and play grounds, the religious and moral atmosphere, the newspapers and society; these are all precisely what you make them. You are responsible, in exact ratio as the environment of the rising generation lacks elevating or inspiring influences, or possesses the qualities of high social and civic character. If you, who are the leaders in the community, fail to guide the city in its development—who will?

Strategically Located.

I often think that some eminent landscape artist selected the site for this city. Compared with other ordinary towns it is a good place to live in. Nature has endowed this particular locality by a beneficient formation of land and water. We know that Peterborough will continue to grow. It will grow in spite of itself, responsive to external influences. It is already established as an important industrial centre. Its situation is strategic in relation to Ontario's commercial development. It is a good railway centre and will soon have its canal to the Great Lakes and the seaboard.

Peterborough has nearly doubled its population in twenty years. At the present normal rate of progress will, within the next twenty years, become a city of more than forty thousand. But suppose its growth in numbers is as rapid as that of some of the cities in Canada and the United States during the last decade, its population will exceed one hundred thousand within ten years—in 1922. In any case the impost is upon you to prepare for a future and the future city will be what you make it. If Peterborough became the most attractive city in Canada, it would attract industries, it would soon be a thriving progressive metropolis, it would be advertised from one end of the continent to the other and across the sea.

The Board of Trade.

Next in importance to the legislative body of the city stands the Board of Trade, yet I am led to believe that this representative organization is not sustained by a large number of our business and professional men. Its annual dues for 300 days are no more than one would pay for two seats in the balcony of the opera house of an evening. If you compel the board of trade to be inefficient by lack of support it isn't fair to find fault with it and I find that the board is more often abused than praised. It is just as impossible to run a bank without men and capital as it is to make an efficient board of trade out of such conditions. If the board of trade is a business institution then it should be equipped to do business.

At this stage of our civilization, the urban community is not adequately organized to carry its resolutions to effect. The community needs an organization with a public conscience and a keen sense of public responsibility. My private opinion is that a vigorous board of trade is as necessary to the city as a board of aldermen. The time has gone by when the development of a city may safely be left to itself. What is everybody's business is nobody's business. Your greatest need to-day is a board of trade that will see to it that the city's commercial and industrial advancement, and the interests of the public at large are given as intelligent and diligent attention as those of any well-managed private corporation.

Citizens Should Co-operate.

To you, as citizens, the leading question is—are existing conditions in themselves sufficient to insure a greater future? Individual enterprise will do something but individual enterprise blessed, can do anything within reason. Make the intelligence of Peterborough single-minded in purpose and you can exercise irresistible influence and power. If Peterborough intends to pass her rivals and competitors she should have a Board of Trade that serves as the brain of the city—one that sees ahead, comprehends the whole situation, develops each factor and energizes every upbuilding agency within its grasp. The welfare and growth of the community affect business and often touch it intimately. The modern board of trade should be civic society; and if it is not a civic society it has little commercial value, for the growth of business and that of the city are co-related.

But one does not need to live long in Peterborough to learn that many people have narrow views of the future. The plain truth is that there is a small army of knockers here. Indeed, it is rarely that one meets a man or woman who is a thorough-going believer in the future. The people of Peterborough need larger to have more faith in their city, for without that it is manifestly impossible for the city to rise above mediocrity. The great city of the future will be the creation and work of men and women of large vision.

A Greater Peterborough.

Civic organization is necessary to promote civic growth. When I assert that Peterborough will respond to a right spirit of unity, to intelligent, well-directed co-operation, I merely state a simple fact.

If you lived in one of our more progressive cities and desired to join the board of trade you would be obliged to be of good standing personally, and, if elected, to pay an admission fee and twenty-five dollars or more dues per year; and the only personal benefit you would get would be the privilege of working for the board and the city. If you mean to build a greater Peterborough you cannot do it successfully without a competent organization, and you must give more members, more money and more time to work. To build a big city is a big task, but it can be done by big men, if there are enough of them to labour in unison for the common object — the city's growth.

Fortunately, in these days, the public interest has come to be the recognized concern of business and professional men, and as one consequence, their cities and Boards of Trade are receiving the aid of the ablest and most patriotic citizens. And by reason of this voluntary service our cities are receiving, and will more and more receive, the benefit of keen analysis, judicial criticism and businesslike treatment.

A Want of Confidence.

What Peterborough needs is a breaking away from its conventional conservation and timidity. One must actually go away from home to get warrant for a substantial faith in Peterborough's future. The conservative directors of railways and banks, seated in their board rooms in distant cities, have shown a larger confidence in Peterborough than those who live here and pay the tax bills.

Canada's greatest railway company has purchased some of the city's most valuable land and is now extending its track and freight yards.

If you want to measure the confidence in Peterborough of a great public service corporation, visit the new water power and electric generating plant now in course of construction in the north end.

If you want still another index of faith in Peterborough's future, count the number of banks established here. These are not all needed for present demands, but they are established because the growth of Peterborough is assured.

A Long Pull and a Strong Pull.

I might go on with other illustrations, but it is not necessary. A little less knocking at home and a good deal more enthusiasm among our own people will work wonders. A long pull and a strong pull and a pull altogether by the Board of Trade should make Peterborough one of Canada's most prosperous and beautiful cities.

In my humble opinion Peterborough has a rare chance to put a sustaining and stimulating organism at work. Results are certain if the intelligence, energy and liberality of our most useful men have a proper channel for their exercise. That channel should be your Board of Trade. The question is not how little you can give to it, but how much. The genius of a competent Board of Trade is leadership; its spirit, citizenship, its aim, the common good. Hence it should be so supported and equipped as to make its aim, its spirit and its leadership, factors in the constructive work and public service of the city. Such an organization must put into action the latent energies of the community. It should break down obstructive traditions and override obstacles. The time for action is now. Do not overlook the fact that the prestige and growth of the future Peterborough depend upon the practices, principles, methods and aims that are inculcated and applied to-day.

Business Transacted.

A letter was received from Mr. F. D. Morley, secretary Toronto Board of Trade, with the request that the Peterborough Board of Trade forward a recommendation that the 1912 Imperial Congress be held in Toronto.

It was moved by Mr. W. H. Moore, that the secretary be instructed to write a letter to the British Consul urging that the Imperial Congress be held in Toronto.—Carried.

A resolution was passed conveying the thanks of the Board to His Worship Mayor Bradburn and members of the City Council for the use of the Council chamber during the past year.

Officers Elected.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mr. Vincent Eastwood, re-elected; Vice-President, Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr.; Treasurer, Mr. James Hamilton; Secretary, Mr. T. G. Quartermaine, re-elected.

A committee composed of Mr. G. A. Gillespie, Rev. Canon Davidson and Mr. W. H. Moore was appointed to co-operate with the Canadian Club in the matter of planning for the celebration to be held in the city on the 1st of July, which is a public holiday.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Ritchie for the valuable services he had rendered the Board by means of his able and edifying address.

Mr. Ritchie replied briefly, thanking the Board for their kindness and volunteering his services to the Peterborough Board of Trade whenever
